HONORING THE COUNTRY'S DEAD HEROES GRAVES.

PLAINFIELD MAINTAINS ITS PATRIOTISM ON DECORATION DAY.

Bands of Music, Marching Veterans, Floral Bouquets and Patriotic Words Marked the Event of Saturday Last.

As the years pass by, increasing the span that separates the present from the time when the thundering clouds of war were driven from the skies by the superb generalship and stolid bravery of the nation's sons, the generation that knows the story of those stirring times only from recital, tradition and history observes with more fitting ceremony, the day set apart as the national tribute to the memory of the heroes of those times.

Plainfield has always been a grateful observer of the ceremonies of Memorial Day, and last Saturday was no exception.

Col. Mason W. Tyler, Marshal of the Day was unable to officiate, owing to having been suddenly called to Connecticut. Capt. William Hand, one of the aides, acting instead. The other aides were Major W. D. W. Miller and B. S. Braider. Daniel H. Ginna and Thomas R. Von Boskirk, did not take part but had been appointed aides. The formation of the line was as follows:

Marshal and aides; platoon of police, under command of Sergeant Kiely. Prof. Guttman's band of twenty-three pieces; High School Cadets, under command of Capt. Edwards; John Hand Camp, Sons of Veterans, under command of Captain Willard Sutton; platoon of Post 73; St. Mary's fife and drum corps, and children; platoon of Post 83; Daughters of the Regiment, Misses Try and Sadie Mattox and Laura Radin; detachment of school children; platoon of Post 73; school children; platoon of Post 108; school children; platoon of Post 109; school children; platoon of Post 73 as rear guard.

The line of march was as follows: Countermarch from Watchung avenue to Grove street, to Lincoln place, to Somerset street, to Front street, to Park avenue, to Seventh street.

All along the line of march Old Glory was very much in evidence. Several residents showed their patriotism by decorating their residences with bunting and flags, and when the parade passed such points those in it showed their approval of the patriotic efforts by shouts and hurrahs.

At Seventh street and Park avenue the different divisions charged with decorating the graves in the different cemeteries separated and the parade dispersed.

At the cemeteries in this city no service of any special interest was held, beyond placing the customary flowers on the graves of the departed heroes. When the parade dispersed, the band, Sons of Veterans and St. Mary's school delegation went to St. Mary's cemetery, from which point the band and Sons of Veterans were conveyed by stage to Scotch Plains, where a most interesting and impressing service was held over the grave of John Hand, after whom the Sons of Veteran camp was named. The service over the grave consisted of reading by Capt. Willard Sutton, a prayer by Chaplain McVoy and an address by Rev. Geo. Angleman, pastor of the Scotch Plains Methodist church, in which Mr. Angleman spoke of the solemnity of the occasion when we gather to do honor to the hero dead. Next came a song by the school children of the Scotch Plains public school. Prof. Guttman's band rendered "Nearer, My God to Thee." Three volleys were fired over the grave by the Sons of Veterans and then Rev. Mr. Parks, former pastor of the Scotch Plains Baptist church, pronounced the benediction.

Then followed a short service over the graves of the unknown dead. Rev. Mr. Parks spoke touchingly of the heroes who lie beneath the sod and of whom there is no record. This was followed by the rendition of "America" by the band and then a short speech by John Robinson, of the Scotch Plains fire department, closed the exercises. The Plainfield delegation were escorted to and from the cemetery by the Scotch Plains fire department.

The usual Decoration Day exercises were held in Music Hall in the afternoon. They were scheduled to begin at 2 o'clock, and by that time the hall was crowded to the doors. It was 2:55 when the curtain went up and displayed to the audience of nearly 1,000 persons a raised platform, filled to its utmost capacity with children, each one of whom carried an American flag. The hall had been profusely decorated with flags and bunting, and the boxes on either side of the stage were almost hidden from view with flowers.

Commander McVoy, of Post 73, opened the exercises by calling on Adjt. Walker, of Post 73, to read the Memorial Day orders, issued from the G. A. R. headquarters at Indianapolis. Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, of Hope chapel, then offered prayer. Those occupying chairs on the stage were: Commander McVoy, General Negley, Rev. G. Kennedy Newell and Commander Dunham, of Post 109. A selection by Prof. Guttman's band followed, accompanied by the waving of flags by the children, which made a pleasing sight. The rendition was an excellent one and was greeted with applause that shook the house. Then there was a song by the childen, accompanied by Miss Ada Nash on the piano. Commander McVoy addressed a few words of welcome to the assemblage, and was followed by reading of the Scriptures by Senior Vice-Commander Frank Whitely, Junior Vice-Commander Wm. R. Moore, Officer of the Day Wm. C. Smith, and prayer by Chaplain John Goodwin. Next came singing by the children, under the leadership of Prof. MacClymont, accompanied by Miss Nash.

Commander McVoy in a few timely words, presented General Negley whose speech was delivered in an excellent manner and was as follows:

Comrades and Friends:—As long as the love of country preserves the Union of States and so long as the stainless banner you followed so heroically through the gloom of disaster, and cheered in the moments of victory, floats proudly over the dome of the Nation's Capital, the services of the Grand Armies of the Republic will be recounted and honored by countless generations. The ceremonies attending the annual meetings of the survivors of the War of the Rebellion exhibit a pathetic expression of true Americanism and loyalty, reaching from the pine scented forests of the North to the golden strands of the Pacific.

To the boys who wore the blue it is an hour of solemn retrospection. Tangled memories of the days and nights when you closed up with measured step and undaunted courage, from Bull Run to Appomattox, rise out of the mist of years, and sets your hearts aglow and thrill your souls with the spirit of '61 when you sang: "We are coming, Father Abraham, Five Hundred Thousand strong."

The panorama of wonderful events since then have sped onward. Nature has cast her mantle of beauty over the circumvallations of war; intelligence, charity, patriotism and the pursuit of happiness have happily united the people of all sections under one government, one flag, and one destiny.

The high aims and progressive tendencies of the Nation have expanded like the flowers that open their buds on this beautiful summer morn to shed their fragrance and enchant us with celestial beauty.

The sisterhood of states will be pledged anew today over the graves of the mighty host who fell in defence of their country's laws. The Civil War was a cataclysm of moral forces let loose against slavery and the insanity of secession. The Century plant of Independence flourishes now on soil trodden by the foot of serf or slave. It was not a scourge or conquest for tribute.—it was waged against sectional hate and degregation of labor that the Union might be preserved. The inspiration of the war was not for glory or revenge; on the contrary, it was a war to insure peace, equality and liberty to all under the law. The readiness with which the soldiers in both the Union and Confederate Armies laid down their arms and took up the implements of peaceful industries "with malice toward none and charity toward all," was an act that crowned with imperishable renown the achievements of war.

No other nation could have organized such an army from the untrained youth of its country in so brief a period; and no other nation could without causing distress or commotion disband a million of men and have them return to their homes and resume peaceful labors without a murmur. Thus providentially, there was scattered throughout this fair land of ours self reliant, sturdy men,—men with enlarged ideas, high resolves and a deep and abiding love of country. It opened up avenues of honor and renown to self made men of humble birth, whose ranks have furnished three Chief Magistrates; possibly a fourth will be our coming Executive.

The patriotism, endurance and earnestness of the volunteer armies challenged the respect of both friends and foes and furnished the gleaner in the fields of history the highest types of moral courage.

If it had been possible to record all the instances of personal valor displayed in every engagement what a precious tribute it would be to the fame of the men who marched in the ranks. Glancing backward over seven years active service during two great wars, I recall episodes and acts of daring, which would fill pages of story. It may entertain the youth present for me to relate one or two of these incidents:

In the month of April, 1862, my command was stationed at Columbia, Tennessee. The greater part of General Buells army was enroute for Pittsburgh Landing. I was charged with the duty of keeping open the lines of communication between Nashville and the Tennessee River. Beauregard's army was on its way to join the Confederate forces at Shiloh. The country south of Columbia swarmed with Guerllas and small detachments of Confedate Calvary—Scouting in any direction was an unhealthy business. Returning to my headquarters late one evening, I found in waiting a courier from General Mitchell. On reading the dispatch, I observed that the date indicated that he had been longer than usual on the road. He replied that he was detained by a little misunderstanding with some rebels he had met near Pulaski. Then he was silent. Oh, I said, misunderstandings with the rebels are becoming quite frequent and disagreeable, but tell me about it. Well, he said, my horse was tired, and I was riding slowly, keeping a sharp watch on either side. At a sudden bend of the road, I met two mounted rebels face to face. I saw that they were armed with double barreled shot guns. Quickly pulling my revolver and spuring on my horse, I ordered them to drop their guns. This they did instantly. I then told them to ride in advance but to make no sound. On rising a sharp hill, we came upon another rebel calvaryman, who was directing some negroes to hurry forward a mule team too heavily loaded with salt bacon.

Without seeming to recognize me as a Yankee, I rode up to him and demanded his arms. Seeing his comrades unarmed he handed over his gun. I then ordered the Confederates to dismount and hand the reins to one of the negroes, the others were directed to take the harness off the mules, turn them loose, and pile rails under the wagon and set them afire. This was quickly done. The negroes were then ordered to mount the horses and ride toward Nashville as fast as the horses could run. They lost no time in doing so. I then told the Confederates to walk and keep ahead of me, which they did reluctantly, supposing that I intended to retain them as prisoners. When a sufficient time had elapsed for the bacon to be destroyed, I paroled the prisoners and rode off. Jackson, for that was his name, spoke of this affair with the utmost coolness, indeed, he looked upon it as a simple incident of duty.

Over 70,000,000 of people earn more from their home industry than 130,000,000 of the inhabitants of the most highly favored nations of Europe. We command one-fifth of the combined wealth of the civilized world; our accumulated earnings equal three-fourths of the savings of the richest nations of Europe. Since the close of the War of the Rebellion, the material wealth of the United States has increased one hundred per cent. as against England's forty per cent., Germany's seventy per cent. and France's forty-five per cent. We have in operation 181,000 miles of railway (out of 400,000 miles in all countries) traversing every state and territory, blending together races, customs, and the production of every clime, sea and land. BAD FOR THE CIDERITES

WITNESSES SWORE THEY BOUGHT HARD CIDER ON SUNDAY.

Jewish Rabbi Pleaded Not Guilty, But a Bottle of Cider Was Produced Which Was Bought in His Place.

The trials of the alleged Sunday cider sellers were held at the city court room this morning before a large audience that completely packed the court room.

A man by the name of Gunski, who is the real proprietor of Cassedy's store on South Second street, was the first to appear for trial. He pleaded not guilty. The principal witnesses against him were William J. Hartpence and William Wenden, who swore they had purchased cider at the store on a Sunday. Gunski claimed that it was only stale root beer.

The Jewish Rabbi, Aaron Gorvitz, was present and made a plea of not guilty. Walter Jenkins and Charles Jenkins, two colored men, testified against him. According to their story they had bought cider at the rabbi's store on Plainfield avenue one Sunday and they produced a flask of it to show the court, which one of them sampled to prove his statement. The testimony appeared rather strong, but the Judge decided to pronounce sentence in the case next Saturday morning.

THE ROSE TEA.

Charming Social Event of The Relief Association.

If the women of Plainfield resolve to accomplish a certain purpose there is no such thing as failure and when these energetic women were inspired to help pay off the debt on the property now held and occupied by the Relief Association on West Front street, a substantial gain resulted. It took the form of a "Rose Tea" and was given at the Seminary Saturday afternoon and evening, from four to eight o'clock, by Miss Kenyon and a large number of Plainfield women. The rooms were charmingly decorated with roses of the choicest variety. Many Plainfield women freely contributed flowers and refreshments, as did also several Plainfield merchants. Between the appointed hours there were upwards of 200 guests present, who chatted merrily over the cup of tea and thus assisted materially the worthy object represented. Miss Kenyon received, assisted by Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. W. E. Lowe, Mrs. Field, Mrs. Chas. Wadsworth, Mrs. H. B. Opdyke, Mrs. George Von Boskerck and Mrs. C. W. McCutchen. Those who poured tea were Mrs. Timpson, Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Atterbury and Mrs. Howard Tracy. The amount realized was large and fully repaid the women for their earnest efforts. A number of the guests received bunches of roses which they carried away as souvenirs of the event.

BICYCLE ACCIDENTS GALORE.

Miss Ida Dunham Has a Fall and Loses Several Teeth Thereby.

Miss Ida Dunham, of Arlington avenue, had a very serious fall from a bicycle on Park avenue Friday evening. She went to Metuchen with a party of young people and on her return exchanged her light wheel for the heavier one of a friend. She started to coast down a hill when the wheel got beyond her control and finally sent her flying over the handle-bars. Her face was badly cut and bruised while a number of her teeth were knocked out and she sustained a number of other bruises. Judge DeMeza, who was passing by, took her home in his carriage. She was unable to stand and had to be carried to the buggy.

Miss Saydee Douglass, of Sycamore avenue, had her wheel wrecked by a collision with a scorcher on the Springfield road Saturday morning. She was not injured beside a few scratches and bruises.

Robert Clark, of Washingtonville, and Wm. Kitchen, of Somerset street, collided with Dr. Zeglio's carriage near Warrenville yesterday. Both young men were pretty well shaken up and Kitchen's wheel was demolished.

James Cooper, one of the gypsies camped at Avon Park, while riding a borrowed wheel Saturday ran into a wagon. He escaped serious injury.

An unknown wheelman slipped in the mud on Park avenue Saturday evening and fell under the wheels of a passing carriage. He was not hurt but his wheel was badly bent.

Passed His Junior Examination.

Friday, the Law Department of the University of New York held its last session before the summer vacation. Frank J. Blatz, of Somerset street, has successfully passed his junior examinations and is now a fullfledged senior. The commencement exercises will be held tomorrow evening and then Robert M. Clark, of Washingtonville, and Geo. Ball, of Fanwood, will be among the graduating class.

SHOT AT HIS BROTHER.

TWO MC CANN BOYS QUARREL AND ONE PULLS A GUN AND SHOOTS.

But His Arm Was Unsteady and The Shots Went Wide of Their Mark—Gave The Police a Chase to Find Him.

The McCann brothers managed to startle the West End last night by engaging in a quarrel that ended with pistol shots. Their little affair occurred at their home on West Third street and it ended with a lively chase by the police.

John is the elder of the two. James, better known as "Jim," is the younger. They had both been drinking, but neither was drunk. They quarrelled, nobody knows over what, and then "Jim" puiled a revolver and fired three shots at his brother. His hand was not steady and all three bullets went wide of the mark. The younger of the brothers waked to the realization or the fact that he had committed a crime and then he proceeded to leave the neighborhood as fast as possible.

Patrolman Hartpence heard the shots and ran in the direction from which they came. Many other people heard them also and followed. McCann ran through the yards to West Fourth street, then up to Liberty street, while the officer and the crowd followed in full cry.

He disappeared in the yard of the Parochial school and a search was instituted.

Sergeant Kiely hustled to the scene on his wheel and Roundsman Frederickson followed on his. Someone said McCann had stolen a wheel and gone to New Brooklyn, so the officers followed. After riding around for sometime Frederickson decided that McCann was in hiding near the school. He made an examination and found the missing young man stowed away under the back porch.

"What the ——— do you want of me?" growled McCann, as the officer hauled him out. He was informed. "I've been here since morning," stammered the prisoner.

"How did you get there?" asked the officer.

"Don't know," was the reply and McCann was marched to jail. He will come up for trial this afternoon.

Co. to Plainfield Real Estate Company, two tracts Fourth street, $1; Henry Harmond to Andrew Schlick, lot Third street, $300; Harry Avener to Andrew Schlick, lot Third street, $300; Samuel W. Baxter to William B. Smith, lot Third street, 500 feet south, $1,700; William B. Smith to Plainfield B. & L. Association, lot Third street, 500 feet southwest Spooner avenue, $1,601.

An Incipient Blaze.

About 5 o'clock Friday afternoon a telephone message was received at fire headquarters from the Revere House, stating that the chimney was on fire. First Assistant James Martin, Driver Wm. Ross and David Angerbauer, hastened at once to the hotel with No. 2 hose carriage. It was learned that there was a small fire in the chimney, and with the use of two extinguishers it was soon put out. The clerk at the hotel had just previously thrown salt down the chimney, which helped to stop the fire. There was no damage.

An Old Soldier Dead.

Michael Wolf, for fifty years a resident of Plainfield, died at the Soldier's Home at Kearny last Wednesday from old age. He was buried Friday at the Fairmount Cemetery, Newark. He was well-known among the older residents as a tailor. He was in the employ of J. M. Schorb, of this city, for thirty years. He was a member of the 40th N. J. Volunteers during the war. He was about eighty years of age.

An Experienced Manager.

The Townsend Sanitarium will open Wednesday for the reception of guests, twenty-six of whom are already booked. The manager of the house is R. Lersch, a man of extensive hotel experience. For several years he conducted the Hotel de l' Europe at Copenhagen, Denmark, where 600 guests were quartered in the summer season.

Cheaper Coal for Cash.

At a meeting of the New Jersey Retail Coal Dealers' Exchange, held in this city Friday evening, it was decided to maintain the price of domestic coal at $5.50 per ton, but to make a reduction of 25 cents to all cash customers.

A DAY OF CONTESTS WITH PEDALING ATHLETES.

THE CRESCENT WHEELMEN CONDUCT A SUCCESSFUL MEET.

A Immense Crowd Gathered at The Crescent Oval and Witnessed Crack Amateurs and Professional Cycle Races.

Exciting races, a large crowd and delightful weather made the Decoration Day meet of the Crescent Wheelmen a grand success. From every road and by-path the crowd came. They began to appear in the morning but the rush did not begin until about noon, when on wheel, on foot and in carriages, they came, and Park avenue was soon a confused mass of carriages and bicycles, the owners of which were intent on reaching the Crescent Oval in time to get a good seat and see the races. The Plainfield people had the first show at the reserved seats early in the week, and they did not leave many for the outsiders. For over two hours the procession continued, until it seemed that all Plainfield was going to the races. But it was not only Plainfield that came. That vast army of cyclists that gathered Saturday morning to witness the famous Irvington-Milburn race sent a big delegation that numbered up into the thousands. They came on wheels, and what a crowd they made. Every known wheel, and lots that are not known, were represented there. The novice, pushing his fifty pound solid tire machine, rode side by side with the "scorcher" on his light racing wheel, while tandems and even triplets were quite numerous. The bloomer girl was there, for what would a race meet be without her. She came, sometimes on a tandem, but usually on the regulation man's wheel, and she cheered the racers and wildly waved her handkerchief with the best of the rooters.

As soon as the grand stand and bleachers began to fill, the crowd grew impatient. The weather was delightful, just the right temperature and scarcely any wind, but the black clouds that often peeped above the horizon foreboded showers, and the audience wanted to get home before they came. Guttman's band was present, however, and music tamed this "savage beast" until the races began. By that time every available seat in grand stand and bleachers was occupied, while carriages lined the back stretch of the track. Officials hurried to and fro, while Sergeant Kiely, clad in white helmet, dress uniform, and bicycle leggins, directed the efforts of the corps of policemen around the track from his bicycle.

Then the races began. The crowd cheered every race impartially and everybody was happy. The track was in good condition and, as a general thing, the riding was fast. The novices were a hustling crowd and made the fastest time of all.

Besides the regular programme, there was a match between "Baron" Ernest T. Hand, of the Crescent Wheelmen, on a single wheel, and R. Kissam, of Westfield, and A. Mulford, of Etizabeth, on a tandem, for a flying quarter. The race was the result of a challenge on the part of the tamden riders, published in The Daily Press. Hand accepted the challenge through The Press and nearly succeeded in winning. He started behind the tandem and allowed it to pace him until the homestretch when he jumped and was beaten by less than a foot. The sympathies of the crowd appeared to be with Hand.

The Jersey wheel made its first appearance on an outdoor track and secured two firsts, three thirds and a fourth. Joe Donoghue, the champion long-distance skater, made his debut as a bicycle rider and succeeded in winning the novice race. Harry Maddox, the ex-Class B man of Asbury Park, rode his first race as a professional and won the two-mile handicap.

Lots of credit should be given to the race committee for their efforts to make the meet a success. The other committees also deserved credit. One pleasing feature of the race meet was the quickness with which the events followed each other, for which the clerk of the course, F. L. C. Martin, and his associates were responsible.

The crowd was variously estimated at from five to eight thousand, while the inclosure where wheels were checked was completely filled and quite a number had to be turned away.

And now something about the races.

One mile novice—First heat: Won by John Ferran, Red Bank, N. J.; Wm. Falch, New York city, second; time, 2:37 2-5. Albert Adatte, of the Greenwich Wheelmen, set a rattling pace at the start and the riders strung out. Joseph Frankenberger, of Elizabeth, fell on first lap, and T. E. Libmore, of New York, on the second, but neither were hurt and both mounted again and pluckily tried to catch the bunch. The finish was a fast one and the first two men ran away from the rest.

Second heat—Won by John Jasper, Bayonne, George W. Scribner, Plainfield, second; time, 2:41 1-5. The Jersey wheel made its first appearance in an amateur race in this heat, mounted by George W. Scribner. Scribner led the bunch at a lively gait until the last lap and then fell back to second place at the finish.

Third heat—Won by J. F. Donoghue, Newburg, N. Y.; H. H. Reeder, New York city, second; time, 2:56 2-5. E. E. Bennett, of New York, started out a slow pace with the other riders bunched behind him, Donoghue, on a Jersey, keeping in the rear. He gradually worked his way to the front and, when the quarter pole on the last lap was reached, the famous skater made a terrific jump that landed him clear ahead of the bunch. He didn't lose any time, but came down the last quarter so fast that the bunch was unable to get within fifteen yards of him.

Fourth heat—Won by H. D. Hesser, Jr., Brooklyn; F. W. L. Fullerton, Montclair Wheelmen, Montclair, N.J., second; time, 2:51. A. P. Simmonds broke his pedal at the start and was forced to retire. J. H. Ogden, of Newark, led the bunch to the last quarter when U. S. Grant, of Princess Bay, tried to follow Donoghue's example, but the bunch soon passed him. Fred. Fullerton, formerly of this city, secured second place.

Fifth heat—Won by L. H. Hunken, Brooklyn; H. G. Swertfager, Yorkville Wheelmen, New York, second; time, 2:33 1-5. This was a fast race all the way and the finish was very exciting. Hunken winning by an inch.

Final heat—Won by Donoghue; Reeder, second; Jasper, third; time, 2:36 2-5. The riders loafed the first time this heat was ridden and finished in 2:45. The time limit was 2:40. It was then run over and the riders to get under the time limit. Scribner held a good position till the homestretch was reached and then Donoghue spurted and took the lead halfway down the stretch and won by several lengths.

Two-thirds mile scratch—First heat—Won by A. C. Green, Greenwich Wheelmen, New York; G. B. Cobb, Jr., Crescent Wheelmen, Plainfield, second; time, 2:03 1-5. A. E. Taylor, of the Riverside Wheelmen, broke his pedal at the start and the riders were called back. They then loafed until the last lap when Cobb took a position well up front, and finished second in a hustling finish.

Second heat—Won by William M. McCutchen, Crescent Wheelmen, Plainfield; R. L. Arner, Allen Wheelmen, Allentown, Pa., second; time, 1:43 1-5. L. R. Lefferson, of Ocean Grove, was fouled in this heat and thrown. W. H. Turner, of New York, also fell. McCutchen, the local favorite, rode in the front of the bunch and made a very pretty finish, crossing the line a winner by a length.

Third heat—Won by J. A. Powell, New York; G. A. Hawkins, Red Bank, second; time 1:46. J. H. Lake attempted to leave the rest at the quarter pole, but was "killed" in the spurt.

Fourth heat—Won by L. R. Lefferson, Ocean Grove; F. B. Egelhoff, Logan Wheelmen, Brooklyn, second; time, 1:45. L. R. Lefferson was allowed to start in this heat and paced the bunch. The riders remained well bunched down to the tape, Lefferson only winning by a wheel.

Final heat—Won by Powell; McCutchen, second; Egelhoff, third; time, 1:42. The riders started out as if they meant business, but gradually slowed down. McCutchen was pocketed on the last lap and fouled by one of the riders. His tremendous spurt took him to within a few feet of Powell and he took second place. Cobb rode unpaced.

One mile, 2:30 class—First heat: Won by C. J. Bird, E. A. C., Elizabeth; J. Johnson, Red Bank, second; time, 2:47 1-5. The men loafed until the last lap when the usual spurt occurred in the final push.

Second heat—Won by William M. McCutchen, Crescent Wheelmen, Plainfield; L. R. Lefferson, Ocean Grove, second; time, 2:56 4-5. Time limit, 2:45. No race. The riders did not understand about the time limit and loafed. McCutchen won the heat after a strong fight with Kluge. Lefferson came up unobserved and almost caught McCutchen. The latter won by several inches. This heat was thrown out.

Third heat—Won by G. A. Hawkins, Red Bank; B. C. Jacobus, Montclair, second; time, 2:58; time limit, 2:45. No race. The riders would not ride fast enough and lost

1,138 WERE KILLED

Announcement of the Number of Victims on the Hodynsky Plain.

MANY INJURED CANNOT RECOVER

The Awful Stampede Described by an American Correspondent — Trenches Full of Dead and Dying—The Czar Will Aid the Survivors.

Moscow, June 1.—This city has not yet recovered from the shock occasioned by the frightful calamity that occurred Saturday on the Hodynsky plain during the progress of the great free feast and entertainment in connection with the coronation ceremonies given at the expense of the czar to whosoever desired to partake. The extent of the disaster was not exaggerated in the first reports. The representative of the United Press was an eye-witness of the stampede of the great multitude of people gathered on the plain, estimated to have numbered fully 500,000, and the sight was one never to be forgotten for its horror. After the crowd had been dispersed by the police and military the field was strewn with the dead who had been killed by being crushed, trampled upon or by suffocation. A great number of children were among the victims. In the wild rush of the frenzied crowd they were swept away from their parents or others having charge of them, and their puny strength availed them naught when pitted against the irresistable force of the surging mob. The instant they stumbled and fell life was crushed out of them. But this was also the case with many adults. No human strength could withstand the mad crush of the crowd, and safety could alone be found in allowing ones self to be carried forward and back in the pulsating crowd, devoting every energy to keeping upon his feet.

1,138 Trampled to Death.

The officials made every effort and offered every facility for the identification of the dead, but the bodies in hundreds of instances are utterly unrecognizable, the faces having been crushed out of all semblance of humanity. A careful search is being made of each body for papers to establish its identity, and a record is made of the clothing of each corpse for the same purpose. It was officially announced this morning that the total number of victims was 1,138. Most of them were Moujiks from the provinces, a poor class of people, but among the number were many of the poverty-stricken residents of Moscow and villages in the neighborhood of the city. The fete was particularly for the benefit of this class of the population, and the middle class generally held aloof from the entertainment, or else visited the plain in the capacity of spectators.

Many Heartrending Scenes.

The scene in the city has been a most painful one. The injured and large numbers of the dead were taken to the hospitals and other charitable institutions, and thither have gone thousands of persons seeking relatives or friends, hoping that the missing ones would be found among those who were only hurt, but dreading the worst. Many affecting scenes were witnessed when it was found that those who were thought to be dead were still alive, though often horribly injured. Sometimes when a body was recognized by a relative, more frequenty a mother whose little one had been torn away from her and its young life crushed out, the scene was heartrending. The stolid demeanor of the Russian peasant would vanish, and the low, plaintiff wailing and floods of tears would bear witness to the bitter grief experienced. Far into the night ambulances, fire trucks and other vehicles were busily engaged in conveying the dead and injured into the city. Many of the injured cannot recover.

Trenches Filled with Dead and Dying.

The representative of the United Press went to the plain yesterday and saw one of the effects of the mad rush. The ditches of the abandoned earthworks on the plain had been filled to the level with the bodies of those who had been driven into them by the awful pressure from behind. Here those who were not crushed to death were suffocated by the dead and dying above them. In the passages between the booths from which the free food was distributed there were still lying the bodies of hundreds of dead men, women and children, women and children predominating. Some of the corpses were frightfully distorted and on the faces still in death there were looks of fear and horror. The sight was altogether a most gruesome one. The clothing had been torn to shreds and the bodies were in a semi-nude condition.

Looked Like Newly Ploughed Ground.

In some parts of the plain the ground looks as though it was newly ploughed. This is where it was torn up by the heavy wooden shoes of the peasants in their wild excitement. So great was the rush of visitors at the hospitals in search of missing relatives and friends that the work of the doctors and surgeons was seriously interrupted. Last evening, therefore, the authorities gave orders for the transfer of the unclaimed bodies to the Vogankoffsky cemetery, where they will remain for a time to enable them to be identified if possible.

Authorities Not To Blame.

The feeling of the Moujiks was very bitter against the authorities, whom they held had not taken sufficient precaution to guard against an affair such as occurred. As a matter of fact, however, the authorities were not to blame. It was impossible for them to foresee that such a great multitude would be present at such an early hour, and at any rate the precautionary measures adopted would have been sufficient had not the people become so frenzied. After the disaster the large force of military and police had the greatest difficulty in restoring even a semblance of order. The czar's promise to help the bereaved families, together with the published expression of his intense grief and deep sympathy, has allayed the bitter feeling, and the people are warmly grateful to him for his action. The czar will give to each bereaved family 1,000 roubles and will defray the expenses of the funerals of all the victims.

Death List May Never Be Known.

Although the official report places the number of dead at 1,138, it is highly probable that the exact number of victims will never be known. The vice-mayor reckons that 1,138 people were killed and 286 seriously, perhaps fatally, injured. The official accounts, however, do not include many dead and injured who were removed by friends. It would not be surprising if the number of deaths was largely in excess of the official figures. There is a chance that the list will be swelled when those who have lost members of their families apply for the relief promised by the czar.

Disused Well Filled with Bodies.

Thirty bodies were found in an old, disused well in the middle of the plain yesterday afternoon. The well was covered with planks, which collapsed when the crowd passed over them. Some of the victims had in their hands, clutched with the death clasp, the memorial cups which had been presented to them at the booths before the rush began. Among the bodies in the well were two living persons, who had been made insane by the horror of their position. Their ravings when rescued were terrible to hear.

PRESBYTERIANS GO HOME.

Resume of the Work Transacted by the General Assembly at Saratoga.

Saratoga, N. Y., June 1.—The second Presbyterian Sunday here was attended by a perfect downpour of rain, but this did not interfere to any great extant with the attendance at the various church services whose pulpits were filled by commissioners. Five sessions were held in the assembly church, opening in the morning with a strong sermon by Rev. David R. Breed of Pittsburg. The Sunday school was conducted at noon by Rev. Dr. James A. Wordon, and a foreign mission service was held at 3 o'clock by Moderator Withrow. The Christian Endeavor meeting preceded the evening service, and was in charge of Rev. Dr. George B. Stewart. The evening service was a popular one and in charge of Rev. Dr. Edward C. Ray, secretary of the board aid for colleges. Rev. Dr. B. L. Agnow of Philadelphia preached at the Second Presbyterian church in the morning and Dr. Robert Hunter of Philadelphia in the evening. By this evening all of the commissioners will have left town, thus closing the assembly for 1896, a brief review of which is apropos. Its session was the shortest in its history, only nine days being consumed. In point of attendance, it was not so large by five members as last year. "As hard problems were up as ever came before the assembly," said one of the members to-day, "and the action was as decisive, but possibly couched in fuller and more modifying language." The urgent desire for seminary control by the assembly was unanimously endorsed, and donors were exhorted as to peril. The action of the Pittsburg assembly as to students in disapproved institutions was affirmed with explanations. There was no weakening on judicial cases. The assembly thought its mission was to eliminante special committees, but it only discharged three and created four new ones. No final action was taken on any great question. The agitation on young people's societies is only begun, it is said, and will be further along next year. The New York Mission house and the seminary control questions are not settled and the "temporalition" subject only started.

CHRISTIAN CHURCHES.

Mr. Gladstone's Letter to Cardinal Rampolli on Their Reunion Made Public.

London, June 1.—Mr. Gladstone's letter to Cardinal Rampolla, papal secretary of state, on the subject of a reunion of the Christian churches is made public. Mr. Gladstone contends that a condemnation of the Anglican orders by Rome would make more conspicuous the religious differences of the churches and enhance the difficulty of future reconciliation. Nevertheless, he says, he does not expect an early restitution of the Christian unity which marked the church's early history. He welcomes the pope's command that an investigation should be held as to the validity of the Anglican orders, and details the advantages that are likely to accrue thereform.

Providence Plumbers on Strike.

Providence, June 1.—Fifty plumbers went on strike this morning as a result of the refusal of the master plumbers to grant the eight-hour work day. Ten firms, not members of the Master Plumbers association, have granted the concession, and their forty men went to work under the new agreement.

Schooner Varuna a Total Loss.

Nassau, N. P., June 1.—The derelict American schooner Varuna went ashore at Atwood cays on May 19 and is a total loss. The Varuna hailed from Perth, Amboy, N. J., and was owned by Amos Birdsall.

Removed to a Safer Jail.

Newport, Ky., June 1.—Scott Jackson, under sentence of death, has been removed to the Covington jail for safe keeping by order of Judge Helm, who considers the jail here unsafe.

TO THEIR FINAL REST

Ninety Victims of the Storm Buried in St. Louis Cemeteries.

A SAD PROCESSION OF HEARSES

Work of Searching the Ruins Continues—Reports of Property Losses Exaggerated in Some Respects—More Deaths Among the Injured.

St. Louis, June 1.—Grand and Florissant avenues, the main thoroughfares of Bellefontaine and Calvary cemeteries, were covered yesterday with a continuous stream of carriages following the victims of the tornado to their last resting places. The appearance of the hearses in the sad procession alone punctuated the points where one funeral party ended and another began. There was a sunless sky and the sombre clouds dripped a misty rain as if nature was weeping at her own dreadful work. Fifty-one of the victims were buried yesterday in this city and thirty-nine in East St. Louis.

Still Searching in the Ruins.

The work of searching the ruins has gone steadily on. Two hundred workhouse prisoners were set to work upon the ruins of the city hospital. Health Officer Starkloff is of the opinion that there are a number of bodies under the ruins and the work was pushed with vigor. Up to 6 o'clock this morning no bodies had been found. Lack of labor in East St. Louis hampers search work. The labor agitator is abroad in that city, and his work has had its effect, as in some cases one dollar an hour was demanded for searching the ruins.

Three More Deaths in East St. Louis.

Three patients died in St. Mary's hospital in East St. Louis yesterday. They were John Kelly, Mrs. Ellen Hennessey and Adolph Hanschol. Most of the work there is directed to searching the ruins of the Vandalia freight depot and other buildings about the eastern approach of the Eads bridge. All the railroads have placed on sale "tornado rate" tickets at all points within a radius of 250 miles of St. Louis, and yesterday there were 50,000 strangers here visiting the ruins. Relief work has been systematized. Dr. W. W. Boyd, chairman of the committee, says that 3,000 applicants received assistance yesterday. The fund for this purpose this morning footed up $91,568. The mails are beginning to bring subscriptions from the whole country. While the demand for help is great, it is still believed that the citizens of this city will be able to care for all without appealing for ouside help.

No Large Hotel Suffered.

The exaggeration of damage to large buildings and hotels by newspaper correspondents is the cause of much indignation. Not one large hotel in this city suffered even temporary inconvenience. The convention auditorium, which was represented to be obliterated, was only slightly damaged. Contractor McGune has repaired the building, and to-day it will be turned over to the Business Men's league ready for occupancy. The city is rapidly recovering from the shock of the disaster, and very soon the storm will be only a date in local history.

EDWIN H. FITLER DEAD.

Ex-Mayor of Philadelphia and a Wealthy Cordage Manufacturer.

Philadelphia, June 1.—Edwin H. Fitler, the head of the great cordage firm of Edwin H. Fitler & Co., died at his country residence near this city last night. Mr. Fitler was born in Philadelphia seventy years ago. He was the strongest opponent of the Cordage trust, and always declined to enter the great combination of cordage manufacturers. Mr. Fitler was a republican in politics and was mayor of Philadelphia from 1887 to 1891. He was reputed to be a millionaire several times over.

Rejoicing Over Release of Boers' Prisoners.

London, June 1.—The Johannesburg Standard telegraphs that the release of all the members of the reform committee with the exception of Messrs. Rhodes, Hammond, Farrar and Phillips, the four leaders who were originally condemned to death, has caused widespread rejoicing, and confidence is felt that the president will extend his generosity to the four leaders who are still in jail under sentence of fifteen years' imprisonment.

Bermuda at Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 1.—All conjecture regarding the whereabouts of the now famous filibustering steamer Bermuda were set at rest yesterday when she steamed up the Delaware river and made fast to her pier. She came from Puerto Cortez, Honduras, and instead of arms and ammunition her cargo consisted of 8,400 bunches of bananas and 8,000 silver dollars.

Trolley Car Down an Embankment.

Pittsburg, June 1.—A trolley car on the south branch of the Second Avenue Traction company jumped the track at six-mile ferry yesterday afternoon. It fell down an enbankment fifteen feet, and turned upset down, and the twenty-seven passengers were thrown into an indiscriminate mess in the top of the car. Two passengers were injured.

It makes no difference whether you were one minute or one hour late, if you missed the train. Better get there on time, even if you have to wait. One hour early is better than one minute late. MAY END THIS WEEK

Congress Expected To Reach Final Adjournment by Saturday.

ALL IMPORTANT WORK COMPLETED

After To-day the Senate Will Remain in Session Until 7 P. M.—Programme for the Final Days in Both Branches.

Washington, June 1.—"I believe we may be able to adjourn by Saturday next," said Senator Allison, chairman of the senate committee on appropriations, yesterday. "The session may run until Monday, but there is really no good reason why we should not have a final adjournment on the day I have named. All of the appropriation bills are enrolled with the exception of the contested items in conference and these can be enrolled on short notice." Senator Allison is not alone in this opinion, and for the purpose of getting away at the earliest possible moment it is understood that the senate will after to-day begin its daily sessions at 11 a. m. and remain in session as late as 7 p. m. One night session will perhaps be necessary to-morrow for the senate has agreed that on that day it will take a final vote on the anti-bond bill. It is the general impression that a vote will be had on the filled cheese bill, which has already passed the house, although a vigorous opposition will be offered to it in the senate. The understanding is that the senate will endeavor to pass the river and harbor bill over the president's veto the day following similar action on that measure by the house. But little, if any, debate is anticipated. The conferees on the postoffice appropriation bill have practically agreed upon all items except the Gorman amendment restricting consolidation of postoffices by the postmaster-general. It is claimed that the house will accede to this amendment. The first conference on this subject was not held until Saturday last, although it passed both houses more than a month ago. The only matters that will be likely to cause debate in other appropriation bills in conference are the sectarian school question in the Indian bill; the decrease in the number of battleships; the limitation of the price to be paid for armors, and the proviso forbidding the employment of contractors of naval officers on leave in the naval bill; a question as to sectarian charities in the District of Columbia bill, and a like question in regard to District of Columbia hospitals in the sundry civil bill.

House of Representatives

To-day being "suspension day" in the house, it is expected that the Phillips labor commission bill, the Erdman arbitration bill, the New Mexico bond bill and the Alaska salmon fishing bill will be called under suspension of the rules. The report of the committee on rivers and harbors upon the president's veto of the river and habor appropriation bill, recommending that it be passed "the president's veto to the contrary notwithstanding," is looked for to-morrow. The house will expend little, if any debate on the matter, and a vote will be taken promptly. The committee on rules may report an order setting aside two additional days besides to-day on which motions to pass bills by suspension of the rules will be in order. This, however, will not be done unless the passage of the joint resolution fixing the date of final adjournment should be delayed until late in the week. When once that resolution passes the six days next preceding the day named for the close of the session will become suspension days under the standing rules of the house.

37 CONVICTS CONFIRMED.

The Catholic Rite Administered to Them in Trenton Prison Yesterday.

Trenton, June 1. — Thirty-seven male convicts, including four negroes, were confirmed at the state prison yesterday afternoon, the rite being administered by the Right Rev. Bishop McFaul. Three of the convicts, one a wife murderer, are converts to the Roman Catholic faith, having been baptized at the prison Saturday. Two hundred and fifty Catholic prisoners were present and formed the congregation. All were in prison garb. Those confirmed wore white shirts, however.

Growth of the American Volunteers.

Philadelphia, June 1.—Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers, made addresses here yesterday afternoon and evening, and on both occasions spoke to large and sympathetic audiences. He said that the Volunteers have sixty-eight officered, organized posts and a number more waiting for staff officers in order to organize, and they have a paper with a paid circulation of 19,000 per week.

Joe Jefferson's Granddaughter To Wed.

New York, June 1.—A special to the Sun from Buzzard's Bay, Mass., says: The engagement has been announced here of the granddaughter of Joseph Jefferson, eldest daughter of Charles B. Jefferson, to Charles Rolfe of Cambridge. The marriage will occur at Buttermilk Bay next month. Mr. Rolfe is a young attorney of Boston, son of Prof. Rolfe of Harvard college, the lecturer of Shakespeare.

Another Trolley Victim.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 1.—A trolley car of the Nassau Electric company, running at a high rate of speed, struck and killed Minnie Eherman, a four-year-old child, on Central avenue last evening. The child was dragged under the fender and literally ground to pieces underneath the motor boxes. The conductor and motorman were arrested.

DEATH OF KATE FIELD.

Sketch of the Career of the Late Well Known Author, Dramatist and Actress.

Washington, June 1.—Miss Kate Field, news of whose death in Honolulu of pneumonia on May 19 has just been received in this country, was born in St. Louis, Mo., her father being Joseph M. Field, a well known actor and journalist. The Field family came originally from Warwickshire, England. Miss Field's grandfather, Matthew, was a leading Catholic in Dublin. He lost all his money in the revolution of 1798, and brought his family to this country, becoming a publisher in Baltimore, Md., where he brought out the first American Catholic almanac. Miss Field's father, disliking a mercantile life and finding the law uncongenial, became an actor. He was one of the founders of the New Orleans Picayune. He established a newspaper in St. Louis and built a theatre there. He married Eliza Riddle, an actress, and Kate was their only child. Miss Field began to write when very young, her first article appearing when she was eight years old. She was passionately fond of music, and was taken to Italy while a child, and there met Walter Savage Landor. He took a great fancy to her and taught her Latin. A fall from a horse impaired Miss Field's health and voice so that she gave up her plans for a stage career and devoted herself to her pen. Recovering her health and voice, Miss Field decided to lecture. She and her friends bought John Brown's farm in the Adirondacks to rescue his body, buried there, from ignominy, and this gave her material for her first lecture, which proved eminently successful. Miss Field went abroad, where she remained for several months, giving lectures and writing for New York newspapers. Returning to America, Miss Field made her debut on the stage of Booth's theatre, in New York city, as Peg Woffington, and had such a bad attack of stage fright that she did not recover her self-possession until the last act. After a starring tour with John T. Raymond Miss Field went to England, where she studied music, brought out a comedy, contributed to various journals, sang to the queen through a telephone, managed a great benefit for the Shakespeare memorial in Stratford, and took part in that theatre. Miss Field returned to journalism in 1885; also wrote several comedies. She had been an ardent prohibitionist, but a visit to California caused her to change her views, so that she became an advocate of temperance, as distinguished from prohibition. Miss Field's next venture was the establishment of "Kate Field's Washington," in the national capital in 1889, which she continued to publish until her death.

FATAL LIGHTNING AT NEWPORT.

Police Officer Dewick Killed in His Home. Child Beside Him Not Injured.

Newport, R. I., June 1.—Newport was last evening visited by a heavy tempest and deluge of rain, accompained by hail. Some of the hailstones were as large as marbles. The storm lasted fifteen minutes, during which time lightning struck the home of Police Officer Dewick. Mr. Dewick was just preparing to go out for night duty, and was standing before a glass fixing his collar. His little girl was beside him. The lightning went the whole length of Mr. Dewick's body killing him and tearing off his shoes. It then passed through the floor to the room below, injuring none of the other six persons in the house. Mr. Dewick has been on the force for ten years. The little girl was not even stunned.

SUSPENDED FOR HAZING.

Sophomore Play at Lafayette Commencement Will Be Abandoned.

Easton, Pa., June 1.—It is stated that four students of the sophomore class of Lafayette college have been suspended for hazing, and that others are on the list. The men suspended were all cast for prominent parts in the sophomore play that was to have been given at commencement, and in consequence the performance, it is said, will be abandoned. The hazings were a surprise, as the college authorities are very strict about this offense. Several of the higher class men are also said to be involved.

Drank Liquor on a Wager and Died.

Waterbury, Conn., June 1.—George Kozmay, aged 35 years, a Russian Jew, Saturday night drank three pints of beer and three glasses of whiskey in five minutes on a wager and died fifteen minutes later.

Portsmouth, N. H., June 1.—The New Hampshire coast life saving crews at Jerry's point, Wallis sand and Rye beach went off duty at midnight and the stations will be closed until August 1.

SITUATION IN CRETE

Manifold Dangers to the Peace of Europe Believed To Be Involved.

ABSORBING ATTENTION IN GERMANY

Christian Governor for the Island Recommended—England Blamed for Exciting the Uprising—One Paper Sees the Breaking Up of Turkey.

Berlin, June 1.—The situation in Crete is engaging the most serious attention of the German government and greatly absorbing public interest as involving manifold dangers to the peace of Europe. It is an open secret that the government, in the event of any radical change taking place in the relations between the island of Crete and the porte will support a proposal for a union of the island with the kingdom of Greece. In the meantime the question of the annexation of the island of Crete to Greece is not one in which the dreibund is vitally interested, though communications have passed between the governments at Berlin, Rome and Vienna tending toward concerted action on the part of the dreibund powers in behalf of Crete, and the Greek government has asked the government of Germany to join Greece in exerting pressure upon Turkey against the latter's throwing large reinforcements of Turkish troops into the island with a view of wiping out the Cretan revolt by sheer force of numbers. What Greece most desires at present is that a sort of truce shall be established between the Turks and Cretan rebels while the European powers confer as to the means of a final settlement of the Cretan question.

Beginning of the Breaking Up of Turkey.

In an article discussing the immediate outcome of the Cretan trouble, the Vossische Zeitung recommends the appointment of a Christian governor for Crete. The Hamburger Nachrichten, the organ of Prince Bismarck, blames England for inciting the rising of the people of Crete, and suggests that the European powers settle the Cretan question concurrently with the Egypting question in a way which will defeat the aims of the English government. The Austrian clerical organ, Das Vaterland, expresses its understanding that Austrian officials apprehend that the breaking up of the Turkish Empire may begin with the separation of Crete from Turkey.

The Case of Stern.

The case of Louis Stern of New York, who forfeited his bail of 80,000 marks under conviction of having insulted Baron von Thuengen, deputy commissioner of the Spa at Kissingen, last summer, has occupied a great deal of space in the columns of the German press since the publication of the correspondence on the subject which passed between Baron von Thielmann, the German ambassador at Washington, and Hon. Richard Olney, United States secretary of state. The home papers have assumed that the publication of the correspondence was due to Mr. Olney for the purpose of causing inconvenience to Baron von Thielmann and bringing about his retirement, but it has not occurred to them that the correspondence was published in the ordinary course of things with no possible bias behind its appearance apart from the utterances of an irresponsible press. The opinion entertained in the foreign office is that Stern did not exhaust the ordinary legal means at his disposal to obtain a reversal of his sentence, and that he asked the state department at Washington to interfere in his case before he had gone to the end of his legal resources, thus creating trouble all round which could have been averted.

Gossip in Berlin.

Mrs. Edwin F. Uhl, wife of the United States ambassador, is about to begin a series of receptions which will be held at her residence in Thiergartenstrasse. The emperor has telegraphed the czar a message of sympathy and sorrow at the unfortunate disaster upon the occasion of the popular fete on the Hodynsky plain at Moscow Saturday, when upwards of a thousand men, women and children were crushed to death. Prince George of Cumberland, son of the Duke of Cumberland, who recently underwent a surgical operation, is still in a critical condition, and hopes of his recovery are very slight. The Berlin dentists who were graduated from American colleges of dentistry held a meeting yesterday and decided to form an organization which is to be incorporated.

Colored Question in Rhode Island.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 1.—The convention of Rhode Island republican clubs may be called on to settle a delicate question when it meets to-morrow. A controversy has arisen over the efforts of the Fred Douglass republican club of this city to secure recognition by the league. The club has a membership embracing all the male colored population of the city, and it proposes to attempt to sit in the league convention to-morrow, despite the efforts of the league leaders to prevent it.

Overdue Ship Arrives.

New York, June 1.—The overdue British four-mast ship Terresdale, hailing from Glasgow, arrived yesterday from Hong Kong after a tedious passage of 150 days. Her long voyage occasioned many fears for her safety, and reinsurance had been effected on her within a few days at the rate of sixty-five guineas premium.

MONTE BREAKS THE RECORD.

Those that have never ridden over the Irvington-Milburn course cannot appreciate what it is to race up those hills, but to ride twenty-five miles of it in one hour, eight minutes and twenty-nine seconds seems even to the unexperienced as rather fast. Such was Monte Scott's time in the race Saturday and such is the record for the course at present. The old record was 1:11:28 made by A. H. Barnett. Of course, Monte won the time prize, everybody in Plainfield expected he would, but the other riders that Plainfield depended on to win the race did not come up to expectations. C. J. Rydell has been quietly training and was to finish well to the front but fate was against him and he dropped out after riding twenty miles, the last three of which were ridden on his rim as his tire punctured.

Mifford Giles, also failed to complete the twenty-five miles.

Chas. A. Appley, of Elizabeth, failed to finish on account of an accident.

Plainfield was well represented among the crowds that lined the course. Among them was C. E. Teel looking after his old charge, Monte Scott.

The first man to cross the tape was Charles Hadfield, of Newark. He was disqualified, however, as a rider without a number paced him part of the way. The race was given to R. M. Alexander, of Hartford, Conn., who finished second. The latter's time was only eighteen seconds more than Scott's.

There was one very unpleasant feature to the race and that was the large number of falls. One rider broke his knee-cap and another his arm, while bruises and cuts were too numerous to mention.

The crowd was something immense and was estimated at about 30,000.

REPRESENTED ALL NATIONS.

Novel Form of a Reception by St. Joseph's Children of Mary.

There was a large attendance at St. Joseph's church last evening when the annual reception of the Children of Mary Society was held. The first order of exercise was the receiving by Rev. Father Miller of ten new members into the society. This was followed by the addresses to the Queen of May from the different countries. Those taking part were:

North America, Miss Bridget Kane; South America, Miss Kate Eagan; England, Miss Lizzie Diver; Ireland, Miss Bridget Gillespie; Asia, Miss Kate Cooley; Africa, Miss Maggie Richardson. Miss Kate Carty and Miss Maria Caffrey were the maids of honor, and Miss Nellie Beglin made the crowning address, while Miss Carney and Miss McCullough acted as attendants at the crowning. Miss Lizzie O'Neil performed the act of consecration for those who entered.

The crowning of the statue, which was beautifully decorated by the Altar Society of the church, and the singing of the crowning hymn was followed with a sermon by Rev. Father Carey, of Trenton, on "Devotion."

The decorations of roses, cut flowers, and the lighted candles, presented a very pretty scene. The service closed with the benediction.

A Lively Runaway.

Quite an excitement was caused on Front street Saturday noon by Adam Blair's white horse which ran away with buggy attached. The horse slipped his bridle on East Front street and ran to Madison avenue and then to Blairs stable on West Sixth street. The street was full of wheelmen and carriages at the time and narrow escapes were numerous. Several people drove their horses upon the sidewalk to avoid a collision with the runaway.

—The case of John French against Albert Brown, on contract, was tried before Justice Nodyne last Friday and judgement rendered with interest and costs. The execution was issued this morning and Constable Mattox made the attachment.

—The flower and strawberry festival held at the Unitarian church Friday afternoon and evening was a great success both financially and socially. The interior of the Sunday-school room was elaborately decorated and there was a large attendance both afternoon and evening. A good sum was received as a result of the festival.

J. Howard Leggett, the druggist, entertained his father, sister and her husband, from Jersey City, over Sunday.

FOUGHT A COLORED COP.

JOE GREEN OBJECTED TO BEING ARRESTED BY A NEGRO OFFICER.

Gave the Officer a Lively Tussle, But Roundsman Frederickson Hauled Him to the Rookery—He Was Convicted.

Special Policeman Pine Yatman attempted to arrest Joseph Green Saturday evening for throwing stones at another man and otherwise being disorderly. Green objected to the colored man touching him and a fight issued. Roundsman Frederickson finally appeared on the scene and marched him off to the lockup. In the city court, Green claimed that he did not know that Yatman was an officer. The case was a strong one against Green, whose past record was not the best, and he was ordered to pay $25 for his fun or take 60 days in jail.

An inoffensive character that gave his name as John Rooney was arrested by Patrolman Post Saturday for a too liberal use of intoxicants. As he was young and promised to behave himself, City Judge DeMeza suspended sentence on him.

Patrolman Post arrested Clarence Whelpy Saturday for celebrating with too much liquor. City Judge DeMeza suspended sentence on him.

Sentence was suspended on Michael Gleason Saturday on the charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Nicholas Kelly pleaded not guilty to the charge of being drunk and disorderly, and his trial was set down for Saturday morning.

Four small lads, John Cockley, Fred Cockley, Will McCue and Harry McCue, were tried on the charge of breaking windows and tearing down fences. Sentence was suspended.

The case of Cornelius Guinee, the hackman, charged with disorderly conduct, was adjourned at the request of his counsel, Walter L. Hetfield, until Saturday morning.

EVILS OF CIGARETTES.

REV. C. E. HERRING OFFERS MEDICAL OPINION ON THE SUBJECT.

Physicians are Almost Unanimous in Censure of the Paper Smoke—Its Bad Effects Felt on the Rising Generation.

"The Present Cigarette Craze" was the popular subject chosen by Rev. C. E. Herring, for his prelude last evening, and the discourse which follows contains many truths:

A moderate use! Who uses it moderately? What is moderate for one is not for another. The "habit is likely to grow." One physician says with vigor "the moderate use leads to its inveterate use." Insurance companies refuse a policy to an inveterate user of tobacco. Every insurance policy asks: "Do you use tobacco and then to what extedt?" and they refuse an inveterate smoker. Another physician says "they do not even inquire enough about its use. It is as important a question as liquor; three or four deaths in my practice I have attributed to use of tobacco." One or two deaths in another's practice he attributed to cigarette smoking. "It affects the blood, makes the heart inactive, causes paralysis of the heart, is apt to produce apoplexy and epileptic fits. In very few cases can tobacco be said to be beneficial and then it is like a glass of whiskey for a distressed condition of stomach—in the end it is seldom helpful."

The cigarette is in the same class with morphine, opium and liquor. A young man in Sing Sing writes to a former teacher the unsolicited testimony that the cigarette was his downfall—and he is not the only victim. We regret the laxity of the Governor in refusing to sign the cigarette bill. This was his opportunity; we honor the man of our number who labored so earnestly for its passage. The Governor's inaction has placed him in an unenviable position. He is in line with the manufacturers of that which is responsible for much of the youthful demoralization of the present day. Corporations backed by millions of dollars are made by the youth but twelve to twenty years of age who smoke cigarettes at five cents a pack. We need men with moral backbone to antagonize these corporations even if it means the loss of political power.

GENESIS OF A "CRANK."

The Effect of Large Ideas Upon Small Minds.

One of the most interesting of psychological studies, says the Century, is the effect of a large idea upon a small mind. A large idea entering a large mind balances and dignifies it; its effect upon a small mind is often completely upsetting. The man becomes intellectually top-heavy and unsteady.

When one becomes observant of this phenomenon he finds much to amuse and again much to deplore. He is amused, for instance, to notice the result of this overloading throughout a long career. Where a subject is thus acted upon by a succession of ideas, each embodying an important truth which the man is incapable of carrying, his receptivity to impression proves to be his bane. The sudden realization for the first time of a fundamental principle makes a monomaniac of him. Another sudden realization of still another fundamental principle and he is spinning off at a new tangent.

But there are times when this effect of large ideas upon little minds is most mischievous and deplorable. Thus is bred the race of incurable cranks in philosophy, theology, art and politics. The word "crank" has been maliciously misused for purposes of cynical ridicule, but it is too descriptive a name to be set aside. The congenial crank is always started on his career of inutility by this application of a big idea to a small brain. The most tiring thing about him is his self-complacency, owing to his knowledge of the fact that better men have been miscalled by his own accurately descriptive cognomen.

APPLICATION OF A FABLE.

A Sheep's Skin Hides the Form of a Human Wolf.

The story of the ass who clothed himself in a lion's skin in order to pass himself off as the king of beasts is well known, but the tale of the thief who got inside a sheep's skin to be better able to carry on his nefarious trade has yet to be told, says the London Telegraph. Early one morning two policemen, who were on duty at the slaughter houses of Paris, were astonished to see a sheep endeavoring to effect an entrance into the inclosure where creatures of its kind were doubled when a man's hand protruded from beneath the stolen fleece. Their curiosity became intensified and they carefully followed the sham animal, who stopped at the pen which inclosed the real article, and with great coolness chose the two largest and fattest of the flock.

Still observed by the watchful guardians of the law, this plagiarist of an ancient fable proceeded to kill and cut up his capture, and was on the point of making off with his booty when he found himself in turn the spoil of the law and was quickly marched off to the police station, where he gave his name as Eugene Lassot. From his account he made a good living out of his occupation by selling the meat to various butchers. For some time, at least, it is to be hoped, that the animals at the abattoirs will cease to be sent to an earlier death by the depredations of this latest wolf in sheep's clothing.

THE LETTER "T."

A French Graphologist Says That It Indicates the Writer's Character.

A French graphologist has discovered that character can be read from the letter "t" alone. He claims that the vertical line represents the fatality of life, and the horizontal bar the influence human will exercises upon this fatality.

In addition, he claims that the higher part of the vertical line—that projecting above the horizontal bar—has indications of the amount of ideality contained in the make-up of the writer, and that the inferior part of this line corresponds to the practical and material part of the man's character.

For instance, the optimist crosses his t's with a line that slopes upward from the earth to the sky, as it were. The poet often crosses his t's quite above the vertical line; in other words, in the sky.

The pessimist crosses his t's with a downward sloping stroke. The line, which commences at the ideal portion of the letter, descends little by little until it is lost among the sad realities of earthly existence.

The practical man it appears, always steers a middle course, and crosses his t's neither in the ideal nor in the material, but exactly midway between the two.

Snowballs Rolled by the Wind.

Passengers on the Flint River division of the Flint & Pere Marquette railroad who came to Flint, Mich., recently reported observing a strange phenomenon in large, level fields not far from the city, says the Chicago Tribune. Hundreds of snowballs, some of them of colossal size, have been rolled together, it is thought, by the action of the wind. The fields were covered with them, and nature accomplished in one night what it would take a large force of boys several days to do.

He Never Drank.

Old Mr. B——, who lived in Bangor several years ago, was called "very close," but grasping as he was he never would accept intoxicating liquor of any kind. One day he was asked to drink by several of the neighbors at the village store, where drinks were sold at ten cents each. "No, I thank ye," he replied; "I never drink, gentlemen. But if it's all the ssame to you I'll take a gimlet instead."

A Dog with Artificial Teeth.

It is said that a dog in Mulliken, Mich., possesses and uses daily a full set of artificial teeth. The dog is very old, and is a family pet. When it lost its teeth recently its owner, according to the story, had the local dentist make the animal a full set of teeth, and they are said to be a perfect working success.

THE SPOTS ON THE SUN.

What the Scientists Think About Their Influence on Our Weather.

The vexed question of the influence of sun-spots on the weather seems to be as far from settlement to-day as it was ten or twenty years ago, says the Youth's Companion. So great an authority as Lord Kelvin has recently expressed a doubt as to whether the coincidences noticed by students of this subject are not, after all, deceptive and misleading. Other investigators, however, continue to think that a real connection exists between the spottedness of the sun and the condition of the weather on the earth.

Among the latest contributions to our knowledge on the subject are those made by Mr. W. L. Dallas, who has investigated the weather records kept from 1856 to 1879 on board ships in the Bay of Bengal, and by Dr. P. Polis, who has reviewed the records of 64 years at Aix-la-Chappelle. Mr. Dallas concludes that, as far as the Bay of Bengal is concerned, the heat is greatest when sun-spots are most numerous. Dr. Polis, on the other hand, finds that at Aix-la Chappelle the warmest seasons formerly coincided with the smallest number of sun-spots, but that since 1878 a change has apparently occurred and now it is hottest when the sun is most spotted. Dr. Polis also finds that the number of thunder storms generally increases with a decrease of the sun-spots.

These facts and inferences are particularly interesting just now, because from this time on we are likely to see the sun-spots rapidly decreasing in size and number for several years to come.

TWO REASONS.

The Judge's Able Support of His Own Decision.

At a circuit court held some years ago in a western state an action of ejectment was tried "by the court without a jury." The decision rendered was couched in such a way that it caused considerable amusement.

The suit was brought, says the Youth's Companion, by a religious society to recover possession of a cemetery. The defendant was a physician in active practice, who, as one of a committee appointed by the church, had bought the ground for the use of the society.

Afterward he severed his connection with the society, and it was found that he had taken the title in his own name, and intended to appropriate the premises for his private use. The defendant insisted that he had bought the ground in his own right after his relations to the society had ceased.

The court, after hearing the evidence and arguments, proceeded to state the grounds for his decision, and ordered judgment for the plaintiff. Whereupon the defendant's counsel arose, and asked the court to state more fully the reasons for the decision.

"Certainly," said his honor, promptly "But as you have heard what I have said, I have only two additional reasons to give: One is that the church seems to need a cemetery, and the other that the doctor has failed to show that his practice is sufficiently large to make it necessary for him to keep a burying ground of his own."

HARDWOOD FOR BATS.

One Concern Consumes Two Million Feet of Lumber in This Way.

The correspondent for the Northwestern Lumberman at Grand Rapids, Mich., says there is a concern in that city that probably makes more bats than any other in the country. This year the output will be 288,000, a record that has not been broken since 1889, when 316,800 were turned out. The best bats are made of second ground white ash; ordinary ones of common white ash, and very ordinary bats—such as the boys play out on the commons with—of maple and basswood. These latter are run through an automatic lathe at the rate of 1,400 a day, while the league bats are turned by hand. A small quantity of "willow" bats are made of poplar. Twenty years ago about half the bats were poplar, but the style has changed. Some of the crack players will not condescend to use a stock bat, but go to the factory and have bats of the size and weight they desire made for them. If we figure it will be found that this Grand Rapids factory alone will consume about 2,000,000 feet of hard wood a year in the manufacture of ball bats. The others all told will consume a good deal more than that. Therefore, when you see a baseball player with his fingers knocked askew you can reflect that the sport of which he is a victim calls for several hundred carloads of hardwood lumber annually.

Phosphorescent Diamonds.

An expert in gems has lately called attention to a property in the diamond which has not hitherto been fully appreciated. Robert Boyle mentions a diamond that became phosphorescent simply by the heat of the hand, absorbed light on being held near a candle, and emitted light on being briskly rubbed. Observations by Mr. Kunz, the gem expert, confirm Boyle's statement that diamonds become phosphorescent in the dark after exposure to sunlight or electric light by being rubbed on wood, cloth or metal. This property is an important one, as it will help the non-expert to distinguish between the true diamond and other hard stones, as well as imitations, none of which is said to exhibit this phenomenon.

Beats a Good Wife.

Courtship and marriage are recognized targets for witticisms, of which Mr. Punch's famous "Don't" is undoubtedly the most brilliant example of a happy answer. Most of them are of the same cynical character. A careworn divine is reported to have said, in reply to the ecstatic declaration of an intending benedict that "nothing in the world beats a good wife." "Oh, yes; a bad husband often does and—vice versa!"

HUMOROUS.

—"In battle musicians are always kept in the rear." "That's not fair Many of them richly deserve killing."—Chicago Record.

—Next.—"I wonder what part of a man's costume the new woman will adopt next?" "Probably the frock coat."—Detroit Free Press.

—She (fishing)—"I know, Alfred, I have my faults." He—"Oh, certainly." She (angrily)—"Indeed? Perhaps you'll tell me what they are?"—Tit-Bits.

—Flora—"Chollie told me last night that he believed I could break a man's heart with my smile." Laura—"Chollie was just talking. A man's heart is not like a mirror."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

—"The natural history class will now write down the names of 12 arctic animals," said the teacher in monotonous tones. Little Johnnie dashed off the following and handed his slate proudly to the teacher: "Six seals, five polar bears and one walrus."—N. Y. Evening Sun.

—Papa (busy with his accounts)—"I wish you wouldn't read aloud, Rachel. You disturb me." Miss Rachel—"This is the morning paper, papa. I'm reading 'Notes on Society.'" Papa—"So am I, child, and I've got some here that are awfully hard to collect."—Chicago Tribune.

—"That last load of coal you sent," said Mr. Slopay, with a most impressive manner, "was more than half slate." "Perhaps you may remember," retorted the coal man, with much spirit, "that you said, after you had ordered it, 'just slate this, will you?'"—Indianapolis Journal.

—The latest device of a Paris paper for attracting readers is the engagement of two eminent physicians to attend gratuitously upon its yearly subscribers. Recently the manager of the paper gave notice to one of the physicians "not to prescribe for X any more: his subscription has expired." The doctor replied: "So has X."—Tit-Bits.

BOORISHNESS ON THE RAIL.

Theories of the Cold Treatment of Fellow-Passengers by Men Otherwise Decent.

What is it that makes a decent man turn boor as soon as he enters a railroad car? If there were 30 double seats in a car and 30 men entered it each would sit by himself. Let him, if he chooses. But let the 31st man come in and ask "Is this seat engaged?" and the chances are that every answer he gets will be "Yes."

The other day a Hartford man bound for Boston asked six men who were sitting alone if the seats beside them were taken. Each answered "Yes," and yet five of the six rode clear through alone. Indeed, this habit has gone so far that, if a passenger moves along to make room for you, you look him over pretty carefully before you'll trust yourself with him, for fear he is a pickpocket. His unnatural demonstration of hospitality invites suspicion.

And this disposition of man to sit alone seems to be a matter of sex. Women do not behave that way—at least not in steamcars. In trolleys 12 women may start on one side of the car, but, after three, or even four, have gone, there's no more room, not even for another woman, than there was before. The remaining eight somehow spread out their skirts so as to look more crowded than before. But in the steamcar the average woman, especially if she has with her a big bundle, a baby, or a restless child, will take a half-seat beside a man, even if there's a whole seat vacant near by.

There are some men to whom this fate comes whenever they travel. It may be due to a Christian gentleness that beams in their eyes, but it may also be due to the cowardice that they can't conceal. At all events, they have the company, and, generally, before long, the bundle or the child is in their laps and they submit. One reason is that they have to. It is expected of them.

Maybe the cold treatment that one man gives another in the cars is his method of getting even for the way that women impose upon him. That is a plausible explanation and it's the only one that appears. Nor does this do away with the charge of boorishness. That can't be done away with, for it's there.—Hartford Courant.

Prehistoric Literature in America.

The only evidence that has ever been found going to show that the prehistoric cave-dwellers of America had a written language was discovered for the first time in the year 1891. In the summer of that year Profs. Shaler and Warren, the former of Yale college, made a thorough exploration of what is known as Falling Spring cave, in the Sequatchie valley, state of Tennessee, and therein found incontrovertible evidence that the prehistoric Americans were a race of civilized beings, possessing a literature and an alphabet. In one of the galleries of the cave they found the body of a human being, transformed to stone by the salts and silica in the dripping water, and near by a large oval slab, upon which were carved 467 words. In all these words, some of which contained nine and ten letters, only 32 different characters were used, proving conclusively that their alphabet was one of 32 letters only.—St. Louis Republic.

Fine Place for Quail.

"Any quail about this neighborhood?" inquired a tourist who was about to register at a western Texas hotel.

"Quail!" said the proprietor, with an indulgent smile, "they have got to be a nuisance. The cook complains that she can't throw a piece of refuse toast out of the back window but four or five fat quails fight to see which one shall be down on it."—Texas Sifter.

Ambiguous.

This inscription painted on a board adorns a fence in Kent:

"Notis—If any man's or woman's cows get into these hare otes his or her tail will be cut off as the case may be."—Toronto Register.

Impoverished * Blood

whether due to the inheritance of some scrofulous disorder, or caused by a depleted condition of the system, is the cause of much agony. A terrible complexion, foul eruptions, and loathesome ulcers are but outward symptoms—the sufferer should remember that all of the great organs of the body are likewise diseased, and the day cannot be long distant when death must surely ensue.

Bovinine

when taken for this trouble, is a means of salvation. It creates new flesh tissue and pure red blood corpuscles, and by giving strength to the great vital centres of the body, it enables them to perform their functions naturally, and thus dispel the existing poisons by the natural channels. It is not a medicine, but a powerful food preparation and invigorant, and is endorsed by over 25,000 physicians.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? OFFICE-SEEKING HORDE.

It Makes the Position of President One of Many Trials.

At the beginning of every administration Washington fills up with persons who desire some office either in the states, in the departments or in the foreign service, writes ex-President Harrison in Ladies' Home Journal, discussing "The Presidential Office." Many of these persons have a limited purse, and as the days pass on this is exhausted and impatience and ill-temper come in. Many of these persons are deserving and well-fitted to fill the offices they desire. But it is impossible to find places for all the deserving, and the position of the president is full of trial. The suspense and uncertainty that the office seeker suffers is illustrated by the case of a man from my own state who thought he had good reason to expect an appointment from President Garfield. After he had been weeks at Washington, and had brought to bear all the influence he could command. I met him one day on the street and asked him how he was getting along. His answer was: "Very well, very well, but there is nothing focal yet." It was wonderfully expressive, and has remained in my memory as a type of the state of uncertainty which accompanies office-seeking. "Nothing focal yet," but a hope that is hard to kill.

There are few offices at Washington the salaries of which enable the incumbent to save any money, and the average experience of those holding places in the departments, I am sure, is, if they would express it, that private business offers better returns and gives better chance for advancement.

AN ALL-NIGHT SCARE.

A Young Englishman's Experience with a Stuffed Bear.

Young Englishmen visiting the United States have as many absurd and amusing experiences as Americans have when in foreign countries. The Washington Star tells of an English traveler who had been assured that west of the Missouri river the entire country was infested with bears, some of which were so bold that they came into the towns.

He stopped in a Kansas village, and in the evening started out for a walk. The stores were closed, but the moon was shining brightly. He rambled about the place for a couple of hours, and started down the business street for the hotel. Suddenly he saw before him on the sidewalk a big bear, sitting on its haunches, with open mouth and paws extended.

In a moment he was on top of a porch, crying for help, but no one heard him, and the bear sat and watched him. All night long he stayed there, trembling for fear bruin would climb the post, but comforting himself with the idea that it was too small to be used by a bear.

At daybreak some men came along and one of them wheeled the bear back to the doorway with the remark: "I wonder who put that sign in the middle of the walk."

The tourist descended from the porch without detection, and had he not subsequently enjoyed the story so much that he told it himself, it would never have been known.

HARDY COFFEE PLANTS.

They Live and Are Fruitful Sometimes for a Century.

Coffee plants, says the New York Observer, are usually raised from seeds sown in beds upon the mountains, where the thermometer varies from 55 degrees Fahrenheit in winter to 80 degrees in the height of summer. When they are two years old the small shoots are set out in rows six feet apart each way. In three years they begin to yield. They are increasingly fruitful for 15 to 20 years and live for a century. The trees bloom in February in Guadoloupe, the fruit ripens from August to December, but bloom and green fruit and the ripened berry may be sometimes seen at once during the latter part of the year. The berry is red, of the size and color of a cherry; the coffee is made from the kernel or seed, which is divided into two hemispheres.

This seed goes through a variety of processes before it becomes the coffee of commerce and is prepared for use in the delicious beverage which is known all over the world. Most of the coffee of the French islands goes naturally to France, but it is not so cheap as the South American product, and its cultivation is encouraged by governmental bounties. The coffee and sugar interests do not conflict, for the former occupies the highlands and the latter the lowlands.

Strange Requirements.

The Neue Wiener Tagblatt, of Germany, prints the strange will of a wealthy and eccentric old man who lately died. "I give all my property," he says, "to my six nephews and six nieces, but under the sole condition that every one of my nephews marries a woman named Antonie, and that every one of my nieces marries a man named Anton." The 12 are further required to give the Christian name Antonie or Anton to each first-born child, according as it turns out to be boy or girl. The marriage of each nephew and niece is also to be celebrated on one of the St. Anthony's days, either January 17, May 10 or June 13. Each is further required to be married before the end of July, 1896. Any nephew or niece remaining unmarried to an Antonie or an Anton after that date forfeits half of his or her share of the property.

Naming the Baby.

A mother recently said to her five-year-old daughter: "What shall we name the baby, sister?" "Call her Early, mamma; that's a pretty name." "Early! That's not a girl's name." "Oh, yes, it is. Don't you remember you read to me about the little girl who was to be May queen, and who wanted her mother to call her Early?"

A RATTLESNAKE DEN.

Accidental Discoverr of the Subterranean Home of Many Reptiles.

Rattlesnake creek, a small stream that empties into the Wabash river from the north a few miles from Lockport, is one of the most beautiful and picturesque streams in northern Indiana, says the Indianapolis News.

One of the descendants of a pioneer settler in that region recently related the story that gave the name to this stream. Several miles up from the mouth of the creek, near where the two main branches which form the stream meet, lived Mort Ellis, about 50 years ago. The pioneer's cabin stood on the brow of a long sloping hill at the foot of which was a spring which supplied the family with water.

In those early days rattlesnakes were quite numerous and especially so in the Ellis neighborhood, and the father cautioned his four little girls to be very careful in their play lest they be bitten. One Sabbath afternoon, as the children were playing in the yard, one of the little girls, now Mrs. Alice Wilson, of Kokomo, suddenly broke through the ground and fell into an aperture up to her arms. Her cries soon brought out the family, and, in drawing her from the cave, three rattlesnakes were found hanging to her clothing. Down in the small cave could be seen many other poisonous reptiles. Although it was the Sabbath and Mr. Ellis was a devout Quaker, yet he deemed the occasion one of moment and he sent for several of his neighbors, and with them attacked the den of snakes, and when they got through with their work 521 dead rattlers were piled up in the yard. An examination disclosed the fact that the spring at the foot the hill from which the family used water was connected by a passage to the snake's den.

THE FISH HAWK.

One That Was Drowned with the Fish It Was Trying to Catch.

"The fish hawk," said a fisherman, "almost always carries a fish with its head in the same direction as its own. An ordinary sized fish hawk will catch and carry off a four-pound shad without any great difficulty, and nothing less than a charge of shot will make him let go. I've stood under a fish hawk flying not more than 75 or 80 yards high with a fish in his claws and shouted at him until the neighbors thought I was trying a new fog horn, and yet never disturbed him a bit.

"But the fish hawk doesn't always have it his own way. Sometimes he gets caught. I once saw a big hawk, with a four-foot spread of wings, that was sailing along Monmouth beach. Suddenly he made a dive and fixed his claws in a fish's back. The fish sounded. The fish hawk's claws are sharp and strong; they sink far and hold fast. The fish was a 30-pound striped bass, a good deal bigger, in fact, than the hawk had calculated on and far more than he could carry away. He could not free his claws nor could the fish free itself. So they struggled there in the water until both were dead. They were cast upon the beach, the fish hawk's claws still fast in the fish's back."

Spending the Vacation.

The entire Smith family took a fortnight's vacation during the summer. It was an unusual thing for them all to go away together, and they talked about it, individually and collectively, for weeks beforehand. They were going to do and they were not going to do all sorts of things during the precious vacation period. Big sister said that she meant to ride the bicycle. Little sister said that she meant to make mud pies all day long, and big brother said that he meant not so much as to look at a Latin grammar.

"I tell you what I mean to do," cried small brother, all on fire at the prospect of so much do-as-you-pleaseness, "I'm not going to say my prayers."

Japanese Noses.

In Japan the nose is the only feature which attracts attention. The nose determines the beauty or ugliness of the face, according as it is big or small. This is probably due to the fact that differences in noses constitute about the only distinction between one Japanese face and another. In Japan a lady who has a huge proboscis is always a great beauty and a reigning belle.

An Odd Bequest.

An eccentric old bachelor, who died lately at Odessa, Russia, bequeathed 4,000,000 rubles (about $2,000,000) to his four nieces on condition that they first go into service as chambermaids, washerwomen or coalwomen for 15 months. The local police are charged with the duty of seeing that the condition of the will is strictly complied with. So far the heiresses have received 863 offers of marriage.

Reclaiming Welsh Wastes.

Large tracts of sand wastes are now being reclaimed along the Welsh coast. Series of parallel fences are put up seaward, closely interwoven with wires and furze, and spaces between these posts are filled with earth and road scrapings. In these various trees, such as sycamore, willow, pine and alder, are planted, while the ridges are sown with gorse and broom seed and planted with briar.

Early Prejudice Against Gas.

When it was first proposed to light the streets of London with gas great objection was made by the public and newspapers on the ground that the people would be poisoned, that the trees and vegetation would all be killed and that domestic animals could not possibly survive the deadly fumes.

Mexico's Greatest Temple.

The great temple in the City of Mexico was a stone structure of five stages or stories, 300 feet square at the base and 120 feet high. There were eight similar structures of almost equal size in the city, and nearly 2,000 much smaller.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

Hints Which If Remembered Will Not Come Amiss.

If a dish of cold water is kept in a cake box it will keep the cake fresh and moist. The water should be renewed every 24 hours.

In making a mustard plaster take a piece of lard and stir the dry mustard in o the lard until it is a thick paste and I will just spread. Spread on a piece of lawn and apply to the affected part. This will not blister.

The pretty little two-tined forks intended to be used for strawberries are now seen decorated with the berry enameled in the natural colors. The vine twists around and up the handle, and has both the blossom and the fruit upon it.

In polishing silver that has been lain away for a long while and is badly tarnished, it is a good plan to wet a soft cloth in sweet oil and then with a cleaning powder rub the silver until the dark places have disappeared. Then rub with the powder and a dry chamois skin before finishing with a polishing brush.

Kerosene oil added to the water with which mirrors, windows, or anything of glass is to be washed, will give a luster. A pint of water and three tablespoonfuls of oil will wash four large windows. First dust the windows carefully, then rub well with kerosene and water, wipe with a cloth, and polish with old newspaper.

Have you ever tried a hot pancake for an aching side or back? Mix flour and water together until you have a thick batter, and cook on a hot griddle with very little grease. Place it between thin muslin and apply to the aching place. A pancake applied to the base of the brain will often relieve a headache, and is recommended for congestion of the lungs.

Get out your last season's straw hat and try freshening and cleaning it at home with lemon. Remove the band and lay the hat on a flat surface to keep the brim in shape. Cut a lemon in two crosswise and rub the hat with it. Wipe the hat with a soft clean cloth, and if the dirt and stains have not all been removed, repeat the operation with a fresh piece of lemon. Allow the hat to dry thoroughly before it is worn in the sun.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

TOGETHER IN THE GRAVE.

Mary Stuart and Elizabeth Tudor—Not Loving in Life.

Perhaps the queen who has the most company with her in the grave is Mary Stuart; for the vault which received her body when it was removed from Peterborough cathedral to Westminster abbey afterward served for the interment of her descendants and was reported full when last inspected.

Of sovereign groups, Elizabeth Tudor and her sister Mary rest together within a very limited space. Though it cannot be truthfully said that they were loving and pleasant in their lives, yet dead they are not divided. In another compartment beneath the abbey floor repose Charles II., William III. and Mary II., Queen Anne and Prince George of Denmark—uncle, nieces and nephews-in-law.

Probably the oddest combination is one which must have been planned by James I. before his death, so that people who might seek him afterward should not find him too easily. Instead of being properly entombed with his queen, Anne of Denmark, he preferred to be stowed away with Henry VII. and Elizabeth of York, and this arrangement must have been carried out privately and the record withheld from the abbey annals.

On the whole, English sovereigns have been fairly indifferent to family tombs and memorials, neither troubling about their own nor those of their predecessors or relatives.

Henry VII. began building a fine chapel as a mausoleum and James I. had a sentimental taste for erecting monuments over his kindred, which tends to redeem his general character from utter odiousness, but neither monarch can be named in the same breath with Queen Victoria as a customer for obituary sculpture and masonry.—N. Y. Mercury.

More Bulls.

One one occasion Sir George Campbell had been calling attention in the house of commons to some abuse in Indian administration, and proceeded to observe that he had further revelations to make concerning other scandals, in comparison with which this one was a "mere flea bite in the ocean." Another time, when speaking about military affairs in India, he declared that "the pale face of the British soldier was the backbone of our Indian army." I heard John Mill tell this to amuse my brothers some 70 years ago. The defendant's counsel (Irish?), pointing to the plaintiff, said: "There he sits walking up and down like a motionless statue with the cloak of hypocrisy in his mouth trying to withdraw three oak trees out of my client's pocket."—London Spectator.

A Look Into the Future.

"Jane Weggens hasn't the spirit of a mouse," said the lady with the big cigar and the paste diamond.

"No?" said the fat lady with the double chin and the veined nose.

"Not a bit of spirit; not a bit. That red-headed husband of hers keeps a boarding-house, you know, and she actually has to peel the potatoes for the boarders' meals."

"Oh, well, I don't know but what that serves her right. I would get out and shovel mud in the street before I would let my husband keep boarders. A man is meant to adorn the home, not to be a slave."—Cincinnati Inquirer.

What She Would Say.

"What would you say," she asked her dearest friend, "if I told you that I was engaged to the count?"

"I am sure I don't know," replied the dearest friend, absent-mindedly. "I wouldn't be exactly surprised, you know, because I never did think much of his taste."—Chicago Post.

HAD BEGUN TO PROSPER.

A Pathetically Humorous Story Told of a Cumberland Mountain Farmer.

A writer in the Detroit Free Press tells a pathetically humorous story of a friend of his, Jack Negly, a Cumberland farmer. The writer had lent Jack a few dollars, with which to buy a pair of steers, and had received from him many visits of apology; for Jack was an honest man, and did not enjoy being in debt.

He was a renter, and at least every other season he was occupying a different farm. By my advice, he had moved the year before into an entirely new field, a dozen miles from his usual haunts, and I had not seen him for several months. When I did see him, at last, it was by accident as business called me into his neighborhood. As I rode past his place he hailed me from the corn-field and came out to the fence.

"Hello," I exclaimed. "Is this your farm?"

"Yes, and I jist come over to tell you, colonel, that I'll be ready to pay part of that claim uv your'n afore long."

"You must be doing well?"

"I think I'm doing fust-rate, and I'm powerful obleeged to you, colonel, fer headin' me this way."

"I'm always glad to help, if I can."

"I knowed that, colonel, and that's why I come away over here so fer frum home. Hit's kinder strange to me, but ez long ez I'm doin' ez well ez I am I'm a-goin' to stand hit."

"Are you making any money?"

Jim's face brightened perceptibly.

"No, I ain't, colonel," he replied, hopefully; "but I'm losin' it slower'n I ever done in my life afore."

It struck me as rather odd at first, but upon reflection I concluded that Jim might have reason for his hopefulness.

ANOTHER ICE PERIOD.

A Predicted Result of Cutting the Isthmus of Panama.

"The best scientific authorities predict dire effects from the cutting of a canal through either the Isthmus of Panama or Tehuantepec. The late George R. Marsh said of this that 'a new ice period might be occasioned by the withdarwal of so important a source of warmth from the northern zones,' and Sir John Herschel wrote: 'Were the Isthmus of Panama broken through there is no doubt that the whole climate of our island (Great Britain) would undergo a most notable deterioation.' The sum of $9,000,000 has been voted by the legislature of the state of New York for improving the Erie canal system; the Hennepin canal has had $1,200,000 spent on it, and work has stopped until new appropriations can be made, Matt Quay is using his influence for the construction of a ship canal from Pittsburgh to Lake Erie, to cost $16,000,000, and a ship canal from Philadelphia to New York, besides advocating the expenditure of $50,000,000 in canalizing the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. One of the most stupendous of these engineering works is the Chicago drainage canal, now in progress, which is to cut the divide' which bars the way between Chicago and the Mississippi river. The distance is only 30 miles between Lake Michigan and the Illinois river, and one can easily see the startling nature of a union of the 'great lakes' and the 'father of waters.'"

HUNG IN MIDAIR.

The Perilous Plight of a Soldier in Chinese Thibet.

An amusing story is told of the English officer who determined to enter Chinese Thibet by stratagem. He managed to cross the frontier at night, and so escaped the guard.

On the following day, however, while the officer was journeying deeper into Thibet, the Thibetan soldiers overtook him, and informed him that as the country was unsafe because of robbers, they would go with him in order to protect him, to which arrangement the traveler was compelled to agree. In a few hours they came to a river, which was crossed by a rope bridge.

The Thibetans passed over first, in order to show that the bridge was safe, and then the official got into the noose and was pulled along by the Thibetans. Suddenly, however, they ceased pulling, and left the Englishman hanging in midair above the rushing torrent.

In vain the officer shouted to the Thibetans to pull. They merely smoked and nodded their heads. The hours passed, and still the officer hung above the torrent. At last the Thibetans agreed to pull him back if he would leave Tibet immediately. This, of course, he was compelled to do, and took his departure from the forbidden land.

Old-Time Accomplishments.

The following extract from the Biddeford Times gives us an idea of the accomplishments of our grandmothers in household arts, of importance in every girl's education:

Mrs. Ann Emery, of Saco, died at the advanced age of 93 years. When she was married, in 1825, her accomplishments were stated as follows: She could cook all kinds of food in an expert manner; sew and knit, spin and weave cloth, make her own clothes from cloth made with her own hands, make butter and cheese, make soap and tinder,—this was long before the days of friction matches;—dip candle, sing and dance."

All excepting the two last were considered indispensable requisites in beginning the married life and when to these were added the two last, the bride was regarded as very highly accomplished.

Quit the Pipe.

The death of Janet Livingstone, younger sister of the explorer, recalls a story concerning the future doctor's father. One day David brought home the news that a heavy duty was to be put on tobacco. Neil Livingstone—who was not a rich man—was just lighting his pipe as the news was broken. He put it down unlit. "If we have got to give it up," he said, "we may as well begin now." He never smoked again.

AN EVEN THING.

A Duel in a Dark Room—Both Men Proved Cowards.

It has been said that all men are cowards in the dark, and there is doubtless some truth in the statement. A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat cites an instance in illustration. Two officers of the British army in India had a difficulty which resulted in a duel.

The colonel, the challenged party, was an old campaigner who had won his laurels in the Crimea and was a most gallant soldier. The choice of weapons being his, he named pistols, and elected that the affair should occur in a dark room.

We secured a room 20 feet square, says the narrator of the incident, closed every crevice that would admit light, placed our men in corners diagonally opposite, and withdrew.

Each man was provided with three charges, and when these were exhausted we rushed in to gather up the mutilated remains.

Each man stood erect and soldierlike in his corner, untouched; but directly behind the officer who had given the challenge were three bullet holes made by the colonel's pistol.

"How is this?" said a grizzled major. "Had you been standing here when those shots were fired, you would have been killed."

The culprit was forced to admit that he had dropped to one knee.

"You are a coward, sir, and unfit for the company of soldiers and gentlemen!" cried the major.

"Hold on, major!" said the colonel. "It is a stand-off. While he was on his knees in one corner, I was on my stomach in the other."

"WHOSE SHOT WAS IT?"

A Difficult Question Which Often Confronts Sportsmen.

When two men are hunting together, either for large game or small, there is frequently considerable difficulty in determining to which one the dead game belongs, especially when the shots are fired simultaneously, or when shot or bullets of the same size are used by both hunters. Dr. J. W. Hall in Recreation discusses at considerable length the question: "Whose Game Was It?"

When two persons standing side by side shoot with shot of the same size at a bird the question is practically unanswerable, though if both hit the bird the number of shot in the game would, of course, have to be considered. Courtesy gives the doubtful game to the one whose bag is lightest.

An experienced hunter can usually tell when he presses the trigger whether it is a killing shot or not, and when two such men shoot together there is rarely any difficulty, as each knows whether he held on or not, and does not hesitate to say so if he feels that he missed.

When hunting with a man who claims everything it is best to quit. Some men, even if their second shell misses fire, will contend that they killed two birds rods apart. They can make marvelous shots around corners, over hilltops and through trees, and they quite spoil an honest man's sport.

GETTING A SEAT IN A CAR.

Cute Trick of a Pretty Girl—Obtained by False Pretenses.

"Have you ever noticed," said a young man about town, "the foxy game that some girls work in the street cars for the purpose of getting a seat? No? Why, they've worked it on me several times during one month. The first time it happened was one night around Christmas time. I boarded a car and got a seat. The car soon filled up, with women principally, the majority of whom carried Christmas bundles. I was very tired, and, of course, I became interested in my paper to the exclusion of everything else. A moment or two later, however, I glanced up from my paper and looked around the car. A rather pretty young woman, who stood just in front of me, bowed very sweetly and said: 'Why, how do you do?' I tipped my hat, but for the life of me I couldn't place her—didn't know her at all. But she seemed to know me, and, of course, it was only proper that I should give her my seat. I did it, making some idiotic remark about the weather as she took my place. 'Oh,' she said, looking at me, critically, 'I'm afraid I've made a mistake. I took you for an acquaintance.' She turned away with a look of well-feigned embarrassment. But she had my seat and kept it."

DECLINE OF THE "BAD MAN."

The Old-Time Tough Has for the Most Part Disappeared.

"In the evolution of modern civilization the bad man, namely, the desperado and tough, who gloats over killing his fellowman, disappears," said Col. F. B. Jenkins, of California. "A few years ago we heard a great deal of characters like Sam Bass, Jesse James, Ben Thompson and Rube Burrows, but to-day there is not in the United States a single individual with a national reputation for wickedness and dare-deviltry such as any of these acquired. There are a few men left who have records for desperate courage and nerve in trying emergencies, men of the Bat Masterson order, but they can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Masterson never figured as a bandit or reckless taker of human life. He is a peaceable man, and if left alone will harm no one. In Denver and all over the west and south he has a host of friends. The day of the desperado is ended, and monstrosities like Thompson, who boasted when in his cups of the number of victims he had slain, will henceforth cease to afflict humanity."

Keep Off the Grass.

It is said that the following sign is posted in a public park in England: "Notice—All persons are cautioned to keep off the grass, cattle and poultry included."

AN AGED LOVER.

Wooed When 123 Years Old, Was Jilted, Yet Lived Seven Years Longer.

Two remarkable cases of longevity were recalled recently by a conversation between several gentlemen in this city, says the Shelbyville Gazette. They were discussing the death of Rev. George McCall, the veteran Baptist preacher, when it was authentically stated that Mr. McCall's great-grandfather lived to the ripe old age of 127 years. He was a bachelor at 100 and took a notion to get married. He carried out his idea and was married. Three sons were born to him, and he lived to see the oldest son old enough to vote.

This was considered remarkable, but a gentleman in the crowd, whose character and standing religiously and socially are above reproach, told an authentic account of the life of his great-uncle, who was one of Georgia's pioneer citizens. This old gentleman lived to be 130 years old. He lived in a log cabin, in the northern end of which was cut a spuare hole. The old man turned the head of his bed to that hole, and slept that way in the warmest and coldest weather. His wife died when he was about 90 years old, and for many years he lived as a widower. At the age of 115 he cut an entirely new set of teeth, and at the age of 123, one morning, he saddled his own horse, sprang into the saddle, and rode 30 miles to address a widow and to ask her to be his wife. He evidently was rejected for he rode back that day and lived seven years longer.

THE BOSS OFFICE CLERK.

How He Sells Tickets to Make a Thin House Look Full.

The box-office man of one of our theaters let me into a little secret the other day that proves the existence of gray matter and science behind the theater window. We were speaking, says the Boston Traveller, of the depressing effect of small audiences, when he remarked: "I assure you that it is a fine art to distribute a small audience so that the people in it will not feel isolated. If the ticket seller knows his business he will so apportion a small sale that a sparse house will be made to look full. This is done by a nice acquaintance with his chairs and the science of distribution, four or five people being seated here, as many more there, and twice as many there, the object being to make a little collection of heads visible in whichever direction one looks, and the squads so grouped as to cover the beggarly array of empty benches by bringing the heads in range of one another.

"A clever man will seat an audience of 300 so that it will look like one of 600 or 700."

TRIED TO BRIBE THE COURT.

Gave the Judge the Cheap Cigar He Had Bought for Himself.

A down-east lawyer had a tough case on hand at a recent term of court, and before it came on he laid his forefinger to his nose and evolved an idea. The presiding judge loved a good cigar, and the lawyer's happy thought was to propitiate him and make him friendly to his case by treating him to the best the market afforded. The disciple of Blackstone was not in the habit of smoking good cigars himself, so when he bought a 25-center for the court he bought a cheroot for his own use. Armed with these he sauntered into the judge's room and after a little chat passed out a cigar, asking the judge if he smoked. The court accepted gracefully, but before many whiffs were drawn the horrified lawyer discovered he had given the judge the cheroot and was puffing the Havana himself. The judge politely tried to look pleased as the smoking proceeded, but the lawyer has since made no attempts to bribe the court.

How John Bull Got His Name.

"John Bull, the mythical personage supposed to represent the English people, and now figuring largely in editorial writing and in cartoons, was, says the Baltimore Sun, the invention of Dr. Arbuthnot in one of his satirical sketches ridiculing the great duke of Marlborough. In the opinion of Dr. Johnson, Arbuthnot was "the first man among the eminent writers in Queen Anne's time." He drew John Bull as the typical Englishman—a stout, red-faced old farmer, far too corpulent for comfort, choleric, but withal an honest and well-meaning fellow. He clothed him in leather breeches and top-boots, put a stout oaken cudgel in his hand and a bull dog at his heels, and set him up for all time to serve as the representative Englishman.

How He Bought Geese.

It was one of Platt Evans' pleasures to teach his friends how to purchase tender geese, though he could not always get them in the market. One morning he saw a lot and inquired how many there were. "About a dozen," was the reply. "W-w-well," said Platt, "I k-k-eep a b-oarding-house, and my b-b-boarders are the biggest e-eaters you ever s-s-saw. P-p-pick out n-nine of the t-toughest you've g-g-got." The farmer complied, and laid aside the other three tender ones. Platt picked them up carefully, and, putting them in his basket, said: "I b-b-believe I'll take these three."

This Is Diplomacy.

For grave speeches of importance delivered with weight Bismarck was, of course, most celebrated. When annoyed he nearly always adopted a jesting tone, which must have sounded to his frightened friends much as if the tiger in the menagerie had greeted them with a cordial handshake before devouring. "Do you mean to break the convention of Gastein?" bluntly demanded the Austrian ambassador of Count Kurolyi, the Prussian minister-president. "No," replied the latter with great directness, "but even if I did so do you think I should be such a fool as to tell you?"

A CASE OF TELEPATHY.

The Old Lady Appeared in a Vision at the Time of Her Death.

A gentleman took a house in Ireland for six months, and was accompanied thither by his wife and daughters, says the Realm. The house was furnished, and had plenty of bedrooms. Therefore, it was decided not to use a certain large, long room, with cupboards along one side (which had all been locked and sealed up with tape), in which things belonging to the owners of the house had been put away. One evening one of the daughters, going up to her room, saw an old lady wrapped in a shawl walking along the passage in front of her. The old lady appeared to know her way and hurried on without hesitation into the unused room. The girl called her sister, and they followed the dame into the room. But all was silent; no one was there; the dust lying about showed no signs of footprints.

Shortly after the same young lady was reading on the hearthrug by firelight. Looking up, she beheld the old lady in the doorway watching her. Greatly frightened, she sprung up and, rushing downstairs, was found fainting at the drawing-room door. At last the family returned to Dublin. One day, when a friend was calling, the curious incident which I have narrated was referred to. The young lady very unwillingly told her experience. The visitor seemed very much struck and asked for an accurate desciption of the old lady. "For," said she, "that house belonged to two old ladies, sisters, and when they left their house they went to reside at Geneva. One of them, answering exactly to the description you have given, died at the time you saw her appear."

SUFFERING FROM THIRST.

Feelings Described by a Wyoming Man with an Experience.

No one can conceive the tortures of a person who suffers from real thirst. A Wyoming man who was lost on the plains describes his sensations in a vivid manner. It was before noon when he began his journey over a desert strip, and before night his horse had fallen dead and he had drained his canteen. Then he laid down and tried to sleep, but he soon awoke in the agonies of thirst. "I couldn't cry out," he said, "because my tongue was numb and useless from the pain. When morning came I just beheld the outlines of a wagon in the distance. With a superhuman effort I gave a shriek and then I knew no more. When I regained consciousness I was on a bunch of hay near a fire, and two or three men were looking at me. I learned later that my scream had been heard by a party of prospectors, who were skirting the desert in order to make a short cut to the Montana cattle trail, and that at first they thought it was some wild animal, but one of the party insisted on a search, as he had heard a man make just such a noise before he died of thirst in the Mojave desert. It was weeks before I recovered completely, and I haven't been more than a mile away from water, and plenty of it since."

THE COMETS.

Big Ones That Have Come Close to Our Sphere.

From all that is known of Perrin's comet, it does not seem, says the New York Sun, to be one of the largest of its kind. A very brilliant comet appeared in 1769 with a tail 40,000,000 miles in length, and passed within 2,000,000 miles of the earth without hurting anyone.

The comet of 1811 was computed by Herschel to be 100,000,000 miles in length and 15,000,000 in breadth. It remained visible to the naked eye for several months.

Biela's comet, which many persons feared would strike the earth, first appeared in 1826; it came back twice afterward, and then vanished.

Donati's comet, with a tail 40,000,000 miles long, was first seen in 1858, when it was 228,000,000 miles from the earth. It nearly ran into Venus, but did not.

The great comet of 1861 traveled at the rate of 10,000,000 miles every 24 hours and many persons thought that its tail came in contact with the earth June 30 of that year, there being on that day "a phosphorescent auroral glare."

Much of the knowledge of the composition of comets is due to the late Prof. Henry Draper, who was very successful in making photographs of several of them.

ANCIENT MANUSCRIPTS.

Astor Library Has $200,000 Worth of Them—Gem of the Collection.

There are $200,000 worth of ancient manuscripts in the Astor library, but the oldest of these, says the New York World, is the Evangelisterium, which is said to have been expressly executed for Charles the Bald, the grandson of Charlemagne. He was a patron of the fine arts, and was especially fond of embellished manuscripts. This rare and precious manuscript is written on fine vellum and is an oblong quarto of 400 pages. The first four pages have splendid full-length miniatures of the four evangelists, profusely illuminated with liquid gold and emerald green, shaded with red and white on an empurpled ground, the pictures covering the entire page.

This superb manuscript was secured some 15 years ago by the late Mr. Astor, from the famous London bibliophile, Bernard Quartrich, who catalogued it in 1880 at $5,000. There are more costly manuscripts in the Astor library—for instance, the Antiphonaire of Charles X., for which I am assured the late J. J. Astor paid $10,000. But this old manuscript of Charles the Bald has, as an antique, no rival.

LOST TWO BALL GAMES.

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A. TEAM DEFEATED BY WOODBRIDGE BROWNS.

Wretched Errors Was the Cause of the Morning Defeat—In the Afternoon Woodbridge's Fielding Won the Game.

The Y. M. C. A. ball team met their first two defeats of the season on Saturday, and the first defeat was due to errors. The game rightfully belonged to them, but with the exception of a few players the others had an off day. Burt pitched for them and played a good game, but Dennis, not having had much practice with him, experienced some trouble in holding his balls. In the third inning Warren McLaughlin went in the box and pitched two innings. He had the visiting team at his mercy and they were unable to do a thing, but he had to leave early and Burt returned to the box. A number of wretched errors were made that were not excusable.

Charlie Reed and Alex Mallinson applauding a particular good play of the Plainfielders.

The Woodbridge team played a fair game, but no brilliant plays were made. The attendance was excellent considering and everyone seemed to enjoy the contest exceedingly. In the afternoon the two teams met at Woodbridge and the Y. M. C. A. team was defeated 13 to 10. Owing to the fact that the regular team did not play accounts in a measure for the defeat. Johnson pitched for the Y. M. C. A. team, and McKelvey and Major were absent. The full score of the morning game in this city is as follows:

The game in the afternoon at Woodbridge was as pretty a baseball exhibition as one would see in many a day. The playing was brilliant throughout, and at the close, as will be seen in the score below, the Plainfield boys tied the Woodbridge team, and made a ten inning game necessary. The Plainfielders played a great game at the bat, but were unfortunate in having twelve outs on fly hits in the out field. The score was as follows:

HONORING THE DEAD

the power of the Government abroad by the organization and equipment of one of the most effective navies afloat.

Each state is maintaining a thoroughly well organized, well disciplined fully armed Volunteer soldiery—one of the most powerful instruments in preserving the peace at home and commanding the respect of other nations. We have entered into commercial relations and friendly competition with all nations, and cause each to contribute to the comfort and welfare of our people.

No empire has experienced or produced within the brief space of thirty years such marvelous mutations and grand results in the domain of peace; and none has ever before enjoyed and profited so largely from scientific discoveries, mechanical inventions, and the rapid developments of its natural resources. The staple productions and industries of the South prior to the war were few, the laboring classes illiterate. At present, the greatest sources of her wealth come from her mines and manufactures. The South is rapidly advancing; many sections keeping pace with the North in the march of improvements. Industry has been the great teacher of the masses.

Men may deplore and censure the government for the large expenditures made in behalf of the Army and Navy. Notwithstanding the moral force of such criticisms, the threatening attitude of other nations justifies the policy of providing ample means for defence.

It is a perilous illusion of safety for our government to rely solely upon the principals of arbitration for a settlement of international conflicts. The ceaseless practice of powerful nations to invade the territory of the weak is a constant menace to the peace of their neighbors. Happily, underneath the diverse influences of factions and parties, we are a homogenous people, working in social harmony for the glory of God, self government and liberty of conscience.

At the conclusion tremendous applause greeted the speeker and he was presented with a handsome bouquet by Mrs. Cox, in behalf of the Women's Relief Corps.

Clarence Mills, of the Franklin School, recited "Dandy Fifth," followed by a song by the children and the exercises closed with a tableau entitled "America Supported by Her Army and Navy," which was exquisite in every detail. The credit for its arrangement belongs to W. R. Mattox. Those who took part were: Misses Sadie and Try Mattox, as daughters of the regiment; Misses Edna Clum and Lillian Haberle, flower girls; Robert Walker and Israel Stites, wounded soldiers; Henry Drake, sailor; and G. H. Bedford, soldier.

A pleasing feature of the exercises was the portion where twenty-four little girls marched across the stage and dropped flowers and flags on an imitation grave, the headstone of which was marked "Unknown," accompanied by the rendition of "Nearer My God to Thee," by the band. Each one of the girls recited a few lines appropriate to the day. The officers of the G. A. R. who had charge of the arrangements of the day deserve much commendation for carrying them out so successfully.

Picniced on the Mountains.

The young people of the Monroe Avenue chapel enjoyed their annual picnic and outing on Saturday. They reached Johnston's drive by trolley and then walked up to the mountains to the place selected. There was a large number present and the time was spent in a social manner. These yearly events have become a feature with the young people of the chapel and a good time invariably is the result. Refreshments were served during the afternoon and the jolly party returned home at dusk well pleased with pro gramme provided.

Judgments for the Plaintiff.

Two cases were tried before Justice Crosley this morning. The first one was that of J. P. Wolf against John and David Falkner on attachment. Judgement was given the plaintiff for $40. The second case on contract was J. P. Wolf against G. A. Hoffman. The plaintiff was given $27 in this case.

Catholic Club's Picnic.

The picnic held Saturday afternoon and evening by the Catholic club in Vail's grove was a great success and largely attended. Dancing was the feature, music for which was furnished by Eugene O'Reilly. Everything passed off pleasantly and all present thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Quietly Married.

The marriage of Miss Rosie Agnes Close, of Reading, Pa., to Ernest Emil Derflinger was solemnized at the home of Rev. Cornelius Schenck last Friday evening. The groom is a brother of Mrs. Lloyd, of Clinton avenue.

Ignatz Kohner, formerly with I. H. Boehm, has accepted a position with I. Lederer, where he will be pleased to see his many friends.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

A DAY OF CONTESTS

their chances for the final.

Fourth heat—Won by J. A. Powell, N. Y. A. C., New York; E. B. Egelhoff, Logan Wheelmen, Brooklyn, second; time, 2:49. There was some loafing, but a fast third brought the time down to within four seconds of the time limit and the heat was allowed.

Final heat—Won by Powell; Johnson, second; Egelhoff, third; time, 3:05; time limit, 2:45. No race. Only the four men qualified and they persistently loafed, making the mile in over 3:00. The referee declared it no race and no prizes were awarded.

One mile scratch. For club members who had never ridden in a race—Won by F. E. Richards, J. R. Giles, second; T. U. Smith, third; time, 3:26 3 5. Everybody expected a grand loafing match but it was worse than the expectations. The men rode around eyeing their competitors and really changed the race into a one-fourth of a mile spurt. The finish was quite exciting, Richards capturing the race after a lively brush with Giles. Smith came around the outside, but could not catch the first two men. Rockfellow finished fourth and Taylor fifth.

One-half mile scratch, professional—First heat: Won by Jay Eaton, Jersey team, Plainfield; H. K. Smith, Brooklyn, second; Carroll Jack, Philadelphia, third; A. H. Barnett, Jersey team, Plainfield, fourth; time, 1.23 2-5. Eaton rode a very pretty race, winning by a fine spurt on the stretch.

Second heat—Won by A. P. Mosher, Jersey team, Plainfield, C. G. Carpenter, Jersey team, Plainfield, second; H. H. Maddox, Asbury Park, third; E. L. Blauvelt, Vun Bicycle club, Newark, fourth; time, 1.14 3-5. Maddox started to leave the bunch on the far turn but Mosher and Carpenter were after him and the two Jersey riders finished first and second.

Final heat—Won by Eaton; Smith second; Carpenter, third; Maddox, fourth; time, 1:30 1-5.

The "pros" loafed at the start, but Maddox and Mosher started out and the others followed. Eaton came around the far turn in excellent form, but had to ride to just catch the leaders at the tape.

One mile handicap—First and second heats: Won by G. A. Hawkins, Red Bank, 90 yards; J. H. Lake, Port Richmond, S. I., 50 yards, second; J. D. Livingston, Englewood, 90 yards, third; S. W. Johnson, Jr., Brooklyn, 120 yards, fourth; time, 2.15 4-5. W. C. Roome, of the N. J. A. C. rode from scratch. He could not catch the leaders and had to give up. John Allison, of New York, had a spill on the far turn and cut his back. James Thomas, of East Orange, punctured his tire but luckily was not thrown. Hawkins finished alone.

Third and fourth heats—Won by C. J. Bird, E. A. C., Elizabeth, 95 yards; I. A. Powell, New York, scratch second; H. F. Loehrs, E.A.C., Elizabeth, 95 yards, third; J. E. Rache, Newark, 100 yards, fourth; time, 2:18. The scratch man, I. A. Powell, of the N. Y. A. C. caught the bunch in one lap and managed to finish second. Scribner and Donoghue rode in this heat and finished sixth and seventh.

Fifth heat—Won by F. E. Richards, Plainfield, 70 yards; O. Weinpahl, Brooklyn, 100 yards, second; time, 2.21 4-5. Richards rode a hard race and won it by several lengths. McGurn, of the Harlem Wheelmen, the virtual scratch man, gave up after two laps. A. P. Simmonds showed up well but the spurt was too lively for him and he only finished third.

Sixth heat—Won by B. R. Jacobus, M. W. Montclair, 65 yards; C. B. Frazier, H. W., N. Y. City, 90 yards, second, time, 2.27 3-5. The number of contestants in this heat was considerably decreased in the second lap by a general spill. H. W. Heber, of Jersey City, broke his toe-clip and H. G. Swertfager, of the Yorkvillee Wheelmen, A. E. Taylor, of the Riverside Wheelmen and P. J. Engeldrom, of the Bushwick Wheelmen, rode over him, resulting, of course, in a general mix-up. No one was seriouly injured however.

Final heat—Won by Lake, Jacobus second, Loehrs third; time 2:12 1 5. The final heat was one of the prettiest races of the day. It was ridden in very fast time and resulted in a dead heat between Lake and Jacobus, with Loehrs only two inches behind and gaining on them at every foot, while the other riders were bunched behind. The riders preferred to toss for the place and Lake won.

Two mile handicap, professional—Won by H. H. Maddox, Asbury Park, 45 yards; H. K. Smith, Brooklyn, 160 yards, second; C. G. Carpenter, Jersey team, Plainfield, 200 yards, third; A. H. Barnett, Jersey team, Plainfield, 125 yards, fourth; time 4:39 3-5. At the start the race looked like a commonplace one but the finished proved very sensational. Jay Eaton rode from scratch but could not catch the others and fell out after three laps. Mosher and Maddox rode together, while Barnett headed another bunch. Carpenter was, in the meantime, going it alone, far in front. Maddox finally shook Mosher and caught the bunch and then all started after Carpenter. Maddox and Smith caught and passed him just at the tape, while Barnett pulled up for fourth place.

AN EVEN THING.

A Duel in a Dark Room—Both Men Proved Cowards.

It has been said that all men are cowards in the dark, and there is doubtless some truth in the statement. A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat cites an instance in illustration. Two officers of the British army in India had a difficulty which resulted in a duel.

The colonel, the challenged party, was an old campaigner who had won his laurels in the Crimea and was a most gallant soldier. The choice of weapons being his, he named pistols, and elected that the affair should occur in a dark room.

We secured a room 20 feet square, says the narrator of the incident, closed every crevice that would admit light, placed our men in corners diagonally opposite, and withdrew.

Each man was provided with three charges, and when these were exhausted we rushed in to gather up the mutilated remains.

Each man stood erect and soldierlike in his corner, untouched; but directly behind the officer who had given the challenge were three bullet holes made by the colonel's pistol.

"How is this?" said a grizzled major. "Had you been standing here when those shots were fired, you would have been killed."

The culprit was forced to admit that he had dropped to one knee.

"You are a coward, sir, and unfit for the company of soldiers and gentlemen!" cried the major.

"Hold on, major!" said the colonel. "It is a stand-off. While he was on his knees in one corner, I was on my stomach in the other."

"WHOSE SHOT WAS IT?"

A Difficult Question Which Often Confronts Sportsmen.

When two men are hunting together, either for large game or small, there is frequently considerable difficulty in determining to which one the dead game belongs, especially when the shots are fired simultaneously, or when shot or bullets of the same size are used by both hunters. Dr. J. W. Hall in Recreation discusses at considerable length the question: "Whose Game Was It?"

When two persons standing side by side shoot with shot of the same size at a bird the question is practically unanswerable, though if both hit the bird the number of shot in the game would, of course, have to be considered. Courtesy gives the doubtful game to the one whose bag is lightest.

An experienced hunter can usually tell when he presses the trigger whether it is a killing shot or not, and when two such men shoot together there is rarely any difficulty, as each knows whether he held on or not, and does not hesitate to say so if he feels that he missed.

When hunting with a man who claims everything it is best to quit. Some men, even if their second shell misses fire, will contend that they killed two birds rods apart. They can make marvelous shots around corners, over hilltops and through trees, and they quite spoil an honest man's sport.

GETTING A SEAT IN A CAR.

Cute Trick of a Pretty Girl—Obtained by False Pretenses.

"Have you ever noticed," said a young man about town, "the foxy game that some girls work in the street cars for the purpose of getting a seat? No? Why, they've worked it on me several times during one month. The first time it happened was one night around Christmas time. I boarded a car and got a seat. The car soon filled up, with women principally, the majority of whom carried Christmas bundles. I was very tired, and, of course, I became interested in my paper to the exclusion of everything else. A moment or two later, however, I glanced up from my paper and looked around the car. A rather pretty young woman, who stood just in front of me, bowed very sweetly and said: 'Why, how do you do?' I tipped my hat, but for the life of me I couldn't place her—didn't know her at all. But she seemed to know me, and, of course, it was only proper that I should give her my seat. I did it, making some idiotic remark about the weather as she took my place. 'Oh,' she said, looking at me, critically, 'I'm afraid I've made a mistake. I took you for an acquaintance.' She turned away with a look of well-feigned embarrassment. But she had my seat and kept it."

DECLINE OF THE "BAD MAN."

The Old-Time Tough Has for the Most Part Disappeared.

"In the evolution of modern civilization the bad man, namely, the desperado and tough, who gloats over killing his fellowman, disappears," said Col. F. B. Jenkins, of California. "A few years ago we heard a great deal of characters like Sam Bass, Jesse James, Ben Thompson and Rube Burrows, but to-day there is not in the United States a single individual with a national reputation for wickedness and dare-deviltry such as any of these acquired. There are a few men left who have records for desperate courage and nerve in trying emergencies, men of the Bat Masterson order, but they can be counted on the fingers of one hand. Masterson never figured as a bandit or reckless taker of human life. He is a peaceable man, and if left alone will harm no one. In Denver and all over the west and south he has a host of friends. The day of the desperado is ended, and monstrosities like Thompson, who boasted when in his cups of the number of victims he had slain, will henceforth cease to afflict humanity."

Keep Off the Grass.

It is said that the following sign is posted in a public park in England: "Notice—All persons are cautioned to keep off the grass, cattle and poultry included."

AN AGED LOVER.

Wooed When 123 Years Old, Was Jilted, Yet Lived Seven Years Longer.

Two remarkable cases of longevity were recalled recently by a conversation between several gentlemen in this city, says the Shelbyville Gazette. They were discussing the death of Rev. George McCall, the veteran Baptist preacher, when it was authentically stated that Mr. McCall's great-grandfather lived to the ripe old age of 127 years. He was a bachelor at 100 and took a notion to get married. He carried out his idea and was married. Three sons were born to him, and he lived to see the oldest son old enough to vote.

This was considered remarkable, but a gentleman in the crowd, whose character and standing religiously and socially are above reproach, told an authentic account of the life of his great-uncle, who was one of Georgia's pioneer citizens. This old gentleman lived to be 130 years old. He lived in a log cabin, in the northern end of which was cut a square hole. The old man turned the head of his bed to that hole, and slept that way in the warmest and coldest weather. His wife died when he was about 90 years old, and for many years he lived as a widower. At the age of 115 he cut an entirely new set of teeth, and at the age of 123, one morning, he saddled his own horse, sprang into the saddle, and rode 30 miles to address a widow and to ask her to be his wife. He evidently was rejected for he rode back that day and lived seven years longer.

THE BOSS OFFICE CLERK.

How He Sells Tickets to Make a Thin House Look Full.

The box-office man of one of our theaters let me into a little secret the other day that proves the existence of gray matter and science behind the theater window. We were speaking, says the Boston Traveller, of the depressing effect of small audiences, when he remarked: "I assure you that it is a fine art to distribute a small audience so that the people in it will not feel isolated. If the ticket seller knows his business he will so apportion a small sale that a sparse house will be made to look full. This is done by a nice acquaintance with his chairs and the science of distribution, four or five people being seated here, as many more there, and twice as many there, the object being to make a little collection of heads visible in whichever direction one looks, and the squads so grouped as to cover the beggarly array of empty benches by bringing the heads in range of one another.

"A clever man will seat an audience of 300 so that it will look like one of 600 or 700."

TRIED TO BRIBE THE COURT.

Gave the Judge the Cheap Cigar He Had Bought for Himself.

A down-east lawyer had a tough case on hand at a recent term of court, and before it came on he laid his forefinger to his nose and evolved an idea. The presiding judge loved a good cigar, and the lawyer's happy thought was to propitiate him and make him friendly to his case by treating him to the best the market afforded. The disciple of Blackstone was not in the habit of smoking good cigars himself, so when he bought a 25-center for the court he bought a cheroot for his own use. Armed with these he sauntered into the judge's room and after a little chat passed out a cigar, asking the judge if he smoked. The court accepted gracefully, but before many whiffs were drawn the horrified lawyer discovered he had given the judge the cheroot and was puffing the Havana himself. The judge politely tried to look pleased as the smoking proceeded, but the lawyer has since made no attempts to bribe the court.

How John Bull Got His Name.

"John Bull, the mythical personage supposed to represent the English people, and now figuring largely in editorial writing and in cartoons, was, says the Baltimore Sun, the invention of Dr. Arbuthnot in one of his satirical sketches ridiculing the great duke of Marlborough. In the opinion of Dr. Johnson, Arbuthnot was "the first man among the eminent writers in Queen Anne's time." He drew John Bull as the typical Englishman—a stout, red-faced old farmer, far too corpulent for comfort, choleric, but withal an honest and well-meaning fellow. He clothed him in leather breeches and top-boots, put a stout oaken cudgel in his hand and a bull dog at his heels, and set him up for all time to serve as the representative Englishman.

How He Bought Geese.

It was one of Platt Evans' pleasures to teach his friends how to purchase tender geese, though he could not always get them in the market. One morning he saw a lot and inquired how many there were. "About a dozen," was the reply. "W-w-well," said Platt, "I k-k-eep a b-oarding-house, and my b-b-boarders are the biggest e-eaters you ever s-s-saw. P-p-pick out n-nine of the t-toughest you've g-g-got." The farmer complied, and laid aside the other three tender ones. Platt picked them up carefully, and, putting them in his basket, said: "I b-b-believe I'll take these three."

This Is Diplomacy.

For grave speeches of importance delivered with weight Bismarck was, of course, most celebrated. When annoyed he nearly always adopted a jesting tone, which must have sounded to his frightened friends much as if the tiger in the menagerie had greeted them with a cordial handshake before devouring. "Do you mean to break the convention of Gastein?" bluntly demanded the Austrian ambassador of Count Kurolyi, the Prussian minister-president. "No," replied the latter with great directness, "but even if I did so do you think I should be such a fool as to tell you?"

A CASE OF TELEPATHY.

The Old Lady Appeared in a Vision at the Time of Her Death.

A gentleman took a house in Ireland for six months, and was accompanied thither by his wife and daughters, says the Realm. The house was furnished, and had plenty of bedrooms. Therefore, it was decided not to use a certain large, long room, with cupboards along one side (which had all been locked and sealed up with tape), in which things belonging to the owners of the house had been put away. One evening one of the daughters, going up to her room, saw an old lady wrapped in a shawl walking along the passage in front of her. The old lady appeared to know her way and hurried on without hesitation into the unused room. The girl called her sister, and they followed the dame into the room. But all was silent; no one was there; the dust lying about showed no signs of footprints.

Shortly after the same young lady was reading on the hearthrug by firelight. Looking up, she beheld the old lady in the doorway watching her. Greatly frightened, she sprung up and, rushing downstairs, was found fainting at the drawing-room door. At last, the family returned to Dublin. One day, when a friend was calling, the curious incident which I have narrated was referred to. The young lady very unwillingly told her experience. The visitor seemed very much struck and asked for an accurate desciption of the old lady. "For," said she, "that house belonged to two old ladies, sisters, and when they left their house they went to reside at Geneva. One of them, answering exactly to the description you have given, died at the time you saw her appear."

SUFFERING FROM THIRST.

Feelings Described by a Wyoming Man with an Experience.

No one can conceive the tortures of a person who suffers from real thirst. A Wyoming man who was lost on the plains describes his sensations in a vivid manner. It was before noon when he began his journey over a desert strip, and before night his horse had fallen dead and he had drained his canteen. Then he laid down and tried to sleep, but he soon awoke in the agonies of thirst. "I couldn't cry out," he said, "because my tongue was numb and useless from the pain. When morning came I just beheld the outlines of a wagon in the distance. With a superhuman effort I gave a shriek and then I knew no more. When I regained consciousness I was on a bunch of hay near a fire, and two or three men were looking at me. I learned later that my scream had been heard by a party of prospectors, who were skirting the desert in order to make a short cut to the Montana cattle trail, and that at first they thought it was some wild animal, but one of the party insisted on a search, as he had heard a man make just such a noise before he died of thirst in the Mojave desert. It was weeks before I recovered completely, and I haven't been more than a mile away from water, and plenty of it since."

THE COMETS.

Big Ones That Have Come Close to Our Sphere.

From all that is known of Perrin's comet, it does not seem, says the New York Sun, to be one of the largest of its kind. A very brilliant comet appeared in 1769 with a tail 40,000,000 miles in length, and passed within 2,000,000 miles of the earth without hurting anyone.

The comet of 1811 was computed by Herschel to be 100,000,000 miles in length and 15,000,000 in breadth. It remained visible to the naked eye for several months.

Biela's comet, which many persons feared would strike the earth, first appeared in 1826; it came back twice afterward, and then vanished.

Donati's comet, with a tail 40,000,000 miles long, was first seen in 1858, when it was 228,000,000 miles from the earth. It nearly ran into Venus, but did not.

The great comet of 1861 traveled at the rate of 10,000,000 miles every 24 hours and many persons thought that its tail came in contact with the earth June 30 of that year, there being on that day "a phosphorescent auroral glare."

Much of the knowledge of the composition of comets is due to the late Prof. Henry Draper, who was very successful in making photographs of several of them.

ANCIENT MANUSCRIPTS.

Astor Library Has $200,000 Worth of Them—Gem of the Collection.

There are $200,000 worth of ancient manuscripts in the Astor library, but the oldest of these, says the New York World, is the Evangelisterium, which is said to have been expressly executed for Charles the Bald, the grandson of Charlemagne. He was a patron of the fine arts, and was especially fond of embellished manuscripts. This rare and precious manuscript is written on fine vellum and is an oblong quarto of 400 pages. The first four pages have splendid full-length miniatures of the four evangelists, profusely illuminated with liquid gold and emerald green, shaded with red and white on an empurpled ground, the pictures covering the entire page.

This superb manuscript was secured some 15 years ago by the late Mr. Astor, from the famous London bibliophile, Bernard Quartrich, who catalogued it in 1880 at $5,000. There are more costly manuscripts in the Astor library—for instance, the Antiphonaire of Charles X., for which I an assured the late J. J. Astor paid $10,000. But this old manuscript of Charles the Bald has, as an antique, no rival.

LOST TWO BALL GAMES.

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A. TEAM DEFEATED BY WOODBRIDGE BROWNS.

Wretched Errors Was the Cause of the Morning Defeat—In the Afternoon Woodbridge's Fielding Won the Game.

The Y. M. C. A. ball team met their first two defeats of the season on Saturday, and the first defeat was due to errors. The game rightfully belonged to them, but with the exception of a few players the others had an off day. Burt pitched for them and played a good game, but Dennis, not having had much practice with him, experienced some trouble in holding his balls. In the third inning Warren McLaughlin went in the box and pitched two innings. He had the visiting team at his mercy and they were unable to do a thing, but he had to leave early and Burt returned to the box. A number of wretched errors were made that were not excusable.

Charlie Reed and Alex Mallinson applauding a particular good play of the Plainfielders.

The Woodbridge team played a fair game, but no brilliant plays were made. The attendance was excellent considering and everyone seemed to enjoy the contest exceedingly. In the afternoon the two teams met at Woodbridge and the Y. M. C. A. team was defeated 13 to 10. Owing to the fact that the regular team did not play accounts in a measure for the defeat. Johnson pitched for the Y. M. C. A. team, and McKelvey and Major were absent. The full score of the morning game in this city is as follows:

The game in the afternoon at Woodbridge was as pretty a baseball exhibition as one would see in many a day. The playing was brilliant throughout, and at the close, as will be seen in the score below, the Plainfield boys tied the Woodbridge team, and made a ten inning game necessary. The Plainfielders played a great game at the bat, but were unfortunate in having twelve outs on fly hits in the out field. The score was as follows:

the power of the Government abroad by the organization and equipment of one of the most effective navies afloat.

Each state is maintaining a thoroughly well organized, well disciplined fully armed Volunteer soldiery—one of the most powerful instruments in preserving the peace at home and commanding the respect of other nations. We have entered into commercial relations and friendly competition with all nations, and cause each to contribute to the comfort and welfare of our people.

No empire has experienced or produced within the brief space of thirty years such marvelous mutations and grand results in the domain of peace; and none has ever before enjoyed and profited so largely from scientific discoveries, mechanical inventions, and the rapid developments of its natural resources. The staple productions and industries of the South prior to the war were few, the laboring classes illiterate. At present, the greatest sources of her wealth come from her mines and manufactures. The South is rapidly advancing; many sections keeping pace with the North in the march of improvements. Industry has been the great teacher of the masses.

Men may deplore and censure the government for the large expenditures made in behalf of the Army and Navy. Notwithstanding the moral force of such criticisms, the threatening attitude of other nations justifies the policy of providing ample means for defence.

It is a perilous illusion of safety for our government to rely solely upon the principals of arbitration for a settlement of international conflicts. The ceaseless practice of powerful nations to invade the territory of the weak is a constant menace to the peace of their neighbors. Happily, underneath the diverse influences of factions and parties, we are a homogenous people, working in social harmony for the glory of God, self government and liberty of conscience.

At the conclusion tremendous applause greeted the speeker and he was presented with a handsome bouquet by Mrs. Cox, in behalf of the Women's Relief Corps.

Clarence Mills, of the Franklin School, recited "Dandy Fifth," followed by a song by the children and the exercises closed with a tableau entitled "America Supported by Her Army and Navy," which was exquisite in every detail. The credit for its arrangement belongs to W. R. Mattox. Those who took part were: Misses Sadie and Try Mattox, as daughters of the regiment; Misses Edna Clum and Lillian Haberle, flower girls; Robert Walker and Israel Stites, wounded soldiers; Henry Drake, sailor; and G. H. Bedford, soldier.

A pleasing feature of the exercises was the portion where twenty-four little girls marched across the stage and dropped flowers and flags on an imitation grave, the headstone of which was marked "Unknown," accompanied by the rendition of "Nearer My God to Thee," by the band. Each one of the girls recited a few lines appropriate to the day. The officers of the G. A. R. who had charge of the arrangements of the day deserve much commendation for carrying them out so successfully.

Picnicked on the Mountains.

The young people of the Monroe Avenue chapel enjoyed their annual picnic and outing on Saturday. They reached Johnston's drive by trolley and then walked up to the mountains to the place selected. There was a large number present and the time was spent in a social manner. These yearly events have become a feature with the young people of the chapel and a good time invariably is the result. Refreshments were served during the afternoon and the jolly party returned home at dusk well pleased with pro gramme provided.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. A DAY OF CONTESTS their chances for the final.

Fourth heat—Won by J. A. Powell, N. Y. A. C., New York; E. B. Egelhoff, Logan Wheelmen, Brooklyn, second; time, 2:49. There was some loafing, but a fast third brought the time down to within four seconds of the time limit and the heat was allowed.

Final heat—Won by Powell; Johnson, second; Egelhoff, third; time, 3:05; time limit, 2:45. No race. Only the four men qualified and they persistently loafed, making the mile in over 3:00. The referee declared it no race and no prizes were awarded.

One mile scratch. For club members who had never ridden in a race—Won by F. E. Richards, J. R. Giles, second; T. U. Smith, third; time, 3:26 3 5. Everybody expected a grand loafing match but it was worse than the expectations. The men rode around eyeing their competitors and really changed the race into a one-fourth of a mile spurt. The finish was quite exciting, Richards capturing the race after a lively brush with Giles. Smith came around the outside, but could not catch the first two men. Rockfellow finished fourth and Taylor fifth.

One-half mile scratch, professional—First heat: Won by Jay Eaton, Jersey team, Plainfield; H. K. Smith, Brooklyn, second; Carroll Jack, Philadelphia, third; A. H. Barnett, Jersey team, Plainfield, fourth; time, 1.23 2-5. Eaton rode a very pretty race, winning by a fine spurt on the stretch.

Second heat—Won by A. P. Mosher, Jersey team, Plainfield, C. G. Carpenter, Jersey team, Plainfield, second; H. H. Maddox, Asbury Park, third; E. L. Blauvelt, Vun Bicycle club, Newark, fourth; time, 1,14 3-5. Maddox started to leave the bunch on the far turn but Mosher and Carpenter were after him and the two Jersey riders finished first and second.

Final heat—Won by Eaton; Smith second; Carpenter, third; Maddox, fourth; time, 1:30 1-5.

The "pros" loafed at the start, but Maddox and Mosher started out and the others followed. Eaton came around the far turn in excellent form, but had to ride to just catch the leaders at the tape.

One mile handicap—First and second heats: Won by G. A. Hawkins, Red Bank, 90 yards; J. H. Lake, Port Richmond, S. I., 50 yards, second; J. D. Livingston, Englewood, 90 yards, third; S. W. Johnson, Jr., Brooklyn, 120 yards, fourth; time, 2.15 4-5. W. C. Roome, of the N. J. A. C. rode from scratch. He could not catch the leaders and had to give up. John Allison, of New York, had a spill on the far turn and cut his back. James Thomas, of East Orange, punctured his tire but luckily was not thrown. Hawkins finished alone.

Third and fourth heats—Won by C. J. Bird, E. A. C., Elizabeth, 95 yards; I. A. Powell, New York, scratch second; H. F. Loehrs, E.A.C., Elizabeth, 95 yards, third; J. E. Rache, Newark, 100 yards, fourth; time, 2:18. The scratch man, I. A. Powell, of the N. Y. A. C. caught the bunch in one lap and managed to finish second. Scribner and Donoghue rode in this heat and finished sixth and seventh.

Fifth heat—Won by F. E. Richards, Plainfield, 70 yards; O. Weinpahl, Brooklyn, 100 yards, second; time, 2.21 4-5. Richards rode a hard race and won it by several lengths. McGurn, of the Harlem Wheelmen, the virtual scratch man, gave up after two laps. A. P. Simmonds showed up well but the spurt was too lively for him and he only finished third.

Sixth heat—Won by B. R. Jacobus, M. W. Montclair, 65 yards; C. B. Frazier, H. W., N. Y. City, 90 yards, second, time, 2.27 3-5. The number of contestants in this heat was considerably decreased in the second lap by a general spill. H. W. Heber, of Jersey City, broke his toe-clip and H. G. Swertfager, of the Yorkvillee Wheelmen, A. E. Taylor, of the Riverside Wheelmen and P. J. Engeldrom, of the Bushwick Wheelmen, rode over him, resulting, of course, in a general mix-up. No one was seriouly injured however.

Final heat—Won by Lake, Jacobus second, Loehrs third; time 2:12 1 5. The final heat was one of the prettiest races of the day. It was ridden in very fast time and resulted in a dead heat between Lake and Jacobus, with Loehrs only two inches behind and gaining on them at every foot, while the other riders were bunched behind. The riders preferred to toss for the place and Lake won.

Two mile handicap, professional—Won by H. H. Maddox, Asbury Park, 45 yards; H. K. Smith, Brooklyn, 160 yards, second; C. G. Carpenter, Jersey team, Plainfield, 200 yards, third; A. H. Barnett, Jersey team, Plainfield, 125 yards, fourth; time 4:39 3-5. At the start the race looked like a commonplace one but the finished proved very sensational. Jay Eaton rode from scratch but could not catch the others and fell out after three laps. Mosher and Maddox rode together, while Barnett headed another bunch. Carpenter was, in the meantime, going it alone, far in front. Maddox finally shook Mosher and caught the bunch and then all started after Carpenter. Maddox and Smith caught and passed him just at the tape, while Barnett pulled up for fourth place.

A KENTUCKY BELLE.

Claims the Credit of Killing Four Men—Other Little Irregularities.

Sheriff Jarvis, of Knox county, passed through the city late one afternoon having in charge five or six prisoners on the way to Frankfort. The prisoners were placed in the watch house until the six o'clock train left.

Among the prisoners was a young woman from Knox county, apparently about 25 years old, and a typical eastern Kentucky mountain girl. Her hair was cut short and her dress was of calico, made in mountain style. She was going to Frankfort for housebreaking. She was placed in a cell by herself at the station house.

She was quite talkative, and when asked her age and home by a Lexington Transcript correspondent, said: "I am jus' 35 and live in Knox county. My name is Lizzie Harris. Used to live in Wes' Virginny, but got in trouble and left there. Ise going to Frankfort now for a couple of years, but I don't care."

"Did you ever kill a man?" was asked.

"Yes, Lord, killed four. I waylaid the highway one night in Wes' Virginny and dropped three men. I stayed in the pen in that state three years. I shot my sweetheart, too, and killed him, but a lawyer named Black plead me out of it."

"Did you ever commit any other crime?"

"Guess I have. Broke into one or two houses, but have had luck and got out. I think I will have a nice time at Frankfort. Some nice men there, I hear. My husband left me some time ago, and I am grieving over it."

STATISTICS FOR WOMEN.

Showing Her Representation in the Useful Occupation.

A recent census bulletin dealing with the occupations of the people of the United States shows that 48 per cent. of the persons, male and female, more than ten years of age, are engaged in some gainful occupation. The total number of working people is 22,735,661, of which 18,820,950 are men and 3,914,711 women—a gain of 1,267,554 women since 1880, a rate of increase nearly 3½ times as great as the increase of working men. A study of the tables in the bulletin reveals some interesting comparisons. In 1880 there was only one woman architect in the country; in 1890 there were 22. Then there were but five lawyers; ten years later there were 208. There were 67 women clergymen in 1880; in 1890, 1,235. The number of actresses increased from 692 to 3,949; artists and teachers of art from 412 to 10,810; dentists from 24 to 337; designers, draughtsmen and inventors from 13 to 306; journalists, 35 to 888; musicians and teachers of music, 5,753 to 34,519; government officials, 414 to 4,875; physicians and surgeons, 527 to 4,555; teachers, 84,047 to 245,965; theater managers, showmen, etc., 100 to 634; bookkeepers, accountants, clerks and copyists, from 8,011 to 92,825; stenographers and typewriters, from 7 to 21,185; saleswomen, from 2,775 to 58,449. There were two veterinary surgeons and 46 chemists and assayers in 1890, against none of either in 1880.

SWAPPED AWAY HIS WIFE.

A Little Family Complication Amicably Arranged.

The very unusual story of swapping a daughter for a wife is reported from Toledo, Wash., says the New York World. A farmer named Thompson lost his wife a short time ago. She left him a little baby girl. The child he took to a neighbor by the name of Putnam to be cared for. Of course frequent visits were made to see how the baby was getting along.

Mrs. Putnam was quite a comely person and very soon attracted the attention of the widowed farmer. Then he soon learned to love her and, worst of all, his love was reciprocated. The husband discovered the situation The lovers naturally expected a scene but there was none.

Instead of making the neighboring hills resound with jealous rage Putnam called upon Thompson and they discussed the matter in a business-like manner. Putnam professed to be tired of his wife and said he would as lief that some other fellow would take her away as not; but he wanted something in return. He wanted some one around the house to minister to his wants; some one he could learn to love. Thompson had a daughter who suited him very well and, if it was just the same, he was willing to trade his wife for her. That suited Thompson and the girl, too. So a bargain was struck and the exchange made. Thompson and Mrs Putnam went to Aberdeen and the girl to Castle Rock

Wonderful Surgery.

Medical students who are engaged in the study of ophthalmology are still wondering at the feat Dr. Fleming Carrow, professor of that branch in the University of Michigan, performed upon a young man last week. This patient had completely lost the sight of one eye through disease, and, in order to prevent the contagion from spreading, Dr. Carrow inserted a small, thin watch crystal beneath the lid of the other eye. So far the experiment seems to be very successful, and it is expected that the flesh will knit closely around the watch crystal so as to permit no impurities to enter. Meanwhile the patient seems to be quite well.

Saw the Point.

It is related that Baron de Rothschild, of Paris, once called Guzman Blanco the richest man in the world. When the Venezuelan dictator protested against the compliment, Rothschild retorted: "You are surely the richest man in the world, for who else has estates comprising 600,000 square miles of territory? Who else has an income of $37,000,000? Who else has 2,500,000 slaves?" Guzman was not slow in seeing the point.

SPAIN'S POLITICAL PRISONERS.

The Tortures Inflicted Upon Suspects in the Old Moorish Town of Ceuta.

From time to time the horrors of slave-dealing and the barbarism with which prisoners are still treated in certain parts of the world have been exposed to the public. There remains yet, however, a spot within 20 miles of English territory where such terrible sufferings and hideous tortures are undergone by human beings as to be almost incredible. This is at Ceuta, an old Moorish town in Morocco surrounded by a chain of fortresses which make it almost impregnable.

The place was built by the Moors in 945, on the side of the ancient mountain Abyla. All the fiendish ingenuity of which they were masters was exerted to invent and construct as many solitary dungeons and horrible torture chambers as possible. Just as it was in those dark ages, with as many improvements as were added before the Spaniards took possession in 1840, so it is to this day.

The town to Spain is what Siberia is to Russia, but infinitely more horrible. Here political prisoners and persons whom the government suspects are transported. As a rule the "suspects" are prominent and respectable citizens, who, however, have committed no crime, and against whom no charge can be brought. No suspicious papers have been found in their possession: they have no secret weapons; they have neither made rebellious speeches nor encouraged insurrection.

Since they have committed no crime they cannot be tried in the orthodox manner, nor can they be executed. Nevertheless, they are dangerous—they must be put out of the way. Therefore, they are spirited to a dungeon in Ceuta, where they will be safe. The dungeons are hewn out of the solid rock beneath the fortress, and run in tiers 50 or 60 feet deep. They measure on an average eight feet square. The approach is made through the floor of the fortress, down long, winding stairs. The dungeons line either side of damp alleys, the only openings being a small hole about a foot from the ground.

It is through this hole, enlarged for the occasion, that the prisoner enters his cell, followed by armed keepers and a blacksmith. He is thrown on his back and chains are welded from his ankles into the solid rock. The keepers then leave him and the hole is blocked up with fresh masonry. The dungeon is reeking with damp, is infested with vermin and absolutely dark. Scanty scraps of food are occasionally passed through the opening by the keepers.

For a whole year the prisoner is left to rot in the dungeon without seeing a human face. Naked and starved he crouches in the darkest corner, awaiting death. At the end of a year's time the keepers and blacksmith again enter the cell to see whether the captive is still alive, and that the chains are in good condition, possibly to add fresh ones.—Chicago News.

THIRTY-EIGHT YEARS OVER 100.

Time Seems to Have No Effect on This Man, Feoderovitch Kouzmin.

Ivan Feodorovitch Kouzmin is, according to the Russian authorities, the oldest man in the world. This seems a rather broad statement, but the records are there to show that Ivan first saw the light of day on October 21 (old style), 1757, which would make him 138 years of age next birthday. One hundred and thirty-eight years of age!

Late last September Gospodin Lomonossof, a member of the Moskovski Viedomosti editorial staff, happened to stop at a wayside inn near the village of Dukova, in the government of Kostrama, and there met an aged son of Ivan and became interested. Having satisfied himself that Ivan Kouzmin, for he it was, was telling the truth about his age and having obtained some data as to the aged peasant's probable birthplace, Lomonossoff set to work to discover, if possible, the entry of his baptism.

This required an unusual amount of labor and research, but finally the church where this ceremony took place was found and the archives containing the entry were brought to light. There was the full name and the date, and, curious to relate, an addenda by the officiating priest to the effect that God had blessed the child with the holy sign of the cross beneath the right shoulder blade, and thus marked him for his own. A subsequent examination of old Ivan's body revealed this peculiar mark, a growth of warty substance, slightly resembling the Greek cross seen on the cupolas of all churches of the eastern orthodox faith.

So there could be no mistake about it! Ivan Feodorovitch Kouzim was 137 years of age! The records showed it, and his own words told the story still more eloquently. Here was a veteran, who, though entirely illiterate and barely able to understand more than the requirements of a peasant's daily routine, could, in his lucid moments, recall the happenings of a century ago. Ivan and his son, it may be said, very quickly benefited by this sudden bound into fame.—N. Y. World.

A Boy's Rapid and Fatal Growth.

Patrick Casey, a young Bridgeport boy, in the middle of August last was five feet high. He then began to shoot upward, and kept at it until the middle of the following October, when he was six feet three inches. This was an average of a quarter of an inch a day, or nearly seven feet a year. His age then was 17 years. Casey was unable to withstand this enormous strain upon his constitution, and he died the following November. Before his death his hair turned from red to jet black. The physicians accounted for the change on the theory that the tincture of iron that had given to him as a tonic had entered into his blood and acted upon the hair. His case puzzled the doctors, but no autopsy was held on the remains, owing to the objections of the family.—Boston Post.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

XII.

Hiram Jones, tramp, farm laborer, busybody, detective, or whatever he might be, furnished for a month my principal cause for anxiety. Lamar's indifference to the man's doings was more than I could explain to my own satisfaction; for, if the owner of the house on the knoll had reason to fear any great peril, how was it that he could hear so calmly tidings which indicated at least that he was under surveillance? It was as if a wily old fox, after a long run from the hunter, should sit contentedly watching a stray hound circling about him, instead of retreating post-haste out of danger. There was certainly the argument that Lamar should know very well the particular point from which he was menaced, and the character of the agents likely to be employed against him; but I could not find it convincing. Greatly as I disliked him, his apathy fretted me. Even enemies, when fate makes them partners, can generally be counted upon to cooperate to win the game. Now, here was I, quite ready to do my best to beat our mysterious opponents, yet hampered, or at least discouraged, by the indifference of the player whose stakes were hazarded upon the result. The situation seemed to be entirely false.

If Jones was a spy, I in turn diligently played the spy upon him. No time was lost in confirming his identity with that of the man who had aroused Carpenter's suspicions, a result easily accomplished by bringing the horse-dealer on a pretended errand to Rodneytown and having Jones at work near the house as he drove by. After this preliminary, I devoted many hours to watching Mrs. Weston's retainer, without getting much reward for my pains. The man went about his various tasks in the most matter-of-fact fashion, apparently concerned in nothing beyond them. I had expected that as soon as he learned of my daily visits to the house on the knoll he would attempt to question me about its occupant; but not once did he display interest in my hermit patient. In short, the only new ground given for my suspicions was furnished by a habit he developed of solitary strolls about the neighborhood when evening put an end to his work on the farm. A little of his gruffness had worn off, and, barring this liking for lonely rambles, there was nothing to distinguish him from the other laborers of the vicinity. Lamar listened patiently to the reports of my observations, which appeared to increase his belief that there was no cause for immediate alarm, though he still neglected to give the reasons for his conviction. It may be that, undisturbed as he was in his own mind, he was satisfied to have me maintain vigilance. After all, it was not to be denied that standing guard was part of the business for which he paid me.

But the month was a pleasant one, except for Jones and the worries he created. Mrs. Loring was doing surprisingly well. Nobody could have expected her to regard herself as anything but a confirmed invalid, but with increasing frequency she was enjoying intervals of oblivion to the fact that she supposed herself to be a sufferer. She took her harmless doses with clockwork regularity, and there was not one of the directions given her which was not carried out with scientific accuracy. Simple food, good air, undisturbed sleep, and trifles enough to keep her interested were doing for her what they will do for most of the race. Two or three additions had been made to her code of directions, with not altogether unselfish motives on the part of her medical adviser. For one thing, she now kept a diary, in which she wrote her observations of her symptoms. Ostensibly, this was to secure, for scientific purposes, a record of the progress of a most notable case; actually, it was to save her doctor from a daily flood of talk. Then, too, she had been persuaded that it was not wise to have her niece constantly with her, the theory followed being that Miss Gray had been so long her nurse that their continual association could not but remind her of her impaired health. This bit of sophistry was far more convincing to the elder woman than to the younger, who, though she acquiesced in the arrangement, left me no doubt that she regarded the argument as fallacious. Inasmuch, however, as through it I secured a great deal more of her society, I was content, my object thus accomplished. Moreover, to this day it seems clear to me that in forcing Mrs. Loring to throw off somewhat of her acquired feeling of helplessness, and to learn that she was not entirely dependent on her companion's ministrations, I did her a great service. So far as the girl was concerned, there could be no question of the benefit she received from the lessening of her hours of attendance upon her aunt. No calling, as we all know, is more noble, more self-sacrificing, than that of the nurse; in none is there greater need of reasonable relaxation from the demands upon body, mind and spirit; and never is devotion more sadly misapplied than in those cases in which the tribute to supposed duty and real affection is paid needlessly or in obedience to another's over-indulged caprice. The light of common sense should be strong enough to show the flaw of uselessness in many a picture of uncomplaining martyrdom.

As events proved, the country life was much to Mrs. Loring's taste, in spite of her years of travel and her long sojourns in great cities. She struck up friendships with Mrs. Clark, Mrs. Weston and the other housewives of the neighborhood, and, through them, with the residents of Rodneytown village, among whom she gained considerable popularity. She became a regular attendant at the village church, and soon was received into the circle of its sewing society. At these things I marveled and rejoiced, knowing very well that her new friends could do more to promote her recovery than all the drugs in the pharmacopeia. Seven days in a week, gossip was better for her than tonics.

It was almost inevitable, in the circumstances, that I should be honored often with Dorothy Gray's company. Long drives together over the winding country roads, walks to the show spots of the vicinity, and rambles when the moon was doing her best to make mankind believe that nothing in the world was worth considering but sentiment, such pleasing diversions filled many an hour. Sometimes I paused to consider how completely the girl was dominating my thoughts. Even when a glimpse of Hiram Jones going stolidly about his business reminded me of the uncertainty of my position, I found myself speculating more about what she might think, if the worst came to pass, than about the extent of the misfortune over Lamar's head, and possibly over mine as well. On shipboard we had been very good friends, she and I. We were very good friends now, but with a difference. What a dull ride I had if she declined to accompany me! how the evening dragged if she kept out of sight! what a wretched substitute for her presence was even the best pipe in my growing collection! How was it that when we were together, even if our talk languished, the time never passed heavily? How had it come about that I no longer debated the question of her beauty, no longer compared her with this girl or that? Such questions I asked myself now and then, puzzling my brain with endeavors to answer them in any other way than the one in which they could be answered. The simple truth of the matter was, of course, that I had fallen in love; but for difficulty of comprehension commend me, above all things, to a so-called simple truth. Anybody, if he will take the trouble, can follow out a long and logical deduction, but to very few men is it given to perceive at once the meaning of the thing which, once understood, we call self-evident.

From the vantage-point of later years I have figured out, to my own satisfaction at least, that I passed from the comparatively placid state of friendship about two weeks after Dorothy Gray's arrival in Rodneytown. The realization of the change came nearly a fortnight later, not through any triumph of reason, but through an accident in which my part was that of a mere spectator, and which required less time in action than it does in telling. Returning one morning from the house on the knoll, I sought the young lady, as I usually sought her at that hour. Dr. Banks had asked me to look out for two or three of his more distant patients—he had sprained his right arm badly and was keeping as quiet as possible—and that day I had planned a long drive, which it was probable she would enjoy. She was not in the house, Mrs. Clark said, and I was gazing about rather disconsolately, when I caught sight of a parasol showing above the walls of a lane leading to an orchard, in the shade of which Miss Gray sometimes passed a morning. Setting out in pursuit, I gained upon her so rapidly that when I turned into the lane she was not more than a hundred yards in the lead. To my surprise, she halted, then turned with a cry, and, picking up her skirts, began to scud toward me, in full flight, as I saw an instant later, from an old and evil-tempered boar, usually safely penned behind Mrs. Clark's barn, but evidently very much at liberty at that particular moment. The brute was close to her. His tusks looked as long and sharp as knives; as he galloped on, they came nearer and nearer to his prey. I gave a shout and sprang forward, but had she been forced to depend upon my aid her danger would have been great indeed, for long before I could have reached her the boar would have overtaken her. He was right at her heels, when, armed with a stout club, Jones sprang over the wall and struck viciously at the brute. The blow fell fairly upon the animal's snout, and ended abruptly his pursuit of the maiden, who, however, sped on until she ran almost into my arms. I got her hands in mine and took some time to assure her that she was safe, before coming down to the mere detail that the farm-hand had been her rescuer. She turned to thank the man, but by this time he was some distance up the lane, driving the cowed and grunting boar back to his prison.

"I envy that fellow," said I. "I'd give anything to have had that chance he improved."

"Would you?" said she, with a nervous little smile. "It was a dangerous privilege. Ugh!" and she shuddered at the recollection. "What a terrible animal that was! I never was so frightened in all my life."

"Let us go back to the house," I suggested. "You will hardly enjoy a visit to the orchard after such an adventure."

"No, indeed," she said. "After this I shall be more careful. I have learned something from this experience."

"And so have I," was my thought, for in that moment of her peril the veil of doubts and questions and theories and speculations had been torn from my eyes, and I had learned the simple truth which explained them all, yet which they had served to hide from me.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Elsie Horne, of Willow avenue, has a new Hartford wheel.

Miss Eleanor T. Van Deventer, of Willow avenue, is riding a new Vanguard wheel.

Charles J. T. Thayer, of East Ninth street, has purchased a Remington and a Majestic wheel for the use of his daughters.

Edward Mosher, of Elmwood place, and Frank Humpston, of Somerville, enjoyed a ride on their wheels Saturday to Boynton Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. George VanNest, of Dunellen, and Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, rode their wheels to Morristown and back Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Evans, of Washington avenue, went out for a spin on their wheels Saturday and rode 43 miles before they returned home.

A party of Bayonne wheelmen enjoyed a spread at Emery's hotel at Scotch Plains, Saturday. This is an annual event with them. In the afternoon they attended the Crescent Wheelmen's meet.

Ed Bailey and Mr. Parks, of Philadelphia, rode here on their wheels Friday, and after spending the night at the home of G. G. Packer, of East Sixth street, returned home Saturday morning with the century run.

Morris and Jack Dumont, of East Seventh street, spent Saturday on the new Cleveland tandem. They visited the Irvington-Milburn course and then went on to Morristown. They returned from that city, a distance of 22 miles, in one hour.

About four hundred enthusastic cyclists passed through this city Saturday morning at about 7:50 o'clock in the century run of the Quaker City Wheelmen, of Philadelphia, from Newark to Philadelphia. A short stop was made here for breakfast. There were three wheelwomen in the party. F. L. C. Martin paced them from Scotch Plains, and they were checked in this city by Charles Lister.

William Johnson, late of Taylor's Hotel, Dunellen, is making quite a record as a bicyclist. He claims to have ridden one day last week a mile in 1:15. But this feat is questioned by some of his friends.

Plainfield was represented in the Memorial Day Carnival of Sports of the N. J. A. C., Saturday, by Lindley Hillman, who rode from the one hundred-yard mark in the one-mile handicap. He scored second in his heat but failed to get a place in the final. The interscholastic team race was run with three schools represented. Pingry's School easily captured first prize, while the Montclair and the Plainfield High schools finished second and third respectively.

A. C. LaBoyteaux had a narrow escape from being run over Saturday morning, and as it was his wheel was completely demolished. He was riding on Park avenue, just opposite the entrance to Hillside cemetery, and endeavored to pass the carriage of Dr. I. R. Glen, of Craig place. The horse shied and knocked Mr. LaBoyteaux off his wheel. He managed to get out of the way of the horse, but his wheel was a complete wreck.

AROUND THE BASES.

The Westfields have a good pitcher in Rogers, but a good pitcher cannot win the game alone. He should have better support in the field.

Charlie Mumford caught a good game for the Plainfield Athletics at Westfield Saturday. All the team showed up well at the bat.

Young McLaughlin, who pitched a few innings for the Y. M. C. A's Saturday, showed up good. His services would greatly strengthen the team.

The Plainfield A. C. showed in its game with the Y. M. C. A. team, of Westfield, Saturday, that they have a good team and would make the Y. M. C. A. team of this city hustle. It would be interesting if a series of games could be arranged with these two teams.

Failed in Business.

R. M. Plumber, who has been residing on Fairview avenue for about a month, has left town with his family for New York. Mr. Plumber rented one of Chas. Hand's houses for a year and paid his first month's rent. Wednesday he quietly moved out and yesterday notified his landlord that he was gone. His reasons for leaving was that his wife is ill and that he has just failed in business. He was located on Broadway, New York.

A young son arrived yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. August O. Trust, of Somerset street.

TENNIS SEASON OPENED.

Some Good Playing Witnessed at the Hillside Courts.

The tennis season in Plainfield formally opened Saturday with the tournament of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, held on their courts on Watchung avenue. There were twelve entries, but Carl F. Walz defaulted. The playing was good and there were several exciting matches. Quite a number of visitors watched the tournament in the morning and afternoon.

A. C. Wadsworth won the first prize, a traveling valise, and Stanley Hunter the second, a pair of gold sleeve buttons. The scores were as follows: Preliminary round, W. Wadsworth beat W. Glenney, 6-4, 6-1; F. K. Fish beat G. H. Ryder, 6-1, 6-1; A. B. Wadsworth beat H. Fish, 6-4, 6-4; H. E. Moore beat Carl Pfeiffer, 7-5, 0-6, 6-1. First round, F. K. Fish beat W. ALL KINDS OF BUSINESS

THE COMMON COUNCIL DISPOSE OF MANY LITTLE MATTERS.

Complaint Against the Service of The Street Railway—Defect in The Police Board Ordinance—Many Other Details.

A varied lot of business was transacted by the City Council at the regular June meeting held last night and all the members, except Mr. Fisk, were present to look after it. The first business after the reading of the minutes was the presentation of a communication from F. C. Lounsbury, in which he stated that the Street Railway Company was not transferring passengers from West Fourth street to West Front street. He also said that last week several school children in taking the car at the Franklin school were obliged to pay an additional fare to reach their homes on West Front street. The matter was referred to the Streets Committee.

A. M. Griffen presented a letter to the Council received by him from M. Honan & Sons, in which the latter asked Mr. Griffen to see the City Treasurer and secure for them the money owing them from the city. The matter was referred to the Sewer Committee and later referred back to the City Clerk and the Clerk was instructed to prepare a proper bill for M. Honan & Sons to swear to.

Rev. P. S. Gibson petitioned the Council for four crosswalks to be located at the southerly, northerly and westerly side of Liberty and West Third streets and one at the northerly side of Liberty and West Fourth streets. The petition was referred to the Streets Committee.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company in a letter stated that they objected to the contract between them and the city which provides for the care of the fire alarm system, on the grounds that if signed they would be obliged to serve the city each year for the amount stipulated, no matter how many fire alarm boxes were erected.

The matter was referred to the fire and building committee. The Mayor appointed D. C. Iving, J. Parker Mason and George R. Cornwell, as commissioners to make assessments in connection with the system of sewers introduced. On motion of Mr. Frost the appointments were laid on the table for the present.

The monthly reports of the collector, treasurer and inspector of buildings were received as usual. The last report stated that twenty-two permits had been granted during the month for the erection and alterations of buildings.

Mr. Dumont at this point offered a resolution that the $10,000 sewer note be renewed, and that the clerk be authorized to draw a new note for $8,000 to be used in connection with the sewer work. The resolution was adopted.

Mr. Tolles recommended that the electric light petitioned for Orange street between Elm street and Westervelt avenue, be granted. The recommendation was adopted.

On motion of Mr. Barrows the police ordinance was called up and voted down, owing to a slight defect. The same member then introduced a new ordinance which was passed on its second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised.

Mr. Tolles called up the sidewalk ordinance and on his motion it was adopted on its final passage.

A petition from John Valiant asking that a crosswalk be laid in front of the Y. M. C. A. building on East Front street, was granted.

D. W. Rogers, E. R. Pope and others asked Council to establish the proper grade at Madison avenue and West Second street. They also asked that the streets be made ten inches higher at that point.

Mr. Dumont thought the Street Commissioner was going to fast in that street, as the report of the Madison avenue commissioners had not yet been received, and the city has no right to meddle with a street which does not belong to them. No action was taken in the matter for the present. Mr. Dumont stated that for several years past the assessor has had no safe place to keep his books, and he suggested the purchase of a second-hand safe for that purpose. A resolution was offered by Mr. Dumont authorizing the Finance Committee to purchase such a safe, and the resolution was adopted. Mr. Barrows said that he hoped the members would bear in mind the fact that the city hall matter was rapidly getting into shape and the city would then have a place to keep all such things.

Mr. Frost offered the street sprinkling ordinance as amended, and on motion of Mr. Serrell it was passed on second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised. It provides for an

A Former Well-Known Plainfielder Succumbs to the Inevitable.

Twenty years ago Mr. Baldwin was a resident of this city, where he was well known and universally liked. He went to Newark and engaged in the plumbing business and by careful attention built up a substantial business and became one of the leading master plumbers of the city. He served with honor through the Civil War, and was an active and influential member of the G. A. R. He was also a member of the Masons, Odd Fellows and Knights of Honor. He leaves a wife and one son. He was fifty-three years of age. The remains will be brought to this city Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock and interred in the family plot in the Presbyterian cemetery. Members of the above orders are invited to attend the services at the grave.

IN AID OF THE ARMENIANS.

Rev. B. Fay Mills Will Address a Meeting for Their Help Next Sunday.

The Committee on the Relief of the Sufferers in Armenia are happy to announce that a public meeting in aid of the cause to be addressed by Rev. B. Fay Mills, will be held in the Crescent Avenue church in this city on Sunday next at 4 o'clock p. m. Mr. Mills writes that the National committee is out of funds, that Miss Barton expected $500,000, but that up to the latter part of April she had received only about $100,000, and that unless more money is speedily forthcoming, tens of thousands will starve to death this summer. In response to the urgent appeal of the National committee, Mr. Mills decided to devote a week or two to the conducting of meetings in this vicinity for the purpose of arousing general interest and raising money in aid of this object. It is earnestly hoped that there will be a large attendance and a generous response.

A NEW SCHOOL ASSURED.

TO BE ERECTED IN THE EAST END AND CALLED THE LINCOLN.

The Board of Education Decide to Advertise for Bids for its Erection—Commencement Details of the Schools.

The Lincoln public school, for such has the contemplated new building been named, will soon be a reality for the Common Council have concurred with the action of the Board of Education and at the June meeting of the Board, held last evening, it was decided to advertise for bids for its erection at once.

The meeting was attended by Drs. Probasco and Jenkins, and Messrs. Lounsbury and Lovell. After the usual routine opening business of reading the minutes and approving bills, the bills of Abram Angleman for taking the census were presented and ordered paid, if found correct.

A communication was read from the Mutual Life Insurance Company giving notice that interest to the amount of $700 was due June 19th, on their bond of $28,000. This was ordered paid. The report of City Tax Collector Johnson showed $857.21 had been collected, on which the interest was $90.06, making a total of $947.27. The assent of the city to the erection of a new primary school building was shown in a communication from the city clerk enclosing a copy of the resolution passed by the Council approving the action of the Board.

Clerk Clark next read the replies of those who had been invited to act as judges in the commencement prize contests. Acceptances were read from Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, Rev. C. E. Herring, Assemblyman W. R. Codington, Miss Edith R. Leonard Mrs. W. R. Richards. Mrs. Matilda L. Stirling said that owing to other engagements it would be impossible for her to fill the position.

There are probably very few that know about the teacher's pension bureau that has been established by the last Legislature. Every teacher in the public schools can join it by giving notice to the Board of Education that one per cent shall be deducted from their salary monthly for its benefit.

Superintendent Maxson spoke a few words on it and presented notifications from three teachers, the Misses Louise B. Runyon, Clara Tickner and Cora Cadmus, that they wished to be put on the list. The other teachers were, Superintendent Maxson said, waiting for his advice until he could examine into it more thoroughly.

As this was the last regular meeting before Commencement, it was necessary to hear from all the committees in charge of all the details in that event. Dr. Jenkins reported that Music Hall had been secured. Dr. Probasco, as music committee, told that Prof. Conde had been secured for both commencement and reception for $85.

Mr. Lounsbury's report, as printing committee, appeared in the shape of tickets, all printed, for the Commencement exercises. He reported that the programmes had been arranged for. Mr. Clark, as committee on ushers, reported progress.

An important matter was then called to the attention of the Board by the secretary, Mr. Lounsbury. He said that the street railway was not fulfilling its contract with the city by refusing to transfer passengers from the Fourth street branch to the West Front street line, and he told how several teachers and school children had been refused and how he himself had tried it and the conductor would not exchange him to the other line. He had taken it upon himself to send a communication to the Common Council that evening. The matter was talked over and the members approved of his action.

The speaker for the Commencement exercises has, at last, been chosen and Dr. Probasco reported that Prof. Bliss Perry, professor of oratory and aesthetic criticism at Princeton College, had promised to make the address.

The building committee report was the last of all business to come before the Board, but it played quiet an important part. Mr. Lounsbury, chairman of the committee, first read a notice asking for bids for the new school that he had drawn up to be published. It was decided upon with a few changes. The work is to be divided into the carpenter's work, the painting and the mason work, for arch of which separate bids will be received. Bonds will be given for half of the amount of the contract and a certified check must accompany each bid. For the carpenter and mason work, it must be $300 each and $50 for the painting. The bids must be in by June 22d. C. P. Karr, the architect, was present

THEIR SILVER WEDDING.

REV. AND MRS. E. M. RODMAN HAPPILY MATED FOR 25 YEARS.

A Reception Tendered Them by the Members of Grace P. E. Church Last Night—A Presentation Was Made.

The Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Rodman celebrated their silver wedding anniversary yesterday, and last evening the members of Grace P. E. church congregation tendered them a reception in the chapel of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Rodman received the guests in the guild room, which had been profusely decorated in honor of the occasion with pretty hothouse plants and sweet-scented flowers, while many large banquet shades softened the bright light of the incandescent lights into a mild, soft glow.

During the evening the choir of the church rendered in a pleasing manner "The Milk Song" and "Good Night," the solo parts of which were taken by Frederick Freeman.

Mrs. Rodman was presented with a purse of gold by the ladies of the congregation.

The following from the Ministers' Association, of this city, were present: Revs. Yerkes, Barnes, Lowrey, Newell, Richards, Richardson, Schenck, Love, Taylor and Ferguson.

Refreshments were served during the evening by the Helping Hand Society, and the Misses McClure and Reinhart served lemonade. The balance of the evening was passed in sociability, and the visitors left wishing Mr. and Mrs. Rodman many returns of the day.

DENIED THE CHARGES.

Patrolman Cooney Says He Was Not Abusive to Bundy's Son.

Patrolman Joseph Cooney appeared before the Councilmanic Police Board last night to answer to the charges of using indecent language and being abusive while on duty at the North avenue station a week ago Sunday, which were preferred by Henry Bundy, a colored man whose son was arrested by Cooney. The officer made a positive denial of the charges and claimed that his actions were entirely proper at the time. No decision was announced by the officials, but it is expected that the officer will be exonerated when their report is made.

Resigned of His Own Accord.

Principal C. E. Boss, of the North Plainfield public school, has presented his resignation to the Board of Education to take effect at the close of the school year. Several rumors have been circulated to the effect that he was forced to resign, but this is wholly untrue. Mr. Boss resigned of his own free will. He has many warm-hearted friends who will regret his decision.

Cancer on a Horse's Leg.

A valuable draught mare, owned by William Baldwin, of West Fourth street, went lame a few days ago from, at the time, some unknown cause. Dr. Koch was called in and found that a cancer had formed on one of the front legs, where a dangerous nail had embedded itself sometime ago. The animal weighs 1,780 pounds, and the doctor has every hope of saving its life.

New Central Station.

DESECRATING GRAVES.

A Woman to Be Arrested for Stealing Flowers in a Cemetery.

There are some people in this world that have not the slightest respect for anything, and in that class should be placed those who, for the last few years, have been desecrating the graves of the dead by stealing flowers planted thereon by loving friends and relatives. For some time numerous complaints have been made to the local justices that the desecrators have been at work at Evergreen cemetery on Plainfield avenue. At last, however, the grave robber has been seen at work, and is likely to be brought to justice.

John H. Tier, Jr., has made a complaint before Justice Nash against Mrs. Philip Hapeny and her little eleven-year old daughter, of West Front street, for stealing a plant off the grave of Mr. Tier's sister.

According to his story, Mrs. Hapeney stood over her child while the little one dug up the plant and removed it to place it on the grave of one of her relatives. The warrants for the arrest of Mrs. Hapeny and her daughter were issued this morning and will be served this afternoon.

Up to the time that this issue went to press, Mrs. Hapeny knew nothing of the complaint so her side of the story cannot be told.

Mr. Tier claims to be able to produce witnesses that saw the plant dug up and if such is the case, it will go hard with the offenders as the penalty is a severe one.

The plant was not a valuable one, but it is Mr. Tier's idea to push the case and make an example of the thieves, if possible. The case will be watched with a good deal of interest, for this form of robbery has been growing worse of late.

To Continue During the Summer.

Miss Beeching taught the lesson at the meeting of the Primary Teachers' Union held yesterday afternoon, after which a short business session was held and the members decided to continue the meetings during the summer. It was announced that $50 had been received and would be forwarded to headquarters as Plainfield's share toward the summer schools. The raising of this amount is most creditable as the union is scarcely a year old.

Accepted an Invitation.

The Grand Commandery Knight Templars of New Jersey will constitute Temple Commandery, No. 18, of Metuchen, Wednesday evening, June 10th. Trinity Commandery of this city have been invited and accepted the invitation at their meeting last evening, at which time the Order of the Temple was conferred on one candidate.

McCann Pleaded Not Guilty.

James McCann, who attempted to shoot his brother Sunday, as was told in yesterday's Daily Press, came up for trial last evening at 5 o'clock before City Judge DeMeza. He retained S. S. Swackhamer as his counsel and pleaded not guilty to the charge of being disorderly. Trial was set down for later in the week.

Open Cars Soon to Run.

The new open cars for the street railway are now being wired and the motors are being placed in them. The work is quite tedious, but Superintendent Adleman hopes to have them in a few days. Five extra closed cars will be put into service later on.

Feline and Canine Missing.

The remaining pet cat at fire headquarters has been stolen, much to the regret of the firemen. "Ted" Cleveley's valuable dog has been spirited away, and if the guilty one is found a pleasant reception will be given.

Sprained His Wrist.

William Baker, of Central avenue and Second street, was walking along West Fourth street a few nights ago, when he stepped in a hole, fell down and sprained his right wrist. He is recovering rapidly from the injury.

Rev. B. Fay Mills to Speak Here.

Rev. B. Fay Mills, D. D., who did such wonderful evangelistic work in this city several years ago, will speak at the Crescent Avenue church next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Armenian question.

Life-Savers Go Off Duty.

The life-savers along the New Jersey coast went off duty for the summer months yesterday. There are forty-two stations, and 294 men are employed.

Heavy Work Finished.

The heavy work upon the sewer beds has been finished and now the work of putting on the finishing touches has been commenced.

Miss Elsie Smith, of Westervelt avenue, has recovered from her recent illness.

T. Wyckoff, of East Front street, spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives in Brooklyn.

BLUE COATS TO BE M. D.'S

POLICEMEN TO BE INSTRUCTED HOW TO AID THE WOUNDED.

Dr. Simpson Made Police Surgeon and Will Give the Necessary Lectures—Philadelphia Plan to be in Vogue.

Another new feature is about to be introduced into the police department by Chairman Barrows, of the Police Board. Each member in the department is to be instructed by City Physician Simpson as to how to give first aid to the wounded.

The point is that many times a policeman is called to take care of a wounded man and treatment is often needed before a physician arrives. Dr. Simpson will fill the position of Police Surgeon for the Board and will also be required to examine each man in the department when ill and certify to his condition.

About fifteen years ago this plan was first introduced in Philadelphia and Dr. Simpson was at that time interested in the same. He will chiefly use that plan here.

The department will be divided into two squads and five lectures and demonstrations of one hour duration will be given on five different days to each squad. They will probably be given in the City Council rooms and on Thursday the instruction will begin.

The office of Police Surgeon is created for the protection of the Police Board.

"NYDIA" OFFERED TO PRINCETON.

Dr. J. A. Coles Will Give the Famous Rogers Statue to the University.

An offer of a large marble statue has been made to Princeton University by Dr. J. Ackerman Coles, of Scotch Plains, in a letter to President Patton, in which he says:

In appreciation of the mutual regard which for more than fifty years existed between the trustees, faculty and instructors of the College of New Jersey and the late Dr. Abraham Coles, our father, my sister and I will take pleasure in giving Princeton University Randolph Rogers' magnificent life-size marble statue of "Nydia," belonging to the estate of our father.

The statue was made of the best Carrara marble in Rome, Italy, in 1856. Several copies of it were subsequently made. One was at the Centennial Exposition and another in A. T. Stewart's collection. The one which Dr. Coles and his sister now offer to the university is the original. Mr. Rogers, it is said, received $3,800 for it, and it cost nearly $1,000 more to land it safely in New York. It has been carefully preserved, and its value has been enhanced with time.

REV. HOBART CLARK TO LEAVE.

The Unitarian Minister Wants a Change in His Field of Labor.

Plainfield is to lose one of her well-known ministers next September. Rev. Hobart Clark, the pastor of the All Soul's Unitarian church, will leave his present charge and go to one of the New England cities—which one he has not yet decided. He presented his resignation last Sunday, and a meeting will be held Friday evening to take action on it. Rev. Mr. Clark told a Daily Press reporter this morning that his connection with the church had always been of a most pleasant nature, but that he was desirous of a change.

A Family Gathering.

A family gathering was held at the residence of Mrs. Fenner, of Liberty street, in the afternoon of Decoration Day. The time was pleasantly spent in a social manner and all enjoyed a collation. A number were present from this city and those from out of town were John VanMiddlesworth, of Somerville; Mrs. Jessie VanSickle and son and Miss E. Fenner, of Blackwell's Mills; Mr. and Mrs. George Wortman and Lloyd VanMiddlesworth, of Weston; Mrs. Charles Foster and sons, of Jersey City; Mr. and Mrs. Linsley Wooley and daughter, of Westfield, and Charles VanMiddlesworth, of Brooklyn.

Summer Change of Hours.

The regular session of the Sunday-school of the First M. E. church will be held, beginning next Sunday, at 9:45 a. m., instead of 2:30 p. m. as heretofore; and the morning session of the church will begin at 10:45 instead of 10:30. This arrangement will be continued through the summer and autumn months.

Dr. Richards to Deliver a College Address.

Miss Grace Petrie, of East Sixth street, graduates at the Elmira College on June 10th. Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D., will deliver the address at the commencement exercises of the Elmira College.

Mothers will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy especially valuable for and whooping cough. It will give prompt relief and is safe and pleasant. We have sold it for several years and it has never failed to give the most perfect satisfaction. G. W. Richards, Duquesne, Pa. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

BUTLER BOND BILL

The Principal Matter of Discussion Before the Senate To-day.

VOTE MAY BE REACHED THIS EVENING

Another Private Pension Veto Bill Presented—The House Disposes of the Johnson-Stokes Election Case, Declaring No Legal Election.

Washington June 2.—The principal business in the senate to-day is the Butler bond bill, and it is the intention to reach a vote on the measure at the evening session to-night. An argument was made against the bill by Mr. Cullom, rep., Ill., who declared that the consequences of its passage would be so far-reaching as to be simply appalling; but that there was no danger of its passing the house of representatives. The bill was advocated by Mr. Brown, rep., Utah, in connection with a resolution, offered by himself, declaring that "in the opinion of the senate the secretary of the treasury has no authority under the act of Jan. 14, 1875, to issue any further or other bonds in addition to those already issued; and that any such bonds that may hereafter be issued by him will be without authority of law and void." The conference report on the Indian appropriation bill was discussed for a couple of hours, but again went over without action. The question that has been so much debated in the senate for nearly a week past is the proposition in that report to impose citizenship upon the Indians of the five civilized tribes—it being claimed by the senators who are opposed to it that it is a violation of the treaty with those Indians. The report itself is only a partial one—the conferees not having agreed upon the proposed temporary continuance of contract schools for Indian children. A joint resolution appropriating $6,000 for the completion of the historical frieze in the rotunda of the capitol provoked a discussion in which Mr. Hawley, rep., Conn., criticized the painting both for what it represented and for what it failed to represent—President Cleveland being in the first class and the surrender at Appomattox in the other. Finally objection was made to the consideration of the resolution by Mr. Wilson, pop., Wash., and it went over without action. The conference report on the fortification bill was presented and agreed to. The private pension bill which was vetoed by the president last week because of a mis-description of the soldier's regiment was reported with that mistake corrected, and was passed. Another veto of a private pension bill was then presented. It was the the case of the renewal of a pension to the widow of a soldier in the Mexican war after she had married a second time—thirty-five years ago—and forfeited her pension. The message and bill were referred to the committee on pensions.

House of Representatives.

The house disposed of the contested election cases of Johnson, rep., vs. Stokes, dem., from the seventh district of South Carolina, by adopting the view of Chairman McCall, rep., Mass., of elections committee No. 3, which considered the case. By a vote of 130 to 125, and it was decided that no legal election for representative in this congress had been held in the district, and the seat was declared vacant. The republicans divided upon this proposition and it was supported by the unanimous democratic vote. The majority of the committee reported in favor of Stokes and the minority in favor of Johnston. Presidential vetoes of the bills to pay W. H. Mahoney $500 for the Oregon Indian war bond of 1856 (on the ground that it had been paid); to pension Mrs. Amanda Woodcock, and to restore Jonathan Scott to the pension rolls, were read and referred. A supplemental conference report on the sundry civil appropriation bill, showing an agreement upon all items save the appropiations for certain public buildings was made by Mr. Shannon, rep., Ill., and agreed to.

Suicidal Attempts of Genz.

Jersey City, June 2.—Paul Genz, who is under sentence to be hanged on July 16 for the murder of Clara Armin of Hoboken, has made repeated attempts to commit suicide since sentence was imposed. It has just leaked out that he made another effort last night. He smashed a window in his cell and endeavored to sever arteries in his wrists by dragging them over the edges of the broken glass. He says he will never hang.

Bayard Present at Queen's Levee.

London, June 2.—The Prince of Wales, in behalf of the queen, held the final levee of the season yesterday afternoon at St. James' palace. The function was a brilliant one and there was the usual state procession from Marlborough house to the palace. United States Ambassador Bayard, most of the other ambassadors and ministers and the Marquis of Salisbury and the cabinet attended.

To Pass over President's Veto.

Washington, June 2.—The house river and harbor committee has formally agreed to recommend to the house the passage of the river and harbor bill over the president's veto. Chairman Hooker was instructed to prepare a report in which he will incorporate the reasons of the committee for taking this step.

Lavinge Defeats Burge.

London, June 2.—The match between Kid Lavinge and Dick Burge, the lightweight champion of England, was fought last night at the National Sporting club and resulted in a victory for Lavinge in the seventeenth round.

MAY ASK FOR OUTSIDE AID.

Mass Meeting of St. Louis Business Men This Afternoon To Consider the Matter.

St. Louis, June 2.—A mass meeting of citizens will be held this afternoon to consider the advisability of appealing for outside aid for the relief of the sufferers from last week's tornado. The call for the meeting was signed by a number of prominent Germans, South Broadway merchants and residents of the devastated portions of south St. Louis. It states that the loss of propert is greater than was at first supposed, it being estimated at $20,000,000. For this reason, the call continues, assistance is sorely needed, and the generous offers of numerous cities of this and foreign countries should not be declined. The mayor and many other business men, however, believe that the situation does not demand an appeal for outside aid. Up to last evening it was thought fifty patients were in the ruins of the city hospital, which was demolished by the tornado. To-day every man, woman and child who was in the institution, either as nurse, doctor, patient or attendant has been accounted for. Michael Dunn was the only patient killed outright by the storm. Some have died since, but only a few from actual injuries received. The list of persons missing since the storm is still remarkably long. At present the police have about 120 names of persons who cannot be accounted for, and it is probable that some of these may yet be found under the ruins. It has been believed from the first that at least thirty persons lost their lives by being blown into the river, and only three of them have been recovered thus far. The local relief fund is now far beyond the $100,000 mark. The extent of the tornado's disastrous work here and in East St. Louis has overshadowed the losses sustained in adjacent towns in Missouri and Illinois, and no accurate list of the killed has been made. A careful compilation from all sources places the number of killed at 46; injured 76, and property loss $350,000, in towns outside of St. Louis and East St. Louis.

WILL CONSIDER HIMSELF DEAD.

An Ohio Man Will Have His Funeral Preached—Then He May Marry Again.

Portsmouth, O., June 2.—Lorenzo Dow McKinney, one of the best known farmers of Scioto county, an Andrew Jackson democrat and a member of the Scioto county jury commission, has issued the following notice: The funeral sermon of the undersigned will be preached at Fallen Timber on Sunday, June 21, at 2:30 p. m. L. D. McKinney. "I am not doing this for fun," said Mr. McKinney. "The Bible says that the days of man are threescore and ten years. I have always said that if I lived to be eighty years old I would consider maself dead and a funeral would naturally follow. I will be eighty years old on June 17 and will have my funeral sermon preached by Rev. Forest E. Evans of Pride, Ross county, on the first Sunday following. Any time I may life after June 17 I shall not consider as mine. It will only be borrowed time." Mr. McKinney is a well preserved old man and would easily pass for sixty. His wife died about ten years ago. "If my health remains as good as at present," said Mr. McKinney, "I may conclude to begin a second life and get married again." Large crowds from this city are already arranging to attend the funeral services. After the sermon there will be a barbecue, at which McKinney will preside.

In combination, proportion and process Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself, and unequalled in true merit.

No other medicine ever possessed so much curative power, or reached such enormous sales, or made such wonderful cures, as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It is undoubtedly the best medicine ever made to purify, vitalize and enrich the blood.

That is the secret of its success.

Read this statement:

"When my son was 7 years of age, he had rheumatic fever and acute rheumatism, which settled in his left hip. He was so sick that no one thought there was any help for him. Five sores broke out on his thigh, which the doctor said were sores. We had three different doctors. Pieces of bone came out of the sores. The last doctor said the leg would have to be cut open and the bone scraped, before he could get well. Howard became so low that he would eat nothing, and one doctor said there was no chance for him.

"One day, a newspaper recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla was left at our door. We decided to try this medicine. Howard commenced taking it the last of February, after having been sick for a year and a half. He hadn't taken it a week before I saw that his appetite began to improve, and then he gained rapidly. I gave him five bottles, when the sores were all healed and they never broke out again. The crutches he had used for four years were laid aside, as he had no further use for them. I give all the credit to Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. ADA L. MOODY, Fay Street, Lynn, Mass.

Premature

is deplorably prevalent in this nineteenth century. Thousands die annually—young in years, but as completely worn out as though the full allotment of their time had passed over their heads. The man who feels that he is "breaking down," experiences loss of strength, sleep, and appetite, should at once take that greatest of concentrated food preparations. It is not a medicine, but a builder-up of brain, nerve, and flesh tissue. By its strength-giving properties, and its action as an invigorator of each of the great life-maintaining organs of the body, it stops the decline, and gives to the prematurely broken-down sufferer a new lease of life, wherein poor health is an unnecessary adjunct if its use is continued.

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? Laundry drivers will receive your work.

Advice about the Treatment of Coughs and Colds.

Constitutional Treatment to Prevent the Recurrence of These Dangerous Ailments.

A person may be very wealthy and yet not be inclined to give away any of his property. Lawyers who have great knowledge of the law are not noted for giving service for nothing. Physicians are known to be generous to the poor, yet they will not serve everybody free. Even the wealthy railroad companies, who could so easily and quickly carry us to our distant friends, will not do so without first receiving our dollars and cents. But there is one thing everybody has and everybody is anxious to give some of it to everybody else. We mean, advice. It is so cheap, and we never miss what we give away. Therefore, we follow the custom and give you some advice.

Do not neglect your cold. You may need no medicine for it, but do not neglect it. When first taken, try and break it up. Take a hot foot-bath; drink a bowl full of hot lemonade or ginger tea, get into bed, cover up well, and let the body perspire. Be very careful the next day. If the cold hangs on, or if one cold quickly follows another, then something more is needed. Constitutional treatment is necessary. This is especially true if your health is frail, or if there is a tendency to weak lungs in the family. Sore throats and colds inflame the delicate membrane which lines the throat, and which continues directly down into the bronchial tubes and lungs. One attack predisposes to another, and a slight attack invites another more serious. The best preventive to serious lung affections is to keep all the air passages in a healthy condition. Therefore, do not neglect an acute cough or cold. This is our advice, which is given freely.

But it will cost you fifty cents to procure a small bottle, and one dollar for a large bottle, of the remedy we recommend, which is Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites. It cures acute attacks, and thus prevents chronic ones. It builds up the tissues, invigorates the nervous system, and prepares the body to resist disease. The system only needs some such aid at the right time in order to completely master the germs of consumption, preventing them gaining a firm foothold in the lungs. One bottle taken in season will often accomplish as much as five bottles taken later.

Scott's Emulsion has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. Ask your doctor. Because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites. Insist on Scott's Emulsion with trademark of man and fish. Put up in 50c. and $1.00 sizes. The small size may be enough to cure your cough or help your baby.

RACE FOR PRESIDENT

Efforts To Interview Major McKinley at Cleveland.

SHORT REPLY TO PERTINENT QUERIES

Chicago Will To-day Redeem Her Pledge and Settle with the Democratic Committee—Gov. Morton's New York Supporters Still Hopeful.

Cleveland, June 2.—Hon. Wm. McKinley was in Cleveland last evening in consultation with M. A. Hanna. When asked to answer some of the questions which have been fired at him so freely from all sides as to the Quay meeting and the money question, he said: "The greatness of the American people is evidenced in nothing more than in the interest they take in the exercise of suffrage. In every election they manifest the greatest enthusiasm, and so long as they do so this nation is safe from its enemies within and without. The people keep at it year in and year out and have made officeholding the servitude of the man to the mass. Public office is the people's honor. Public service well done is its own honor."

Morton Men Still Confident.

New York, June 2.—The managers at republican state headquarters still express confidence that McKinley can be defeated, notwithstanding the report from Washington that Senator Quay had given up the fight and had acknowledged that McKinley would be nominated on the first ballot. Chairman Hacket said: "The fight is still on. If Senator Quay made that statement, he has a right to his opinion, as I have a right to mine. We began the fight for Gov. Morton and sound money and we propose to keep it up till the candidate is named at St. Louis."

REDEEMS HER PLEDGE.

Chicago To Hand Over the Balance of the Convention Money To-day.

Chicago, June 2.—The sub-committee of the democratic national committee, which has charge of convention matters of a preparatory character, met at the Auditorium annex yesterday afternoon and another session is to be held this afternoon. The principal business to come before the members relates to decoration of the coliseum, the inside arrangements and the appointment of an assistant sergeant-at-arms. Incidentally the committeee will put out its hand when Chairman Donnersberger of the local committee delivers a check for the remaining $11,000 of the convention subscriptions, which he says he has the money for, and so make good the full promise of the Chicago guarantors. The committeemen know that the men who signed the guarantee will pay if the subscribers are delinquent, and there is no uneasiness on the financial score any more, especially as the rest of the funds are not needed at present. E. C. Wall, the Wisconsin member of the committee said: "I will speak for Wisconsin on the money question. You can put it in the gold column. The convention June 23 will declare solidly for sound money. The silver men will not be heard from." Secretary Sheerin said for Indiana: "We have given up my state so far as sound money is concerned. The wave is likely to sweep over the entire state."

THE PROHIBITION SPLIT.

Nominees in Ohio Resign To Join the Seceders at Pittsburg.

Springfield, O., June 2.—Rev. Alva Crabtree, prohibition candidate for secretary of state, and nearly all the county prohibitionist officers have resigned, thus necessitating, it is said, a new state and county convention. This action is taken to join the new party at Pittsburg.

New York Grand Lodge Master Masons.

New York, June 2.—When John Stewart, grand master of the Grand lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of the state of New York, calls the 110th convention to order to-day nearly 1,000 Master Masons will respond to the rap of the gavel. There are 737 Masonic lodges in the state, and each lodge will send one delegate. Each delegate is entitled to three votes for his lodge and its first fifty members and an additional vote for every other fifty members.

Ex-Judge Tappen Dead.

New York, June 2.—Ex-judge Abraham B. Tappen died yesterday afternoon at his home in Fordham. He was 73 years old, and was born in New Hamburg, Dutchess county, N. Y. He was a member of the legislature for several terms, was a member of the constitutional convention before the last one, and also judge of the supreme court.

Newport Hotel Closed by Employes.

Newport, R. I., June 2.—The United States hotel in this city is closed and is in the hands of a keeper. Last week the proprietor, John F. Parsons, went to Boston to secure funds to tide over his embarrassment, but he has not returned, and the employes of the house placed attachments on the property to secure wages due.

Italian Masonic Congress.

Rome, June 2.—A Masonic congress, comprising delegates from all the lodges in Italy, was held here last evening. The principal business of the congress was the election of a grand master in place of Signor Lemmi, who recently resigned. Ernest Nathan, an ex-disciple of Mazzini, was chosen.

Placed on the Retired List.

Washington, June 2.—By direction of the president, Capt. James Ulio, Second infantry, U. S. A., has been placed on the retired list on account of disability.

It seems as though we are living in an era of fatalities just at present.

The sweet girl graduate and the June bride makes this month a happy one.

Elias S. Ward, of Newark, denies that he is a candidate for the Republican Senatorial nomination in Essex county. He has only one political ambition, and that is to be Governor.

It is settled that Franklin Murphy will succeed himself as chairman of the Republican State committee, and that John Kean will be the treasurer, to succeed Colonel John J. Toffey.

Here is the progressive west: Judge Horton, of the Cook County Circuit Court, declares that the old-fashioned custom of flogging in the public schools should be revived, in order to reduce the number of juvenile criminals in Chicago.

Such events as the bicycle races of the Crescent Wheelmen last Saturday cannot but be beneficial to the progress of the city. Plainfield looked her prettiest at this time, and with the good roads, beautiful residences, hospitable people and general air of up-to-dateness, the thousands of visitors must have left town with a most favorable impression.

From present prospects it looks as though the Democratic party will be badly split up in the National convention over the money question, as from canvasses made among party leaders all over the country the sentiment for free coinage seems to equal or exceed the gold standard idea of the Eastern States. This morning the New York Times publishes despatches from every State in which the currency situation of the party is summed up, and from Trenton the following is sent:

The New Jersey delegation to Chicago is pledged to stanch support of the strong gold plank in the Democratic State platform. The delegates will be controlled by the prevailing sentiment among the Democrats. They have expressed themselves as a unit for sound money and would resist the adoption of a silver plank most forcibly, and they would be likely to favor the nomination of a gold-standard man. The Democrats of New Jersey are almost unanimous on the subject of sound money. A few Democrats in Warren and Hunterdon counties are talking silver, but they were formerly members of the People's Party and Farmers' Alliance.

A Happy Entertainer.

At the entertainment given by the Park Club last Friday evening, Judge Green, the humorist, of Brooklyn, made his first appearance at the club. W. N. Runyon also appeared and sang several selections in his usual agreeable manner.

Judge Green was favorably received by the audience and his humor was frequently applauded. He gave several selections by Reilly and "Little Boy Blue," by Eugene Fields, in which the best points were brought out with ability and force. Several present were heard to remark that the entertainment was the best ever given at the club. Judge Green is a valued member on the staff of the Brooklyn Eagle.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

Takes Exception to the Rev's Remarks.

C. P. Farrell, publisher of Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll's books, sends the following letter to The Daily Press:

In your issue of May 18th is an article headed "Hot Shot for Col. Bob," in which the Rev. C. E. Herring goes on to say that Col. Ingersoll is a hoodoo, and tries to prove it by showing that the threatres in New York city where he has lectured have all been failures. The Fifth Avenue Theatre, which he cites as one of them, the Colonel never lectured in but once, and the Academy of Music, which he refers to as being such a success, the Colonel has lectured in more than a dozen times and always turned people away. The Rev. gentleman ought to be sure of his facts before he rushes into print.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

An Exciting Experience.

The experiences of the members of the Independent Fife and Drum Corps at Clinton last Saturday were exciting, to say the least. The corps was hired by the citizens for the Decoration Day parade and was given the place of honor in the line. When the corps was marching down the street at the head of the column, a runaway horse with carriage attached came directly for them. Right behind the corps was a party of about sixty children and a terrible catastrophe seemed imminent. Frank Carver and several of his comrades of the corps were equal to the occasion and stopped the horse before any damage was done.

If You Will Use a Little Reasoning and not be influenced by the claim that catarrh is a blood disease, you can easily prove that catarrh is climatic. Have you not the severest catarrhal attacks during winter and spring, and have you but like evidence of catarrh during summer? Yes. Well, this proves it is a climatic disorder, inflaming the membrane of the nasal passages. It is a waste of time and money to invest in blood remedies. The proper treatment is a local application, and the most prompt to cure is that popular remedy, Ely's Cream Balm.

Eczema is a frightful affliction, but like all other skin diseases it can be permanently cured by applications of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It never fails to cure Piles. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

Blew Away the Postoffice.

Washington, June 2.—A telegram to Chief Postoffice Inspector Wheeler from St. Louis, received from Inspector Johnston, reads as follows: "Postmaster at New Baden, Ill., says his office, with entire contents, including mail, stamps and supplies, was blown away by Wednesday's cyclone; his house wrecked; himself and family all hurt and one member killed. He asks that stamps and supplies be sent at once."

THE FETES CONTINUE

Saturday's Terrible Disaster Now Almost Forgotten in Moscow.

DISGRACEFUL AND INHUMAN SCENES

More Dead Bodies Recovered—All of the Victims Buried—Unidentified Corpses Placed in Long Trenches—Another Estimate of the Number Killed.

Moscow, June 1.—Every effort is being made to clear the Hodynsky plain of the dead upon it who lost their lives in the frightful disaster of Saturday. Last evening a number of bodies were found on the edge of the plain and in the villages around. These dead were injured and crawled until death overtook them. The functions in connection with the coronation festivities are being given as though nothing had happened. The pleasure resorts are open as usual. Several wealthy residents gave garden parties yesterday and things generally are going on as though nothing out of the ordinary had occurred. Many of the Moujiks danced about beer casks while the dead were lying around. The mob subsequent to the disaster callously stood by the corpses and received the doles. All the bodies of the victims were interred yesterday. About half of the dead were identified. The unclaimed dead filled eleven trenches which were fifty yards long. Priests officiated at all the interments. Many pathetic scenes were witnessed as the bodies were consigned to the earth. Thousands of persons were in the cemetery weeping and praying. Upon the hearts of all the dead were placed icons, or sacred pictures. To-day the city has resumed its normal aspect and a stranger, unless told, would never for a moment imagine that only two days ago one of the most frightful calamities that ever occurred in Russia had taken place just outside the city.

Dead Estimated at 3,600.

London, June 2.—The Standard's Moscow correspondent estimates the number of dead at 3,600, besides 1,200 injured who were taken to the hospitals. Most of the injured, he says, will die.

No Americans Were Injured.

Washington, June 2.—Clifton R. Breckinridge, the United States minister at St. Petersburg, has cabled the state department confirming dispatches from the the United Press special correspondent in Moscow that no Americans were injured in the terrible catastrophe on the Hodynsky plain.

OLEOMARGARINE LAW STANDS.

Court of Appeals Declares It Constitutional on Every Point Submitted.

Washington, June 2.—The District court of appeals has handed down a decision sustaining the constitutionality of the oleomargarine act. A retail grocer named Prather was convicted and fined several weeks ago for selling oleomargarine as butter without marking it according to law. The court overruled his appeal on every point, holding that the employer is responsible for his salesmen and declaring broadly that oleomargarine could not be sold except in stamped and branded packages without knowledge and intention of violating the statute.

SALEM MILL SHUTS DOWN.

Many of the French Employes Leave for Their Farms in Canada.

Salem, Mass., June 2.—Mill No. 5 of the Naumkeak Steam Cotton company shut down yesterday for an indefinite period while the remaining department will run but four days a week. The closing of No. 5 throws about 500 spinners and weavers out of work and the early trains north carried a large number of the French employes on the way to Canada, where they will remain until business resumes. Many of the heads of families have invested their savings in Canadian farms and will now go to them for the summer.

Pensions Approved by the President.

Washington, June 2.—The president has signed the following bills: Granting a pension of $50 per month to the widow of Brig.-Gen. John McNeil. Granting a pension of $100 per month to Matilda Gresham, widow of the late secretary of state, Walter Q. Gresham. Granting a pension of $50 a month to the widow of Maj.-Gen. Benjamin F. Kelly.

Connecticut Convict Pardoned.

Hartford, June 2.—Only one petition for pardon was favorably acted upon at the semi-annual meeting of the state board of pardons yesterday, that of Clifford R. Fuller, and he will be released from the state prison at Wethersfield to-day. He was sentenced in 1892 to seven years for burglary.

Durrant's Appeal Submitted.

San Francisco, June 2.—Statement and bill of exceptions in the case of H. T. Durrant, convicted of the murder of Blanche Lamont, in support of an application for a new trial, has been presented to Judge Murphy. It consists of 1,000 typewritten pages.

To Contest the Will.

New Haven, Conn., June 2.—One of the heirs of the late W. Wallace Ward of West Haven is to contest the will which disposes of about fifty thousand dollars worth of property. It was alleged that Mr. Ward was mentally incapable of making a will.

Peculiar Death of a Child.

Worcester, Mass., June 2.—Elsie E. Manning, 3 years of age, the only child of Gardiner H. Manning, living on Florence street, fell into a post-hole head foremost yesterday and was suffocated.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

XIII.

"Sakes alive! what's keepin' that Hiram?"

There could be no mistaking that voice, which penetrated my office, though the speaker was out of sight. It was not a voice of smooth tones and delicate inflections, yet it was attractive in a homely, everyday sort of way, therein resembling its owner. Now and then it grew sharp, when circumstances were particularly trying, but it never suggested nagging. At this particular moment there was in it a note of anxiety, which roused me from a pleasant after-dinner half-doze to throw up a window and send a glance toward the gate, where Mrs. Weston stood, shading her eyes with her hand, the better to peer down the road.

"What's the trouble?" I sang out to her.

"That pesky Hiram oughter been back hours ago," said she. "What can he be a-doin' of, anyhow?"

"Where did you send him?"

"Down to the beach with the team, after a load of gravel."

"Perhaps he's been bogged. It's quite possible, if he didn't keep his eyes open. Just where did you bid him go?"

"I told him the best place was the South Cove, but he might find some good 'nough at a pinch near Johnson's. Whichever place he went, he oughter be back. I want to see him partic'lar this afternoon."

"So do I. If he turns up in the next half-hour, please let me know of it."

"Yes, indeed, doctor, I'll be glad to," she answered; and after a parting survey of the neighborhood, she reentered the house. It was the afternoon following the day on which Jones had come to the aid of Miss Gray in such timely fashion, but neither she nor I had yet succeeded in getting an opportunity to thank him for his assistance. Both of us were anxious to prove our gratitude, and Dorothy, as I knew, had decided to give him a token of it in the shape of a trinket, a quaintly carved watch charm, which she had picked up in one of her trips abroad. All things considered, it was rather a curious choice she had made, although the thing was sufficiently pretty to appeal to the untrained instincts of the boor she had every reason to suppose him to be. So far as I was concerned, the question was more puzzling, but I had determined to offer him money. Whether he would accept it was doubtful, but, at any rate, the proffer might be made, with the alternative idea of picking out some present later on which would meet his approval in case he declined the cash.

The half-hour passed with no tidings of the missing man. After another fruitless survey of the road, Mrs. Weston, dolefully shaking her head, vanished again, after once more informing me that his prolonged absence was wholly inexplicable. Presently one of her sons brought my horse and carriage to the door, and, somewhat reluctantly, I forsook the cool quiet of the office to begin the drive to the house of one of the patients whom I was attending during Mr. Banks' convalescence from his injury. Miss Gray was reading in the shade of the porch of the house over the way, and, in hopes of persuading her to join me, I crossed the road and went up to her.

"Really, I should be delighted, but I've promised my aunt to see her safely off," said she, in response to my invitation. "You know she is to take tea in the village, and her hostess is to sent for her I don't know at just what hour."

"Oh, then there's no hope for me," said I, grumpily. "However, I shall be back in an hour or two. I'm expecting Dr. Banks to call for my report of the case, and he may appear before my return. If he does, will you kindly ask him to wait for me? Then, too, if Jones condescends to drive up with his load of gravel, and you happen to speak to him, please be so good as to tell him that I should like to see him."

"If you care to wait a little," she answered, "we may interview him together. The team is in sight now."

Looking along the track toward the house of the knoll, I saw Mrs. Weston's horses jogging homeward at a trot, which indicated that the wagon they drew could not be loaded very heavily.

"Where's the driver?" Miss Gray asked. "Do you see him?"

"No, I don't," said I. "Quiet as the team is, it must have got away from him."

One of the boys ran up to the approaching horses and stopped them. We could see him pick up the reins from the ground, examine the wagon, and climb to the seat. By the time he drove up to us Mrs. Weston, Mrs. Clark, and one or two others had joined the group, and Mrs. Loring, who looked down from the window of her room.

"Dorothy! Dorothy!" she called out, "tell me, tell me, has anything happened? anything terrible? Where, oh, where is the man? Is he dead? Is he killed? Oh, Dorothy, I'm sure he must be!"

"Don't be alarmed, Mrs. Loring," said I, saving her niece the trouble of explaining that nobody knew more about the matter than she did. "The horses have probably started for home while Jones' eye was off them. No doubt he'll be along in an hour or so."

She tried to ask more questions, but no one took the time to answer them. All of us were busily inspecting the wagon and its steeds. The conveyance was loaded to perhaps a quarter of its capacity. One of the movable sideboards was gone, but that was the limit of damage.

"It's all plain enough," said I. "The horses became homesick and trotted off, very possibly while Jones, not satisfied with the gravel he had found, was prospecting for better. He'll be, here in time for supper, with a splendid appetite from his tramp."

"I guess that's about it," said Mrs. Weston, with a sigh of relief. "But it's queer, I must say. Might as well count it a day wasted."

"Which is a sin—in New England," I whispered to Miss Gray. "Come, now, can't you change your mind?"

She smiled and shook her head. Climbing into the buggy, I drove off, wishing her aunt's teas and social observances in Tophet, and trying to resign myself to a dull afternoon. The bay appeared to be unusually slothful, but I let him choose his own pace, and away we dawdled toward our destination. The sufferer proved to be convalescing satisfactorily, but the doctor's visit was an event of importance, and half an hour passed before I could get away from the sick room. Then came a slow progress back to the Weston residence. As I drove up to it, Miss Gray emerged from my office, caught sight of me, and called to some one within. A moment later Dr. Banks followed her, and hurried out to the road.

"For God's sake, Morris, come in as quick as you can," he cried. "There's been a terrible piece of business."

Reassured as to Dorothy Gray's safety by the sight of her, and therefore ready to deal courageously with the misfortune of anybody else, I sprang to the ground and followed Banks into the office. There on a lounge lay Jones, his face ashen pale, his eyes closed, and great beads of sweat on his forehead; his breathing was heavy and stertorous, and broken by low moans. His right boot and the leg of his trousers had been cut away, revealing the limb crushed from the knee down into a terrible wreck of bone and muscle, with a jagged fragment of the tibia protruding from the skin.

Banks' eyes caught mine for an instant; both of us read the meaning of the look we exchanged.

"No alternative," said he.

"The sooner the better," I added.

The senior glanced at his disabled arm.

"This puts me out of it," said he, "except as I may manage to administer the anaesthetic. Have you ever conducted such an operation?"

"Never. I saw plenty of the sort in my student days, but since then—well, I've never pretended to be a surgeon, you understand."

"Nor, to tell the truth, have I. In fact, I've always hated to see the knife used. But there's no question here."

"Let us send to Bassetville for Fowler. I've heard he's a clever operator."

"He is: the idea had already suggested itself to me. But it will mean four or five hours—perhaps more. And whom shall we send? I'm too crippled to be of any use, and you ought to stay here."

"My horse is ready," said I. "Now for a messenger."

TUESDAY,—June2 Sun rises 4:30 a. m., sets 7:25 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:25 p. m. and 3:30 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Holly Freeman, of Oak Tree, has a new Crescent wheel.

Mr. Kerr, of East Sixth street, is riding a new Majestic wheel.

Miss Louise Wilbur, of East Fourth street, is riding a new Cleveland Swell Special.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company received eighteen Hartford wheels Saturday.

Albert P. Simmonds, of Watchung avenue, expects to ride in the races at Paterson Saturday.

Three Daytons and six Cleveland Swell Specials were received by the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company yesterday.

John Bushnell, of Madison avenue, has purchased a ladies' Cleveland Swell special of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

There is considerable talk among the colored cyclists of this city and the borough of reorganizing the old Victor Wheelmen.

There is a prospect that "Baron" Hand and Fred Titus will ride a tandem between Newark and Phila delphia at an early date, with a view to breaking the record.

The amateur photographers were numerous at the Crescent Oval Saturday. Among the most successful was Miss Nellie Rockfellow, who secured photographs of all the finishes.

The Jersey Wheel Company have many conveniences for the care of wheels, 53 of which are being looked after daily. It will only cost you $1 a month, which includes cleaning.

Thomas Kane, formerly of this city and now of Brooklyn, accompanied by Charles Dougherty and Richard Hayes, of the the same place, were in town over Decoration Day and Sunday, visiting Mr. Kane's parents on West Third street.

William M. McCutchen, the speedy young rider of the Crescent Wheelmen, has gone to Belmar to spend part of the summer. He will train on the Asbury Park track unless he finds it in bad condition, in which case he will return to Plainfield.

A two-mile amateur bicycle race was run on the new High street macadam road at Bound Brook, Saturday morning. There were seven entries. Fred Coriell won with Chas. Close second. J. Moynihan, B. Prugh, E. Strickland and H. McIntosh finished in the order given.

William Kiely, Samuel Goff, Garry Geary and Nicholas Powers constituted a party who rode wheels over to Metuchen last evening. They left here about seven o'clock and after spending a few hours among the wheelmen there, returned home about midnight.

The second of the Y. M. C. A. league runs will be held on Thursday evening. The destination is Westfield and the Plainfield party will start at 8 o'clock. The Westfield association is noted for its hospitality and will entertain the visitors in a royal manner It is hoped that Plainfield will send a big delegation.

The friends of Chas. G. Carpenter of this city, are more than pleased with the showing made by him in the races at the Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon. Mr. Carpenter did not intend at first to enter, but finally did so at the last moment, but it was too late to admit of any training. The fact that he secured third place in two events speaks for itself.

Letter-carrier "Billy" Sharp was speeding merrily along over the Irvington-Milburn course on Saturday, in a vain endeavor to see the bicycle races, when some farmer bicyclist collided with him and tore out a few of the spokes in the front wheel. Billy was thrown promiscuously into the gutter and escaped with a bruised knee and a skinned shin. He was too much vexed to interview the man who struck him, concerning damages or an exchange of cards.

While the congratulations are flying around over the success of the Crescent Wheelmen's Decoration Day meet, some of them should fall on Gus T, Burgland, the well known trainer of the Jersey Wheel Company's racing team. He has been hard at work preparing them for the meet in the little time they had since the track was opened and how well he succeeded was shown at the meet. He also kept an eye on Joe Donoghue, the champion skater, and the latter showed that he had been well trained by winning his first race. Burgland has made a great number of friends during his short stay here, both by his kindness and his genial good nature.

No more important announcement to those interested in cycling can be made than that the Olympic, a high grade wheel, has been reduced from $100 to $75. This should result in a large sale for this wheel. J. R. Johnson, corner Park avenue and Second street, is the agent.

About twenty of the members of the Young Men's Association of Monroe Avenue chapel, under the command of Clarence Brouard, enjoyed a very pleasant run to New Brunswick last evening. Webster Littell acted as bugler. Two of the party went on the Cleveland tandem and made things lively for all the scorchers they met.

The Irvington-Milburn road race is to be taken into the courts, as President Neefus, of the Vim Bicycle Club, will apply for an injunction restraining the referee, Mr. Pitman, or the Metropolitan Association of Cycling Clubs, from distributing the prizes until Charles Hadfield, the actual winner of the race, shall have a chance to disprove the charge that he was paced, which charge led to his disqualification. Hadfield declares that he did not know the man who was thought to be his pacemaker.

As was exclusively stated in The Press some time ago, the Junior Crescent Wheelmen are planning for a field day of their own on June 13th. It is to be held at the Crescent Oval. The events will be as follows: One hundred yard dash, two bundred and twenty yard dash, one-quarter mile bicycle race, scratch, one mile bicycle handicap, two mile bicycle handicap, three mile bicycle handicap, one-quarter mile Junior bicycle race, open to boys under thirteen, running broad jump and pole vault. Entries close with William Nash on June 10. The entrance fee will be ten cents for each.

AT THE TRAPS.

The members of the Independent Gun Club had an enjoyable shoot on their grounds Saturday afternoon, and some excellent scores were recorded. The shooting was at targets, and those who scored the highest number of points were: August Rupert, 83 out of a possible 100, and Rudolph Speigel, 73 out of a possible 100. The club will hold an important shoot on July 4th.

AROUND THE BASES.

The Oneonta A. C., of New York, and the Somerset Baseball Club met on the latter's grounds at Somerville, Saturday afternoon, and the New York team won by a score of 13 to 11.

The Y. M. C. A. team will play the Kings County Athletic Club's team on the Washington avenue grounds Saturday afternoon. The visiting team is one of the best amateur nines in the Metropolitan district.

John Honan, Wilbert Bentliff and Elmer Hoffman have had good luck while angling for the finny tribe at New Market lately.

Fred Firstbrook and Fred Cuff returned last night from New Market, where they had spent the day angling, with a big string of fish.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

The local horses came out very well at the opening of Waverly Park on Saturday. Thomas Brantingham's "Myrtle Twig" won the 2:25 trot, driven by Charles C. Brower. Brower also piloted James Arkell's "Highland Boy" to victory in the 2:35 trot, winning in three straight heats.

"Highland Boy" and Robert Fairbairn's "Lilly M." are both entered in the races at Fleetwood this week.

A FESTIVAL OF SWEETS.

LUSCIOUS ARTICLES ON SALE AT THE MONROE AVENUE CHAPEL.

The Chapel Transformed From a Sombre-Looking Edifice Into a Bazar of Gayety and Life—Those in Charge.

A surprise awaited those that came to Monroe Avenue chapel last evening to attend the strawberry and ice cream festival. Instead of the rows of chairs arranged about the platform, artistic booths and tables were placed in the centre and sides of the room, while a crowd of young people and children gathered about each one and kept those in charge busy attending to their numerous wants.

A booth to the right of the door, draped in purple and yellow, contained a choice assortment of flowers. This was presided over by Miss Thompson and Miss Saums.

A large earthen jar, decorated with daisies, made a very acceptable lemonade well, and here Miss Mary Beekman established her headquarters and was kept busy supplying the crowd of thirsty buyers.

In a corner was a booth covered with many dainty little fancy articles that were sold by Mrs. James Rogers.

In the rear of the room was a novel stand, that is novel for a festival, for here were sold peanuts and bananas. Those in charge were Miss Bertha Wenzel and Miss Minnie Whitney.

In the centre of the room was a table on which was displayed such a wonderful assortment of candies that the eyes of the small boys fairly popped out of their heads as they gazed. But the best of this table and its delicious load was that everything was furnished by the members of the Junior Epworth League.

The table was decorated in yellow and white bunting while immense bunches of daisies adorned each end. The candy, which was all home-made, was enough decoration in itself and attracted old and young alike. Miss Charlotte Aldrich, Superintendent of the Junior League, was in charge, dressed in an appropriate yellow and white gown while her little aides, all in white, were the Misses Stella Kriney, Daisy Brouard, May Bruower, Lulu Randolph and Annie Littell.

The booths and tables were all delightful, but the real attraction of a strawberry and ice cream festival was the refreshment department. The visitor first had to go to the cashier's desk, which was presided over by Mrs. Nicholas Brouard, and there purchase checks for the good things to come. One large table and three small ones were crowded most of the evening with the visitors, and Mrs. Hayes, Mrs. Pierson, Mrs. Pugh, Mrs. Fulton, Mrs. Eakins and Miss Wenzel were kept busy collecting the checks and furnishing the equivalent, ice cream and strawberries.

The children found a new source of delight in the shape of a little electrical machine that generated enough electric current to make their hands and arms tingle in a most surprising way. The youngsters lined up around the machine, taking hold of hands and as the current passed through them, screamed with delight at the "funny feeling" that resulted. There was no regular programme, but several of the musicians of the chapel played familiar airs during the evening.

The festival was given by the Ladies Aid Society of which Mrs. I. P. La Rue is president.

In Business for Himself.

Charles Lyman has withdrawn from the employ of A. D. Thompson and is again in the real estate business for himself, and has purchased a horse and carriage which enables him to show his customers around the city.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

THE FIRST JUNE BRIDE.

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING CELEBRATED ON EAST 2D STREET.

Miss Mary E. Thorn Becomes Mrs. William C. LaRue, of New Brunswick—Married Under a Floral Horseshoe—Guests

An ideal home wedding was celebrated last evening at 8 o'clock, when Miss Mary E. Thorn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thorn, of 616 East Second street, was united in marriage by Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, of the First Baptist church, to William C. LaRue, a well-known resident of New Brunswick.

The rooms were beautified with a profusion of roses, while in the parlor was suspended a large horseshoe of flowers under which the bridal party stood. The Lohengrin wedding march was finely executed by Clifford Braider on the organ as the party entered. The bride was becomingly gowned in pink silk and carried pink roses. Miss May Thompson, of East Orange, and Miss Edna Carson, of North Plainfield, nieces of the bride, acted as flower girls. The former was gowned in pink and the latter in white. Both carried baskets of flowers. Congratulations followed the ceremony during which several classical selections were rendered by Mr. Braider. A supper was afterwards served to the guests. A feature of the event was the presence of the bride's Sunday-school class of girls, ten in number, who acted as waitresses.

Mr. and Mrs. LaRue received a fine collection of presents, including a large handsome family Bible from members of the East Third Street mission, of which the bride is a member. The bride and groom left on the 10 o'clock train for New Brunswick, where they will reside in the future.

Those who witnessed the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thorn, the parents of the bride; Mrs. LaRue, mother of the groom, Miss LaRue and Mr. LaRue, sister and brother of the groom, of New Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. William Perrine and family, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Thomson and family, of East Orange; Miss R. A. Thorn, of West Farms; Mr. Bixby, of Pittsburg; Dr. and Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carson and family, Mrs. Obleinger, Miss Althea Vail, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Randolph, Irving Brady and Clifford Braider.

Owing to illness, the groom's father was unable to be present.

A MISSIONARY TEA.

Park Avenue Baptist Church Women Have a Pleasant Event.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church was pleasantly entertained at the home of the president, Mrs. Geo. F. Opdyke, yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. It was termed a "Missionary Tea," and it was the last gathering till September. The meeting was opened with Scripture reading, Corinthians, 2:6, by the president, which was followed with prayer by several of the women present.

A letter was then read from Mrs. Burns, of Zigou, Siam, acknowledging the receipt of a box sent to her school. Mrs. Coard followed with a few remarks relative to the recent anniversary meetings held at Asbury Park, and Miss Linda Butler gave a short address on mission work. An interesting feature was the reading, "Life Among the Hindoos," by Mrs. Wyckoff. A pleasant portion of the affair followed when cream and cake was served to those present, about thirty in all. Mrs. Middledith had charge of the refreshments and was assisted by young women from the church. An adjournment was then made to September.

CUPID COULDN'T WAIT.

SO A BROOKLYN GIRL BECAME THE WIFE OF A PLAINFIELD MAN.

Miss Jeanette E. Bryan, of Brooklyn, Married to Richard Menzel Last November—Parents Object—Are Reconciled.

If love has any essential qualification it is persistency, and thus it was in the affairs of Miss Jeanette E. Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Bryan, of 142 Fulton street, Brooklyn, and Richard Menzel, of this city. The two met and they loved each other. But when they had made up their minds to get married the young woman's parents objected on the grounds that they did not think it was the proper time. Accordingly on Thursday, November 7th, 1895, Miss Bryan and Mr. Menzel went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, 442 Monroe avenue, Brooklyn, and were married by Rev. Phil Johnson, an Episcopal clergyman. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson stood up with them during the ceremony. Soon afterward the bride and groom came to Plainfield where they have been living.

Owing to the parent's objections the marriage was kept a secret, and not until a week ago was the fact made known to them. They were inclined to be provoked over the affair, but finally became reconciled. Miss Bryan is a niece of Mrs. Hebert, of 80 Mercer avenue, and has visited there quite frequently. Mr. Menzel, previous to coming to Plainfield two years ago, was manager of the Mathushek Piano Company, and during his stay in this city has had charge of F S. Taylor's music store on West Front street. He is a well-known musician, having appeared many times before Plainfield audiences. His wife is also an accomplished musician. They will make their home in the borough, but as yet have not chosen a house. For the present they are boarding.

YOUNG PEOPLE INTERESTED.

They Will Assist the Improvement Association in Keeping Clean Streets.

The Young People's Auxiliary committee has, through the several schools, already made some progress in interesting the young people in the work of the Town Improvement Association. The children have been set to work counting the elm trees, and a number have become members of the association. They are going to be careful not to litter the sidewalks and streets with paper and other rubbish, and will strive to encourage careful habits in their companions.

The pin used in Brooklyn has been adopted by this committee. It consists of an aluminum heart inscribed with an A, and signifies, "I will aid you with all my heart."

Children become members of the association by the payment of ten cents a year and they can secure the pin by the additional payment of five cents.

Prospering Greatly.

At the National convention of the Federated Woman's Clubs, in session at Louisville, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall read a report of the correspondence department of New Jersey. She said: "I will say that our State Federation has prospered greatly, and that it promises to be of great benefit and value to the clubs of our State. We have again nearly trebled our record. Instead of twenty-three, we now have sixty-two federated clubs. Of these, thirteen are directly associated with the General Federation; one of the thirteen, the Elizabeth Union of Literary Clubs, comprises thirteen clubs, with a membership of 308."

Mr. Holmes was a great favorite and his selections were well received. Mr. Conde was greatly pleased with the place itself and remarked on the great resemblance of that portion of the Hudson valley to his old home on the Rhine.

HIS DEATH ON THE RAIL

A UNION VILLAGE FARMER KILLED ON THE RAIL.

Attempted to Drive Over a Grade Crossing on the Lehigh Valley and Was Run Down By a Passenger Train.

The morning was a delightful one. The stage which runs between Plainfield and South Plainfield was standing not far from the South Plainfield station on the Lehigh Valley railroad, while the driver, C. J. Barry, and his companion, Louis Cane, were stretched out on the front seat of the stage reading a newspaper as they waited for the arrival of the passenger train from New York due at the station at 10:05. "It will be here in a minute," said Barry, as he examined his watch, and just then the whistle sounded down the track. Again the shrill notes of the whistle broke the quiet of the morning, and this time it screamed like one in pain.

"Oh!" exclaimed Barry, and he sprang from his seat and ran for the grade crossing, just above the station. There on the track was a farm wagon and its only occupant, an old man, was apparently trying to back his horses off the track. There was another terrible shriek by the whistle, and the locomotive struck the wagon just behind the whiffletrees. The man was thrown for some distance, while the two horses and part of the wreck of the wagon were dragged over the trestle bridge.

Such were the circumstances of the death of Henry Burnett, an old and respected farmer living near Union Village, this morning, and how it was seen by the nearest witnesses. When the driver reached Burnett the injured man was gasping faintly and in two minutes more his heart had ceased to beat. His head and arm were badly cut and torn and it is supposed that his skull was fractured.

Burnett had gone to South Plainfield after a load of beer-malt, and started to drive across the track before he heard the train. When he he did, it is supposed that he tried to back off the track, but the horses did not respond in time. The poor animals paid dearly for their slowness. One was killed and the other, when found, was in the last throes of death. The wagon was completely wrecked. The accident was not seen by those at the depot, as another train obscured the crossing from view. The engine was 309.

Burnett's remains were identified by a neighbor, who was at the depot platform loading his wagon with grain.

The family of the victim of the accident were notified as soon as possible and his wife and daughter were taken to South Plainfield this afternoon by Henry Rogers, whose farm is nearby the deceased's.

Charles Burnett, the mason, of this city, Henry and Peter Burnett, farmers near Smalleytown, another son, and two daughters survive, with the widow. One of the daughters is Mrs. Henry Bodenheimer, of Somerset street. Mr. Burnett was about sixty-five years old.

AGAINST THE DEMON ALCOHOL.

Howell Division Stirs Up a Temperance Sentiment By an Open Meeting.

The regular monthly open meeting of Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, was enjoyed last evening, and the attendance was very large. The opening number was the singing of "Blest be the Tie," by the audience, after which Wm. B. Ayres made an excellent address of welcome. Mr. Hargin, of Roselle, followed with a few remarks, as did also Rev. B. W. Hand. A violin solo was rendered by R. W. Barnes, accompanied by Miss Florence Dodge on the organ. An interesting number was the recitation by Miss Try Mattox. The feature of the evening was the address by Lawyer S. S. Swackhamer, on "Temperance." For over an hour he held the closest attention of his audience as he disclosed facts of the greatest import to the members. His address was heartily applauded. The rest of the evening was spent socially, after which adjournment was made.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

DESECRATORS' WARNED.

MOTHER AND CHILD RECEIVE A LECTURE FOR STEALING FLOWERS.

Convicted of Taking Them From a Grave in Evergreen Cemetery, But Justice Nash Considered the Publicity Punishment.

The flowers on the graves at Evergreen Cemetery are likely to have a more peaceful existence hereafter, as the desecrators were given a severe lesson in Justice Nash's court this morning. After several years of mysterious disappearances of flowers from the graves, one of the supposed thieves was captured, as was exclusively told in yesterday's Press.

John H. Tier, Jr., was the man to make the complaint. Erasmus Harris, a colored man, has been employed by the Tier family to look after their plot and report when any flowers were stolen. This is Harris' regular business and he looks after the Tier plot together with a number of others.

Last Sunday Harris and his wife were walking through Evergreen Cemetery when they noticed a little girl ahead of them lean over the grave of Nellie B. Tier and pull a small white flower out by the roots. The little girl was accompanied by a woman. She held the plant in front of her until she reached another plot and there laid it down.

The watching couple in the rear could not tell who planted it but, at any rate, the plant was set out on another grave. Harris reported the occurrence to Mr. Tier and the complaint followed.

The woman was Mrs. Philip Hapeny and the child, her little six-year-old daughter, Lizzie. They appeared in Justice Nash's court this morning to answer the charge. Harris and his wife were present to testify as was Charles Smith, of Oak Tree, who was in the graveyard at the time. They all told their stories while Mrs. Hapeny vehemently protested her own innocence and that of her child.

When she took the stand, she declared that no flower had been taken, but had no evidence to offer.

Justice Nash then called the little girl, whose eyes were already filled with tears, to the side of his chair and after talking to her for some time extracted the fact that she had taken the flower.

The mother and child were pronounced guilty and the Judge, after lecturing them severely, suspended sentence, deeming that the publicity of the conviction would be enough punishment.

Any future attempt, however, will receive the full punishment, a fine of $100 and sixty days in jail.

VOLUNTARY OFFERINGS BEST.

Young People Believe They are Better Than Other Methods of Raising Money.

A social missionary conference of the Young Ladies' Mission Band of the Crescent avenue and First Presbyterian churches was held yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue church. The president, Miss Emily B. Tracy, presided over the meeting. Invitations were sent to the missionary and C. E. societies of the different churches of the city, some of which sent representatives.

Miss Flora Petrie opened the conference with an interesting talk on the work of missions and missionary societies, the objects for which money is needed and the various ways of raising it.

The principal subject of discussion was "Voluntary Offerings against Entertainments." Miss Miller, of Elizabeth, the Presbyterial secretary of mission bands, spoke in a very pleasing manner. The other speakers who took a prominent part in the discussion were: Mrs. Brokaw, from the First Baptist church; Miss Floreta Clark, from the Congregational church and Mrs. Alfred A. Taft, from the First M. E. church. Several other delegates were expected, but were not present. The committee, consisting of Miss M. Yerkes and Miss Lou Patton, served refreshments after which an offering amounting to $16 was received.

Just Tell 'Em That We Saw Them.

Down by the brookside they sat yesterday afternoon near the North Richmond street bridge, a party of well-known sports, passing the time away in gypsy fashion. A hurry-up lunch was partaken of (a new boarding house found). There will probably rear up in the future on the spot where they camped a few olive trees and hop vines, that is if the seed will take root. There was only one pair in the party—two "Jacks." None of the "gypsies" fell in the brook.

SWEARING IN RECRUITS.

THE AMERICAN VOLUNTEERS INCREASED BY THIRTY MEMBERS.

After Putting the Post on a Sure Footing, Capt. Mimms is Transferred to a Newark Post—New Officers for the Local Post

A rousing meeting of the American Volunteers was held in Reform Hall last night, at which time thirty recruits were sworn in, the largest number yet enrolled at one time. The hall was crowded by the vast audience which had gathered to witness the ceremony and also to hear Major Pattie Watkins sing.

The meeting was preceded by a street parade, and when the Volunteers passed the Salvation Army, who were holding an open air meeting on North avenue, the former ceased their drumming and marched quietly past the gathering for fear of disturbing it, thereby showing their good-will toward the parent organization.

The meeting in Reform Hall was a spirited one, and was opened with the usual song service. Major Watkins then gave a very interesting talk and was listened to attentively throughout. She said that she had been asked why she had taken Capt. Mimms away and sent her to another post. She said she would not have done so, had she not thought it would be productive of good.

Captain Mimms led her last meeting in this city last night. Tonight she leads a meeting at Seacliffe, L. I. She was in command at the latter place during the trouble in the Army and the Seacliffe corps was the first one to go over to Ballington Booth. Captain Mimms' place here will be taken by Lieutenant Bisbee, late of Dover, who will, however, receive her commission as Captain before she takes command here Thursday night. After tonight Captain Mimms will be at the Newark Training Home. Lieutenant Chalfont, who was in charge with Captain Mimms, will go to Dover to take charge of the Post there. Staff-Captain Lindsley, the head of the Trade Department of the Volunteers in New York city, was also present. He is an expert cornetist and is now organizing a band among the Volunteers.

The local officers sworn in last night were: Sergeant Major, Alex. Grant; treasurer, G. H. Van Nest; secretary, Jessie Billett; recruiting sergeant, W. L. Sharkey; color sergeant, J. Q. Miles; gazette sergeant, Mrs. W. L. Sharkey; bass drummer, T. Herman; snare drummer, Fred. Pangborn; visiting sergeants, Mrs. G. H. Van Nest and Mrs. Alex. Grant.

Lieutenant Ransome, of Jersey City, who is often seen at the meetings in this city and who has a large circle of friends here, has resigned his position on the New York Morning Advertiser and goes to Philadelphia to take a Post there.

TRUST TO THE HOUSE

Anti-Bond Bill Opponents Have Not Lost Hope.

SENATE VOTE A SURPRISE TO THEM

Passage of the River and Harbor Appropriation Bill Over the President's Veto Accomplished with a Big Majority. Election Contest Disposed Of.

Washington, June 3.—The passage of the anti-bond bill in the senate last evening was somewhat of a surprise to opponents of the measure, who had confidently believed that it would fail of passage. They are not discouraged, however, for they say the bill has no chance at all of meeting with favor in the house. All amendments to the bill, with a motion to postpone, were voted down by a majority of seven, and the bill was passed by a like majority—thirty two to twenty-five. A speech was made early in the day by the chairman of the finance committee, Mr. Morrill, rep., Vt., on the Dingley emergency tariff bill. In his remarks he intimated that democratic senators were so much afraid that the populists were going to get the better of them that they hurried to become populists themselves by voting for the free coinage substitute to the Dingley bill. This substitute he characterized as a "legislative whip" illustrating the old apothegm that "men are but children of a larger growth." The conference report on the Indian appropriation bill (as to Indian citizenship) was discussed from the close of Mr. Morrill's speech until 1 o'clock; when the morning hour expired, and the bill to prohibit the issuance of bonds without consent of congress, was taken up. To that bill an amendment was offered by Mr. Aldrich, rep., R. I., to add the words "unless in case of an emergency, it is necessary to preserve the public credit." The bill was advocated by Senators Brown, rep., Utah, and Teller, rep., Col., and was opposed by Allison, rep., Ia., and Chandler, rep., N. H. Mr. Cannon declared that the great beating heart of the inter-mountain states was for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and looked for its leader to Henry M. Teller of Colorado, not John Sherman of Ohio. Mr. Allison characterised the risk of a relapse into the condition which prevailed between 1861 and 1879 as a most unwise and unjust thing; and said that no part of the people of the United States could be benefited by such a relapse. Mr. Chandler appealed to democratic senators not to vote a want of confidence in the president of the United States and secretary of the treasury, who were men of their own party and of their own choice. Mr. Teller said that he did not believe that the gold people need have any, or had any, fears of his attitude on the money question Speeches against the bill were also made by Senators Burrows, rep., Mich., and Palmer, dem., Ill.

House of Representatives.

The river and harbor appropriation bill was passed over the president's veto in the house by the unexpectedly heavy vote of 220 yeas to 60 nays. There were comparatively so few votes in the negative that it was found impossible to pair absent members in favor of the bill. The republicans, with practical unanimity and thirty-nine democrats with one populist, made up the affirmative vote, while the negative vote was about equally divided between the republicans and democrats, five populists voting with them. After hearing the report of Chairman Hooker, reciting the arguments in favor of passing the bill over the veto, the house by an overwhelming vote refused to listen to any debate, despite the vigorous protest of Mr. Dockery, dem., Mo., who denounced the course taken as "unjust, unfair and unmanly." The remainder of the session, mainly, was taken up with the argument on the contested election case of Mitchell vs. Walsh, from the eighth New York district and voting upon it. The report of the majority of the elections committee recommending the seating of Mitchell, rep., in place of Walsh, was agreed to—yeas, 162; nays, 39. By this action the democratic strength in the house was reduced to ninety-seven, and that of the republicans increased to 249. A resolution was agreed to fixing the hour of meeting for the remainder of the session at 11 o'clock. In connection with this, Mr. Dingley, rep., Me., chairman of the committee on ways and means, pleaded with members to remain in their places, that the business of the house might promptly be disposed of. Mr. Cannon, rep., Ill., chairman of the committee on appropriations, expressed the opinion that congress would not adjourn finally before Friday or Saturday of next week. Conference reports on the naval appropriation bill, and the bill making appropriations for fortifications and coast defenses were presented and the former agreed to. The latter was the final report of the conferees and provided for the expenditure of $7,375,888, and authorized contracts to the amount of $4,195,076.

ELECTRICITY FOR NEW YORK "L"

Model Train Now Being Constructed by the Westinghouse Company.

Pittsburg, June 3.—The Westinghouse Electric company has practically completed the equipment of a model train of cars to be used on the Manhattan Elevated railroad in New York. The Tesla polyphase system of alternating currents will be used for the first time in railroad traction work. It is expected the adoption of this system will revolutionize the construction and operation of electric traction lines. The Westinghouse people are prepared to make a strong bid for that $8,000,000 Manhattan contract. George Westinghouse, jr., with the electrical experts at East Pittsburg, has been at work for some time to adapt the Tesla motors for use on traction roads. The preliminary tests so far made have proved the system a wonderful success for street work. Cars similar to those used by the Manhattan road are equipped with the Tesla alternating current motors, instead of the direct current motors, now exclusively used on all the traction roads of the country. It is thought the train will be prepared for a rigorous test. When ready the Manhattan officials will be invited to see the test.

Pennsylvania—Crops much improved by sufficient rain; wheat, rye and hay mostly short; corn, oats, potatoes and vegetables doing well; bugs and worms troublesome. Maryland—Abundant rains have caused marked improvement of crops; wheat excellent in east, fair in west and southern portions and poor elsewhere; grass short; corn, oats and tobacco in good condition; peaches promising in the east.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? GOES TO THE HEIRS Congregational Churches Lose the Stickney Bequest.

WERE TO HAVE RECEIVED $350,000

Decision of the Circuit Court at Baltimore Holds That the Clause Is in Conflict with the Law Against Perpetuities.

Baltimore, June 3.—By a decision handed down in the circuit court yesterday afternoon by Judge Dennis $350,000 wich were willed to congregational churches of New England and Boston by the late Joseph Henry Stickney of this city will go to his heirs, who are residents of Chicago. Mr. Stickney's will disposed of about $1,000,000. Among the bequests was $10,000 for the removal of the canopy over Plymouth Rock to Coles' hill, to the memory of those who died the first winter after the landing of the Pilgrims, provided the Pilgrim society should deem it advisable. This clause was decided to be void on account of the conditions imposed. In the general residuary clause all the residue of the estate, amounting to $350,000, was left to the American Congregational union (now the Congregational church Building society) of New York and Boston; provided the legatees should release their claims on certain Baltimore Congregational churches. The court held that this clause was void, as not being an absolute gift, and as it came into conflict with the law against perpetuities. If Judge Dennis' opinion stands Mr. Stickney's heirs will be the richer by $350,000.

MRS. BARNES' DIVORCE.

The News from Oklahoma Revives Gossip in Society Circles in Trenton.

Trenton, June 3.—The dispatch from Oklahoma City announcing that a divorce had been granted to Mrs. Helen Edith Barnes from her husband, John A. Barnes, on the ground of extreme cruelty, has revived gossip in society circles in this city which begun when the Barnes-Magowan domestic affairs were first aired in this city. It is generally understood that Mrs. Barnes will soon wed ex-Mayor Magowan, who, it will be remembered, also recently secured a divorce in Oklahoma from his wife. The petition filed by lawyers for Mrs. Barnes, in her application for divorce, said that on many occasions Barnes was guilty of striking his wife and choking her. Once on a railroad train in a fit of anger he threw the plaintiff from the seat to the floor of the car.

Well Known Washington Livery Stable Man Who Kept Presidents' Horses.

Grant's Arabian steeds, and whose stables were also used in their time by Presidents Hayes and Arthur and Gen. Phil Sheridan, with all of whom he was well acquainted, shot himself fatally some time Monday night, through depression caused by ill health and financial difficulties. His body was not found until yesterday.

Bicycle Ordinances at Waterbury.

Waterbury, Conn., June 3.—The ordinance introduced at Monday night's meeting of the board of aldermen limiting the speed of bicycles within the city limits to eight miles an hour and requiring every wheel to be equipped with a bell, was followed by another ordinance which makes it a penal offense for a person to throw into the street any broken glass, pieces of crockery, tacks or other substances that are liable to puncture the pneumatic tires of bicycles or other vehicles. The measures will doubtless pass.

Ineligible for Excise Agent.

Albany, June 3.—The state civil service commission has decided that a person connected indirectly with the liquor traffic is ineligible for appointment as special excise agent. The matter came up on a question concerning the status of S. S. Danforth of St. Lawrence county, who has been declared ineligible to hold the position of special agent, he having been in the employ of his wife as manager of her hotel during the last year.

N. P. Railway Reorganization.

Washington, June 3.—The house judiciary committee has agreed to a favorable report on the joint resolution permitting the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railway company which has been in the hands of a subcommittee for several weeks.

MISS STEVENSON WED.

Simple Services at Washington Makes Her the Wife of Rev. M. D. Hardin.

Washington, June 3.—At 8 o'clock last evening at the New York Avenue Presbyterian church, the wedding of Miss Julia Stevenson, daughter of the vice president of the United States, to the Rev. Martin D. Hardin of Danville, Ky., was solemnized by Rev. Dr. Ratcliffe, pastor of the church, in the presence of a company including the president of the United States and Mrs. Cleveland, the members of the cabinet and judges of the supreme court of the United States; the diplomatic corps and many others prominent in official and social circles at the capital. The wedding ceremony was a type of simplicity in all its details. The church decorations were confined to palms and other potted plants. Following the wedding a reception was held at the Hotel Normandie, and at 10:30 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Hardin departed for their home at Bowling Green, Ky.

CAMBRIDGE CELEBRATION.

To-day Is the Big Day in the Festivities in the University City.

Boston, June 3.—To-day is the big day of the semi-centennial celebration of the city of Cambridge, and the time is being occupied with sports of various kinds, a big precession in which one division will be assigned to Harvard students, who will parade with their own band and drum corps. This evening there will be a display of fireworks. The celebration was begun yesterday in the University City in the public schools. Exercises were held in all the grammar schools and primary grades and were open to the public. Among those addressing the schools were R. G. Huling at the Agassiz; Rev. T. E. Wright at the Allston, and Prof. Whittemore at the Harvard. In the afternoon the pupils of the high school grades had a mass meeting in Sander's theatre, where Mayor Bancroft presided, and addresses were made by President Eliot, Judge Charles J. McIntire and Secretary Frank A. Hill of the state board of education. Last evening the anniversary oration was delivered by John Fiske in the presence of a large audience.

DEMANDS RECOGNITION.

Argument in the Appeal of ex-Lay Judge Kenny at Trenton.

Trenton, June 3.—Argument was begun yesterday before Justices Depew, Vansyckle and Gummere of the supreme court in the case of John Kenny, late lay judge of Hudson county, vs. Robert S. Hudspeth, law judge of the same county, who abolished the office of lay judge, refusing to recognize Mr. Kenny as a member o the bench. Kenny asks for a writ of mandamus to compel Judge Hudspeth to so recognize him, and furthermore brings the action to test the constitutionality of the act in question. Allen L. McDermott made the argument for the contestants and held that the law was unconstitutional, since the office of lay judge is named in the constitution and the governor is directed to appoint such judges. Frank Bergen and ex-Judge Beasley, the other lawyers in the case, will submit briefs in the course of a few days.

PROTEST FROM SPAIN.

Attention Called to the Parading of the Cuban Flag in New York.

London, June 3.—The Morning Post to-day publishes a dispatch from Madrid saying that Senor De Lome, the Spanish minister, has protested to the American government against the parading of the Cuban flag in a procession in New York on May 30.

The Case of Dr. Moore.

Concord, N. H., June 3.—In the supreme court yesterday afternoon counsel for Dr. J. C. Moore made a motion to have the case continued to the December law term, on the ground that they have been unable to attend to any other business than his matters for several weeks, but the attorney-general objected. The court took the motion under advisement.

Efforts for Capt. Wiborg's Pardon.

The McKinley boom goes marching on. But it is the tread of the straddling politician.

Another plum has dropped at Trenton, and this time Thomas R. Watson, of Paterson, is made assistant custodian of the capitol.

The authorities are trying their best to crush out the cider joints in the suburbs of Asbury Park. That's right. Annihilate the inebriating incubators.

Thomas V. Cator, who has been nominated for United States Senator by the California Populist State Convention, served in the New Jersey Legislature in 1882-83, representing a Jersey City district.

The New Brunswick lawyer who has been convicted of swindling a poor client out of $2,000 by sharp practice deserves severe punishment. It is a despicable piece of business. He should be held up as a horrible example of what it is to be caught.

The New Jersey State Association of Deaf Mutes has been organized. The thought of what a lively debate among the dumb would mean, if they should use their fingers and arms in the same proportion of vigor and bitterness that garrulous do, is not pleasant to contemplate. Let us hope that the society of the unspeakable will always be marked by the even tenor of their way.

Governor Griggs signed two of the three bills remaining in his hands yesterday. One was House bill No. 286, requiring surety companies to report annually all premiums received and levying a tax of 1 per cent on the gross amount as reported. The other is a Senate measure, providing for the appointment of a sinking fund commission for a term of three years for counties having bonded indebtedness.

HUNTERDON COUNTY'S LONGEVITY.

There Must Be Something in the Air Up That Way to Make Health.

Hunterdon county has long been noted for its peach, apple and potato crops, now comes to the fore with the longevity of its residents. Near Quakertown, a small hamlet six miles from Flemington, the county seat, live nineteen persons whose aggregate ages are 1,503 years—or an average of 79 years. The names of the oldest, with their age, is hereunto attached: Justice of the Peace Wm. Large, 75; Wm. Haver, 80; Mail Carrier Elijah Potts, who walks ten miles a day in transferring the mail pouch to the railroad station, 64; Morris Hampton, farmer, 79; Theo. Garey, 78; Theodore Probasco, a distant relative of Dr. J. B. Probasco, of this city, 89; John A. Laing, 71; Samuel Davenport, 80; Mrs. Samuel Davenport, 80; Jesse Nixon, 71; Miss Rhoda Snyder, 78; George D. Leaver, 78; Postmaster Thatcher Trimmer, 71, and others. With but few exceptions these and others who have passed the three-score and ten mark in their lives are all well and bid fair to reach the century mark.

AN IMPORTANT CONTRACT CASE TRIED IN THE CIRCUIT COURT.

It is Alleged That the Babcock Estate Became Responsible for Mechanics' Wages and Then Refused to Pay Claims

The attention of the Circuit Court at Elizabeth, Monday, was occupied with hearing the testimony on the appeal case from Justice Newcorn's court of Fred Haberle against the executors of the Babcock estate. On the decision of this case depends fifteen other suits of the same nature and involving a sum of $1,000.

Mr. Haberle was one of the carpenters employed on the construction of the Babcock building, the contract for which was held by John Chandler. It is claimed that in the summer of 1894 Mr. Chandler failed to make payments to the men employed on the building, and when the executors of the estate were approached concerning the matter, they promised the men that if they would continue the work of completing the building the estate would become responsible for the payment of their wages, as they had $30,000 in the bank. The work was continued and finished.

Mr. Chandler failed to make the payments, and when the executors of the estate were solicited for the money, they also refused to pay the men, claiming that they had never made any such contract. The men pooled their issues and employed W. A. Coddington to bring suit against the estate. The bill of Mr. Haberle's was selected to make the test. A suit on contract for $100 was brought in Justice Newcorn's court and a jury awarded a verdict for something like $80. The case was appealed by Craig A. Marsh, counsel for the executors.

Among those who offered testimony in the Circuit Court, Monday, besides Mr. Haberle, were John Wyman, Louis M. Dunavan and Mr. Mattis, for the complainant, and W. M. Stillman, J. F. Hubbard, O. S. Teale and John Chandler for the defendants. The case occupied the whole day, but owing to the pressure of criminal business which was set down for yesterday, and which could not be delayed, the summing up of the counsel on both sides was postponed to June 10th.

ROASTING SENATOR SEWELL.

Representative McEwan Very Bitter in Denunciation of the G. O. P. Boss.

Representative McEwan, of Jersey City, still keeps up his warfare on Senator Sewell. He says that the Senator will undoubtedly be the chairman of the New Jersey delegation at St. Louis, "but," he added, "he will be under no obligations to me, as a delegate, for the honor."

"I believe," said Mr. McEwan, "that the time has come when the Republican party should set aside the representatives of corporations and monied interests and that no corporation representative should be chosen to preside over the deliberations of a delegation or a convention. I want to see all corporations removed from politics, and the quicker it is done the better it will be for the Republican party. When some people hear me make such assertions they reply that corporations supply campaign money and that, therefore, they are entitled to a prominent place in politics.

"My answer to this is," continued Mr. McEwan," that corporations should not be permitted to furnish campaign money. The only capital that should be used in a political campaign is the platform, and voters should take sufficient interest in an election and primary to attend both, and in that way work for whatever they believe to be right. I have been in politics for twenty years, have been frequently a candidate for office, and was elected a member of the New Jersey Legislature and to Congress. During all my life I have not received an average of ten dollars a year in contributions from political purposes, either from corporations, individuals or any other source."

THEATRICAL.

"In Gay New York" is already fairly installed at the Casino in New York. The unqualified success won by the new review Thursday night has not been dimmed by repetition. The newspaper ballet, dance of English peers and American heiresses and the icycle ballet prove captivating divertissements. Of the vocal introductions, "Molly," "Take Me Down to Coney Island by the sea," "I Came to Town in a Little Gingham Gown," and the thugs' chorus, "What T'll," will probably win the widest popularity. Walter Jones, as Edgardo Booth and Barrett Todd, in a make-up that is a striking composite of Forrest, Booth, Barrett and Irving is continuously amusing. Lee Harrison, Henry Norman, John Slaving, Gilbert Gregory, John Keefe, Richard Carle and Frank Blair prove conspicuously successful contributors to the merriment. Virginia Earle has never been so pleasingly in evidence as in the new compound and Sylvia Thorne, Madge Lessing, Catherine Lingard, Jeanette Bageard and Gertrude Zella prove an interesting and attractive group of associates.

—Miss Noah Herndon, the city missionary, will speak at the Wilson Memorial chapel at Washingtonville on Sunday evening.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. The Competitive Examination of Candidates Will Take Place on Saturday.

TO PERMIT HIS RESIGNATION.

Pastor Greene to Go as Soon as He Finds Another Charge.

By advice of the Elizabeth Presbytery, the First Presbyterian church, of Cranford, has given its pastor, Rev. George Francis Greene, permission to hand in his resignation as soon as he is able to find another pastorate. Rumors of dissentions in the church have been rife for some time.

Although Mr. Greene has labored well and faithfully for more than ten years, some of the members have become dissatisfied, and after a series of consultations the officers sought the advice of the Presbytery. A committee was appointed to consider the matter, consisting of Rev. Dr. Kempshall, of Elizabeth; Rev. Dr. Richards, of this city; Rev. Dr. McNulty, of Woodbridge; and Mr. Squier, of this city. Mr. Greene and his critics were all present, and testimony was taken secretly.

As near as can be ascertained the principal charge was that the pastor was preaching on the topics of the day rather than from Scripture. The committee declined to pass judgment on the justice of the complaints, and simply recommended that Mr. Greene remain in Cranford till an opportunity presents an acceptable charge elsewhere. When he shall have found such a charge, he is to be permitted to resign. Mr. Greene accepts the direction, and it is understood will seek another pastorate.

AN INTERESTING CASE.

THE EMPLOYER AND DOMESTIC'S RIGHTS TO BE AIRED AGAIN.

Householders Will Watch the Outcome of the Case With More Than Ordinary Interest—Servant Said to Be Insolent

Another contract case will be called in Justice Newcorn's court tomorrow afternoon which will be of supreme interest to the large number of householders in this city who employ servants. It is very much similar to the case which was tried a short time ago in Justice Newcorn's court, and over which the opposing counsels—Messrs. McClure and Angleman—became involved in a dispute on the merits and legal aspects of the case.

Some time ago Mrs. Ellis, of Scotch Plains, employed Mary Ellen Gartlin as a domestic in her home in that place. She was hired for a month at $14. After working for a few days, the domestic, as alleged by Mrs. Ellis, became insubordinate and insolent, and when she was remonstrated with, struck her employer. Mrs. Ellis immediately discharged her and refused to pay her any wages, claiming that she had not fulfilled her contract and was not therefore entitled to compensation for the work she had already done.

Miss Gartlin employed S. S. Swackhamer to bring suit against Mrs. Ellis for the proportionate amount of the wages which she claimed that she had earned. Mrs. Ellis has engaged ex-Judge W. A. Coddington, and when the suit is tried tomorrow it is expected that there will be a strong effort between the contestants to prove that each was in the right.

GREEKS WANT CRETE

Nation, Government and Crown Prince Favor Annexation.

SUCH A GOOD CHANCE MAY NOT RECUR

The King Not Willing To Offend Russia, But He Cannot Long Resist the Will of the People, and He May Abdicate.

London, June 3.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs that he learns from Athens that the Greek nation, the government and the crown prince all favor the annexation of the island of Crete by Greece. Such a favorable chance as the present is not likely to recur. The king, however, would do anything rather than offend Russia, but nevertheless he cannot long resist the will of the nation. His abdication is hinted at. The prime minister and the minister of foreign affairs were closeted with the king for hours yesterday. There are many indications that the recent inaction of the government will be abandoned. The Daily News has also a dispatch direct from Athens which gives further details of the critical situation in Crete. It says that Turks are pillaging and burning the villages in the vicinity of Rotimo. It is stated that seventy-five Turkish soldiers were killed and forty wounded during the recent fighting at Taavaro and Vamos.

More Troops for Crete.

Constantinople, June 3.—The gravity which the Turkish government attaches to the situation is shown by the fact that thirty-five battalions of troops have been ordered to the island of Crete. After the troops retired from Vamos the insurgents returned and burned the government buildings.

NEW YORK'S PRISON LABOR.

Believed the New Law Will Affect Honest Workmen More Than the Contract System.

Albany, June 3.—At the meeting of the state prison commission yesterday afternoon nothing was done in the matter of employing convicts in the manufacture of goods for the different state institutions, as provided for in the new law, for the reason that few of the institutions had sent in estimates of what they will require for the coming year. The members of the commission believe that the new law requiring state institutions to purchase prison-made goods will affect honest labor to an equal or greater degree than did the old prison contract labor system, because the goods manufactured by convicts can be produced as cheaply, if not cheaper, than those made by free men, and will sell at a correspondingly low figure.

NO CORRUPT ACT PROVEN.

Decision of Senate Committee at Boston in Insurance Bribery Charges.

Boston, June 3.—The senate committee on investigation of Senator Sanger's charges of attempted bribery in the matter of insurance legislation by an officer of the Massachusetts Benefit Life association, decided to 'report "not proven." The report, which was submitted yesterday afternoon, says: "While the facts in evidence justified, to some extent at least, the suspicion of Senator Sanger, and while the mention of a retainer to a senator under circumstances that could leave any suspicion of the suggestion of a retainer is to be condemned as having shown the possibility of a misunderstanding, yet the committee are of the opinion that no corrupt act was proven."

Writ of Error Denied Lawyer Spiro.

Trenton, June 3.—The supreme court has refused a writ of error in the case of lawyer David Spiro of Newark, who was convicted of the alleged larceny of ten cents from the coat pocket of a court constable. He was sentenced to three months in the penitentiary, and is fighting for his liberty. The case is to be appealed to the court of errors and appeals.

Middlesex Lawn Tennis Tournament.

London, June 3.—In the second round of the Middlesex championship lawn tennis tournament yesterday afternoon Larned, the American player, beat Castle, and Mahoney beat Cazalet. In the doubles Greville and Miss Austin beat Larned and Miss Cooper.

Pierce and Downey Matched.

New York, June 3.—Eddie Pierce of this city has been secured by the Brooklyn Bridge Athletic club to meet Jack Downey in a ten-round bout on Saturday, June 13, at the Olympic rink, South Brooklyn.

Reform Leaders Will Be Freed, Too.

London, June 3.—J. B. Robinson, the South African millionaire, has received a cable message from Pretoria saying that the leaders of the Johannesburg reform committee will be released in a few days.

Captain of Pennsylvania Track Team.

Philadelphia, June 3.—At a meeting of the Pennsylvania track team held last evening James D. Windsor, jr., '97 college, was unanimously elected captain for the ensuing year.

Harvard Lacrosse Team Defeated.

Boston, June 3.—The University of Toronto defeated the Harvard lacrosse team yesterday by a score of 9 to 5. Toronto won through superior team work.

Harbor Master at New Haven.

Hartford, June 3.—Gov. Coffin has appointed Henry Sutton of New Haven harbor master of the New Haven harbor in place of Wallace Ward, deceased.

Heavy Showers in Cuba.

Havana, June 3.—Heavy showers have been falling throughout the island, and these have had the effect of preventing military movements.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

"Why not let me go?" suggested Dorothy Gray. She had been standing behind us so quietly that we had forgotten her presence. "I know the road," she went on, "and I think I can manage the horse without trouble."

"The very person," cried Banks, before I could utter an objection. "Miss Gray understands the circumstances better than any of us. If we send a boy he'll muddle the story so that Fowler won't be able to make head or tail of it."

"But—" I began.

"Now, Dr. Morris, please don't object," she broke in. "There is not the ghost of a reason why I should not go. I realize what Dr. Fowler is to do, the operation he will have to perform. I'm not a bit afraid of the horse. Besides, as Dr. Banks says, there must be no delay; every moment is precious. Please let me start at once."

"I don't like the idea," I protested, but rather feebly in the face of her entreaty. It had come, by this time, to be hard to deny her anything.

"After his timely assistance to me," she went on, "it is only fair that I should be allowed to reciprocate, to do some little thing to prove my gratitude."

"Very well, go, then," said I, shortly, but in the heart of me there was a vague feeling of relief that she should so soon repay her obligations to the man from whom I certainly had no good to expect: it was better for them to be quits as speedily as possible.

"She will round out a useful day by bringing Fowler here," said Dr. Banks, as we stood watching her hurry off her hat and gloves. "Did you know that it was she who found him?"

"No," I answered. "How did it happen?"

"Her aunt, it seems, must have been a good deal worried about the man's failure to return with his team, and to ease her mind Miss Gray promised to keep a lookout for him. At last Mrs. Loring had to start for the village, but meantime Miss Gray had caught some of her aunt's fears, and, as soon as she was free, off she started on a hunt of her own. She followed the wagon-tracks almost to the house of that lonesome patient of yours, Morris. Then the trail turned to the southward, almost skirting the edge of the bog. It was a queer route to pick out for hauling a heavy load, and soon she had cause to believe that Jones had found the road rough, for in one place she saw a heap of gravel which undoubtedly had been dumped out of the wagon in some way. The ground thereabouts is very low—a sort of hollow, in fact—and in the depression she found herself out of sight of this house. In the other direction she could get a glimpse of your patient's dwelling, but nobody seemed to be stirring about the place. Not many yards beyond the gravel she discovered Jones, lying unconscious on the ground, with the ruts showing where the wheels of the wagon had passed over his leg. He came to a bit, after she reached him, and she was able to make out that he had slipped under the wheels, and had been so badly hurt that he was unable to move, and was forced to lie there and watch his horses wander away from him, and finally, striking the path in this direction, turn into it and trot off homeward.

"Miss Gray tried to get assistance from your patient's; but, though she beat with all her might upon the door, no answer came from the house. Then, in despair, she came here. Luckily, I happened along just then. We got out a spring-wagon and brought Jones in—Miss Gray accompanying us and helping like the true woman she is, hardly faltering once, though you can imagine the job it was to lift him off the ground and into the wagon. Well, he's been in your office for the last half-hour, and what little can be done for him has been done. It's a fearful injury he has. I never saw such a mass of fractured bones and torn flesh. Amputation is the only hope to save his life."

"What do you consider his chance is?" I asked.

The old doctor shook his head doubtfully.

"He's young, and ought to have a fine constitution," he said, "but it will be a close thing for him, a very close thing, I'm afraid."

Dorothy came running up to us. I assisted her into the buggy.

"Don't use the whip; he'll go well enough without it," I counseled her. "Remember, he's hard-mouthed, and that if you get him waked up too thoroughly you'll have trouble holding him."

"You are trusting in me," she said.

"I shall remember," she said, with a smile, and then she added, in a voice so low that Banks could not hear her words: "I am very, very grateful to you. You are trusting in me, and you shall not be disappointed."

XIV.

While we physicians busied ourselves in the room in which the injured man lay, making such preparations as were in our power for the grim event on the result of which a life depended, Dorothy Gray was driving briskly along the Bassettville road. The task she had undertaken was simple, but none the less important for that fact; she had merely to cover more than a score of miles in the shortest time posible. For many girls of her acquaintance the undertaking would have been the easiest thing imaginable; and with a good deal of envy she recalled the skill shown by one or two of her friends on occasions when the moving cause was nothing more weighty than a chance to display prowess as a whip. Unfortunately for her, she had seldom held the reins over anything more spirited than the lazy animals occasionally hired by her aunt on a specific guarantee that in no way could they be started out of a slow trot, hardly faster than the walk for which all of them evinced a strong preference; and, although she had gained a very fair understanding of the idiosyncrasies of the roadster in front of her, her knowledge had the drawback of being for the most part theoretical. Still, she had not begun the journey without duly considering its conditions, and, on the whole, they were favorable to a novice. The road was good, though here and there very narrow, as is sometimes the case with rural highways; there were no sharp pitches of the kind to shake untrained nerves; and the horse, so far as she knew, was utterly unacquainted with the equine joys of bolting. Not to press him at first—that was her plan, for much haste might mean little speed in the end.

For the first half-mile she drove almost leisurely, but when she had reached the top of the ridge which bordered the lowlands along the shore she tightened the reins a little, and felt instantly the roadster's response to the summons. He settled down to the work before him as if he liked it, with the long telling strides which covered ground with such deceptive ease. A quarter of a mile ahead was a buckboard bearing two passengers and drawn by a horse which, she saw as she came closer, was trotting steadily. It surprised her to observe how rapidly she overhauled the other conveyance, even when the driver, after a look over his shoulder, plied his whip with the evident intention of giving her a chase. A few hundred yards showed him the hopelessness of the contest, and, with native courtesy and perhaps a shrewd guess that his own wheels would be the safer by allowing the stranger a generous share of the road, he pulled his vehicle well out of the way as she sped by him. She caught a look of curiosity on his face as she turned in her seat to watch her swift progress.

There was just the tinge of excitement in the ride to make her forget for a time the sorry cause of it. The coolness of approaching evening was upon the land, although the sun was still well above the horizon, and what little breeze was stirring blew in her face. On she went, now across a plain, now surmounting a gentle acclivity, now winding along a valley among the low hills, but always with the same smooth motion, as steady as it was fleet. An old weather-stained farmhouse sprang into view on her right. She remembered that it was counted as marking the half-way point of the road. A glance at her watch showed that, even with her slow start, she had covered a little more than five miles in 24 minutes. With 15 or 16 miles yet to be traversed this might be doing too much; and on the next rising grade she set herself to the task of slackening the speed. There was somewhat of a struggle between horse and driver, but at last she won. More than once was the test repeated before Bassettville was reached, but when she turned into the main street of the town her watch told her that less than 50 minutes had sufficed to cover the last half of the trip.

A pretty little woman was sitting on Dr. Fowler's doorstep as the fair messenger drove up. She came briskly to the gate, and, leaning upon it, listened intently to the girl's brief account of the accident, and the urgent need of a surgeon's services.

"But the doctor's away," the little woman said. "He has gone to Trent, and I don't expect him back before midnight—I'm Mrs. Fowler, you know."

"But can't we catch him by telegraph?" Dorothy asked anxiously. "Is there no way? The case is so desperate. Isn't there anything we can do?"

Mrs. Fowler shook her head. "No," she answered, regretfully, for she was proud of her husband's surgical skill, "I shouldn't know where to address a telegram, and there's no train till the late one. Who is in charge of the case now?"

"Dr. Morris—that is Dr. Banks. I suppose he is in charge, with Dr. Morris assisting him."

"Umph! Dr. Banks—I know him. The other I don't."

The lady's tone expressed very little confidence in the surgical talent of Rodneytown.

"Dr. Banks has a sprained wrist, and Dr. Morris is a—a—specialist in a—a—nervous diseases," Dorothy hastened to explain. "They united in sending for Dr. Fowler."

"Oh, I understand," said Dr. Fowler's wife, amicably. "It is dreadfully unfortunate that he is away."

"Mrs. Fowler, please advise me," said Dorothy, earnestly. "The doctors argue that an immediate operation offers the only hope of saving the man's life. I am sent here for a surgeon. I find him gone. What should I do?"

"There's nobody else here I'd trust with a cat's life. Dr. Morse—I mean Morris—must operate, or you will have to wait for my husband's return. He can hardly get to Rodneytown before two or three o'clock in the morning."

A new doubt assailed the girl. How about instruments? Banks and I should have them, she supposed, but there was the chance that we were unprepared with suitable appliances. As briefly as possible she told Mrs. Fowler what was in her mind.

"Sure enough," cried the little woman, "I don't believe old Dr. Banks has anything of the sort. We'll not risk it, anyway."

She ran into the house, returning in a moment with a case under her arm.

"Here's a set of instruments," said she. "Take it; my husband has another. Get back to Rodneytown as quick as you can. If they decide to wait for Dr. Fowler they can send word over this evening. Oh, don't bother about thanking me; if you ever marry a doctor, you'll be sure—"

But Dorothy did not wait for the rest of her sentence. A twitch of her hand had set the bay in motion, and she was half a dozen yards down the street, leaving Mrs. Fowler to ponder over the abruptness of her departure.

Once the town was left behind, the girl lost no time in calling upon her nag's powers, and away he went as readily as if he were fresh from his stable. Mile after mile slipped behind them. Soon the half-way house joined the procession to the rear. It was growing dusk now, and the air was chilly. Her wrists were beginning to ache under the pull of the lines, and the thought came to her that perhaps she stood in greater need than her horse of a breathing spell. She tried to pull him in the next rise, but instead of slacking his pace he increased it. In vain she tugged and sawed at the bit; the bay was out of her control, and knew it as well as she did. He was trotting as she had never seen him trot before, with the blood of a dozen generations of picked roadsters coursing hot in his veins. Just ahead she made out the dark mass of wood through which the road passed. An instant later she was flying along under the tunnel-like arch where the boughs of the trees met above the traveled way. In the gloom of this passage she could make out little of the road, though she leaned from the buggy in the effort to see what might be her course. Then the wood was left behind, and about her was the twilight of the open country, seeming almost bright by comparison with the tangle of shadows through which she had sped. The bay, untiring, but with flecks of foam showing here and there on his coat, was trotting with the smooth precision of a machine. It was glorious to watch him, to hear the sharp beat of his hoofs. Powerless as she was, the exhilaration of the race took possession of her; she caught herself encouraging the animal with her voice; she forgot the pain in her wrists, the very real danger in which she was placed. She thrilled with delight as she flashed by a wagon whose occupant had prudently driven into the ditch to afford her a clear right of way. He called out a warning to her, but, though she heard his voice, the words were indistinguishable.

At last she was at the summit of the ridge looking down upon the beach, and her destination was close at hand. Again she sawed and tugged at the lines. Slowly her efforts told; gradually the bay's speed decreased, until, as he neared the farmhouse, she had him well in hand. Mrs. Weston, one of her boys, Mrs. Clark and two or three children were awaiting her at the gate, all eager to learn the result of her mission. Dr. Banks and I were close behind them, and, as the horse came to a stop, we pushed our way to the side of the buggy.

"You've made wonderful time," I cried.

"Where's Fowler? Is he following you?" asked Banks.

"He can't be here for six or eight hours," she said, quietly. "But here is a case of instruments."

SPORTS

WEDNESDAY, June 3 Sun rises 4:30 a. m., sets 7:25 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:25 p. m. and 3:30 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Lewis Feiring, of Harrison street, is riding a '96 Spalding wheel.

Miss Mildred Terrill, of Arlington avenue, is riding a new wheel which was purchased recently.

Louis Schutt, of Duer street, punctured one of the tires on his Sylph bicycle this morning on North avenue.

Miss Gertrude Tier, of Bank place, has purchased a handsome Outing wheel of Lister, the North avenue cycle dealer.

Irwin A. Powell, of the N. Y. A. C., who rode so well in Saturday's races at the Crescent Oval, was mounted on a Cleveland track racer.

Arthur Drake and Richard Higgins, messenger boys of the Postal Telegraph Company in this city, are both riding orange enameled wheels.

Albert P. Simmonds, of Watchung avenue, has just purchased a new Spalding wheel to ride on the track. He will ride it at Paterson on Saturday.

Miss Alice Higgins and Miss Carrie Hoffman, of West Front street, rode their wheels to Bound Brook Monday night and spent a pleasant evening with friends.

The Pennsylvania Cycle Club will hold a large meet on the Tioga track, Philadelphia, Saturday, June 27th. The Jersey Wheel Company will be represented by some of their team.

The race committee of the Crescent Wheelmen will hold a meeting this evening, when a final reckoning of the results of the Decoration Day meet will be made. It is estimated that the profits will amount to between $400 and $500

C. Hadfield, the disqualified winner of the Irvington-Milburn road race on Saturday, has not yet taken any legal steps in the matter. The committee will deliver the prizes when called for, as the referee's decision is final, and any appeal to the association will be referred to him.

E. L. Blauvelt, the well-known Newark racing man, will hold a road race meet on the Irvington-Milburn course Saturday afternoon. The events will be a one-third and a one-mile open and a one, a two, a five and a ten-mile handicap. Among the well-known riders that expect to compete are W. M. McCutchen, of the Crescent Wheelmen.

While the victories of Donoghue and Eaton on the Jersey last Saturday were excellent performances, there was no better example of the easy running qualities than in the riding of H. F. Loehrs, of Elizabeth. Without any trial of the wheel, whatever, he started the one-mile handicap and finished third in his heat. In the final, he finished only several inches behind Lake and Jacobus, who rode a dead heat in the fastest time he ever made in a race.

Representatives of a well-known bicycle factory were on the Irvington-Milburn race course before the race on Saturday making every effort to get competitors to ride their wheels. The amount offered riders was $25. In most cases the offer was refused, but in one case at least it was accepted. Representatives of a well-known tire campany also made offers to the racing men. Chairman Gideon of the L. A. W. Racing Board is anxious to secure evidence of transactions of this nature in order to "professionalize" the men engaged therein.

Nothing as yet has been said about the mascot Monte Scott carried in his record-breaking ride last Saturday. It was nothing less than a chip from a cherry tree. Sporting men are yet unaware of the virtue of such a charm, but it worked. The storm on Friday uprooted a cherry tree on the old Smith farm near which Scott's training quarters were located. The tree was known all around the country. The owner came into Scott's quarters on Saturday morning, and said: "I have something for you Monte," dangling an innocent looking bit of wood at the end of a silken thread. "What is it Pop?" asked the racer, eyeing the amulet suspiciously. "Don't be afraid of it, it won't hurt you, because its nothing but a chip from the old cherry tree. The tree was 108 years old yesterday. Tie the string around your neck, and wear the chip for a mascot. You'll do the trick in 1:08, don't you see." Scott shook his head and laughed, but his handler looked serious. "I believe I'd wear it Monte," he said, with a far away look in his eyes. "By the winged god I'll do it," said the champion, and he did. The result is history, and the cherry tree is again immortalized.

Mrs. E. F. DuBois, of Park avenue, returned Tuesday from White House, where she spent Sunday.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The next athlectic meeting hereabouts which will be of particular interest to the schoolboys is the coming track and field championships of the New Jersey Interscholastic Association, to be held on the grounds of the New Jersey Athletic Club, at Bayonne, on Saturday afternoon, June 6th. The entries closed on last Saturday, and all of the New Jersey schools are well represented. The meeting promises to be exceptionally high class. The schools that will strive for championship honors are Pingry, of Elizabeth, High School, of this city, Montclair High School, Newark Academy, and the Stevens Preparatory School, of Hoboken.

WITH ROD AND GUN

E. G. Coursen, of Stillwater, caught seventy-five pickerel and perch in Swartswood Lake one day last week.

A fishing club at Flatbrookville, Sussex County, is paying the boys 10 cents each for the heads of water snakes.

Steve Schleith, George Martin and John Adams, of this city, went fishing to New Market last evening and while there Mr. Adams caught a carp weighing 12 pounds. This is the largest catch of the season. The other two fishermen came home empty-handed.

AROUND THE BASES.

The Phillies are bracing up again after their disastrous western trip.

The Metropolitans have fallen off in their playing during the last week. The Paterson's are now leaders in the Atlantic League.

The New Yorks are improving in their playing, and if signs don't fail they should make a respectable showing in the League race.

"Arlie" Latham, the clown of the diamond, formerly of the St. Louis Browns, is now playing on the Scranon's of the Eastern League.

LAWN TENNIS.

The tennis court in the rear of the residence of E. A. Overton, of Rockview avenue, has been put in condition and is daily frequented by a large number of enthusiastic young players of Washington Park.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

Chas. C. Brower started "Highland Boy" in the 2:30 trot at Fleetwood Park, New York, yesterday, and he took fourth money. "Lilly M." started in the 2:30 race but won nothing.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE

Front Street Fixed.

After much patience, Street Commissioner Meeker took the contractors of the street railway to task in a severe manner this morning for the slack manner in which they were repairing Front street after narrowing the tracks. The result was that between 11 o'clock this morning and 3 o'clock this afternoon the thoroughfare had been put in very good condition. Suffering humanity who ride wheels and in carriages are duly thankful.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Meyres, of East Sixth street, entertained a number of their farmer friends from Coontown and Washington Valley last evening at their new home. There were present also a few of Mr. Meyers' friends from the Scott Press Works. The guests were highly pleased with the various kinds of refreshments; as well as with the instrumental music provided by host and hostess.

STILL SHORT $14,000

Chicago Gave the Democratic Committee Only $1,000 Yesterday.

NO FEARS FOR BALANCE, HOWEVER

Illinois National Guard Band To Furnish the Music—Contract for Decorations Not Yet Awarded — Seating Capacity To Be 15,000.

Chicago, June 3.—The democratic national sub-committee concluded the business of its present session last evening, and adjourned to meet at the Palmer house June 13. All the members have returned to their homes. The local committee is still short $14,000 of the guaranteed subscriptions, $25,000 of the promised $40,000 only having been paid to the national committe. Twenty-five thousand dollars was paid at the last meeting of the sub-committee, and $1,000 only was paid yesterday by the local treasurer, although the statement was given out that Chairman Donnersberger of the Chicago committee had in hand all the money due the national committee which had come to Chicago to get it. There is no fear, however, that the money will not be forthcoming from the guarantors, if not from the subscribers, and the committee was not pressed to make good the financial contract. The I. N. G. band of sixty pieces will be given the contract to furnish the music for the convention. The contract for the decorations was not decided upon. There will be 15,000 seats in the part of the Coliseum which is to be used for the convention. Only a few seats are to be put in the galleries, because the committee considers 15,000 a big enough audience to handle.

Rhode Island Republican Clubs.

Pawtucket, R. I., June 3.—The platform adopted by the convention of the state republican league of Rhode Island, held in this city yesterday afternoon, twenty-three oaganizations being reported, favored protection, the use of both gold and silver as money, giving silver the fullest use in currency consistent with maintaining its value on an exact parity with gold; and a foreign policy that will maintain the honor of the American people abroad as well as at home and give sympathy, encouragement and hope to the men who are fighting for freedom in other lands. Hon. Henry E. Tiepke of Pawtucket was elected president.

Maine Republican Convention.

Bangor, Me., June 3.—The Maine republican convention yesterday afternoon nominated Hon. Llewellyn Powers of Houlton for governor by acclamation, and adopted a platform favoring protection, reciprocity and the present gold standard and opposing the free coinage of silver except under international agreement. Measures for the restriction of immigration are favored, and the Maine delegation in congress are congratulated for their efforts in behalf of American shipping. Unswering loyalty to Thomas B. Reed is renewed in the hope that the convention may recognize the urgent demand of the business interests of the country for his nomination for president.

Grant for Second Place?

New York, June 3.—The latest gossip concerning the second place on the McKinley ticket is that police commissioner Fred Grant is being pushed by a social and financial clique, headed by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Palmer of Chicago. Mrs. Palmer, it is said, is to establish headquarters in St. Louis next week to promote Col. Fred's candidacy and if he is defeated it will not be because of lack of energy on her part.

Republican Victory in Oregon.

Portland, Ore., June 3.—Almost complete returns have been received from the election held in this state Monday to select a supreme judge, two congressmen and members of the legislature, which will choose a successor to Senator Mitchell in the United States senate. The republicans have elected R. S. Bean, supreme court judge, by 10,000 plurality. Thomas H. Tongue, rep., has been elected to congress from the first district. In the second district Ellis, rep., was also elected. The senate will be republican by about ten majority and the house will probably be close, though the republicans claim a majority of at least ten, giving them twenty on joint ballot. Ex-Gov. Pennoyer was elected mayor of Portland by a plurality exceeding 2,000. The populists have made gains throughout the state.

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1896. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR

JOHNSON IS COLLECTOR.

THE SUPREME COURT SO DECIDES THIS MORNING.

His Term Does Not Expire Till the End of the Year—His Running Last Fall Had No Bearing on the Merits of the Case.

After having gone through the judicial mill, the vexatious and much delayed question of whether John Johnson or Elias H. Bird is the legal collector of the city of Plainfield, has been decided. Johnson is the one entitled to the work and emoluments of the office.

Such was the gist of the decision handed down by the Supreme Court in Trenton this morning. The decision was written by Justice Garretson, and was concurred in by all the members on the bench. The result was not entirely unexpected on the part of those who had looked into the legal aspects of the case.

The side of Johnson was conducted by Charles A. Reed, of Reed & Coddington, and the side of Bird, or the city in reality, was conducted by Attorney-General Stockton. The Attorney-General argued in his briefs that the term of Johnson had expired under the Legislative enactment of 1893, extending the terms of all collectors in three years in cities of the third-class, and even if this was not so, the acceptance of the nomination as collector on the Citizens' ticket last fall was a virtual resignation of the office on the part of Johnson.

Mr. Reed claimed that under a strict application of the law the opinion given by Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh that the office of the City Collector was vacant at the end of the last fiscal year and therefore needed to be filled at the charter election in December, was erroneous. The argument was made that the law was enacted in 1893 by the Legislature, that Johnson had been elected for a term of one year to expire in 1894, and that in 1894 he was nominated and re-elected again—this time for the full three years under the provisions of the law; therefore his term did not expire until 1897, and that the election of Elias H. Bird was illegal and void. The fact of his being a candidate last fall could have no bearing on the legality of his term. Mr. Reed's arguments were upheld by the members of the Supreme Court, and Johnson will continue to fill the office undisturbed until the end of the three year term. The incidents leading up to carrying the contest to the highest court in the State are too well known to need repetition in the columns of The Daily Press.

A few minutes after the decision had reached this city, a Press reporter talked with Mr. Bird, who said he was not disappointed with the outcome of the case as he had expected such a decision as had been given. He has no books or papers to turn over to Johnson, as the latter refused to make the transfer when Mr. Bird appeared at his office to take possession after he had been sworn in by the Mayor He has collected some taxes since that time, but they were all delinquent, and as he has been regularly appointed to perform that duty by the Common Council, it will have no tendency to complicate a settlement of the case.

A FOUR MILE RIDE.

When the Street Railway is in Running Order You Can Take Such a Trip.

The narrowing of the tracks of the main line of the street railway is rapidly nearing completion. The connections with the Dunellen branch were completed this morning and the branch is now ready for traffic. By noon today the narrowing of the tracks had been pushed as far as Grant avenue and Fourth street.

When the entire line is completed and in running order, the cars which start at Dunellen will run direct to Netherwood, a distance of four miles. The cars which run on West Fourth street will also run through Somerset street, thus necessitating only one transfer. The stretch of track on Grant avenue, between Front and Fourth streets, will only be used to run the cars of the Dunellen branch to and from the car house.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

CAMP FOR SICK CHILDREN

KING'S DAUGHTERS TO PROVIDE A PLEASANT AND HEALTHFUL SPOT.

A Place to be Selected on the Watchung Mountain for the Recreation of Weary Mothers and Sickly Babies.

The King's Daughters of Plainfield with hearts filled with sympathy for ailing children, are preparing to care for these sick little ones during the sultry days of the coming summer by sending children with their mothers to the Watchung Mountain, where elevation, a purer atmosphere and a lower temperature is obtained, and where their trained nurse will give gratuitous care to the sick child (following the orders of the family physician), and where the weary mother can rest and be relieved from anxiety.

Their effort is meeting with a hearty and cheerful response, but they want to interest the children of Plainfield in this good work. They want the help of the children in caring for these sick babies, and to this end they ask mothers to carefully explain to their children the great good that the contribution of even the smallest amount may do. Contributions, no matter how small, will be gladly received by The Press, The News, or either member of the nurse committee. The names of the contributors will be published, though only the total amount received will be stated, and not each individual offering.

The nurse committee is Emily B. Tracy, Mary S. J. McCutchen, Josephine H. Lapsley.

CRESCENT WHEELMEN TO MOVE.

The Club Members Want a More Desirable Club House.

The Crescent Wheelmeh will leave their present quarters on July 1st. So it was decided at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the club last evening. The reason for the change is not the lack of money as another newspaper pretends, but the wish of the members to have a more desirable location for the club house. No new location has been selected but the club has several places in view that can be had as a temporary headquarters until the club can find something that will completely satisfy the members.

One application for membership was considered and the application for membership was considered and the applicant admitted. Louis G. Timpson resigned from the treasurership and W. J. Stephenson was elected to fill the unexpired term. The report of the auditing committee showed the list of members in good standing to be much larger than before and that the back dues had been nearly paid up. The race committee made no report as all the bills are not yet in but it was understood that the profits from the race would amount to almost $600. Other reports, showing the great improvements in the club, were made, and all the governors present were highly pleased with the present outlook of the club.

A CONSTITUTIONAL LAWYER.

C. A. Marsh Successfully Attacks The Laws Governing Assessments.

Two of the most important cases decided today by the Supreme Court were the Long Branch cases brought against that city by Craig A. Marsh to set aside assessments for paving the city with asphalt. Mr. Marsh maintained that the laws under which the work was ordered were unconstitutional, and the Court says he is right. The assessments are declared null and void. The Long Branch newspapers stated when the suits were brought that if the assessments were set aside, it would bankrupt the city.

Mr. Marsh further obtained order of the Supreme Court to enter judgment in the Plainfield cases of Benner against Hedges, in which a new trial was threatened, and in Bernhardt against Dreier.

NOT A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Police Officers Violate an Ordinance That They Are Sworn to Enforce.

Pat Muldoon, the Fourth ward politician, was walking along in front of his premises last evening at 9 o'clock when one of the city police, on wheel and without a light, nearly upset him. The officer asked Pat what business he had to be in the road, and Pat reciprocated by asking him what business he had to be riding without a lamp.

Muldoon says he will settle the matter at the next meeting of the Police Board, and he further says he can produce witnesses to substantiate his statement.

His Fingers Lacerated.

Leon Peterson, an employe at the Jersey Wheel Company's works, met with an accident this morning at the works whereby the first two fingers on the left hand were severely lacerated. The young man went to the hospital where Dr. Long dressed the wounds. Peterson will not lose the fingers.

THE EXEMPTS' SMOKER.

THE OLD-TIME FIREMEN HAVE A JOLLY GOOD TIME.

Congratulations Showered on Auguste Saltzman Over the Honor Bestowed on Him at the Recent State Convention.

The members of the Exempt Firemen's Association met last evening, together with their friends, and enjoyed one of their old-time smokers. A short business session was held previous to the social time, at which time E. H. Bird, Edward VanWinkle and Charles Clifton were elected members. The meeting was then thrown open and Alex Titsworth acted as toastmaster. Chief T. O. Doane was called upon and in his interesting and impressive manner told many things of interest to the members regarding the recent State convention of firemen. L. E. Barkalew followed with a few words of congratulation, as did also D. W. Littell. The speeches were all complimentary to Auguste Saltzman, who was elected president of the State Association at Hackensack. Mr. Saltzman, in a short address, thanked all for their kindness and said that he would do all that was possible to advance the association.

Further remarks were made by Borough Clerk Arnold, John Murray, E. H. Bird and J. E. Flannery. Mr. Thorn, the genial secretary, pleased the members by reading several selections entitled "There are No Friends Like Old Friends," "The Bicycle and the Cowboy" and "The Bowery Robbery, or How the Dutchman Lost His Watch."

With all the speeches there were excellent refreshments and cigars as an accompaniment. The meeting adjourned at a seasonable hour to meet June 30th.

COMPANY WANTED TO SETTLE.

But the Heirs of Burnett Will Probably Sue the Railway People in Court.

After making an investigation of the killing of Henry Burnett, the Union Village farmer, at the grade crossing of the Lehigh Valley railroad in South Plainfield yesterday morning, Coroner Brace, of Middlesex county, decided that there was no need for an inquest and he granted a burial permit for the removal of the remains from the scene of the fatality.

The remains were brought to this city by Terrill & Cole, the undertakers, and taken to their establishment on West Second street, and afterwards to Burnett's late home. The family were greatly shocked over the affair. The funeral will be held Sunday noon at 12:30 o'clock from the home and from the Myersville Presbyterian church at 2 o'clock.

A representative of the railroad company was at South Plainfield shortly after the accident and made an attempt to settle with the relatives but was unsuccessful. It is understood that they will commence an action against the company for damages as a result of the fatality.

This is the same crossing where Sam Mantze, of this city, met with an accident two or three years ago, by which his horse was killed and he sustained serious injuries. It is a most dangerous crossing and many narrow escapes from death are related by those who find it necessary to cross it.

PRACTICAL LEGAL LECTURE.

Craig A. Marsh Talks to the Students of a Business College.

The students and friends of Plainfield Business College were favored last evening with a thoughtful and valuable lecture by Craig A. Marsh on several practical features of commercial law. He discussed such subjects as property rights, the law of liens, transferring property, covering up property, constructive frauds, collecting claims, verbal and written contracts, landlords and tenants, the rights of debtors, the rights of mechanics, and the importance of making wills, deeds, or contracts in proper motives. All present seemed deeply interested, and went away feeling that the speaker fully understood his subject. Several of the visitors lingered to examine the paintings and drawings of the art studio, which is now a regular department of the college.

DEATH OF SAM'L P. DUNN

OCCURRED SUDDENLY AT HIS SUMMER HOME IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

Had Just Got Settled in His Summer Home When Death Came Suddenly—Was Born in New Jersey 56 Years Ago.

As time in its hurried flight is passing into history, so is the grim reaper working with mighty rapidity in removing from Plainfield her valued citizens, and thus it will ever be. Like a thunder bolt from a clear sky, word was received in this city yesterday afternoon of the sudden death of Sam'l P. Dunn, which occurred yesterday noon at his summer home in Newfoundland, N. J. When the news became known it was scarcely realized by the large circle of friends in this city. Mr. Dunn and family had only been at their summer home a few days and were just about getting settled for the summer. Mr. Dunn had never been ill and always enjoyed good health. No particulars accompanied the telegram, which was received by his brother, James M. Dunn.

Mr. Dunn was born in this State fifty-six years ago, and was the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson R. Dunn. In early life he attended school at New Brooklyn, after which he entered the grocery store conducted by his brother on Park avenue. He served several years as clerk, and then secured a position with Randolph & Tucker, New York, flour and grain merchants. He remained there for many years.

Another change followed when he engaged himself in the same business with J. S. Sutphen, also of New York. A few years later he formed a partnership with a Mr. Clark, of New York, under the firm name of S. P. Dunn & Company, and the business is now being conducted under that name at 56 Whitehall street.

About a year ago he sold his property on East Seventh street, and together with his family took up a residence in New York. It has been there custom to spend the summer at New Foundland, where his death occurred so suddenly.

When a young man he was married to Miss Nellie Gardiner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Gardiner, of this vicinity. She still survives him together with three children, Miss Nellie Dunn, Miss Evelina Dunn and Harry Dunn. The latter is married and living in the west. One brother, James M. Dunn, of this city, and one sister, Mrs. Stelle Blackford, of Piscataway, also survive him.

Mr. Dunn was a staunch and faithful member of the First Baptist church. He was a man of domestic tastes and loved to be at home surrounded by his family.

The body will probably be brought to this city for burial.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon in the First Baptist church of this city.

The Horse Couldn't Get Up.

As a dilapidated looking brindle horse hitched to an equally dilapidated sulky was trotting slowly along Watchung avenue yesterday afternoon in front of Neuman's grocery store, he suddenly fell, breaking one of the shafts. His driver, a stranger here, let him lie for some time after removing the harness. Then Dennis O'Brien, who lives opposite, appeared on the scene with a pair of shafts. It took the united efforts of three men to raise the animal to its feet. The horse, which was not able to rise alone, stood all right when once on its feet. With the assistance of O'Brien, the shaft was repaired and the unknown driver went slowly on his way.

Work Among Brave Men.

The Christian Endeavorers of Plainfield are considering the advisability of having Rev. J. Lester Wells, secretary of Christian Endeavor work among the life saving stations, lecture in this city on his work. An executive meeting of the Local Union will be called in a short time to consider the matter.

Annual Business Meeting.

The annual business meeting of the First Church of Christ was held last night. Only routine business was transacted, and nothing definite regarding the moving of the church was arrived at. The meeting adjourned to meet again next Thursday night, June 11th.

Fractured Her Thigh.

Mrs. James Henderson, of Rockview avenue, fractured her thigh yesterday afternoon. She was walking through the second floor hall at her home when she slipped and fell.

—The first quarterly conference of the First M. E. church, was held in Nincent chapel last evening. The meeting was a successful one. Rev. Geo. W. Smith, the new presiding elder, was present.

UNION COUNTY POLITICS

THE ELIZABETH JOURNAL SUMS UP THE SITUATION INTELLIGENTLY.

There is a Possibility That Both Parties May Come to Plainfield for the Senatorial Nominees—Other Gossip.

The Elizabeth Journal yesterday had the following concerning the political situation in Union county:

The time has not yet arrived for very serious consideration of the candidates who are to be chosen to add strength and popularity to the Republican ticket in this county, but it is not too early to record a few of the suggestions that are in the popular mind.

The Congressional nominee comes first on the list. So far as has been learned, there is but one candidate before the Republicans in this county for this honor. Hon. Charles N. Fowler, the present representative from this district, is the only one named thus far, and there does not appear to be any desire to name any other man. Party prestige insures a renomination, but, in addition, there is general approval of his record and generous appreciation of the successful manner in which his official duties have been performed. The Republican district convention unanimously endorsed him at Orange, and the nominating convention will do the same.

The question of State Senator is not so easy of solution. The friends of Senator Voorhees are vigorously insisting that he must again accept a nomination. If he finally yields to their wishes the matter will be closed at once in his favor.

But if Senator Voorhees will not again accept a nomination, the situation will become complicated. Who, then, will be the choice of the Republicans? The city of Plainfield may come to the front with a request for recognition, and there is not a Republican in the county but will admit that Plainfield has claims worthy of the utmost consideration and respect. Mr. Charles J. Fisk, alternate from this congressional district to the national Republican convention at St. Louis, is well and widely spoken of in connection with the senatorial nomination. Another who is named as a strong candidate and a worthy man is Assemblyman J. Martin Roll, of Sprinfield, and a third of no less prominence is Sheriff Kyte of Fanwood.

The next office of importance to be filled in this county is that of sheriff. The law does not permit an incumbent to serve two terms in succession, and, therefore, Mr. Kyte cannot be renominated. Several candidates are in the line of preferment in this city. Freeholder Hulskamper, ex-Freeholder Houston, ex-Sheriff Glasby and Captain J. G. Ogden are among the leading aspirates. If the senatorial nomination goes out of Elizabeth the shrievalty nominee will come from this city, and there will be a lively contest for the honor. Whom the chances favor at this time it is impossible to determine.

Should Assemblyman Roll be named for Senator, someone else would have to be selected to succeed him. No contingency seems likely to arise to call for for any other change in the Assembly ticket, unless one or more of the present members should decline a renomination.

On the Democratic side there is much haze, with little or no distinct centres of condensation. Some have mentioned Hon. John T. Dunn as the possible Congressional nominee. Prosecutor Marsh is apparently the Democratic choice for Senator, and James E. Martine is also suggested as a possible candidate. The whole question of Democratic nominations is likely to be determined by Senator Smith, of Essex. He will undoubted exert every effort to succeed himself in the United States Senate, and will doubtless insist that the Democrats put up their strongest men. The State Senators elected this year will vote for the next United States Senator, hence Mr. Smith's deep interest in Union county politics.

New Officers in Charge.

The new detachment from the Salvation Army Headquarters held their opening meeting at the Salvation Army barracks on West Second street last night and the attendance was unusually large. The new commanding officer is adjutant Taylor, the "Golden Musician," who is well known here as is his famous guitar "Big Ben." He is accompanied by the "Central Victory Boys," six in number, all of whom are musicians, some using brass and the others stringed instruments. Special meetings will be held nearly every evening.

—Councilman Frost's gang of workmen are putting Watchung avenue, above Franklin place, in condition, by adding a top dressing of ashes.

AGAINST A WAR SPIRIT.

A FRIEND SAYS PATRIOTISM IS NOT A DISPLAY OF MILITIA.

The Highest Idea of an American Citizen Should be the Love of His Country and Institutions, Rather Than War Thoughts.

The Young Friends' Association held their last meeting for the season at the Watchung Avenue meeting house last evening. After the opening silence, Henry G. Adams read the first chapter of John.

An account of the society in London and Bristol during the years of 1654-56 was reviewed from Janney's History of Friends.

After a discussion of current events, Edwin Hutchinson, formerly of New York, read an able and interesting paper on "Patriotism." He said, in part: "I think the people of today need not to be incited so much to patriotism as to a better understanding of the word. True patriotism means not only love of country, but also a regard for the best interests of that country, and it has been well said that patriotism is a blind and irrational impulse unless it is founded on a knowledge of the blessings we are called upon to secure and the privileges we propose to defend.

"There has recently been a movement all over the land in the name of patriotism, to give the children in our public schools a military training, a bill to that effect having been passed by the New York Legislature a year ago, but failing to receive the Governor's signature, it did not become a law. The highest idea of patriotism of the promoters of this bill seems to have been to teach the childred military tactics, rather to instill in them that true love of home country which is founded on a liberal education, a high idea of the rights of others, a correct knowledge of the institutions of their country, and an appreciation of their obligations as citizens.

"General Grant, probably the greatest general this country has ever produced, is on record as having said, 'Though I have been trained as a soldier, and have participated in many battles, there never was a time, when, in my opinion, some way could not have been found of preventing the drawing of the sword'."

Margaret F. Vail presented a most encouraging report of the work of the association during the past year.

A committee was chosen to nominate officers for the ensuing year.

After the members had responded to the roll-call with sentiments on truth, the meeting adjourned until the first Wednesday in October.

A PAPER ON HAZELTINE HOUSE

Mrs. George F. Updyke's Interesting Feature of a Missonary Meeting.

The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the First Baptist church was held in one of the class rooms of the church yesterday afternoon, and was well attended. The feature of the meeting was the reading of a paper by Mrs. George F. Opdyke, on the "Hazeltine House," at Newton Centre, Mass.

The house is used as a training school for those who desire to become missionaries, and was founded by Mrs. Anne Hazeltine. Several large gifts of money have been given to the house by John D. Rockfellow and other staunch Baptists, and the house has been the means of accomplishing much good. Each room bears an honored name and the New Jersey room is named after the late Mrs. Wm. C. Butler. Following the reading of the paper an informal discussion of the subject was enjoyed.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN, BUT NOT KILLED

A Raritan Citizen Severely Injured on the Track Yesterday.

Thomas Lahey, aged 56 years, a resident of Raritan, was walking along the tracks of the Central Railroad at that place yesterday noon and, becoming confused, was struck by freight engine No. 86, Conductor John Long, and thrown to the side of the track. He fortunately escaped death, but sustained severe injuries about the head, and two of his ribs were fractured. No blame is attached to the railroad company, as he was warned by a man at the station of the approaching train.

Samuel Boss, of Central avenue, left this morning on a business trip to Southern Pines, N. C.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

PREVENTED A DUEL

Campos and Borrero Were Taking Positions When Arrested.

OFFICERS NOT A MINUTE TOO SOON

Both Men Disarmed and Sent To Their Homes in Custody—Trouble Started over a Private Discussion of Affairs in Cuba.

Madrid, June 4.—During a recent private discussion of affairs in Cuba between Gen. Martinez Campos, the predecessor of Gen. Weyler as captain-general of Cuba, and Gen. Borrero, the argument became so animated that the discussion developed into a hot quarrel and a duel was arranged. The matter was conducted with the greatest secrecy, but in some manner the authorities received information of the intended duel between the generals a few minutes before they were to meet on the Prime Rivera. The captain-general of Madrid proceeded with all haste to the spot, arriving just as the principals were being placed in position, and it was only with the greatest difficulty that he succeded in stopping the affair before either of the combatants was wounded. Gens. Campos and Borrero were finally disarmed and went to their respective residences under arrest.

No Cabinet Crisis at Madrid.

Madrid, June 4.—The reports of a cabinet crisis here are believed to be devoid of foundation.

Minister of Marine Criticised.

Madrid, June 4.—The Madrid newspapers are severely criticising Admiral Beranger, minister of marine, in consequence of the arrival of the Spanish cruiser Filippinas at Havana in a disabled condition, which is ascribed to defects in her construction. The papers are unanimous in demanding a parliamentary inquiry into the matter, the scope of which shall cover the entire system of the naval department.

Cardinal Satolli at Newport.

Providence, R. I., June 4.—His eminence, Cardinal Satolli, arrived in this city yesterday afternoon, and last evening was dined at the residence of Joseph Banagan, ex-president of the American Rubber trust. There were seventeen invited guests, including Gov. Lippitt, Mayor McGuinness, Chief Justice Matteson, Bishop Harkins, Vicar-General Doran and President Andrews of Brown university. Cardinal Satolli will remain the guest of Bishop Harkins until to-morrow. To-day he is visiting Newport.

Oppose Kruger's Peace Policy.

London, June 4.—A dispatch from Pretoria says that the trouble in the executive council of the Transvaal is becoming acute. Dr. Leyds, the secretary of state, and Vice-President Joubert oppose President Kruger, who is in favor of the institution of reforms and the adoption of a peaceful policy. Dr. Leyds is extremely unpopular with the people of the republic.

Buffalo Grain Shovelers' Strike.

Buffalo, June 4.—The grain shovelers' strike appears to be losing ground, although it cannot be said to have amounted to much from the beginning. Many of the men are handling promptly all the grain turned over to them by the Lake Carriers' association, although the receipts and shipments have been unusually heavy.

Water Main Contract Let.

Hartford, June 4.—The board of water commissioners has awarded a $30,900 contract for excavating for the new water pipes to councilman James Campbell of this city. Pinney & Carpenter of Waterbury, to whom the contract had been previously awarded, forfeited a deposit of $600.

THE ENGLISH DERBY.

Surprise Still Expressed at the Victory Won by Persimmon.

London, June 4.—The crowd which witnessed the Prince of Wales' Persimmon win the Derby at Epsom Downs yesterday was the largest and one of the most notable that has ever attended England's greatest turf event. Many members of the nobility and quite a number of well known Americans were present. There was also a brilliant company of the elite of English society, many of the leaders of British politics, and the cream of the theatrical and artistic world. Surprise is still expressed in well informed sporting circles over the victory won by Persimmon, as the horse has been reported out of condition and totally unfit to run, but that story was proven groundless by the comparatively easy manner in which he beat Leopold de Rothschild's St. Frusquin, who sent H. E. Beddington's Earwig to third place. The time of the winner was 2:42. Just how much the betting public was affected by the report of the disability of Persimmon was visible in the betting ring just before the race, when the odds were 4 to 1 against him, 4 to 7 against St. Frusquin, 16 to 1 against both Teufel and Regret, and 33 to 1 each against Knight of the Thistle and Bradwardine.

WORK OF INCENDIARIES.

Outbuilding on the Farm of a Wealthy North Neshantic, N. J., Man Burned.

Flemington, N. J., June 4.—It is now known that the fire which destroyed all the outbuildings of Edward Cortelyou, a wealthy farmer living at North Neshantic station, yesterday afternoon, was started by incendiaries. Mr. Cortelyou succeeded in saving a quantity of machinery, but the heat soon drove him away. A valuable trotting horse and two cows perished. A young colored boy from the house of refuge was the only one about the building when the fire started. It is thought he knows something about it. He has been severely questioned, but denies knowing who the incendiaaies were, or that he fired the premises.

HOGAN GETS 40 YEARS.

The Man Who Has Burned Many Barns Sentenced at Doylestown.

Doylestown, Pa., June 4.—John Hogan, who was convicted of barn burning, has been sentenced to forty years' imprisonment. Hogan is 48 years of age, and had at times been employed as a farm hand at several places in this locality. Many barns have been burned in this county and in the section of New Jersey opposite during the past few years. Insurance companies recently employed a detective and Hogan's arrest and conviction followed.

Gold Found at Syracuse.

Syracuse, N. Y., June 4.—Residents of Eastwood Heights, a suburb of this city, are wildly excited over the reported finding of gold in paying quantities. The ore was discovered by J. F. Batzer while digging a well at a depth of forty feet. Specimens have been submitted for analysis to Prof. O. R. Whitford, the mining expert of Syracuse university, who will render a report in a few days.

Hoadley Will Sustained.

New Haven, Conn., June 4.—A superior court jury returned a verdict sustaining the will of Dr. Fred H. Hoadley last evening. The will disposed of $75,000 of property and the doctor ignored a sister, Mrs. Aug. W. Kimberley of New Haven, who contested on the ground that the testator was mentally incapable of making a will. The trial lasted through four weeks.

Home Ruler Succeeds Pender.

London, June 4.—The parliamentary election in the Wick district, to fill the seat in the house of commons made vacant by the resignation of Sir John Pender, liberal unionist, resulted in the return of T. C. Hedderwick, home ruler. The result of the polling shows a gain for the liberals.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? BIG FIRES!

Great Fires Are Constantly Burning.

Still They Will Go Out in Time if Not Replenished—Food is Fuel for the Body.

History records the occurrence of most disastrous fires. A few times our own country has been visited in this way with tremendous force. Yet how insignificant they seem when compared to the raging fires of the sun. A recent writer in one of our monthly journals, illustrates the enormous heat which the sun gives out, as follows: he says that if all the coal which exists on this globe could be placed in one mass, and then immediately burned up, it would not produce as much heat as the sun throws off into space in one-tenth of a second. Of course, we cannot comprehend what this means, But there is another fire constantly burning, of which many of us are not aware, although we live very close to it.

We all know that the human body is warmer than the surrounding atmosphere; while during cold weather the difference is very marked. What keeps the body warm? Because it is constantly burning up.

We replenish the fire in the stove by adding more coal or wood. The oxygen of the air unites with this fuel and heat is produced. The fuel for the body is our food; and the oxygen obtained from the air we breathe combines with it and heat is produced. This heat is constantly escaping from the skin. During summer we dress lightly to aid its escape. During winter we put on flannels, because wool is not a good conductor of heat, and will not allow it to escape so freely from the surface of the body.

If a person is plump in flesh, that is, if he has a layer of fat just beneath the skin, he has a medium which holds in the heat of the body, as a layer of wool does when placed on the outside of the skin. Persons who are plump in flesh do not shiver with every cool, invigorating breeze. Neither do they require so much food, for as the heat cannot escape so readily, so it is not necessary to add as much fuel. Plumpness means protection; defense against coughs and colds; shelter for an escape from neuralgia and sciatica; a shield to throw off nervous prostration; better security from the germs of consumption; an escape from a thousand aches and pains which cling to a body that is poorly nourished. Plumpness is prosperity, thrift, good nature, happiness.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites will not make you over-fat, simply plump, just about right. It puts that coat of fat over the body, pushes up the skin, and removes wrinkles and angles.

Scott's Emulsion contains more pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil than any other emulsion in the world, that will stand the test of time as being a perfect inseparable emulsion. Ask your doctor

HAD LITTLE SUPPORT

Five Senators Sustain President's Veto of River and Harbor Bill.

FIFTY-SIX VOTES CAST AGAINST IT

The Veto Power Characterized as a Relic of the Past—Senator Morgan's Resolution Anent the Competitor's Capture—Business in the House.

Washington, June 4.—The vote by which the senate yesterday afternoon followed the example of the house in passing the river and harbor bill over the president's veto stood 56 to 5, the negative votes being cast by democrats—Messrs. Bate of Tennessee, Chilton of Texas, Hill of New York, Smith of New Jersey and Vilas of Wisconsin. The debate preceding the vote lasted four hours. Speeches in favor of overriding the vote were made by Senators Vest, dem., Mo.; Sherman, rep., O.; Pettigrew, rep., S. D.; Berry, dem., Ark.; Stewart, pop., Nev.; Hawley, rep., Conn., and Butler, pop., N. C. Speeches in favor of sustaining the veto were made by Senators Smith, Vilas, Bate and Hill—the latter introducing a joint resolution to amend the constitution by giving the president power to veto any items in an appropriation bill—a power which the constitution of the state of New York gives to the governor of that state. Mr. Pettigrew's speech characterized the veto power as a relic of the past which had no place in a free government. He denounced the president in severe terms, charging him with an utter disregard of his sacred oath of office, with overriding the laws, influencing congressmen by the use of patronage, enriching his favorites at the public expense and, in fact, permitting no restraint but his imperial will. The senate to-day will again discuss the partial conference report on the naval appropriation bill, the point at issue being the number of battleships and the contract price for armor plate.

Morgan's Competitor Resolution.

The following is the text of the resolution introduced in the senate yesterday by Mr. Morgan: Resolved, That the senate, being informed by common rumor and by testimoney taken by the committee on foreign relations, that a vessel of the United States called the Competitor has been captured by a Spanish ship of war, and that one or more citizens of the United States were captured on board of said vessel, and have been tried and condemned to death by a military tribunal in Cuba, and are now in prison at Havana, awaiting the execution of the sentence. And the senate having instructed said committee to inquire into and make report respecting the rights of said citizens, under the treaties existing between the United States and Spain, and under the laws of nations, the president is requested, in conformity with section 2,001 of the revised statutes to inform the senate whether or not any such capture had been made by a Spanish warship and whether any citizen of the United States has been captured on or near such vessel, and "has been unjustly deprived of his liberty by or under the authority of" the government of Spain, and whether the president forthwith demanded of Spain the reasons for such imprisonment, and if such imprisonment is unlawful, and if such sentence to death violates the law of nations, or the treaties with Spain whether the president has demanded the release of such citizens; and that the president communicate to the senate all the facts and proceedings relative to such capture, sentence and imprisonment of such citizens, as soon as practicable, in accordance with the statutes in such cases made and provided.

House of Representatives.

The house to-day will probably dispose of the contested election case of Murray vs. Elliott from the Charleston, S. C., district. Elliott's election from that district has been contested three times—in the Fiftieth, Fifty-first and Fifty-fourth congresses. The contestant in this case was elected to the Fifty-third congress. The majority report of the committee in charge of the case recommends the seating of the contestant. The minority finds that Elliott is entitled to retain his seat. Quite a contest developed over the appropriation in the general deficiency bill to pay to victims of Ford's theatre disaster the amounts recommended by the congressional commission which investigated the claims. They were added to in the senate, and Mr. Sayers, dem., Tex., moved to strike out the names of several beneficiaries, the deaths of whose principals were asserted not to be due to the disaster, or who had not been injured in it, according to the report of the board of war department officials which investigated the matter. By a vote of 123 to 93 the house agreed to the motion, and these claims, if the senate agrees, will go back to the commission.

Mamie Cunningham Strangling Case.

New York, June 4.—In the police court yesterday afternoon Farrell, the suspect in the Mamie Cunningham strangling case, was discharged, and Edward McCormick held without bail to await the coroner's action on the story told by the Italian boy, Joseph Maorone.

Passed by Massachusetts Legislature.

Boston, June 4.—In the house yesterday the bill appropriating $250,000 for furnishing the Bryant addition to the state house extension was passed to be engrossed. The bill to give veterans the preference in public appointments was also passed.

Stetson Will Contest.

Boston, June 4.—An appearance was entered yesterday afternoon in the Stetson contested will case in behalf of Adah (Richmond) Stetson.

AID FOR THE CUBANS

Another Big Filibustering Expedition Successfully Landed.

THE LARGEST SO FAR SENT OUT

Remington Rifles, Revolvers, Rapid-fire Guns, Ammunition, Dynamite, Provisions and Medicine Landed—U. S. A. Officer's Son with Expedition.

New York, June 4.—The Cuban junta has received official information that another large filibustering expedition had landed safely on Cuban soil, Rafael Portuondo y Tamayo, secretary of state of the Cuban provisional government, was the leader of the expedition. It is generally believed that the expedition was landed by the steamer Three Friends, which left Florida about ten days ago. The filibuster landed sixty-eight men, one of whom is J. F. Crook, son of Major-Gen. Crook of the United States army, who went with the expedition as an artilleryman. Doctors J. Garcia Vieta and Eduardo C. Poey constituted the sanitary corps. The following large cargo was also landed by the vessel and taken into the interior by a force of insurgents, who met the expedition on its arrival: Eight hundred and seventy-five Remington rifles, 50 Mauser rifles, 24 cases of Colt revolvers, 7 cases of Smith & Wesson revolvers, 2 Hotchkiss rapid-firing guns, 240 cannon balls, 240 shells, 400,000 cartridges of .43-calibre, 50,000 Mauser cartridges, 1,000 machetes, 2,000 pounds of dynamite, 3,000 fuses, 1,000,000 caps for cartridges, 2 electric batteries, 1,000 feet of wire, sets of reloading tools and a telephone. Besides this supply of munitions the expedition carried also large quantities of provisions, medicines and bandages, and a wire tapping apparatus, which will be operated by Narciso Lopez, a telegraper, who was a member of the expedition.

The News Also Received at Washington.

Washington, June 4.—Gonzalo de Quesada, the Cuban charge d'affaires in this city, has just received word that Col. Rafael Portuondo has landed safely in Cuba. He was accompanied by 100 men, among whom were Dr. Carlos Poey, surgeon of the party, a resident of this city, and two young Baltimoreans, Osman Latrobe, nephew of ex-Mayor Latrobe, and Mr. Janny. The cargo consisted of thousands of rifles, cartridges and dynamite, besides artillery, of which the army is in need. It is the largest landing made. Col. Portuondo is the secretary of state. He came to this country on leave of absence, and attended the debates in congress. He belongs to the bluest blood of the island, and is a lawyer of distinction.

BIG REBEL VICTORIES PROBABLE

Spaniards Admit Slight Repulses Which Is Believed To Indicate Serious Defeat.

Havana, June 4.—Advices from Baracoa report that engagements have recently taken place between Spanish forces and bands of rebels on the banks of the Duaba river. Owing to the heavy rains which have fallen lately the river was greatly swollen and its crossings rendered difficult. An attempt was made, however, by a Spanish column to reach the other side, but the troops were attacked by insurgents with the result that one soldier was killed and two were wounded. The rebel loss is put at twenty-four, but is believed to be greater. Continuing their march along the river, the Spaniards on May 27 again attempted to cross, this time by the ford at Buenavista, but they were again attacked and Major Gonzalez Moro and eight soldiers were wounded and perished in the river, being unable to regain the shore they had left, while a captain, a sergeant and two privates were wounded, but succeeded in reaching the river bank. Orders have been given for reinforcements to be sent to the column by boats, but this will be difficult of execution, owing to the condition of the rivers. A force of rebels made an attack upon Candelaria, but they were repulsed and compelled to retire. The above account of the engagements was given out by the Spanish press censor, and the mere fact of the admission of a slight government repulse is considered here as indicating that the Spanish troops met with crushing defeat.

Laurada Passed at Sea.

Boston, June 4.—Advices received in this city from Baltimore state that the fruit steamer Bowden, owned by the Boston Fruit company, which arrived at Baltimore Monday from Port Antonio, had passed near Watling's island the alleged filibustering steamer Laurada.

Artist Dawley Still Held at Cuba.

Havana, June 3, via Key West, Fla., June 4.—Harper's artist, Thomas Dawley, who was arrested at the trocha and brought a prisoner to Havana Tuesday, is still lodged at police headquarters. The case will be presented to Consul General Lee.

Gen. Lee at Havana.

Havana, June 4.—Gen. Lee, the new consul-general of the United States, who arrived here yesterday, will, it is understood, call upon Gen. Weyler today. Only the retiring consul-general, Ramon Williams, and a few Americans met him upon his arrival here and there was no demonstration.

Gen. Carrington at Buluwayo.

Cape Town, June 4.—Advices received from Buluwayo announce the arrival there of Maj.-Gen. Sir Frederick Carsington, commanding the British forces in Matabeleland.

A SPARROW'S SUICIDE.

The Bird Got Tangled in a Piece of String and Hung to Death.

Birds have been known to do many wonderful things, but the newest is to commit suicide. There now dangles from the cornice of the residence of Rev. Hobart Clark, of East Sixth street, a bird, hung by the neck. The sparrows made a nest in the cornice last spring and carried grass, thread, string and the like as material for it. There was one long piece of string, one end of which hung loose. A sparrow, in flying in or out the hole in the cornice, became entangled in the cord and started to fly away. The cord brought the bird to a sudden stop and then came a struggle for liberty that ended in death. The strength of the sparrow gradually gave way and it sank as far as the cord allowed. This sorrowful little tragedy was enacted some time ago, and the bird still hangs there as a silent reminder of the fatality.

THE RAMABI CIRCLE.

The Members Are Full of Hope for the Success of Their Leader.

The ninth annual meeting of the Plainfield Ramabi Circle was held a few days ago at the residence of Mrs. F. C. Harder, of Madison avenue. Much interest was manifested in the extracts which were read from the general reports presented at the the annual meeting held at Boston in March. Mrs. Robert Lowry kindly consented to read Ramabi's report. Mrs. Taylor, the president, also read other selections.

Ramabi hopes to secure to her school for little widows the needed support from her mango farm which is nearly paid for, as most of the circles in America were organized for ten years. This farm will be most valuable to help the brave little woman to continue her work of uplifting and elevating her unfortunate country women.

Mrs. C. E. Ryder, the treasurer of the Plainfield Circle, will be happy to receive unpaid dues, and will supply reports to any members who desire them. One contribution was made to the farm, and others promised.

A PLACE TO SPEND YOUR VACATION.

The Summer Camp at Northfield Has Many Attractions.

For the past ten summers the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. has been represented at Northfield; some years largely so. It is hoped that this year will be no exception and that many Plainfielders will arrange to attend the camp, which will be open from July 1st to September 1st. The camp will be in a grove of pines and birches on the lower slope of Notch mountain, directly east of the village; near at hand and yet perfectly secluded. The swimming float on the Connecticut is within a mile, the fine tennis courts and baseball field used by the students are about midway, and near the auditorium. Tents 12x15, accommodating four, furnished with cots, mattresses, pillows and looking-glasses, can be had at $2 per week for each tent. Any group of young men bringing their own tent can be assigned location without expense. Those who wish to do their own cooking can get groceries, meat, bread, etc., from the stores at Northfield, and milk from the farms near at hand. Board at a large mess tent (plain, but good wholesome food in abundance and well cooked) will be furnished at $3.50 per week.

Northfield is about two miles from South Vernon on the Connecticut River Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, which connects with the Boston and Albany, and New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroads at Springfield. Reduced railroad rates will be secured. D. L. Moody says, "Come for one week or more, as you are able, and we will do our best to make you want to come again."

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

COYOTES AMONG THE CATTLE.

Western Ranchers Wrestling with the Problem of Extermination.

A novel scheme for saving his cattle from the droves of coyotes that infest the region has been hit upon by a rancher of Glen Rock, Wash. He has placed a number of bells on the necks of a great number of cattle in his herds, and the result has been to scare the coyotes away. In the two months since he belled his herds he has not lost a single animal, while previously his loss averaged at least one steer a day. Coyotes are becoming more of a pest every season in many parts of Washington and Oregon, despite all the efforts of the cattlemen and farmers to exterminate them. Thousands of dollars are spent every year in waging war on the beasts but with little result. Poison availed for a time, but now the coyotes refuse to touch the poisoned carcasses of steers strewn about for their consumption. The only way of killing them is by shooting them, and this is a feeble and wholly inadequate means. Occasionally the residents of a district combine and have a grand round-up hunt, driving the coyotes toward the center of a circle and slaughtering them there, and this is the only means of appreciably thinning them out occasionally. In some regions the packs of gray wolves are as numerous and troublesome as the coyotes. The coyotes are particularly adept chicken thieves, and, indeed, are a general pest around the farmyards.

SILVERITES' VICTORY

White Metal Men Capture the Kentucky Democratic Convention.

GREAT DAY FOR GEN. BLACKBURN

The Gold Men Outnumbered Three to One—The Names of Cleveland and Carlisle Greeted with Hoots and Yells.

Lexington, Ky., June 4.—Yesterday was a day of triumph for Senator Blackburn and the free silver element of the Blue Grass democracy. The white metal advocates outnumbered their opponents in the state convention three to one, but they were not disposed to be magnanimous and despite the pacific advice of Senator Blackburn, the gold men were shown scant courtesy. State chairman Charles R. Long called the convention to order at 1:40 in the afternoon in the auditorium of the Chatauqua assembly building. It was a full convention, for instead of being 910 delegates there were nearly 1,200 within the enclosure set apart for them. Chairman Long was the first to experience the ill-will of the silverites. In closing his address, he said, "Grover Cleveland stands to-day as the equal in devotion to the best interests of our government and faithful service of any president that has preceded him and the country is indebted to the democratic party for his election, and I doubt not that the convention will give him their votes."

President's Name Hooted.

This was the signal for a scene. The silver delegates yelled and shouted and created such a disturbance that the chairman could scarcely proceed, and when he said: "John G. Carlisle stands before the American people as purest and ablest statesmen," they drowned his voice with hoots and yells. Nominations for temporary chairman being in order John S. Rhea, for the silver men, presented the name of Charles J. Bronston for temporary chairman, and Col. Bennett H. Young, gold, nominated Judge Alex P. Humphreys. He could scarcely be heard, and the chairman rebuked the delegates for their discourtesy. Bronston won by a big majority. The vote, which shows the strength of silver in the convention, was: Bronston, 691; Humphreys, 206.

Blackburn's Grand Reception.

Mr. Bronston then addressed the convention, and after he had finished his address John S. Rhea, the noted free silver orator, was called for. He responded in a three-minute speech, counselling harmony. Then Senator Blackburn appeared on the platform. The delegates rose as one man, waved their hats, umbrellas, handkerchiefs, or whatever else they had handy, and cheered for several minutes before they would let him speak. The senator told of his years of service to the party, and said that while he had suffered much at the hands of democrats who opposed the policy he advocated, he bore them no ill-will and had no animosity against those who had fought him so bitterly. He counselled harmony and urged his enthusiastic friends to be generous in this, the hour of their victory, and unite with the opposition, but without surrendering any of the principles for which they fought so bravely. The convention then adjourned until to-day.

Bradley Still a Candidate.

Frankfort, Ky., June 4.—The story sent out from here last night announcing the withdrawal of Gov. Bradley from the presidential race is authoritatively denied.

Free Silver Democrats in Kansas.

Topeka, Kas., June 4.—The Kansas democrats yesterday elected a delegation to the national convention and bound them to vote for no presidential candidate who was not unequivocally for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. The silver men were so much in the majority that the few gold delegates were not even heard.

Fox Will Contest Settled.

Hartford, June 4.—The will case involving the estate of the late Frederick K. Fox, which has been in the courts for five years, has at last been settled. The preferred legacies are paid in full, while the general legacies are settled by payment on a basis of 95 per cent.

Bayard Calls on Salisbury.

London, June 4.—United States Ambassador Bayard had a special interview with the Marquis of Salisbury last evening.

Dyspepsia,

✲ Gastritis

and all stomach troubles where that great life-maintaining organ refuses to dispense nourishment to every part of the body, and the sufferer gradually wasting away and losing flesh daily, finally meets his death from the perforation of a gastric ulcer or dies by actual starvation, can be cured, as has been done time and again, by the use of that great blood enricher, flesh and muscle builder, and strength creator. Give the vital centres of the body strength to perform their regular functions and perfect health is a natural sequence. Dr. Louis Faust, of Schenectady, N. Y., says of Bovinine, "In the severest cases of gastritis the stomach will bear it. For one month my mother lived almost exclusively on it during such a sickness." Over 25000 physicians use and endorse it.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

(Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Banks and I looked at each other, appalled by the news.

"Dr. Fowler is in Trent," the girl went on. "He is expected home at midnight. It is arranged that if you need him then, a message shall be sent to him."

With his sound hand Banks lifted the case from the buggy.

"This is serious, very," he said in my ear. "We can't wait for him; it's out of the question. Join me in your office as quickly as you can."

I nodded and turned to assist Miss Gray to the ground. Young Weston led the horse away.

"Come," said I to the girl, "you must have some supper. By the looks of the horse, as well as the clock, I can see that you've taken nobody's dust on the road. You must tell me all about it after awhile."

"I was in Bassettville hardly 40 minutes ago," said she, with a look at her watch. "But how is he? Have you any more hope?"

"He is doing as well as anything human could after such a crushing and mangling, but our opinion is not changed."

She left me and walked away slowly and dispiritedly. The reaction after the excitement of her ride was already upon her. Almost as depressed in spirit as she, I made my way to the office. Banks had opened the case and was inspecting its contents. The room, in expectation of Fowler's arrival, had been prepared for the operation.

"It is fortunate she brought these, Morris," said Banks. "I'm afraid my old tools would have answered poorly. What a head she must have on her shoulders to have thought of borrowing the case! She is a noble woman, Morris, a woman in ten thousand."

"Indeed she is."

"Best get to work at once," Banks added. "Come, are you ready?"

A first capital operation! How the student looks forward to it, how he pictures in imagination the moment when the knife enters the flesh, how he dwells upon the surroundings, the attendants, the bright, keen blades flashing back the light, the odor of the anesthetic, the subject lying there on the table, maimed, diseased, his life dependent upon the skill of the surgeon's hand and eye! Small wonder the novice's heart throbs with pride in the profession he has chosen; small wonder he thinks it the noblest and best in the choice of man. To cut to cure, to shed blood to save—to him it seems to represent the highest development of the progress of his race. But when, long afterward, perhaps, this same student, now a general practitioner, finds himself confronted with the ordeal—ah, that is different. Between these days and those others when he hurried to the hospital amphitheater stretch years in which his confidence may have waned, his memory of the scene about the operating table grown dull. There is no cowardly desire upon him to shirk the responsibility—his professional training would count for little did it not insure him against such weakness—but he understands the extent of that responsibility. As a student-spectator he watched the work of specialists; now, as an operator, it is his duty to endeavor to approach their skill as nearly as lies in his power, though the knife comes strange and unaccustomed to his hand. Mind you, I am not speaking of the hundreds in every thousand of the profession to whom surgery stands as the best-loved branch of their art, nor yet of those who have achieved unhesitating, unflinching obedience to the mandates of duty, but of those others, among whom I count myself, who find themselves possessed, no matter what their experience, by a reluctance to ply the knife, even while they prepare for the ordeal the necessity of which they realize. Is the feeling rare? It is seldom expressed, it is true, but nevertheless it often exists, none the less poignant for its concealment. I have never conquered it, though I have taken part in many an operation since the one performed in the low-ceiled room of the farmhouse.

As Banks had said, the hope of the patient's recovery rested on his sturdy constitution. Since his removal to the house Jones had had several intervals of consciousness, although for the most part he lay in a state of semistupor More than once I caught the word "mistaken" in his rambling talk, when the fog cleared away from his brain, and the memory of Lamar's enigmatic observation flashed upon me; but it was no time to speculate upon the coincidence.

Banks was at the injured man's head, ready to apply the chloroform.

"You'll need an assistant, Morris," said he. "Get somebody who can be depended upon to keep his senses and hand you the right thing when you call for it. Who is available?"

There were two or three wide-eyed faces against the window-panes, but I knew too well how much reliance could be placed upon their owners. Banks understood my hesitation. Stepping to the door, he called out:

"Miss Gray."

She could not have been far away, for she responded to the summons before I could make protest. Banks tersely told her what was wanted.

"I will do my best," she said. Her voice was steady, but, as she entered the room and came into the glare of the lamps, her face showed pale and drawn.

"It will be a severe test of your nerves," said I. "Don't undertake it if—"

"I am quite ready," she said, quietly, but decisively.

"And I'll warrant her nerves," said Banks. "Miss Gray, please hold out your hand. No shaking there, Morris," he added, with a little triumph.

"No, there's too much tension," I thought, but did not put the opinion into words. Banks passed her an apron—it was an old one of Mrs. Weston's—and she took the station he pointed out to her and listened attentively to the simple directions he gave.

There is a place for elaborate descriptions of amputations, but, I hold, it is to be found within the covers of technical publications. There is no good reason for setting down here all that we did, from the administering of the chloroform and the applying of the tourniquet to the fastening of the last bandage. The leg was taken off a few inches above the knee; the operation was successful, as the term is. Dorothy Gray did all that was asked of her, and did it well. Only once did she flinch—that was when a tiny spurt of blood from a severed vessel stained her apron; but, even then, in an instant she was again self-controlled, attentive, ready. From first to last I do not think she glanced once toward the face covered by the handkerchief saturated with chloroform. When our task was done, and Jones had been borne to the bed in an adjoining room which had been prepared for his reception, I turned to find her leaning against the wall, her eyes looking straight before her and the fingers of her clasped hands working spasmodically. She started violently when I touched her arm, and gazed at me as wildly as one roused from an appalling dream.

"Here, here, Miss Gray," said I, "this won't do at all. We can't have you like this. Let me prescribe for you."

"How is he doing?" She pointed to the inner room.

"As well as we could ask. Banks is with him, and will remain as long as he is needed. Do you come with me."

I led the way to the open air, and she followed with the docility of a child.

XV.

The evening breeze had died out, and the night was still and starlit, with a soft coolness unspeakably refreshing after the close air of the office.

"You must make me a promise," I said to the girl. "For the next two hours you must be entirely under my orders. Will you promise?"

"Yes," she answered, mechanically.

"Then, first of all, get a hat and wrap, and rejoin me here as quickly as you can."

Without question she obeyed, returning to find me equipped with pipe and tobacco-pouch and awaiting her We passed through the gate, and turned into the road leading to the village.

"With your permission I'll light this pipe," I observed.

She nodded absently, though I doubt if she understood a word I had said.

"Tobacco," I resumed, after a pause, in the course of which a pleasant glow had been created in the bowl of the pipe, "is a wonderful agent of comfort. It surprises me sometimes that only one sex hereabouts enjoys its blessings. Both of us have seen or heard of countries where the ladies blow clouds with all the grace imaginable. Why not introduce the fashion here?"

She looked up at the question, but made no reply.

"There was a preceptor of mine," I went on, "who made a study of the effects of nicotine, and who wrote some very able pamphlets on the subject. Among other things, he proved, to his own satisfaction, that even the moderate use of tobacco impaired memory, injured the vision, and caused various other ills. He got to be an extremist at last, putting the weed under a sweeping ban. But all through his life no factory chimney smoked more industriously than he. Finally some of his associates cornered him, and demanded why he didn't follow his own advice.

"'I'd be stultifying myself if I did,' said he, coolly.

"'How?' asked the inquisitors in chorus.

"'Isn't it the first duty of a man to obey his physician?'

"'Certainly,' they admitted. 'But you won't let your patients smoke.'

"'Of course I won't,' said he. 'It isn't good for 'em. But Jimmy Bangs is my doctor; at least he's called in when anybody's sick at my house.'

"'Well?' said they.

"'So he's my family physician, you see,' quoth the specialist; 'and he doesn't believe that tobacco ever hurt anybody.'

"Come," I persisted, after waiting in vain for her to speak. "What do you think of my old preceptor?"

"I hardly understood the story," she answered, with an effort.

"Well, it's a true tale," said I, "and therefore I'll repeat it."

This time she heard it all.

"Do doctors often reason so logically?" she asked.

"Sometimes they do. Did you know that many specialists die of the diseases they've studied most carefully? 'Physician, heal thyself'—that's advice they find it difficult to follow."

Again she fell silent.

"For a summer night, this is a good one for star-gazing," I ventured. "Do you keep up your astronomy?"

"I'm afraid not."

"One really should; it's worth the while," said I; but she let the topic drop.

"By the way, Miss Gray, do you think that, in any circumstances, black may appear white?" I asked.

She turned to me, with a quick, impatient movement.

"Why do you ask such questions?" she demanded. "How can you speak of trifles, after that—that—" Her voice gave way, and I thought I heard a sob.

"Listen," said I, earnestly. "In 'that' lies the reason for my rambling talk. I hadn't intended to tell you so, but it's the fact. Now you might as well hear all. When you finished your ride you were worn out. Apparently you hadn't been run away with, but evidently the horse had kept you at work. Then came the call for you to help us. It braced you up, of course, but the strain, coming after the first one, left you a bundle of exposed nerves, so to speak. It wouldn't do to let you go to your room in such a state. Why, you would have had a night of horrors, lying awake for hours, tossing, turning, trying to shake off the nervousness which held you prisoner. If you fell into a doze it would be to wake as suddenly as if under a shock of electricity, to wake to find your muscles rigid and your heart pounding like a hammer. And even when physical weariness overcame you at last, your sleep would be broken by dreams a dozen times more terrible than the experiences you've gone through. I know what you are thinking, and I tell you your thoughts must be turned into another channel. It's to try to turn them that I've brought you out here, that I've gabbled about nothings."

"I understand," she said, softly. "I understand, and I thank you from the bottom of my heart. If I spoke irritably, won't you pardon me? I'm sorry, so sorry, now that I understand."

"There's nothing to pardon, unless it is the brusqueness with which I've blurted out my reasons for getting you away from the house."

"You are not brusque," she said, and walked on in silence. I could guess how she was striving to dismiss the scenes of the evening from her mind. At last she spoke of her aunt, expressing regret that she had left the invalid to seek her couch unassisted.

SPORTS

THURSDAY, June 4—Sun rises 4:30 a. m., sets 7:26 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:26 p. m. and 3:30 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Paterson boasts of a woman 83 years old who rides a wheel.

Harry Manning, of South Plainfield, is riding a new Zimmy wheel.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company received a shipment of fifteen Hartfords yesterday.

A combination Cleveland tandem has been added to the rental department of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

W. H. Rogers, the West Fifth street cycle dealer, returned today from Chicopee Falls, Mass., where he has been on business.

Ernest Swayze had a tumble from his wheel yesterday. The front wheel was a total wreck but Swayze was not seriosly injured.

R. C. Chadsey, whose entry was rejected for the Irvington-Millburn road race, will begin suit against the Metropolitan Association of Cycling Clubs.

Carl von Lengerke, the century rider, has been selected as chief pacemaker for the annual century run of the Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey, on June 19th.

John H. Doane and B. T. Barnes rode over to Orange yesterday afternoon and saw the baseball nine of the Orange A. C. defeat the Princeton "varsity" nine by a score of 10 to 8.

Charles G. Carpenter, of the Jersey Wheel Company's racing team, is showing up in good form. He rode a third yesterday, paced by Darling and Hinrichs on a tandem, in forty seconds.

The ten mile club race on the road for the championship of Union county will be held on Saturday afternoon starting from Elizabeth. The Crescent Wheelmen will not be represented.

One of the three members of the race committee of the recent Irvington-Millburn road race will bring up the matter of the disqualification of Hadfield at its next meeting, and insist upon a thorough investigation.

A. H. Barnett, the well-known rider of the Jersey Wheel Company's racing team, was taken ill yesterday and it was thought that the illnes would develop into typhoid fever. Trainer Gus Burgland was untiring in his care of the Irvington Milburn exchampion and Barnett is much better today.

"Scorchers" will have to confine their efforts to the race track in the future, says The New York Herald, or submit to a heavy fine. Training on the road endangers life and limb, and its abolition will be welcomed by all wheelmen who have the interest of the sport at heart. The evil should soon be crushed out, as Chief Consul Potter has said that the authorities will have the co-operation of the League of American Wheelmen in the matter.

The second of the general runs of the Y. M. C. A. cycling league will be held this evening and the destination will be Westfield. The Westfield association, although the smallest in the league, is noted for its hospitality and is preparing for a very "large" time. There will be an entertainment and refreshments, of course. The Plainfield associciation will start from the Y. M. C. A. building at eight o'clock and it is hoped that a large number will attend.

The Jersey Wheel Company is to be represented on the New York State circuit by two of their racing team, Howard B. Mosher and Jay Eaton. They start for Fredonia, N. Y., today, and will ride there at the opening meet in the circuit on Saturday. They will then follow the circuit. A. H. Barnett and Charles G. Carpenter will remain in this city for the present and train at the Crescent Oval under the charge of Trainer Gus Burgland, who will remain with them until they get into condition.

The annual meet of the New Jersey Division, League of American Wheelmen, will be given under the management of the Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey. The race meet committee is hard at work on the century run, which will take place Saturday, June 20th, after which it will take up the league meet and push it for all it is worth. All the New Jersey championship races will be given during the meet. The races will be held either at Plainfield or at the Tourist Cycle Club's new track at Willard Park, Paterson.

The committee at a recent meeting selected the following officials to manage the meeting: Referee, James E. Sullivan, New Jersey A. C.; field judges, W. J. Swan, New York A. C., F. W. Rubien, St. George A. C., H. K. Zust, Twenty-second Regiment A. A.; track judges, Harry Cornish, Knickerbocker A. C., Bartow S. Weeks, New York A. C., W. J. Linihan, Riverside A. To Consider Garbage Disposal.

The Board of Health will meet this evening when the matter of the establishment of a system of garbage disposal, as proposed by Seymour P. Smith, will be considered. The Plainfield Sanitary Company, as the affair will be titled when it is incorporated, desires the Board of Health to give them permission to collect garbage from the householders, and to charge fifty cents per month.

Such an arrangement is not likely at present, however, as the Board of Health have a contract already for the gathering of garbage, and the only way the new company could get around the difficulty would be to buy the privilege from those who already hold it.

A Gay Party.

It was a gay party that left the Revere House this noon at 1 o'clock on J.H. Poillion's break for Spring Lake, where Mr. Pollion has a summer residence. Mr. Poillion was in the driver's box, while the rest of the party was made up of Mrs. Poillion, the Misses Poillion, Miss Kate Martine and Dr. B. VanD. Hedges. Mr. Poillion's son Fred, followed in a mail carriage. They will go as far as Keyport today and stay there over night, continuing the journey in the morning.

Delegates to a Church Conference.

Rev. P. S. Gibson, A. Wilson, Spencer Conway and Mrs. P. H. Brown, of Mt. Olive Baptist church, will go to Cambridge, Mass., June 16th, to attend the New England Colored Baptist Missionary Society Convention. The colored Baptist churches of seven States will send delegates.

—A dramatic entertainment will be given at the residence of N. P. T. Finch, 241 Belvidere avenue, next Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Altar Society of St. Stephen's church. Two plays, "My Uncle's Will" and "A Box of Monkeys," will be given by Elizabeth amateurs. Music and dancing will follow the plays. The admission is 50 cents.

MUNYON'S

COLD CURE.

Colds lead to coughs, coughs to pneumonia and consumption; therefore, it is all important to check a cold before it reaches the lungs. Munyon's Cold Cure will positively break a cold inside of twenty-four hours if taken as soon as the cold manifests itself. When the cold reaches the lungs or bronchial tubes the Cough Cure is guaranteed to prevent pneumonia if used in the beginning of a cold. Pneumonia, or inflammation of the lungs, can be controlled by the use of these two cures.

The Cough Cure positively cures bronchitis, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, loss of voice, soreness of the chest, difficulty in breathing, hacking cough and all pulmonary diseases where the lungs are not too far consumed by disease or covered with tubercles.

A separate cure for each disease. At all druggists, mostly 25 cents a vial.

Personal letters to Prof. Munyon, 1505 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

AN EARLY JUNE NUPTIAL EVENT.

Miss Anna Volkmar and Ephriam Compton Quietly Married.

The marriage of Miss Anna Volkmar, of West Fourth street, and Ephriam Compton, of the borough, was celebrated last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Rev. Cornelius Schenck, who performed the ceremony. Miss Lillie Laing was bridemaid and Winfield Coddington best man.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party were driven to the bride and groom's new home, 127 New street, where an informal reception was held. Nothing But Smoke.

Yesterday afternoon about 3:30 a man named Frank Hull, living in the borough, called at No. 1 engine house on Somerset street and reported that there was a fire in the stone house on Johnston's drive occupied by Mr. Emmerson. The bell was sounded and the hose wagon was taken to the spot. It was then learned that there no fire, and the smoke coming from the stone crusher was the trouble. Chief Doane and A. Bartlett, of this city, thinking there was a fire also responded.

ST. LOUIS STORM SUFFERERS.

A Fund To Be Raised To Aid Persons Who Lost Their Homes.

St. Louis, June 4.—A movement has been started to raise a fund of $250,000 or more to aid those who lost their homes to rebuild them. At the first meeting, an impromptu one, held at the Noonday club, $35,000 was contributed by prominent business men, and this will be increased. It is proposed to loan tornado sufferers money on second mortgages. S. D. Webster, general claim agent of the Terminal Railroad association, announces that the upper roadway of the Eads bridge has been completed so as to admit the passage of foot-passengers. The roadway was torn up a distance of 550 feet. Part of the debris was piled on the railroad tracks, and all the next day after the storm was occupied in clearing away the wreckage. When this was finished the trains were allowed to cross. The work of erecting a temporary roadway and supports was commenced. This has been carried on steadily ever since, but the work progressed slowly, owing to the fact that the workmen were obliged to keep the railroad tracks clear. A large amount of timber has been used in the repairs, which are temporary. The masonry will be replaced later.

That salary should come down with the general declinesof prices and values, and I shall see that it does come down." The mayor's salary is now $5,000 per annum.

LAST EDITION

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1896. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR

TALENT IN ELOCUTION.

ANNUAL RECITAL OF THE PURILS OF ADDIE PARKER JACKSON.

Versatile Programme Rendered to the Delight of the Audience That Was Present—Several Floral Presentations.

The audience that filled the Y. M. C. A. Hall last evening was unanimous in one opinion and that was that Plainfield is remarkably fortunate in possessing such a talented young woman as Miss Addie Parker Jackson. It was the annual reception of her classes in physical culture and rendering, and the wonderful progress her pupils had made showed that their teacher certainly possessed a complete understanding of her subject.

The busy hum of conversation that preceded the opening selection was suddenly hushed as the members of the class, all dressed in light blue, marched in and took their places for the physical culture drill. Those to take part in it were the Misses Edith L. Burt, Evelyn Benton, Katharine Dwight, Euphemia Demarest, Aimee Emmons, Helen Eggerding, Mary Hull, Marie Kampman, Alice Thompson, Mary A. Luckey, Alice Morgan, Marie Newman, Grace E. Overton, Lucy Pound, May Parmelee, Constance Patton, Miss Rita Pond.

With a soft piano accompaniment by Miss Helen Hasbrouck, they went through a number or simple, yet graceful exercises, and made a pretty picture as, in time with the music, they executed the different movements so well together.

The first of the recitations was "Lilly Servosse's Ride," by Miss Mary A. Luckey. It was an exciting selection and the audience waited anxiously to hear the fate of the brave young rider and the result of her perilous ride. Miss Luckey depicted the scene in a vivid manner and held the attention of every listener through the piece.

Miss Lucy Pound's rendition of "The Bishop and the Cow" was excellent; especially her imitation of the old woman's voice, feeble and shrill.

"The Old Front Gate" was Miss Alice Thompson's selection and was particularly pleasing. Miss Thompson entered thoroughly into the spirit of the piece, if a "gate" can be said to have any spirit, and gave it in a way that elicited hearty applause.

"The Widow's Light" was a sad little story given by Miss Rita Pond. The pathetic part was given in a way that drew tears to the eyes of many. The tears were soon changed to smiles and the smiles to laughter in the next selection, "The Family Drum Corps," given by Miss Marie Newman. Her "terrata boom" was given delightfully. The selection was an extremely hard one to give, but Miss Newman seemed just the on for it.

"How Salvator Won" was the story of the famous race between those two great queens of the turf, Salvator and Tenny, and was given most delightfully by Miss Edith L. Burt. The audience almost forgot that they were in the hall and could see the two horses neck to neck nearing the finish, so realistically given.

Miss Mary Hull's selection was "Aux Italiens," a sad, dreamy story, the effect of which was increased by a soft melody from the piano.

The melancholy thoughts were routed in an instant by Miss Constance Patton in "Country Sleighing." She told of the delights of a country "straw ride" with a grand dinner and dance in some old-fashioned country tavern and set her audience all wishing they were there, too.

The last recitation was given by Miss Grace E. Overton. Those who heard her speak last year did not think that it could be improved upon, but after they had listened to the thrilling story of the boat race between "The Atalantas and the Algonquius," they changed their opinion. The first crew was from a young ladies' college and the other from a men's college. The story was told so well that the audience nearly forgot the speaker and seemed to see in her one of the "Atalanta" crew straining at her oar with the other boat slowly approaching.

A farce in one act, "St. Valentine's Day," was the next number on the programme and everybody was delighted with it. The characters were: Aunt Elinor, Miss Lucky; Letty (her niece,) Miss Overton; Jeanette (maid,) Miss Newman. Letty was a remarkable character and Miss Overton had her part down to perfection while Miss Lucky was an excellent Aunt Elinor, acting her part in a way that added much, to the success of the farce. The fun was over a valentine which came addressed to "my valentine," from a certain Richard Morrison. Aunt Elinor, who was in love with him, "knew" it belonged to her but did not want to tell her niece why. Letty was equally sure it was her own property and wanted to know why her aunt thought differently. Of course everything came out right and Letty received a large box of candy to temporarily satisfy her wonderful appetite.

H. O. Newman then stepped to the stage and after a few words, presented Mrs. Jackson with an immense basket of beautiful roses from her class.

The recital closed with three character sketches. Miss May Parmalee was an excellent "Guest at the Flowers Jubilee." Miss Aimee Emmons as "Nobody's Child" was one of the best of the entire programme. Her torn cragged costume and her pleading voice, almost stifled with sobs at times made it, perhaps, the most realistic of all. The last was "Grandma at the Masquerade," who was very daintily represented by Miss Katherine Dwight.

There was one thing that everyone noticed and that was how well the selections had been made for everyone seemed just adapted for the one that gave it.

Of course, each of the young ladies received a profusion of bouquets which were presented by the ushers. Raymond A. McGee was in charge of the ushering, assisted by Wilbur. F. Cornwell and John W. Kirkner.

THE WOMAN POLITICIAN.

Her Intelligence Has Made Many Reforms in a Western State.

Women vote in Colorado and a "woman politician" gave her experiences there, in Newark, Wednesday afternoon, at a meeting of the Essex County Suffrage Society in Wissner Hall. She was listened to by a deeply interested audience of ladies while she discussed on "The Practical Results of Political Equality."

She said that Colorado women showed that they would vote when they had a chance, for while there were twenty thousand more men in the State than women, the latter cast fifty-one per cent. of the total vote. And they not only voted, but attended the primaries and political conventions, both of which had been transformed by their presence.

Primaries that used to be held in stables were now held in the parlors of private houses.

The Denver women's motto was "Local government is business and not politics." They had succeeded in having the garbage contract let to a woman for $280 per month in place of a man who for ten years had charged $820 and had not done it half as well.

The State Superintendent of Education is a woman, as are the superintendants of twenty-seven counties, and the Clerk of the county containing Denver is also a woman, and three women sit in the State Assembly.

But as a whole, the women do not seek office, being satisfied to elect good men to fill public positions.

The best class of men, who had left politics in disgust were now taking an active interest in public affairs and the whole State was feeling the effect of this civic patriotism.

A Poor Policy.

The Somerville Unionist-Gazette has the following:

Have you heard a word spoken against Major McKinley as a man of high character? Has anyone dared say he was not a Republican? In spite of the desperate efforts being made to defeat his nomination, his opponents dare not attack him on one of these two vital points.

No! But a man who seeks the high office of President of the United States, should not hesitate to make known his position on great public questions. On this line he hesitates, hoping that political thrift may come from fawning. We do not question his character nor Republicanism, but do oppose his political policy. J.E.M.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. A MILITARY FUNERAL.

THE LATE HENRY D. BALDWIN BURIED WITH G. A. R. HONORS.

His Remains Accompanied From Newark by a Delegation From James A. Garfield Post With Their Drum Corps

One of the most impressive G. A. R. funerals ever witnessed in this city took place yesterday afternoon on the arrival of the 3:30 train from Newark. About 50 members of James A. Garfield Post, of Newark, accompanied by their Fife and Drum Corps, came to this city bearing the remains of their late comrade, Henry D. Baldwin, mention of whose death has been made in these columns. With martial tread the comrades proceeded to the North Plainfield cemetery where the services of the G. A. R. were performed.

Chaplain Cadmus invoked the divine blessing, which was followed with a solemn selection by the corps. Commander Clark then made a few remarks eulogizing the departed. A touching feature was presented when Past Commanders Mellor, Parkhurst, Russell and Bridgen advanced separately and after making a few appropriate remarks dropped flowers into the grave. Chaplain Cadmus gave a short talk, full of wisdom and help to all present. The firing squad then fired three salutes over the grave; each salute was followed with a selection by the corps. This concluded the ceremony and the comrades returned to Winfield Scott Post rooms where they were entertained until train time. Comrades Wm. Hand, George Moore and Commander McVoy, of Post 73, acted as escorts to the visiting Post.

NOT AN ARTIST AT THE WASHTUB

And Thereby Hangs the Tale of Trouble Between Servant and Housewife.

The case of Miss Mary Ellen Gartland against Mrs. Laura Ellis, both of Fanwood, was tried before Justice Newcorn yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff, who was a servant girl for the defendant, brought suit to recover a month's wages, $14. The plaintiff entered the employ of the defendant March 23d, 1896, and was taken for a week on trial. At the expiration of the week both parties were satisfied and the week was allowed to go on the month. At the end of three weeks Mrs. Ellis went into the kitchen and noticed a quantity of flannels lying there. They had been washed but Mrs. Ellis did not know it and, thinking the servant girl was going to soak them, remonstrated and said she wanted them washed by hand.

The girl said she could not wash by hand as she had been used to a board. A stormy interview followed, which resulted in Mrs. Ellis ordering the girl from the house. The latter refused to go, as she wanted to complete her month. Mayor Young, of Fanwood, was called in to eject the girl, but as he saw nothing disorderly in her actions, refused to put her out. The defense claimed that the girl was impudent, not tidy, and couldn't cook. The plaintiff claimed she did all the work for which she was hired. Lawyer W. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, represented the defendant, and Lawyer Swackhamer the plaintiff. After both sides had been heard the Judge reserved his decision until Monday.

HOPE CHAPEL FESTIVAL.

A MONEY AND PLEASURE MAKING AFFAIR HELD LAST NIGHT.

Given by the Ladies' Aid Society Who Worked Untiringly to Make it a Success.—Names of Those in Charge of the Booths.

The interior of Hope chapel never presented a more attractive appearance than it did yesterday afternoon and evening, after the various members of the Ladies' Aid Society had finished their work of decorating it. The occasion for this expenditure of labor was the strawberry and ice-cream festival which the Aid Society had advertised to take place from 3 to 10 o'clock, in order to replenish their treasury.

On entering the door the visitor was met by Mrs. M. L. McComas and Mrs. D. Page, who expected a ticket or ten cents. The flower booth was the next point of attraction. The tables were almost completely hidden under their weight of fragrant and pretty blossoms. Mrs. G. Kennedy Newell, Mrs. L. Bunn and Mrs. S. Smith looked after this booth. Visitors who were thirsty enjoyed an excellent glass of lemonade from the hands of Mrs. D. F. Stewart, Mrs. S. A. Ball and Mrs. Frank. Anyone who feared becoming tanned from the fierce glare of the electric lights might purchase sunbonnets, etc., from Mrs. A. Cox and Mrs. John Hall. A large assortment of all sorts of sweets were offered for sale by Mrs. T. Shephard, Mrs. Chas. Stevens and Mrs. James Radin. Those who were hungry purchased excellent cake of Mrs. J. B. Higgins, Mrs. B. D. DeNise, Mrs. James and Mrs. Millington. Delicious strawberries were served by Mrs. James Randolph and Mrs. A. Campbell. Ice cream was served by Mrs. T. Chamberlain, Mrs. M. Sweeney, Mrs. Montgomery and Mrs. W. G. Gray.

Mrs. S. R. Struthers, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, was general chairman of the affair, and to her much credit is due.

During the evening piano selections were rendered by Miss Mabel Benner and Miss Ada Nash. The duet by the little Misses Ada Westphal and Mamie Richards, accompanied by Miss Benner on the piano, entitled, "I Don't Want to Play in Your Yard," was rendered in a pleasing manner and received bearty applause. The society realized a snug sum from the festival.

A more delightful place could not be found last evening than in Grace M. E. church of Park place, where the Ladies' Aid Society of the church had transformed the rooms into a decidedly pleasing picture through the use of flowers, ferns, greens, etc.

The affair was styled a strawberry and ice-cream festival, but then there were other things such as home made candy, fancy articles and lemonade, to attract the eye and pocketbook. On entering the room the first thing to catch your attention was the booth arranged by and in charge of the Golden Circle, King's Daughters. There was a display of dainty and fancy articles, from which a good sum was realized. Those in charge were the Misses Libby Joseph, Lizzie Hoagland, Mary Hoagland, Bertha Stevens, Emma LaBoyteaux and Miss Stevens.

The next booth contained an array of home-made articles, such as aprons and things of a like nature for use about the house. It was well arrrnged and Mrs. L. A. Hummer, Mrs. H. K. Carroll, Mrs. Edwin Loomis and Mrs. Andrew Lutkins very carefully looked after their patrons.

Next came the candy table filled with all the best kinds of sweets. Mrs. E. E. Winckler, Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Alice Carroll, Miss Agnes Tingley, Miss Carrie Tingley and Miss Della Voehl were in charge and quickly disposed of the excellent assortment of candies. In the corner was stationed the lemonade well, surrounded luxuriantly with ferns, greens and roses. At this place Mrs. Gerry, Mrs. Wm. Lunger and Mrs. Anna Most kept the thirsty supplied.

One of the prettiest booths was the one devoted to flowers. It was octagon shape and elaborately decorated with ferns, wheat roses and greens. Miss Marguerite Schuck, Miss Mamie Steiner, Miss Clara Steiner and Miss Alice Loomis were in charge and experienced no trouble in making ready sales.

Those in charge of the affair were Mrs. John Valiant, Mrs. A. A. Taft, Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. W. H. Lunger, while Mrs. John Lunger, Mrs. Sheppard, Mrs. Schuck, Mrs. Vermeule and Mrs. VanNest looked after the cake. Mrs. Charles Hummer and Mrs. Hoagland were the committee on cream, and Mrs. J. H. Carney looked after the wants of all in her efficient manner.

During the evening there were vocal solos by Miss Kittie Glen, Miss Alice Carroll and Charles Angleman, and recitations by Miss Lillie Haberle. A feature was a dialogue by Nellie Valiant and Ada VanHorn. The affair will be continued this evening and there will be a different programme.

THE LIFE OF DAVID.

The Gospel Forcibly Expounded by Arthur Klein, B. A.

Every seat in the hall at 314 West Second street, was taken last evening, at which time Arthur Klein, B. A., of Cambridge University, delivered a Gospel address. The impressive manner and words of the speaker held the closest attention of those present, and his discourse was especially helpful to Christians as well as the unsaved. His subject was on the life and work of David. He related in a forciful way many strong points in David's life, which are worthy of emulation. David's fortitude and sterling qualities were brought out in such a manner as to win the admiration of all. Mr. Klein at the close urged his audience to faithfulness and work with a strong appeal.

This evening John T. Mawson, of Bradford, England, will speak at the same place. All are invited.

MEN OF THE UNION.

Short Sketch of the Plainfield Bricklayers' and Plasterers' Union.

The organization which is known as the Plainfield Bricklayers' and Plasterers' International Union was formed here in 1881, and held semi-monthly meetings in the old Coward building on Park avenue. Meetings were held there continuously until 1884 when a transfer of rooms was made to North avenue where, in the Woolston & Buckle building, the headquarters were located until 1889 when a change was again made to the Stelle building at Front street and Park avenue. On May 1st of the present year more commodious rooms were secured in the Elkwood building on West Second street, where the meetings are now held. The society started with forty members and at the present time it has a membership of sixty odd in good standing. The sick benefits are about the average for like organizations and the society pays $100 at the death of each member.

Delighted With Plainfield.

About two weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Morris Duncan, of Chicago, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bushnell, of Park avenue. During their stay several carriage drives were enjoyed about Plainfield and the visitors were much impressed with Plainfield's beauty. They were especially attracted to E. C. Mulford's house on Richmond street, near Second street, and thought it would be a nice place to reside. Previous to their return home they were almost tempted to take the house, but decided to think the matter over and telegraph Mr. Mulford on their arrival. After due consideration, they sent Mr. Mulford word that they would take the house for two years from July 1st. Mr. Duncan is a general agent of the Sweden Fire Insurance Company, and both he and his wife will be welcomed residents in this city.

Narrow Escape From Drowning.

John Bennett, one of the coachmen for John L. Ludlum, of East Front street, was nearly drowned at Hyde's mill pond Wednesday evening. He was in swimming and had reached the middle of the pond when his wind gave out and he screamed for help. Edward Petrie went to the rescue and pulled him ashore before he could sink.

Results! Results!

Miss Lottie Connett, of Watchung avenue, lost a diamond stick pin and yesterday advertised the loss in The Daily Press. The pin was found by Mrs. S. A. Deitrich, of Grove street, who read of its loss in The Press, and the owner now has the article back in her possession, fully convinced that Press ads bring results.

To Open Next Week.

Manager Moulton has decided to open Mountain Park Inn next week Wednesday for the reception of guests. It was the intention to open the Inn tomorrow, but owing to incompleted work about the house it has been found necessary to postpone it. A hop will probably be arranged for Saturday night of next week.

Patriotic Park Club.

The entertainment committee of the Park Club are making arrangements for their usual patriotic celebration of the glorious Fourth. This is one of the events of the year in Washington Park, and a greater effort will be made to make it an enjoyable affair this summer than ever before.

Miss Mary E. Field and Charles E. Westervelt, of Bound Brook, were married at the home of I. N. Field in this city last night.

DIRTY WORDS AND WATER

A BAD COMBINATION IN PARADISE ALLEY YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Annie Sails Takes Exception to Mrs. Benford's Observations and a Fight Resulted—Annie Fined in City Court.

Paradise Alley was again the scene of a conflict yesterday afternoon and this time the intruder, after winning an apparent victory, finally landed in the rookery. The cause of all the trouble, at least so said the denizens of Paradise Alley, was Miss Annie Sails, a colored young woman employed by a Plainfield housekeeper as a servant.

Yesterday being Thursday, Annie's day off, she decided to visit Paradise Alley and enjoy its varied attractions. The delightful weather made her feel quite sprightly and her spirits rose accordingly. When she passed by the home of Mrs. Maggie Benford, the lady of the house was outside and indulged in some personalities that were not just suited to Annie's ideas of respect. Words of a slightly soiled character began to circulate. Mrs. Benford attempted to cool off the visitor's passion with a pail of water, dirtier than the words, and a grand explosion followed. Mrs. Benford took refuge in her house and, according to her statement, Annie forced her way in and tried to drop a large kettle on the head of Mrs. Benford. Matters were rather mixed when Patrolman McCue appeared and Annie's victory was turned to defeat. She spent last night in thinking over her sins and City Judge DeMeza fined her $5 to teach her to "never do so any more."

The trial was quite exciting and Mrs. Benford produced several barrels full of evidence among which was the pot that Annie used on Mrs. Benford's head. No dent could be found in the pot, however.

Improved Delivery Facilities.

Since Hillier & Co., the popular up-to-date laundry firm of Newark, established a branch store in this city, they have gradually but surely won favor among Plainfield people. Recognizing the confidence placed in them by their patrons and the large increase in their business, they have today placed into service one of the handsomest laundry wagons ever seen in Plainfield. A new horse and harness are also added features, thus enabling this house to meet the requirements of their Plainfield trade. A specialty of this house is that they will call for and deliver your work on time. Their address is 179 North avenue.

Hurrying Along the Work.

The work of narrowing the guage of the main line of the street railway will be completed by tomorrow night. Another turnout has been put in at the corner of Grant avenue and Fourth street, thus making a "Y" at that point. Work will be begun Monday on the Somerset line, and, weather permitting, it is expected it will be completed by Saturday, June 13th, and then the company will set about to put the streets in good order. The open cars will be put into service as soon as they arrive.

Wanted at the Boys Camp.

I should like to see five hundred young men in camp at Northfield through July and August. The college students have enjoyed coming here for the past ten summers, and I should like to welcome a large number of young men from the towns and cities who want to spend their vacation where they can have the best of good times. We have tried to plan for the camp so that the expense would be within reach of all. Come for one week or more, as you are able, and we will do our best to make you want to come again. D. L. Moody.

Didn't Know the Law.

There is one young man residing in the borough that does not read the papers, but the chances are that he will in the future. This unfortunate individual had not heard that the bicycle ordinance was in effect and he started to ride through town to his home on Washington avenue without a light. The police arrested him and this morning he appeared before City Judge DeMeza. He explained that he didn't know the ordinance was in effect, and the Judge finally suspended sentence. He was the first one to be arrested under the new ordinance.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

REID VISITS CANTON

The New York Editor Favors His Namesake for Second Place.

CANNOT WELL REFUSE, HE SAYS

As To Himself, He Is Not Again Seeking the Vice-Presidential Nomination—Protection and Sound Currency the Issue.

Cleveland, June 5.—Whitelaw Reid was in the city for a short time yesterday. After a brief call on M. A. Hanna, he left to visit Major McKinley at Canton. An inquiry was made as to Mr. Reid's views concerning the man to be given the second place on the ticket. "My big namesake from Maine would undoubtedly make the ideal candidate," said Mr. Reid. "The sentiment in favor of his nomination seems to prevail in all parts of the country." "Will he accept?" was asked. "The question should, be can he refuse? When a man enters on the public service and is honored for years by his party, he cannot well refuse to serve where the people wish to place him. But I prefer to say little on that subject. You know there are several candidates in my own state." "Would you accept the place?" "I am not a candidate, was not a candidate when I was nominated before, and I am sure that the office is not seeking me now." "Sould protection or silver be made the chief issue?" "The issue is simply that the people realize that they made a mistake when they intrusted the government to the democrats for four years, and that they will put back the party that gave them a strong protective tariff, a creditable foreign policy and a sound currency."

KENTUCKY DEMOCRATS.

Silver Men Satisfied with Their Victory and Harmony Prevailed.

Lexington, Ky., June 5.—The second day of the Kentucky democratic state convention was all harmony. There had been a feeling of uneasiness upon the part of the gold men who feared the silver crowd would, in the intoxication of victory, denounce Cleveland and Carlisle, but the platform, while declaring for a policy diametrically opposite to that of the present administration, has not one word of censure for the democratic standard bearer and the secretary of the treasury. Two reports were submitted from the committee on resolutions. The majority report, prepared by the silver men, reaffirmed in general, in its first section, the principals of the democratic party. The second section declared for free silver at 16 to 1 independent of action or advice of any other country. Third, opposed the issuance of bonds in time of peace to maintain the gold reserve or for any other purpose. Fourth, opposes the national bank system. Fifth, favors a tariff for revenue only. Sixth, opposes the union of church and state. That section is a blow at the A. P. A. The seventh section is devoted to denunciation of Gov. Bradley and the eighth declares the support of the party nominee to be the true test of party fealty. The last section instructs delegates at Chicago to vote for Senator J. S. Blackburn for the nomination for president. The minority report ommitted the endorsement of Blackburn and declared for the present gold standard, and in the absence of an international agreement opposed the free coinage of silver or compulsory purchase of silver by the government. The delegates elected were instructed to vote as a unit for Blackburn for president. Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge was called upon to speak and delivered an eloquent appeal for the gold standard, which was listened to with marked attention and respect.

MAINE POPULISTS.

They Declare for Free Silver and Nominate Prof. Bateman for Governor.

Lewiston, Me., June 5.—The populists' state convention nominated Prof. Luther C. Bateman of Auburn for governor and adopted a platform reaffirming the principles of the Omaha platform, demanding the coinage of both gold and silver at a ratio of 15 to 1 without asking the consent of any other nation, the payment of our bonded debt, no further issuance of bonds under any circumstances, a greenback currency which shall be a full and legal tender for all debts, both public and private; government ownership of railroads and telegraphs, and the absolute prohibition of all undesirable immigrants. "We demand the initiative and referendum, so that all laws can be referred back to the people for their approval before they become statutory enactments, and that all persons, firms or corporations in this state employing the labor of unnaturalized foreigners shall pay into the city or town where such firms or corporations are located the sum of fifty cents per day for any foreigner thus employed."

Virginia Democrats for Silver.

Staunton, Va., June 5.—The democratic state convention yesterday afternoon declared for free silver and instructed its delegates to vote for a free silver candidate. A minority report was submitted by the gold advocates, but they were outnumbered five to one.

Gen. Lee Takes Up Dawley's Case.

Havana, June 5.—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, the new American consul-general, will assume his duties to-day. The American, Dawley, continues "incomunicado" in Morro castle. Gen. Lee has taken up his case.

Confirmed by the Senate.

AGAINST BUTLER BOND BILL.

Only Two Votes in Its Favor in the House Committee.

Washington, June 5.—The house committee on ways and means last evening by a vote of 13 to 2 decided to report the Butler bond-prohibition bill adversely. The members of the committee voted as follows: For the adverse report—republicans—Dingley, Me.; Payne, N. Y.; Dalzell, Pa.; Hopkins, Ill.; Grosvenor, O.; Russell, Conn.; Dolliver, Ia.; Steele, Ind.; Johnson, N. D.; Evans, Ky.; Tayney, Minn. Democrats—Turner, Ga.; Cobb, Mo.—13. For a favorable report—democrats—McMillin, Tenn.; Wheeler, Ala. Representatives Crisp, dem., Ga., and McLaurin, dem., S. C., were absent, both of whom, it is supposed, would have voted for a favorable report. There was little discussion of the resolution. Republicans spoke of it as a populist measure. Mr. Grosvenor made the motion for an adverse report, which was carried after the motion of Mr. Wheeler for a favorable report had been voted down. Chairman Dingley prepared the majority report and Mr. Wheeler will make one for the minority.

STETSON WILL CLAIMANT.

A Young Western Woman Says She Is a Daughter of the Late Mrs. Stetson.

Boston, June 5.—Another claimant has appeared for the estate of the late John Stetson, jr., in the person of Mrs. Catharine Shirley of Kansas City, Mo., who claims, through her lawyer, to be the daughter of the late Mrs. John Stetson by her first husband, Carl Anthony. Mrs. Shirley is said to be 19 years of age, and her mother when she died was but 35, which makes her mother but 16 years of age when the child was born. That the late Mrs. Stetson when Mrs. Anthony had a child is not disputed by Mrs. Stetson's relatives, in fact, they say that she had a daughter, but claim that the child died after living less than two years. They do not believe that Mrs. Catharine Shirley can be the child of Mrs. Stetson, who was then Mrs. Anthony, and they think that Mrs. Shirley's claim cannot be established. Judge McKim, in the probate court, has fixed Wednesday, July 15, as the day on which he would hear the contestants in the John Stetson will case.

DINNER TO CZAR AND CZARINA.

Brilliant Entertainment at the British Embassy in Moscow Last Night.

Moscow, June 5.—A grand dinner was given last night by Sir Nicholas O'Conor, the British ambassador, in connection with the coronation festivities. The guests of honor were the czar and czarina, who, upon arriving at the embassy, were welcomed with the Russian national hymn played by a military band. The czarina was taken into the banqueting room by the Duke of Connaught, the special representative of his mother, Queen Victoria, while the Duchess of Connaught was escorted by the czar. Fifty covers were laid. The embassy was most handsomely decorated throughout. Part of the entertainment consisted of singing by forty members of the company of the Imperial theatre.

EUREKA CLUB GIVES UP.

No Effort Will Be Made To Bring Maher and Slavin Together To-night.

New York, June 5.—The Eureka Athletic club has decided to withdraw the application for an injunction restraining Sheriff Doht from interfering with the boxing contest which was to have been held at the club to-night. They do this because Sheriff Doht has issued a declaration in which he states that he will prevent the contest despite any action that the club may take, even if he has to call upon the state militia to enforce his authority.

Sherman Statue Design.

Washington, June 5.—Dissatisfaction with the design selected for the Sherman statue to be erected opposite the treasury continues to grow. The Society of Washington Artists is strenuously supporting the protest made against the Rohl-Smith design by the National Association of American Sculptors. The award is antagonized on the ground that it is realistic rather than artistic, and that its designer is a foreigner.

Powder Mill Blown to Atoms.

St. Hilaire, Que., June 5.—The explosion at the Milton Powder works here yesterday afternoon destroyed what is known as the Old Powder mill, which was blown to atoms. Nobody was killed or hurt, as all of the employes were fortunately absent at the time.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? shake it off

The general belief among doctors is that consumption itself is very rarely inherited. But the belief is becoming stronger that the tendency to consumption is very generally transmitted from parent to child. If there has been consumption in the family, each member should take special care to prepare the system against it. Live out doors; keep the body well nourished; and treat the first indication of failing health.

Scott's Emulsion

AUSTIN CORBIN DEAD

Thrown from His Carriage at His Summer Home at Newport, N. H.

THE COACHMAN WAS ALSO KILLED

Other Members of the Fishing Party Seriously Injured—Corbin Edgell's Leg Broken and Dr. Kunzier Receives a Fracture of the Arm.

Newport, N. H., June 5.—Austin Corbin died last night as a result of injuries received by being thrown from his carriage late in the afternoon. With his nephew, Corbin Edgell, Dr. Paul Kunzier and coachman John Stokes, Mr. Corbin started on a fishing trip at 3 o'clock. On going out of the yard at the farm house the horses shied, tipping over the open carriage, throwing the occupants down an enbankment about eight feet against a stone wall. The family saw the accident from the piazza and hurried to their assistance with the farm help. They found Mr. Corbin conscious but terribly wounded. His nephew and the doctor were also conscious. The coachman was unconscious and apparently hurt the worst of all. They were carried to the house and Drs. Cain and Stickney telephoned for at the village and Drs. Tolles and Upham from Claremont. Mr. Corbin's injuries were at once seen to be very serious—a compound fracture of the right leg above and below the knee, which the doctors at once declared would necessitate amputation above the knee, a fearful scalp wound over four inches long on the forehead, cut through to the skull; one on the right side of the head three inches long and the lip and chin cut badly. There was no indication of internal injury, but he soon became unconscious and passed away at eight minutes to 10 o'clock.

Coachman Also Killed.

Dr. Kunzier was thrown over the wall and sustained a broken arm and sprained ankle, and Corbin Edgell had his leg twice broken between the knee and ankle. John Stokes' right leg was broken between the knee and ankle, and sustained a fractured skull. Stokes died from his injuries about 5 o'clock without regaining consciousness. Dr. Bull of New York and a specialist from Boston were telegraphed for and came on a special train, but although everything was done that possibly could be done to alleviate Mr. Corbin's suffering he died before the specialists arrived. Mrs. Corbin and daughters, Mrs. Edgell and Miss Annie, bear up bravely under the terrible strain. The cause of the horses shying is said to have been from the fact that the coachman was driving them for the first time without blinders.

CAMPOS-BARRERO TROUBLE.

Spanish Officials and Queen Regent Endeavoring To Prevent a Duel.

Madrid, June 5.—Every effort is being made to prevent a duel being fought by Campos and Barrero. General Azcarraga, minister of war, has summoned both Marshal Campos and Gen. Barrero to visit him at the war ministry, his intention being to procure promises from them that they will not fight. The queen regent is also seeking to pacify the wouldbe-duelists, and has requested their attendance at the palace to-day.

Mrs. Cleveland at Gray Gables.

Buzzards Bay, Mass., June 5.—Mrs. Cleveland, Ruth, Esther and Marion Cleveland, with nurse and maid, arrived at Gray Gables soon after 9 o'clock last evening. The train, composed of two cars, was run as a special from Providence. Mrs. Olney and her daughter, Mrs. Minot, who accompanied Mrs. Cleveland, remained on the train and were taken to Falmouth, where they will spend the summer.

Judge John W. Webster Dead.

New York, June 5.—Judge John W. Webster of Waterbury, Conn., died in St. Luke's hospital in this city last evening from bladder trouble. The judge has been a sufferer from the disease for several years past. The body was sent to his late home in Waterbury. Judge Webster was 80 years old, and for many years a practitioner at the Connecticut bar.

Massowah, June 5.—The trial of Gen. Baratieri, lately commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in Erythrea, who is charged with being responsible for the disaster that befell the Italian army at Adowa, will begin at Asmara to-day. Six generals will comprise the court.

DRAWING TO AN END

Congressmen Look for Adjournment To-morrow or Monday.

ALL THE IMPORTANT BILLS PASSED

Some Awkward Questions Yet To Be Acted Upon, But They Have Been Reduced to a Minimum by Long Discussion.

Washington, June 5.—The senate today has under consideration as unfinished business the motion made by Mr. Gear, rep., Ia., to have the Pacific refunding bill set down for consideration on the eighth legislative day of the next session. The unexpected progress made in the senate yesterday in the adoption of the conference reports on the naval, Indian and District of Columbia appropriation bills has had the effect of raising hope of an early adjournment. There are still some awkward questions to deal with in conference, but they have been reduced to a minimum, and as all of them have been discussed at length it is now hoped by the sanguine that comparatively little more time will be spent upon them. It is still believed by some that adjournment will occur either Saturday or Monday. In connection with the Indian bill, the sectarian school question and the question of attorneys' fees in connection with the settlement of the claims of Cherokee "old settlers" are still open, as are the questions of aid to the District charities on the District of Columbia bill, of the number of battleships and the price of armor-plate on the naval bill, of the consolidation of postoffices on the postoffice bill, and of public buildings, public land surveys and hospitals in the District of Columbia on the sundry civil bill. There are other questions, but those indicated are the most important. The filled cheese bill, having been passed yesterday without amendment, now only awaits the signature of the president to become a law. A bill for the scientific investigation of the fur seal has been passed.

The house has passed the following bills: To pension Mrs. Mary C. Gregg, widow of Major-Gen. John Irwin Gregg, at $50 a month; to pension Mrs. William Loring Spencer, widow of ex-senator and Brig.-Gen. George E. Spencer of Alabama, at $50 a month; authorizing the restoration of John M. Quackenbush to his rank and place as commander of the navy and his retirement by the president.

Plainfielders will have to celebrate the glorious Fourth away from home.

The Evening Star is the name of a new paper that will twinkle for the Democracy in Elizabeth in a short time.

A woman has taken out naturalization papers in Somerset county. She has the progressive spirit.

W. D. Howells says that the summer girl, as she used to be, is almost extinct. "She may still have a good time," he says, "but I do not see how, if having a good time comes from a triumphant association with the summer man. It seems to me that her relations to him are such as might well mortify not only her vanity, but her just pride. I am sorry to say that if he is still pursuing her, the race has gone on so long in a circle that she has the effect of pursuing him." Mr. Howells is not sorry that this butterfly is disappearing. She was a type that we ought not to wish to have perpetuated. However we may agree with or dissent from the novelist's view, the fact remains that even if the "summer girl" is gone or going, the "girl in summer" is still a glorious reality. And long may she wave.—Evening Sun.

High School Notes.

The regular weekly drill was held yesterday morning at 9 o'clock, and took the place of the third recitation of the morning. The organized squad was under the command of First Lieutenant George P. Smith, during the first half of the drilling period, and then Capt. George Edwards took command. The drilling of this squad is exceedingly good, and shows the careful training of Captain Edwards. He has given much time to the company and his services are highly appreciated by every member of the company.

The young ladies' squad is doing good work and deserves much credit. The awkward squad, composed of all the members of the school not in uniform, was under the command of Lyman R. Allen.

Captain Volney F. Green, who has been out of school for several weeks, and who had slightly recovered from his severe illness, is suffering from a relapse and is again confined to his bed. The sympathy of every member of the High School is extended to him in his illness.

An Inquisitive Taxpayer.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—As a taxpayer I am not satisfied with the manner in which the Street Railway Company treat our macadamized streets. Coarse stones are put in on each side of the tracks and dirt thrown over them. The result is not a macadam, but a miserable, ram shackly, country dirt road. Are the city authorities satisfied? Does it come up to the charter? I wish to know. Observer.

MISSIONARY OFFICERS ELECTED.

Congregational Church Workers Select Their Leaders.

The annual meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Congregational church was held in the church parlors yesterday afternoon. The officers reported and showed the society to be in excellent condition. The money raised during the year, over $142, is the greatest amount ever raised by the society. The question of uniting with the Ladies's Aid Society was discussed and the general sentiment was that better and more efficient work could be done by one large society than by two smaller and weaker ones. The members of the Ladies' Aid Society will be invited to meet with the Missionary Society some time in the near future and discuss the question together.

The annual election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President. Mrs. C. L. Goodrich; vice-presidents. Mrs. Souther and Miss F. F. Clarke; secretary, Mrs. M. E. Dwight; treasurer, Mrs. George W. Rockfellow.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MACMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., June 3d, 1896.

An ordinance to amend an ordinance, entitled "An ordinance to create and define the duties of a Board of Police and a police force," approved February 28th, 1882, and amended April 7th, 1884.

The inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That Section 2 of the ordinance to which this is an amendment be amended so as to read as follows:

Sec. 2. The Board of Police may hold such meetings at such times and places as they may determine and appoint, and shall have full authority and control over the city jail and other buildings used for police purposes, and over the entire police force, subject, however, to the ultimate control of the Common Council. The said Board of Police shall have power to hear and determine complaints against policemen charging misconduct or disobedience of any of the rules and regulations established or which may be established for the police force or police department, and in case of conviction, the said Board of Police may order deduction from the pay of the policeman so convicted, not exceeding five dollars for each offense and the deduction so ordered shall be made from the next installment of salary to fall due to such policeman.

Sec. 3. That Section 3 of said ordinance be amended by adding thereto the following:

The said police force shall rank as follows—Captain, Sergeant, Roundsmen, Patrolmen, Doorman, and the duties of the several members and officers of said police force shall be those prescribed by the laws of the State, the ordinances of the city, and the rules and regulations that may from time to time be prescribed and established by resolution of the Common Council for the better government and discipline of the police department.

Sec. 4. That Section 4 of said ordinance be amended by striking out the word "Mayor" where it first occurs in that section, and substituting in the place thereof the words "said Board of Police."

Sec. 5. That there be added to said ordinance the following section, viz:

Sec. 8. In case any complaint shall be preferred against any policeman, charging him with incapacity, mis-conduct, non-residence or disobedience of the just rules and regulations established or which may be established for the police force or police department of said city, and the Board of Police shall be of opinion that said charges, if proved, ought to be followed by suspension without pay or removal from office of said policeman, said Board of Police shall thereupon file said complaint or a more formal complaint to be drafted by the Counsel to the Corporation, if said Board shall so direct, in the office of the office of the City Clerk either before or after hearing before the said Board of Police, as said Board of Police may elect, and refer the proceedings thereon to the Common Council. The Common Council in either case upon receiving the complaint shall cause not less than three day's notice to be given to the person charged, of the time and place, when and where the Common Council will proceed to publicly examine into said charges and to afford the person so charged a fair trial upon said charges and every reasonable opportunity to make his defense if he has or chooses to make any. At the time and place fixed for such public examination and trial, or at such time or times to which the same shall be adjourned, the said public examination and trial shall be had before the Common Council by the oral examination of such witnesses pro and con as may be offered in accordance with the statute in such case made and provided, and in case as the result of trial the person so charged shall be found guilty, the Common Council may order deduction of pay, reduction of rank or suspension or removal from office. It shall be discretionary with the Common Council whether to permit the defense to be conducted by counsel.

Sec. 4. That all ordinances and parts of ordinances, so far as they are inconsistent herewith, are hereby repealed.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Thing of Beauty and Joy Forever.

The condition of the road-bed on West Front street, between Clinton and Rock avenues, is now in fine shape, through the efforts of Street Commissioner Meeker and his men. It has long been a blot on Plainfield's fair name for good roods, but now is a joy to ride over.

Miss Gertrude Hastings, of Boston, spent yesterday and today with Mrs. Wm. T. Pelletier, of LaGrande avenue.

A Quiet Home Wedding.

A quiet home wedding took place last evening at 7:45, when Miss Katy Ludy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ludy, of De Kalb avenue, and Charles Gould, a clerk in L. A. Hummer's Park avenue market, were united in marriage at the home of the bride by Rev. Charles E. Herring. Miss Anna Baker, of Plainfield, was bridemaid, and Edward Gould, of Roselle, brother of the groom, was best man. Only the parents of the bride and groom were present and an informal reception followed the ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Gould went to their newly furnished home at 306 Central avenue. They received many very nice presents from their friends and relatives.

Better Roads Proposed.

Having spent thousands of dollars in macacamizing the back road from Stelton to Dunellen, paralleling the Metuchen-Plainfield road the Board of Freeholders now proposes at last to build the road from Metuchen to Plainfield.

This is an important road and the link connecting two great systems. It is a pity that the money wasted on the Stelton road could not have been applied to improving some such traveled highway. The building of the Perth Amboy stone road has been delayed for years and the South River-South Amboy road, another important thoroughfare, it seems will never be improved.—New Brunswick Times.

A Home Robbed.

The home of E. H. Taylor, at Oakland, was robbed of several hundred dollars' worth of silverware some time Wednesday night. The lower floor of the house was ransacked and everything of value that was not too bulky was taken. Some time this week the home of the Rev Mr. Green, of the Presbyterian church, was entered by thieves, who carried away clothing and valuable bric-a-brac. Mr. Green returned from a week's visit out of town yesterday and discovered the robbery.

HOLT WILL SURPRISE

Efforts To Prove That Luke Devlin Forged the Document.

HE WAS A WAR DEPARTMENT CLERK

An Expert Penman, Who Has Often Signed Judge Holt's Name To Papers Which the Latter Had Failed To Endorse by Oversight.

Washington, June 5.—Testimony was adduced in the Holt will case yesterday indicating an effort to prove that Luke Devlin, a clerk in the war department, who is named as executor in the partially burned will which so mysteriously appeared in the register's office, forged the document. This line of evidence, though anticipated for some time by those who have closely followed the remarkable contest in the courts, caused quite a sensation by its development during the examination of a man named Fought, who was Judge Advocate Gen. Holt's messenger from 1869 to 1876. He gave instances to show that Devlin's relations with Judge Holt were the reverse of intimate, and that very stormy times between them were of common occurrence. Devlin, however, was an expert penman at the time, and when, by oversight in signing the numerous papers laid before him, Judge Holt would omit any, Devlin, after office hours, with the full knowledge of other employes, would cleverly imitate the judge's signature upon such papers as were of a routine character. These signatures were pronounced about as good as the judge himself could have made. This practice was habitual in the office. Devlin was also a collector of autographs, cutting them frequently from official documents, and he was an expert in imitating various chirographies. The witness examined the alleged will and declared that it was not in Judge Holt's hand nor had it been signed by him. The city editor of one local paper and the publisher of another testified that Devlin had brought them typewritten copies of the alleged will the day it apparently dropped from the clouds and before its discovery was made public, and that he was very nervous.

TO EVADE SUNDAY CLOSING.

Savin Rock Managers May Observe Saturday Under the Hebrew Law.

New Haven, Conn., June 5.—Proprietors of places of amusement at Savin Rock threaten to adopt a novel plan if pushed too hard by the law and order people, who are trying to break up Sunday amusements and liquor selling. These proprietors say they will close Saturday and keep open on Sunday. This means that they will claim that they are Hebrews, and that if they religiously close their places on Saturday they are entitled by law to keep open on Sunday. This law is now on the statute books and in force, it is claimed, but whether a man known to be not of the Jewish faith can claim it applies to him is a question that the courts may be called upon to decide.

England's Tennis Crack Defeated.

Ridgewood, N. J., June 4.—J. B. Paret, the southern tennis champion, added another victory to his credit in the Ridgewood tennis tournament yesterday afternoon by defeating W. M Cranston, the English crack, two sets to one. Cranston has recently come to this country from the Queen's Tennis club, England. He expects to compete in all the prominent American tourneys, and will play at the national championship meeting at Newport in August.

New York Coffee Exchange for Gold.

New York, June 5.—The coffee exchange has fallen in line for the gold standard, passing the following resolution, unanimously: Resolved, that the prosperity of our country and its credit at home and abroad can only be placed upon a sound and permanent basis by the adoption of a settled monetary system, the maintenance of the present gold standard, and the prohibition of the free coinage of silver.

Beach, formerly of Cambridge, Mass., now of Minneapolis; Rev. W. G. Puddeford of South Framingham, and Rev. A. F. Beard, D. D., of New York, secretary of the American Mission association. Rev. S. V. S. Fisher spoke on work among the Scandinavians.

Midgets Wed at Niagara Falls.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 5.—A unique wedding occurred here Wednesday night when two dwarfs, M. K. Comfort of Oswego, N. Y., and Eva B. White of Monroe, Mich., met here by appointment and were married. Both are under four feet and have known each other for twenty years. Mr. Comfort is 52 and his wife 44 years of age.

$1,000 for Violating Alien Labor Law.

Boston, June 5.—Charles F. Symonds of Salem was found guilty in the United States circuit court yesterday for violating the alien contract labor law, by causing to be brought to this country an English blacksmith and giving him employment, and was fined $1,000. Mr. Symonds is a prominent citizen of Salem.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

"Don't worry," said I. "Mrs. Clark will be only too happy to take your place to-night. Besides, it is probably just as well that Mrs. Loring should not have an immediate opportunity to overwhelm you with questions. That would be bad for both of you. I can't have you sacrificed, even on her altar."

"'Sacrificed?'" she cried. "Dr. Morris, you don't realize what my aunt is to me. She is the best, the kindest woman I have ever known. She has treated me as a daughter—has loved me more than many a daughter is loved. A sacrifice! There is nothing I would not gladly do for her."

"I believe you. And my belief is one of the strongest reasons for advising you not to see her to-night. Please remember the promise you gave me."

She halted for an instant, as if in protest that the pledge had been exacted when she did not fully understand its meaning, but she did not offer to turn back. As we strolled on, I gradually drew her into talk, and after a little she seemed to have freed herself from the spell which had been upon her. At the outskirts of the village we turned to the right, avoiding the main streets, walked slowly toward the bank of the inlet, up which small coasters occasionally sailed from the bay. From one of the old wooden piers we could make out the shape of a yawl gliding seaward on the ebbing tide. The voices of two men on board the boat came to our ears over the black water, in which glistened the pin-point reflections of the stars.

"I envy those men drifting along so easily," said the girl. "The water always has a fascination for me. Perhaps I would risk even the darkness if we could change places with them."

"No doubt we could get another boat," I suggested.

"I fear it is too late," she answered, with a faint laugh, the first I had heard from her since I watched her start on the ride to Bassettville.

"Confound the clock!" I cried. "It is responsible for half our disappointments."

"Nevertheless, we get on very poorly without it."

"All prejudice, and inherited prejudice at that."

"Did you ever try to do without one?"

"More than try—I've had to," said I, with vivid recollection of occasions on which my timepieces, for sufficient reasons, had been committed to another's keeping.

"Sacrificed?" she cried.

"And were you any happier?"

"At the time? No. But circumstances prevented my giving the possibilities of clockless bliss a fair trial. Hunger, you may have heard, bars the way to minor enjoyments."

"But at least such troubles are all behind you," she said. "I have often thought that a man should be better and stronger for being able to look back upon privations endured and obstacles surmounted."

"That is good doctrine," said I; "but practically—well, I shouldn't care to double my advantages of experience."

"Let us trust there will be no need for you to do so," she said. "But it is really getting late. Shall we not turn back?"

"Miss Gray," said I, breaking one of the pauses in our walk as we walked from the village, "if you are so fond of the water, and if your aunt doesn't object, why shouldn't we have a boat? It could be kept in one of the creeks near the house."

"Capital!" she cried. "How odd that we shouldn't have thought of it before! I should be delighted."

"And your aunt?"

"She will enjoy it as much as I."

"Then you shall have a boat at once," I promised. "I'll arrange for one to-morrow. A man named Johnson has just the little craft to please you, I believe, and I'll have it brought around for inspection."

"You are very good," said she; "but I'll not attempt to thank you in advance."

"Don't try. If you are satisfied with the boat, I shall be more than repaid for any trouble in getting it."

XVI.

Early the following morning, after satisfying myself that Jones was getting on as well as we had any ground to hope he would, and that he would be carefully looked after by the nurses who had volunteered for the service, I set out for the house on the knoll. It was my plan to seek Johnson after my regular call upon Lamar, but, fate being auspicious, I was saved the trouble, for the fisherman was at work about his employer's premises. He was very willing to let the boat, which, he said, was well adapted for a woman's use, being light and handy, easily rowed, and equipped with a small triangular sail, available in light winds and on smooth water. He would bring it that afternoon to the head of one of the inlets.

"You're on shore most of the time, aren't you?" I asked, when this arrangement had been made.

"Ay, ay, sir," he answered.

"Tired of salt water?"

"No, sir; but a bed that don't pitch and roll is comfortable enough for me, when I've a chance to lie in it."

"What are you doing these days?"

"I'm none too idle," he answered, with a quick glance at me.

"Find him sociable?" I nodded toward the house.

He seemed to be about to speak, but after a look about him he changed his intention, and without a word turned again to the task which my coming had interrupted. Smiling at his caution, I climbed the slope to the door, and entered. Lamar, who was reading, laid down his book—it was his well-worn Cicero's Letters—and bade me good-morning. He seemed to be rather more gracious in mood than usual.

"Well," said I, "that fellow Jones' curiosity is not likely to cause you any annoyance for some time to come. We amputated his right leg last night."

"I supposed it would be necessary," he answered, composedly.

"What? 'Supposed it would be necessary?' What did you know of it?"

"I judged his hurt most serious."

"How did you hear of it?"

"I saw it."

"You saw him run over?"

"Yes."

"You knew that he was lying there helpless for hours?"

"It is true."

"And you did not attempt to relieve him, to go to his assistance?"

"The inference is correct."

His tone was as unconcerned as ever, his speech as deliberate as if he were discussing the most trivial of matters. In spite of my acquaintance with him, I was thunderstruck by this fresh evidence of his callousness. He enjoyed my surprise, I think, as a singer may enjoy the applause of a long hostile critic. It was a tribute of the sort he understood and appreciated. As coolly as if he had been giving directions for a day's errand-going in Trent, he told the story of the accident. Jones, he said, on his way home from the beach tried a short cut which ran near the knoll. Leaving his team in the little hollow where Dorothy Gray afterward found him, he cautiously approached the hummock and climbed to its summit. Turning a corner of the house, he came face to face with Lamar. What talk passed between the two I never learned, but the intruder departed in such haste that his foot slipped on the slope, and he fell. From the way he limped on arising, Lamar believed that his ankle was sprained, but he contrived at last to reach his horses. He had picked up the lines, and was preparing to climb to the wagon-seat, when his injured ankle gave way, and he fell. At the same moment the horses started. The fore wheel of the loaded vehicle passed over his leg, and before he could get it out of the way—if, indeed, power to move it remained—the hind wheel had completed the work the other had begun. Lamar from an upper window of the house watched what was happening, and, so far as I could determine from his account of it, spent most of his time until the girl appeared gloating over the sight of the helpless man stretched out on the ground at the bottom of the depression. When Dorothy hurried to his house for assistance, he sat within, listening unmoved to her knocks upon his door and her cries for help. Moreover, he prevented old Martha from responding to the summons, when sounds of it penetrated even her dulled hearing. These things he related as calmly as if they had occurred at the other end of the earth, as shamelessly as if there were no sense of pity in him. What my opinion of his conduct might be apparently concerned him not in the least. He sat there telling the tale of his heartlessness, with the cold, dispassionate directness of a man who is his own judge, and who holds himself blameless and beyond the need of apology.

"He will survive, you say?" he asked, in the same level tone of indifference he had maintained throughout.

"We hope that he will," I answered, striving to keep all trace of feeling out of my voice.

"The odds?"

"Last night they were against him; to-day they are in his favor."

"Ah! He rallies?"

"He has the best of constitutions. In that lies his hope. I may as well tell you that in his incoherent talk last night I made out the word 'mistaken.' It was repeated several times. Did it have any bearing on his visit here?"

Lamar's face bore the grim smile which, rare as it was, was the limit of his demonstrations of emotion

"It had a bearing," he said. "The man regarded me as a suspect He thought me a criminal of this country, in hiding. When we met, he perceived his mistake. That is all."

"And you have no fears that he may cause you trouble?"

"None," he answered. And he picked up his book, to warn me that our discussion had reached its close.

I left him as gladly as one leaves a room the air of which is heavy with poisonous vapors. I was oppressed by him, by his cruelty, by his utter disregard of the sufferings of another. Often had I been on the verge of hatred for him; now I realized that the line had been crossed, that the feeling that I was bound to obey his nod, to come and go at his command, would be more odious than ever. Why had I not the courage to denounce him to his face and to quit his services then and there? Why had I listened cowed and unprotesting? Why, even now, did I not turn back to ease my conscience like an honest man and to cast off the yoke which galled me? In my own heart the answer was only too clear. By degrees Lamar had gained an ascendency over me, until now, even as I cursed him, I recoiled at the very thought of bearding him, of daring to pit myself against his relentless will. Moreover, I realized that within the last few months a fresh reason for caution had sprung into existence. They say love makes men brave; I know it sometimes makes them cowards.

When I approached the farmhouse, still bitterly considering the difficulties which seemed to hedge me about, Mrs. Weston appeared in the doorway.

"I've got a message for you," she called out. "Your bird's flown."

"What? Not Jones? He can't be moved," I cried.

"No, he's here fast enough. Dr. Banks has called, and says he's doin' well; no more fever than to be looked for. But he's got something to do with my news."

"What in the world is it, then?"

"Mis' Loring has gone chasin' off to Trent, takin' Miss Gray with her for luck."

"Gone to Trent?" I repeated. 'How is that?"

"Well, she got up this mornin', an' dropped in to see Jones. Somebody told her that his pillows was kinder hot for him. Then there was nothin' but she must go to Trent right off and buy him one of them kind that's got only air in 'em. An' so, off she goes, an' Miss Gray goes too. They'll be home in time for supper. Johnny druv 'em to Bassettville in the carryall, and he'll wait to bring 'em home."

"Oh, the outing will do Mrs. Loring no harm," said I, moving toward the office.

"But that ain't the message," said Mrs. Weston. "That's saved for the last, like a thanksgivin' mince-pie. It's from Miss Gray, and it's about a boat."

"Yes. She was to look at one this afternoon."

"Well, bein' as she's in Trent, she can't keep the appointment. So she asked me to tell you to hire the boat anyhow; if it suited you, it'd suit her."

Thus it happened that when Johnson navigated his craft to the head of the inlet I was prepared to bind the bargain with him.

"It may be," I told him, "that the ladies would safer if they had a man with them when they ventured out on the bay. In that case, could you help them out?"

"I guess I could," said he, after a moment's reflection. "Most generally I'm off watch the best part of the day."

"Off watch" set me to thinking, though I very well knew to what he referred.

"By the way, Johnson," said I, with an effort at carelessness, "I understand you look out for Mr. Lamar's mail."

"Well, you might say so," he answered, cautiously.

"I imagine his correspondence is light," said I, following up the advantage scored by the chance shot.

He nodded assent.

"Writes to New York, as a rule," I suggested.

"That's about it."

"But his answers are slow in coming."

"Two months, sometimes," said Johnson. "Look here, Doc," he added, quickly, "I know you're thick with him, or I wouldn't have said that much. It don't go no further, do it?"

"I give you my word on that," said I, adding, rather disingenuously, "I wouldn't have asked you anything you were not free to tell me."

"That's what I thought," he said, with a look of relief on his honest face. "Gab's a poor trade,—leastways, for a man."

"Right you are," said I, and with this bit of wisdom we dropped the subject. However, I had learned enough for a basis for a little calculation. Lamar was communicating with friends at home, through the kindly offices of somebody in New York. His correspondents forwarded their replies through the same channel of the New-Yorker and the fisherman. No doubt they sent him information bearing on the energy with which his enemies were pursuing him. Very possibly they had means of their own for getting an inkling of their adversaries' doings. It could be set down as certain that they furnished the money which Lamar spent, on occasion, with a liberal hand. After all, though, this theorizing was groping in the dark. It furnished no clew to the man's mystery; it assuredly gave me no cause to hate him the less or to trust in the stability of my tenure of office in his service. I merely had proof now, as I suspected, that he did not depend entirely upon me in any of his dealings with the rest of the world. He evidently believed in checks and safeguards; and through Johnson he had secured a check upon me

SPORTS

FRIDAY, June 5—Sun rises 4:29 a. m., sets 7:27 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:27 p. m. and 3:29 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Stella Swain, of Craig place, has a new wheel.

Geo. VanNest, of Dunellen, has purchased a Hunter wheel of Lister, the North avenue cycle dealer.

Edward F. Randolph, of West Eighth street, is still limping from the effects of a header from his bicycle Tuesday night.

Eaton and Mosher, of the Jersey Wheel Company's team had their photos taken yesterday on their wheels. They left last night for Fredonia, N. Y., where they have entered for the race meet.

Walter Manning, of West Seventh street, is having a wheel built for himself after his own design. The most remarkable thing about the wheel will be the sprockets. There will be fourteen teeth on the rear sprocket and forty on the front, making the gear eighty.

Many wheelmen carry their lamps on the lower part of the front fork, which is bad practice. In case of a fall a lamp on the hub is almost certain to be broken, and it is always in the way. The old-fashioned way of carrying the light just below the handle-bars answers all purposes.

Gus Burgland arranged another little training trial at the Crescent Oval Wednesday with six starters. H. B. Mosher started from scratch and the other riders were Chas. Carpenter, 30 yards; J. H. Lake, 50 yards; Geo. B. Cobb, Jr., 70 years; Joe Donoghue, 90 yards; Lindley Hillman, 125 yards. The last three men bunched and hung together until the last. Hillman finished first, Cobb second and Donoghue third. The time was 2:20.

Many towns are following the example set in Plainfield. The police force of Summit is to be mounted on bicycles. It is thought that they will be able to do much more efficient work on their long posts on wheels. At the next meeting of the Board of Trustees of South Orange it is expected that a proposition will also be made to have some of the village police do duty on bicycles. As in the case of Summit, some of the posts are very long, and the effectiveness and efficiency of the men will be more than doubled by having them ride over those posts. As none of the policemen ride wheels at present, it would be necessary for those selected to ride before being assigned to wheel duty.

Since the Decoration Day race meet of the Crescent Wheelmen, those who have cared to ride on the track have been greatly bothered by a host of small boys that ride about without any special purpose, making it very dangerous for those that ride on the track. Heretofore, no accident has resulted, but yesterday J. V. Rittenhouse had his wheel wrecked and himself badly cut and bruised through the carelessness of a young lad named Charles Moore. Moore was riding a heavy lady's wheel around the track on the inside, when Rittenhouse came down the homestretch. Before he reached Moore the latter decided to give him the inside and rode right across the track in front of Rittenhouse. A collision followed and Rittenhouse was thrown quite a distance by the shock. Neither Moore nor his wheel were injured.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

The principal event among the New Jersey scholastic athletes is, of course, the annual games of the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association which are to be held tomorrow afternoon at the grounds of the New Jersey A. C. at Bergen Point. At this meet it will be decided who will represent New Jersey at the national interscholastic games. The Plainfield High School will be represented at the meet both on the track and in the grand stand. The other schools included in the association are Pingry's School of Elizabeth, the Montclair High School, Newark Academy, and Stevens "Prep" School, of Hoboken. Plainfield will not be in it in the dashes and runs; in the bicycle races, however, Carroll Runyon and Lindly Hillman, will probably make things lively. Runyon may be looked upon to get a place in the short bicycle dash while Hillman will do better in the longer races. George P. Smith is expected to win the pole vault while Wilbur F. Cornwell, who is now vaulting over nine feet, may take second for Plainfield. If Stevens' crack man is not in condition, Smith may take first in putting the shot also but will probably be second. In the hammer throwing contest, Smith and Carroll Runyon will represent Plainfield. Walter Serrell is supposed to hustle his competitors in the running broad jump, while Raymond Carroll has an excellent show for first in the high jump. Garfield Pike and Donald Stuart are entered in the junior 100 yard dash.

WITH ROD AND GUN

Charles Maltby spent yesterday angling for the finny tribe at Bound Brook and reports a good catch.

Sam Neal, of West Front street, spent Wednesday angling at New Market and returned with a large catch.

Fishermen should remember that it is a violation of the law to have more than three set lines in a stream at one time, which is punishable by a fine of $20.

Thomas Fay and George Fisher, of this city, spent Tuesday angling at New Market, and during the day had an experience which does not befall every fisherman. Both were watching their lines, and both jumped when they saw they had a bite. When they had pulled their lines nearby they thought they had become entangled but still the pulling on the other end of the lines continued, showing there was some sort of a fish on it. They finally landed the fish, and then both gave vent to exclamations of surprise when they found that a six pound bass had swallowed both hooks. They are still wondering who shall take the fish. Beside the greedy bass, Fay caught a number of bass, three of which weighed six pounds. Fisher also caught a generous share.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

C. C. Brower, the well-known driver, returned Wednesday from Fleetwood, where he started several horses in the races there.

Misfortunes and Crime.

"Ah! that was a sad case."

"What?"

"Why, poor Bilkins got in a tight place and defaulted for nearly $200,000. Very sad, very sad. I wonder if they won't be able to compromise the case in some way."

"By the way, what was done with that fellow who stole a bucket of coal from your woodshed?"

"Oh! the infernal thief went to the penitentiary. I prosecuted the case right up to the end. There should be no sympathy with thieves." — Chicago Post.

Not to Be Recognized.

Some one nudged the "new woman" who was presiding.

"What is it?" asked the latter.

"Why don't you recognize that little woman in the front row?"

"I haven't the honor of her acquaintance, and I have yet to see the book on etiquette that makes it even permissible to recognize one to whom you have not been introduced."

And the "new woman" looked at her critic as if she felt that she had completely crushed her.—Chicago Evening Post.

May—Well, I noticed her going at a pretty lively pace the other day, but I can assure her that she will have to walk faster than that if she hopes to overtake her youth.—Bay City Chat.

The Point of Similarity.

"That poem of yours," remarked the flippant person, "reminds me of 'Spenser's Faery Queen.'"

"But," said the aspiring writer, "you told me yesterday that you had never read the 'Faery Queen.'"

"Yes. That's why your poem reminds me of it."—Washington Star.

An Eye to Business.

Papa—So Maud's new admirer is not engaged in any kind of business?

Mamma—No, and his father was not. I believe their money came from the grandfather.

Papa—H'm! I wonder if I could work off any of my old mining stocks on the young fellow.—Town Topics.

And a statue when he's dead."

SIR WALTER'S HANDICAP.

Believed That Fully $250,000 Changed Hands on the Result of the Race.

Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., June 5.—It is estimated that $250,000 at the lowest calculation changed hands as the result yesterday of the Brooklyn handicap, won by Sir Walter here in the presence of 15,000 persons. Fred Taral, Sir Walter's jockey, can be given all the credit for the victory, as he literally carried his mount along for the last furlong. Tho horse was apparently beaten at that distance from home, but Taral's persistency and Sir Walter's gameness took the money for his backers. Clifford, the favorite, owes his defeat to the fact thas he was bothered at the head of the stretch by Nanki Pooh and Lake Shore when he was making his run. Clifford was in a bad position all the way, Clayton, his jockey, being unable to get him along. He started to ride him on the backstretch and never stopped till he reached the judges. Coming down the stretch he had plenty to spare and easily beat St. Maxim, but the delay occasioned by being bothered prevented him from overcoming the slight lead held by Sir Walter, who defeated him by a short head, in 2:08¼. The odds offered just before the race were as follows: Sir Walter, 7 to 1; Clifford, even money; St. Maxim, 3 to 1.

SHE IS A SPEEDY CRAFT.

Emperor William's Yacht Meteor Possibly the Best Big Yacht Afloat.

London, June 5.—Judging from the performance yesterday of Emperor William's new cutter Meteor, when she won the race for big yachts in the Royal London Yacht club regatta, it is believed that she is the most speedy big cutter in light wind that has ever been constructed in Great Britain, and her designer, G. L. Watson, is naturally proud of the craft. Some yachtsmen believe she will prove herself a dangerous rival to any craft afloat even in a big blow. She is, of course, not yet perfectly tuned to racing pitch, and she has not yet "found herself," but from every indication she is a good one and a considerable improvement on Valkyrie III., the last defeated English contestant for the America's Cup, which was also designed by Mr. Watson and built by the Hendersons.

YALE'S 'VARSITY CREW.

To Be Given a Big Ovation To-night on Their Departure for England.

New Haven, Conn., June 5.—The Yale 'varsity crew is busy this morning preparing for the trip to England. The shells and oars were packed on board a new York steamer last night and will to-day be shipped on board the City of Berlin, on which the crew sails to-morrow at 11 o'clock. The crew will be given a royal ovation on their departure tonight. A brass band has been hired and the crew will be taken to the depot on top of a tally-ho, parading the principal streets, accompanied by red fire and rockets. All the members of the eight are in good condition.

DISPOSESS WARRANT ISSUED.

Abbey, Schoeffel and Grau and Undertenants Must Vacate the Abbey Theatre.

New York, June 5.—Justice D. F. Martin has granted a dispossess warrant compelling the firm of Abbey, Schoeffel & Grau and quite a number of undertenants to vacate the Abbey theatre building at Broadway and Thirty-eighth street. The petitioners are the landlords, Robert and Ogden Goelet, and the ground on which the warrant was asked was the non-payment of rent, amounting to $40,666.67, taxes $1,563.32 and water taxes $664.70. The legal minimum time to vacate after the service of the warrant is three days, but the marshal in this case may grant the tenants a week or more respite, at his discretion.

Sues City Treasurer for Libel.

Providence, June 5.—Franklin P. Owen, of the law firm of Page & Owen of this city, has begun suit for $5,000 against City Treasurer Granger, alleging libel in the publication of his name in a list of unpaid taxes. Mr. Owen claims to be a resident of Scituate, and objects to a personal property tax in Providence. His real estate was sold under protest to pay the personal property tax.

The Last Chance

He was a plucky young thing and loved to skylark near the buzzsaw.

"Yes," she sighed, "it might do for a last chance. There are so many others," she explained.—Town Topics.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING.

New Market Again Startled By Pistol Shots.

A WOMAN'S UNTIMELY DEATH.

Mrs. C. H. Jackson Found With Two Bullet Holes in Her Head and Life Extinct—She Was Apparently Happy When She Went to Bed, But it is Said That She and Her Husband Had Quarrels at Different Times—Coroner Investigating

New Market was again startled this morning by a fatality in which the revolver played the principal part, and by whose agency one of its most estimable residents has gone over the great divide which parts this sphere from the unknown.

The residents of Centre street who reside near the boarding house of Mrs. A. S. Titsworth were awakened out of their slumbers this morning at 4:45 o'clock by two sharp cracks of a revolver, and those who live in the house were quickly made aware that the shots were fired within the walls of the dwelling. Before echoes of the shots had died away over in the hills of Piscataway the heart beats in all that was earthly of Mrs. C. H. Jackson had ceased and her soul had passed into eternity.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, with their two children, board with Mrs. Titsworth. Mr. Jackson is a reporter on the staff of the New York Advertiser, and Mrs. Jackson is the popular teacher in the kindergarten school at Dunellen. The husband's duties keep him in New York until late in the evening, and he arrives home about 1 o'clock.

This morning he arrived home at the accustomed time and was met by his wife who joined him in partaking of a light lunch before retiring. So far as is known they chatted pleasantly together, and she retired in an apparently happy frame of mind. The couple sleep in different rooms. At 4:45 o'clock this morning the inmates of the house were astounded to hear two pistol shots sound from the room occupied by Mrs. Jackson. Jackson's room is nearby and he rushed to his wife's apartment in great haste and there found her lying on the bed with two bullet holes in her temple, and the blood gushing forth in a little stream, trickling down the side of her face and staining her night garments with its ghastly color.

The shots attracted the attention of everyone in the house, and in an instant the whole household was at her bedside. Jackson rushed to the home of Dr. Whitford and implored him to come to the bedside of his wife immediately. The doctor responded with haste, but by the time he reached the scene of the fatality, life had become extinct in the body of the unfortunate woman.

Soon the whole neighborhood was aroused and many called at the house to learn the particulars and to extend their sympathy to the afflicted relatives and assist them in any way possible. Word was sent to Coroner Brace at Perth Amboy.

Mrs. Jackson had planned to take a trip to Europe during the summer months and it was her intention to start next week. She was twenty-seven years of age. The two children are three and five years of age respectively. They were the idols of their mother's heart.

To those who were acquainted with Mrs. Jackson the act of suicide is an unaccountable one.

County Physician Brace, of Perth Amboy, arrived at 12:30 and in company with Dr. Whitford made an examination. When seen after the examination by a Press reporter, he refused to make a statement, but said he considered the case a serious one.

Work of empanelling a jury was then begun by Constable Dougherty and as the paper goes to press, the Coroner's inquest is in progress. Mrs. Jackson left a note, which is now in possession of the Coroner, but it was impossible to ascertain its contents. They will be made known later.

Those in the house besides Mr. and Mrs. Jackson and children at the time the shooting occurred were Mrs. A. S. Titsworth, Miss Maude Titsworth, Miss Ellen Palmburger and Isaac Titsworth.

All day yesterday Mrs. Jackson had been in attendance at the picnic of the Sunday-schools of Piscataway township, where she was one of the principal workers to make a happy time for the children who attended. She was an active member of the Dunellen Episcopal church and taught a class in the Sunday-school of that church. Her work in the kindergarten school brought her in close touch with the sympathies and temperament of children and she was looked upon as a general leader when any event of interest to juveniles was planned in the community. At the picnic she was here, there and everywhere all through the day attending to this and that one's wants and disposition, and in the work she seemed to be especially happy.

Ugly rumors have been afloat all day as to the cause of her death, but they are of such a nature that it has been impossible to verify them. The utmost reticency has been maintained by those who are intimately connected with the affair. It is said that Mr. and Mrs. Jackson had quarreled at times, and there is a supposition that it was while brooding over these things that she may have been prompted to take her life and thus end her days on this earth. Her disposition was such that the slightest jar in domestic affairs caused her great worry.

WAS IT A CASE OF "GET EVEN."

Charge Made in City Court That Patrolman Cash Made Unwarranted Arrest.

There was quite a controversy at the city court room this morning to find out whether ex-Policeman Nicholas Kelly, better known as "Nick," was or was not drunk on West Third street last Saturday evening. Policeman Cash, who made the arrest, was the complainant, and he charged Kelly with being drunk and disorderly and resisting arrest. He told how Kelly had been so drunk that he had rolled out of his yard into the street. Lawyer Walter L. Hetfield conducted the case for Kelly and tried to prove that the charge was all a scheme on the part of Cash to get even with Kelly for telling Sergeant Kiely and Roundsman Fredrickson that he had been drunk while on duty.

There was a crowd of witnesses on either side whose testimony was rather conflicting. Kiely and Fredrickson both testified that Kelly appeared drunk when he was locked up.

Most of the witnesses were the friends and neighbors of Kelly and their stories made the case look bad for Cash as they all claimed that Kelly was not drunk and that Cash tried to pick a quarrel with him, swearing at him and finally pulling him into the middle of the street.

The evidence was too strong in favor of Kelly and City Judge DeMeza declared Kelly not guilty and dismissed the complaint.

ART AND MUSIC.

A Pleasant Affair Given at The Chestnuts Yesterday.

The artistic and musical ability of the pupils of the Plainfield Seminary was displayed yesterday afternoon when they entertained their friends delightfully for a couple of hours The musical part of the programme was opened with a well-rendered selection by Miss Marjory Swan. Miss Mary Wadsworth showed much ability in three selections and Miss Kieb won skillful playing. John Hunn gave evidence of real talent in his execution and did great honor to his instructress. After her pupils had finished their part of the programme, Miss May, so well known in Plainfield, consented to play and charmed her audience with her brilliant execution.

Miss Kenyon then introdueed Mrs. Sprague Smith, of New York, the teacher in drawing at the Seminary. She told briefly of her plan of teaching, which is to develop the originality of her pupils, and the good results of her training were shown in the numerous drawings and designs exhibited in the music room.

Social chat and light refreshments concluded the entertainment. Mrs Dr. Murray presided at the tea table.

Satisfactory Service Assured.

Chandler W. Riker, of the Street Railway Company, told a Daily Press representative this morning that the new cars are expected on Monday. He said that the work of changing the grade was hurried because he thought that there would be no delay in receiving the cars. He assures the public through The Daily Press that the road will be completed and that service to the satisfaction of all will be given at the earliest possible moment.

Failure of W. G. Runyon.

Walter G. Runyon, a builder, doing business at Elizabeth, has made an assignment. The liabilities are $10,000 and the assets $6,000. Lewis S. Cook, of Bound Brook, is the assignee.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

HEALTH BOARD REPORT

TO BE A MONTHLY FEATURE IN THE BOROUGH COUNCIL.

Secretary Honeyman Tells of the Condition of Health Across the Brook—Many Little Matters Also Acted On.

The lobby of the Borough Council chamber was filled with distinguished citizens last evening, who were interested in the proceedings of the council. Mr. Peck was the only member absent, and after the reading of the minutes of several meetings, both regular and adjourned, the clerk's financial report was presented as follows:

	Balance
Borough	$1,124.38
Fire Department	159.89
Light	391.89
Road	258.57
	$1,934.05
Poor account deficit	87.19
Total balance	$1,846.86

There was also reported $194.20 collected from licenses, fines, etc.

W. J. Buttfield in a communication asked the council to instruct the night marshal to extend his beat to West End avenue, in view of the fact that recently some persons had caused considerable trouble in removing crosswalks, etc., from property in that vicinity. He also asked for a light on the north side of Rockview avenue between Cedar and West End avenues. Mr. Lounsbury stated that the necessary instructions had been given the night marshal as requested The other matter was referred to the proper committee. A new feature was introduced at this time. It was the presentation of a report from the Board of Health. This body will report each month from now on. Secretary W. E. Honeyman for the board reported that since March, 1896, 215 cases of illness had been treated and reported to the State Board of Health. During that time there had been 5 deaths of children under 3 years of age. There had been 2 cases of scarlet fever, and at present there is 1 case of diphtheria. The inspector is making a house to house canvass, and this work is not yet completed. The Inspector reports several cesspools in very bad condition and has served notices on 30 owners to clean the same. Fifty permits has been issued to persons to have their cesspools cleaned. For violations of the health rules 3 persons have been arrested and several parties are now being watched. Both the borough and city inspectors have examined Green brook this week, and a report will be ready soon. The North avenue sewer at the outlet has been examined and put in good condition. The sanitary condition of the borough was reported to be good, and with the exception of the one case of diphtheria there is no contagious diseases.

Julius J. Stahl, of the fire department, reported to the council that J. D. Anderson and George H. Fairchild had served seven years in the department. The matter was referred to the fire, water and lamp committee.

Charles Place, of Grove street, asked the council to replace the board crosswalk at the corner of Grove street and Craig place, with a stone walk, also to have a stone walk laid in front of the First Church of Christ building as far as the Grove street bridge. These matters were referred to the street committee.

Mr. Woolston reported that George Wise, of Scotch Plains, was willing to cart stone to any part of the borough for 38 cents per ton. T. J. McGanns' bid was 37½ cents per ton. The bid of Robert Rusher for furnishing crushed stone was 50 cents. The last two bids were accepted.

The regular batch of bills, including one presented by J. W. VanHorn for $61, were presented ordered paid.

Mr. Woolston reported for the Board of Health that new dumping grounds had been secured on the outskirts and were now being used. He also reported that a crosswalk had been ordered replaced on the Buttfield property from which place stones were recently removed by some malicious persons. Mr. Woolston also reported specifications, agreements, grade, map and estimates for the opening of Watchung avenue. They were received and taken charge of by the committee.

Resolutions were offered by Mr. Valiant and adopted by the Council, confirming the election of officers in the fire department, also the election of Walter B. Bennett to membership. Another resolution offered by Mr. Valiant providing for the placing of a light at the corner of Grove and Howard streets was adopted.

Mr. Lounsbury offered a resolution that a suitable place be secured for a pound and that the dog ordinance be advertised. It was adopted.

Dr. Cooley stated that many owners of dogs object to paying a license for

PILED TIES ON THE RAIL

Dastardly Attempt at Train Wrecking on the Central.

ENGINEER SAW AND PREVENTED.

Larry Wallace, A Scotch Plains Character, Found in the Vicinity and Arrested on the Charge of Putting the Ties on the Rails—Three Itinerant Umbrella Menders Also Arrested—Arraigned Before Justite Nash Today.

Plainfield nearly saw a terrible disaster early this morning, which was only averted by the watchfulness of an engineer of the Jersey Central Railroad. While nearly all of the good citizens were sleeping the sleep of the just, a shadowy form crept along the tracks of the railroad near the Terrill road bridge. Only the sound of the crushed stones along the road bed crunching beneath his feet broke the silence of midnight. The track walker was on the western end of his beat, and not even a train was in sight. Carefully the midnight prowler raised one of the ties that lay just at the edge of the wood, and bore it to the railroad and laid it across one of the main tracks. Another and another followed and then the trap set, the fiendish visitor disappeared in the woods to wait the terrible disaster that threatened the approaching train.

Train after train passed by, some passenger and others freight, but the pile of ties had been placed on the eastbound freight track and no accident resulted. Still the author of the trouble waited, seen only by the night birds that hovered about.

A Philadelphia east bound freight train was due in Plainfield soon after 12 o'clock. The train was about on time and came down the passenger track. The engineer of engine 558, of the east-bound freight train, watched the track ahead with his usual care. Suddenly he was all attention. There was an obstruction on the rails. It was not on his track, however, and as he sped by he saw there was a pile of ties on the rails of the east-bound freight track. When he reached Fanwood the officials of the railroad were notified at once and word was sent to Plainfield to flag the fast freight from Philadelphia that was following and notify the crew of the obstruction. The train was stopped at this city and the crew notified. They stopped again at the Terril road bridge and about 60 feet further on found the work of the would-be train wrecker. Three ties were piled together on the rails and further on there were two single ties. They were removed and laid by the side of the tracks and the train went on.

As soon as Superintendent Peddle heard of the attempt he telegraphed to the Plainfield police, and Detective Ritterbush, of the company's service, at his home in the borough. Sergeant Kiely and Roundsman Mattox were quick to respond to call and sped to the scene of action on their wheels at a three-minute clip. Detective Ritterbush came in a carriage and arrived soon after the police.

The night was dark but the officers noticed, as they quietly made their way from the road to the tracks, that there was someone before them.

A man was leaning over the ties that had been removed, but it was too dark to see what he was doing. He heard the officers approach, but it was then too late to escape, as they were close upon him. Indignantly he protested that he had had nothing to do with it but had just come to the spot. The policemen listened to his objections, but did not release their hold. The face that was turned toward them was a familiar one, and they recognized the features of Lawrence Wallace, better known as "Larry" Wallace, Fanwood's well known character, who lives just on the outskirts of that place. Wallace made quite a reputation as an alleged firebug about four years ago, when Fanwood was nearly panic stricken by the fires in barns and residences that followed each other in rapid succession, and were only stopped on the arrest of Wallace.

Sergeant Kiely turned the suspect over to Detective Ritterbush, and he was taken to Plainfield in a carriage and locked up on complaint of the Jersey Central Railroad. But a search revealed that Wallace was not the only one around. There were three itinerant umbrella menders just on the edge of the woods.

Wallace loudly declared that they were the wretches who had attempted to wreck the train. He had been fast asleep until only a moment ago and tried to prove the last assertion by showing that one side of his clothes was wet, a result, he said of sleeping out in the dew. Wallace's former notorious actions made him a suspicious character from the first. It was learned that he visited Benner's road house last evening and "rushed the growler" for all he was worth. Before midnight, Benner closed his place, ordered him out and refused to sell him anymore liquor. Wallace then disappeared from the neighborhood of the road house, after a visit to the pump where it is supposed he got his clothing wet. His beer can was found near the railroad tracks, where he is thought to have dropped it. When arrested he was found to be considerably under the influence of liquor. The three umbrella menders were also arrested and locked up.

The prisoners will be arraigned before Justice Nash this afternoon. City Judge De Meza will act as attorney for the railroad company.

PLAINFIELD'S SONS HONORED.

They Have Passed Creditable Examinations in New York Hospitals.

It makes little difference whether its medicine, law, surgery or science, when it comes to honors with Plainfield's sons, for they usually secure a large portion of them.

Plainfield is now represented at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia College, by several young men who have been studiously applying themselves to the prescribed course, and in addition to the fact that they have passed their examinations with credit they have also won further honors. Each year there are vacancies at the various hospitals in New York and the students who get through college have the opportunity of entering the competitive examinations at these hospitals. The examinations are exceedingly difficult, and in view of the fact that there are a large number of contestants, it is all the more noteworthy that Plainfield boys should win the honors. Those who completed the course are Robert Tracy, A. V. Rockwell, Eli Long, Charles Borden, Aug. Wadsworth. Robert Tracy entered the contest at the New York Hospital and won with honors, as did also A. V. Rockwell at the City Hospital. This will give them both an experience and practice which is incalcuable in their profession, and Plainfield certainly congratulates these young men who have honored the city in which they live.

The graduation exercises will be held Wednesday, June 10th, at Columbia College.

CLUBBED THE HORSE.

The Animal Was Tired, But Naylor Made Him Go On.

A terrible case of brutality was discovered by the police this morning, which has been put in the hands of ex-Chief W. N. Pangborn, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The police found a horse at the corner of Washington avenue and West Front street this morning all covered with blood about the hindquarters where it had been beaten. In the wagon attached were the clubs that had been used to maltreat the poor equine.

The horse and wagon belonged to George Naylor who has a farm on Terrell road. He went to Bound Brook and tried to drive home last night. The horse was an old one, being about twenty years of age, and could not stand the strain.

Naylor tried to excuse himself by saying that the horse got tired, and would not pull the wagon and so he had to urge him on.

The horse is now stabled at Cole's livery stable. Mr. Pangborn intends to prosecute Naylor.

After Free Strawberries.

J. O. Stevens, of Clinton avenue, was admiring his strawberry patch last evening just at dusk when he observed a man also surveying it in a suspicious manner. As soon as the man saw Mr. Stevens he ran away. Mr. Stevens told his hired man of the incident and the latter decided to watch the patch during the night with a shot gun. Early this morning the same man, accompanied by another man and a boy, appeared on the scene with a basket, but as soon as the vigilant watcher and his gun were seen they made off in great haste, but not before being recognized. Mr. Stevens avers that if the incident happens again the guilty parties will be made to feel the hand of the law.

Death of D. D. Westervelt.

D. D. Westervelt, the well-known ship builder of New York, who has resided in this city for the last two years, on Sandford avenue, died yesterday at his summer home near Glendale, N. J., of heart disease. He was a son of Jacob Westervelt, who was mayor of New York in 1853.

PARK'S JUNIORS DANCE.

A DELIGHTFULLY INFORMAL AFFAIR GIVEN LAST EVENING.

Attended By Many Young People, Who Gayly Glided O'er the Floor to Sweet Music—The Committee in Charge

Although it was unusually warm last evening, the Junior dance of the Park Club was largely attended, and it was not until after midnight that the dancers were satisfied to stop. The warm weather tended to make the dance one of those delightful informal summer events for which the Park Club is famous. Some of the young men appeared in evening dress and others in sack coats, outing shirts and white duck pants. There was also a great variety of gowns among the young ladies.

The dance was gotten up by the regular Junior committee, S.C. Cook and Edmund Rushmore. Mrs. Eli Long filled the position of patroness, assisted by some of the other ladies of the club. Miss Helen A. Hasbrouck presided at the piano.

Among those present were Mrs. Charles A. Reed and Mrs. Ball, the Misses McClure, Kyte, Elsberg, Tyler, Woltmann, Anna Miller, Proctor, Shreve, May Shreve, Barlow, Alice Barlow, Genivieve Daniel, Van Deventer, Halla Van Deventer, Sarah Long, Laura Long, Alice Thompson, Overton, Ball, Fanny Dryden, Marie Dryden, Howell, and Frost, and the Messrs E. F. Beardsley, Max Munger, Edward Waring, W. L. McClure, John Byers, Jr, Frank Thompson, H. E. Timpson, Chas. Stilman, McCready Sykes, Henry C. Wells, George Ryder, Allen Laing, John Brower, Frank E. Richards, E. Albert Sprowl, A. Willis West, James Leonard, Percy Sandford, Fred. H. Freeman, Arthur Freeman, Lesley H. Daniel, George Schoonmaker, John W. Kirkner, Peter B. Matthews, H. B. Reed, Charles Dupee, Fred P. Taylor, Clarence Peck, Frank Frost, Charles Faber and the Messrs. Ball.

TEMPORARILY BLOCKED.

Borough Council Divided on the Payment of Assessments.

Those who have watched in the hope that at an early date they would see Watchung avenue opened up to the mountains, had better put on eye glasses and save their optics, for what appeared to be a quick and satisfactory settlement of the affair, has disappeared into the misty future and the end is not yet. The Borough Council members went into executive session last evening for the purpose of examining and discussing the plans, grade, map and estimates for the opening of the above named thoroughfare. The session was a heated one for their was a division of great importance. Messrs. McLoughlin, Valiant and Schutt took the stand that the assessments on the property owners should be collected before the street is opened, while Messrs. Lounsbury and Woolston held that the street should be opened first and the assessments be collected afterwards. The question was argued pro and con in a lively manner and the council adjourned standing three to two. Councilman Peck, who was absent, holds the key to the situation by his vote.

The following resolution was offered by Mr. Valiant:

"Be it resolved by the Mayor and Council of the Borough of North Plainfield, That it is the sense of this Council that we do not proceed with the opening of Watchung avenue until the assessments are made and collected."

The resolution was adopted 3 to 2, as recorded above. In the session Mr. McLaughlin stated that he had consulted a prominent New York lawyer who had informed him that the assessments would have to be collected first.

A Daily Press reporter interviewed several property owners this morning and they said that they would not pay their assessment before the street was opened if the work was never done.

Saving Souls.

The Salvation Army is having a big rally at their hall every night, conducted by Adjutant Taylor and his Central Victory Boys, all of whom play several instruments and sing. Dr. Nice, a beautiful violinist, will be with them Sunday at 3 and 8 p. m. Hundreds of people attend each night.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

WEYLER A FAILURE

Admitted That His Campaign in Cuba Is Hopeless.

THE RAINY SEASON AGAIN SETS IN

Yellow Fever and Smallpox Playing Havoc in the Ranks of the Spanish Troops — Government Operations Practically at a Standstill.

Havana, June 3, via Tampa, June 6.—The dry season can be considered practically closed. Ever since the last fifteen days it has been raining fearfully. In Havana the rains have been periodical for the last week beginning at about 2 p. m. and lasting until 8 p. m. In the country, from reports received all around, the rainfall has been considerable. It is said that the Majana swamp, forming the southern section of the trocha, or military line from Mariel, has overflowed and that the trenches and ditches which had been made have all disappeared. In consequence of this state of things, the military operations, at least on the Spanish side, have come to a standstill. All the troops are cooped up in the towns in the interior untouched by the rebels and the fortified cities on the coast. Not so with the insurgents, for this is the appropriate season for them, as it permits them to rove unmolested throughout the country, thus justifying their boasts that they are the masters of the field.

Yellow Fever and Smallpox Raging.

As a result of the climatic change that terrible scourge yellow fever has made its appearnce, and, it is said, is playing havoc to an alarming extent particularly with the the troops. The government tries to hide the truth, but somehow it manages to leak out, and although no accurate data can be obtained, for no statistics are allowed to be published, still it is known that the malady has extended all over the island and the death rate is very great. In some places, as for instances the military line, it is known that there are hundreds attacked with this terrible disease, and that it is increasing daily in alarming proportions. Smallpox has also made its appearance in many towns and cities, especially in Sancti Spiritus and Cienfuegoes, in which latter places ninety-six deaths occurred last month, there being 166 cases now on record.

Weyler's Mission a Failure.

That Weyler has failed in his Cuban campaign is admitted by everybody, even by the rabid Spaniards. His unfitness to cope with the insurgents is manifested daily. No outward demonstrations have heen made yet, but in private conversation denunciations are made of his inability to quell the revolution. Spaniards are getting despondent, and the immigration of their prominent leaders, including Santos Guzman, is significant as tending to show the loss of faith in their cause, which they now consider doomed. The Madrid papers have already initiated a campaign against Weyler.

LEE CALLS ON WEYLER.

The Case of Dawley Discussed and His Release Is Soon Expected.

Havana, June 6.—Consul-General Fitzhugh Lee visited Captain-General Weyler yesterday afternoon. The interview was cordial. In the course of the conversation Gen. Lee touched upon the case of Dawley, the correspondent of Harper's Weekly, who was arrested several days ago and is now confined in Morro castle. Gen. Weyler, it is said, promised that a prompt investigation would be made in the matter. It is believed that Dawley will soon be released, on condition that he leave the island. Two trains were derailed by rebels yesterday, one near Ceiba, province of Havana, and the other at Matanzas. No damage was done. Two dynamite cartridges have been exploded under the Canas bridge, province of Mantanzas. The damage done the structure was slight. Calixto Garcia, the rebel leader, who was last reported to be near Jiguani, is now at Victoria de las Tunas.

TO WATCH FOR FILIBUSTERS.

The Cruiser Maine To Relieve the Amphitrite Off the Florida Coast.

Washington, June 6.—The armored cruiser Maine, now lying in Hampton roads, has been put in order at Norfolk navy yard and will sail very soon for Key West It was the intention of the navy department to attach the ship at once to Rear-Admiral Bunce's squadron at Tompkinsville, S. I., but a change was made necessary in this plan owing to the necessity for the use of a warship to take the North Carolina naval militia to sea on their annual cruise. So the Maine will be sent to the Florida coast to take the place of the Amphitrite, which has been lying there for some time, to cut off filibustering parties, and the Amphitrite will be used for the militia drills, being better suited than the Maine for the work by reason of her shallow draft.

FOR PADDING THE MAILS.

The Case Against the Seaboard Air Line in Attorney-General's Hands.

Washington, June 6.—Postmaster-General Wilson has turned over to the department of justice the case of the Seaboard Air Line railroad, recommending the prosecution of officials of that road, if in the opinion of the attorney-general such action is advisable. Two papers in the case submitted to the department of justice allege that the Seaboard Air line is guilty of an attempt to defraud the government by padding the mails during the month of March last, during which month the test weighing of mail matter over that line was made in order to form an estimate of the amount of matter carried by the road, which would enable the postoffice department to make a four-year contract for such service and fix the rate of compensation. During the month postal clerks and postmasters along the route of the road noticed an enormous increase of mail matter, such as government documents and newspapers, and knowing it to be the month the test weighing was made, reported the case to the department. Postoffice inspectors were detailed to investigate the matter. They reported that sacks of government documents were being shipped from one agent to another along the route where they were directed, and remailed to various points along the line between Portsmouth, Va., and Atlanta, Ga. They also discovered that the railroad company had ordered an unusual number of newspapers published in cities along the route of the Seaboard Air line. Upon this evidence Postmaster General Wilson looked still further into the case, and, securing additional facts, took the

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? MANY THINGS.

We Are Prone to Concentrate on One Idea.

Products of Nature That Are Manifold Blessings to Man.

Whenever you see a glass of bright, clear, sparkling water, you at once think what delightful drinking water that is. You never think of it as being especially useful for boiling potatoes or for bathing the face. You only think of its power to quench the thirst. And yet this is only one of its many desirable properties.

When you see a bright, hot fire in winter, you think at once how easily you could keep warm by remaining near it. The thought does not occur to you that a fire has a hundred other uses.

Whenever cod-liver oil is mentioned, many people think at once of consumption, as if this was the only disease to which this valuable remedy was adapted. Perhaps this is not strange when we consider the fact that cod-liver oil stands out as the most prominent remedy in this terrible affection. In fact, as water quenches the thirst, and as fire gives warmth, so does cod-liver oil bring health and prosperity to those just beginning to fade from serious lung trouble.

Of late years, however, it has been known that consumption is caused by a germ. It is also known that cod-liver oil does not kill this germ. And there is also the fact that this same oil will cure consumption in its early stages. If it does not kill the germ of the disease, how does it affect a cure?

This is easily explained. Cod-liver oil has a wonderful power to build up and invigorate the whole body. When the body is in this prosperous condition, it can take care of the germs of consumption; that is, it destroys the germs, and thus removes the cause of the disease. For this reason cod-liver oil is called a powerful tonic and reconstructive; while it is also known to be a most valuable food.

From this we can see the value of such a remedy in a number of ailments. There are many persons who begin the work of each day in a thoroughly exhausted condition. They have tried quantities of tonics and iron preparations of all kinds, but without relief. There is no appetite; bowels are constipated; circulation is poor; the lips are pale; the ears are colorless; and the whole body is in a debilitated and most uncomfortable state. Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites changes all this. Soon the blood becomes richer; the heart beats stronger; color returns to the face; digestion is improved; and good health is once more at hand.

Scott's Emulsion contains more pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil than any other emulsion in the world, that will stand the test of time as being a perfect inseparable emulsion. Ask your doctor

NEW OCEAN RECORD

American Liner St. Paul Reduces the Time from Southampton.

CAME OVER THE LONG COURSE, TOO

Lowers the Time to Six Days, Five Hours and Thirty-two Minutes, Beating the Best Time, Made by the New York, by 1:42.

New York, June 6.—The American line steamer St. Paul has succeeded in establishing a new record between Southampton and New York. The magnificent product of the American ship yards arrived in port yesterday afternoon, making the run from the Needles to Sandy Hook lightship in 6 days, 5 hours and 32 minutes. The New York of the same line has held the record of 6 days, 7 hours and 14 minutes since September 14, 1894. This time was made over the short course of 3,043 knots. The St. Paul has made several fast runs. Last month she made it in 6 days, 9 hours and 5 minutes, over the long course of 3,112 knots, and was delayed 12 hours and 14 minutes under reduced speed on account of fog. The present trip was also over the long course. The day's runs were 487.6, 521.9, 521.7, 513, 508.6, 518.9 and 41.8 to Sandy Hook lightship, a total distance of 3,113.7 knots. Her average speed per hour was 30.83. The St. Paul left Southampton at noon of May 30th and passed the Needles at 1:35 p. m. The first day's run was made over a smooth sea with the wind NNE. to SW., the second day was smooth followed by rough NE. seas, wind generally NE.; the weather thenceforward was all that could be desired. June 3 C. Murray, aged 30 years, a cabin passenger, died suddenly. His remains were brought to this port. He was a resident of London, England. A child of 4 years, a steerage passenger, died of some infantile complaint and was buried at sea. Among the passengers were Hon. Alex Delmer, Commissioner Eva Booth, W. J. Carrington, Mrs. Gen. Casey, Mrs. M. August Field and family, Charles Russell Graham, Inspector Hamelmann, Lewis Hartley, Inspector Richter and Capt. J. C. Sanford.

No Excitement During the Voyage.

Capt. Jamieson of the new record holder declined to speak to reporters about the trip of the great vessel. He declared that he had no time to discuss the fact that an American steamship had broken a record. The passengers, many of whom did not know that they had made the fastest trip ever made from Southampton until they got to the dock, were unanimous in declaring that the St. Paul showed in no way that she was breaking records. Among the passengers on the St. Paul were Inspectors Richter and Hamelmann of the North German Lloyd Steamship line. The latter company are soon to build five large steamers, and it is said they selected the St. Paul to get "a line" on her work as a sea-going craft, so that her good points could be applied to the new German ships.

WORKMAN'S LUCKY FIND.

Unearths a Bag of Diamonds, and No One Appears To Claim Them.

Pittsburg, June 6.—Twenty-eight diamonds, ranging in weight from one half to two and a half karats, were found in Allegheny one week ago by John Dunn, an Irish stone mason, employed by Contractor Huckenstein. Dunn was engaged in tearing away the old foundation of a house on First street and found the unset sparklers, wrapped in a piece of chamois skin, several feet beneath the surface. Their value is estimated at $2,500. No one has laid claim to the stones. Dunn is yet celebrating his good luck.

The Scotch-Irish Congress.

Harrisburg, Pa., June 6.—At yesterday's session of the Scotch-Irish congress Robert Bonner of New York was elected president for the eighth time. Dr. McCook called attention to the fact that the house in which Robert Fulton was born in Lancaster county is about to be torn down, and it was directed that Gov. Hastings' attention be called to this with a view to obtaining some legislation by which the state of Pennsylvania could come into possession of the building.

Work of Relic Hunters.

Washington, June 6.—Notwithstanding the vigilance of the capitol police relic hunters have succeeded in picking out three small plumes from the heads of the diminutive Indian warriors who appear in the bas relief work on the side of the Marquette statue. This vandalism does not deface the statue in any way and it requires a very close examination to discover the loss of the plumes.

Anti-Free Lunch Law Constitutional.

New York, June 6.—The section of the Raines law which forbids the free lunch counter was decided to be constitutional in an opinion handed down yesterday by the appellate division of the supreme court. Three of the justices concur with Justice Ingraham, who wrote the opinion. Presiding Justice Van Brunt dissented, but wrote no opinion.

Hartford, June 6.—The American Hosiery company's mill at New Britain will be shut down during July and August in order to make needed improvements.

Dr. Moore's Case Again Postponed.

Concord, N. H., June 6.—In the supreme court just before adjournment yesterday the hearing of the Dr. Moore case was again postponed from June 29 to July 6.

The action of three Borough Councilmen in executive session last night over the matter of collecting the assessments for the opening of Watchung avenue is sincerely to be regretted by every progressive citizen in the borough, as well as in this city. Their action in demanding that the money from the assessments be in their hands before the work is started will result in a temporary delay only, because as soon as Councilman Peck is able to attend the council meetings, his vote will make a tie and then the action of Mayor Hegeman will settle the matter in favor of proceeding with the work and collecting the assessments afterward. But it is a delay that is not countenanced by public opinion. Many thousands of dollars have been spent in preparing for this improvement and the people want it started right away, inasmuch as it has progressed to that point where it is possible for the Council to authorize it. The fear that there may be some who will refuse to pay assessments and thereby embarrass the Borough in its work is not well grounded or viewed with common sense. It is the pre-eminent power of the Borough to levy assessments, and if they are not paid they stand as a lien against the property. What fear, therefore, is there that something will be saddled upon the Borough which they will not be able to handle? The Daily Press desires to inform Messrs. Schutt, Valiant and McLaughlin that their action last night does not meet with the approval of the people, and the quicker they rescind the resolution the more quickly their constituents will feel that they are working for the Borough at large.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a meeting of the New York Produce Exchange, resolutions were passed as follows relative to the death of S. P. Dunn, who was a member of the Exchange:

Whereas, We have learned with deep regret of the death of our esteemed friend and associate, Samuel P. Dunn, for twenty-five years a member of the New York Produce Exchange, and

Whereas, We wish to place on the records of this association our appreciation of his worth as a business man and personal friend, therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Samuel P. Dunn this Exchange has lost one of its most worthy representatives of a thoroughly conscientious business man, a valued member, honorable in all his dealings, and whose genial qualities had won for him the respect and esteem of all who knew him.

Resolved, That in extending to his family our warmest sympathy in this their sore affliction, we do so realizing that their loss is participated in by all who knew him.

Resolved, That the president be authorized to appoint a committee to attend his funeral, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of the deceased.

A Law Breaker Brought to Justice.

On complaint of the Borough Board of Health, Justice Mattison, issued a warrant yesterday for the arrest of Theo. Blazier, charged with dumping animal matter in the lot back of the house occupied by Adam Fritz and family. The neighbors also complained of the unbearable stench. Constable Steward arrested Blazier last evening and this morning he was given a hearing before Justice Mattison. The defendant acknowledged his guilt and the Court fined him thirty dollars and costs, which amount he paid.

A Novel Flag Arrangement.

Among the many novelties manufactured by the United States Cartridge Company, of Lowell, Mass., who are so ably represented by Thomas H. Keller, are a line of college, national and political pocket flags. The flag is rolled on a staff and carried in a tube, and when unfurled makes a handsome decoration. They are bound to become popular, especially the college colors, and every college man should have one.

A Dumb Man

Even if attacked by foot pads cannot cry out for help.

Some people can cry out louder than others.

The same is true in a man's body.

If the lungs are sick, they call attention to it with a cough.

The heart, when disease, pounds away against our ribs.

The bowels notify us with pain and diarrhœe.

The brain and nerves with headache and pain.

The kidneys are dumb.

When they are sick (at first at least) there are usually but a few unimportant symptoms, and the consequence is that we neigect them.

Dr. Hobb's Sparagus Kidney Pills are what they need, and we ought not to wait till the last ditch is reached before we use them.

A little headache, a little nausea, pain or soreness in the back, restlessness at night, dull brain, failing eyesight, may be the only call for help your kidneys can give.

Eczema is a frightful affliction, but like all other skin diseases it can be permanently cured by applications of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It never fails to cure Piles. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front street.

C. W. McCutchen Loses His Pocketbook Only to Have it Returned.

The following extract taken from the Lambertville Beacon, under date of May 29th, regarding a prominent North Plainfield citizen will explain itself:

Joseph Case and John Lymas, of Few Hope, and Sheily Crump, of Lambertville, were driving along the road near J. S. Williams' residence, in Solebury, on Tuesday last, when Crump saw a pocketbook lying in the road and jumped out of the wagon and secured the prize. C. W. McCutchen, of Plainfield, who drove along the road just ahead of Case's team, proved to be the gentleman who lost the pocketbook, which contained $1,000 in checks and cash. Case and his friends had just reached New Hope when they found Mr. McCutchen and party returning in search of the lost book and returned it to him. Crump and Case received a reward of $5 each and Lymas, a boy, received $1.

—The closing exercises of the Greenbrook school will be held Friday, June 19th.

—The work of painting the Mt. Olive Baptist church was commenced yesterday by Marsh, Ayres & Co.

—The outing of the Plainfield Camera Club to High Bridge was held today. The party, which consisted of Harold Serrell, G. Thorn and Bryant Harmon left this morning on the 8:16 train.

Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills.

For thirty years Dr. Deane has made a study of dyspepsia, and in thirty years has cured more cases of it than probably any other fifty physicians combined. He gave up the study of theology and took to medicine, because the most eminent physicians of that day gave him up as a chronic dyspeptic, with only a short time to live.

Result of this change—a hearty, healthy, useful life, an enormous practice, and a demand for his pills greater than for all others combined wherever known. For sale at all druggists'. Send for a free sample. White wrapper if constipated, yellow if bowels are loose.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. HEALTH BOARD REPORT.

the reason that there are many other owners who do not pay. The object of the ordinance was to get rid of worthless curs and not to enrich the treasury. He suggested that the dog-catcher be authorized to demand $2 from all owners who were not paying.

Mr. Valiant thought the resolution offered by Mr. Lounsbury providing for a pound would answer every purpose.

Mr. Lounsbury thought it not an easy matter to catch dogs, and that it was difficult to get a competent person, but the Mayor dispelled his doubts by stating that he had an excellent man in view.

Mr. Schutt's resolution that the action of H. N. Spencer in paying street bills to the amount of $143.12 be confirmed, was adopted. The same Councilman reported in the matter of securing $30,000 for the opening of Watchung avenue. He stated that the finance committee had been in communication with several institutions and was of the opinion that the money could be secured at a slight premium of five per cent. in sums of $1,000, payable semi-annually. He read letters from the Fidelity, Title & Deposit Company, of Newark, and W. F. Arnold, of the City National Bank, in which both offered the loan at five per cent.

On Mr. Valiant's motion the cycle ordinance was passed on second and third readings and the same will become a law June 19th. Mr. Woolston voted in the negative. At this time Mr. McLaughlin offered a motion, which was adopted, giving objectors to the vacating of Sycamore avenue, an opportunity to speak on behalf of the same. DeWitt C. Brokaw was the first to speak. He stated that personally he was in favor of having the street opened. The intended action would preclude its going through at a future time. Mr. Brokaw urged careful thought on the part of the Council before anything was given away. He thought that opening the street would benefit all and he was willing to pay his assessment for the same. Harold Serrell stated that he understood an effort was being made to raise money by subscription to carry on the work. He thought it would be wise to suspend action for the present, until it could be seen what would result from the subscriptions. He stated further that should the street be opened it would give direct communication through the Park to Front street, and that would be an advantage There being no other objections the regular order of business was taken up. Mr. McLaughlin offered a resolution that the plans submitted by F. A Dunham for the opening of Watchung avenue, be referred to the street committee. The resolution was adopted. Mr. Woolston offered a resolution which was adopted that A. C. Lazzie's bid to furnish crosswalks be accepted. Another resolution by the same member provided for the borrowing of $1,000, the same to be charged to the road account. This was also adopted. Mr. Woolston said that the thirty days limit for laying sidewalks was about up, but as most of the people had promised to put down walks he suggested that the matter be deferred for another month. The suggestion was adopted.

Mayor Hegeman stated that Counsel Charles A. Reed had prepared a contract between the Street Railway Company and the borough and that the same had been executed and was now on file. He also stated that the Plainfield Water Supply Company, had consented to run a main through Harrison street and several hydrants would be located through that street, which would give better fire protection. The fire, water and lamps committee, he said, now have under consideration plans for the erection of a house to be used for the old hose carriage now out of use and it is their purpose to secure hose and have a company organized in that locality and thus lessen the risk of fire. Mr. Hegeman expressed his gratitude to the water company for their good will toward the borough and he felt sure that when the plan was in operation he would sleep much better, as the present condition of things was causing him much anxiety. Mr. Lounsbury remarked that the method of running trolley cars was not in strict accordance with the agreement. He did not refer especially to the present condition of affairs but previous to the changes. He said that people had been obliged to wait from fifteen to seventeen minutes overtime for cars, and that they were run on different time most every day. He cited two cases where women waited a half hour for a car. The Mayor suggested that he write to the company, but Mr. Lounsbury said that he had written once and no attention had been paid to his letter.

Mr. Woolston offered a resolution that Dr. J. H. Carman be appointed borough physician, and the resolution prevailed. On Mr. McLaughlin's motion the council then went into executive session to consider the specifications, maps, grade and estimates for opening Watchung avenue, after which the Mayor appointed Julius Stahl to look after the electrical apparatus in connection with the fire department. The council then adjourned.

On a resolution offered by Mr. Lounsbury, Mr. Stahl's salary was fixed at $150 per year.

MATTING—If importers and makers never made mistakes you would never buy matting at such prices. Too many they made and no fault with the goods, but how prices tumble. Think of fine linen warp matting for 13c the yard. We thought they were cheap at 20c and most stores ask 25c for them. Matting porch rugs 10, 15 and 19c each.

FAT JOBS IN DANGER

New York City's Mayor Extends the Civil Service List.

OFFICES WORTH $318,000 BROUGHT IN Havoc Wrought in Places Where Political Favoritism Formerly Ruled—Not Even Heads of Departments or the Aldermen Spared.

New York, June 6.—The mayor, acting on the recommendation of the civil service commissioners of this city, has taken a step which will probably cause as much consternation among the local officeholders as President Cleveland's recent civil service order caused among those in the federal service. One hundred and forty positions with salaries aggregating $318,000 a year are taken from the "exempt" and placed on the competitive schedule; that is, all who hold these positions must pass civil service examinations. Many of the highest officials in the various departments are included in the list. For instance, in the public works department, which has always been the chief source of patronage for politicians, nearly all the heads of bureaus are put into the competitive schedule, among them the water purveyor, who has charge of all the street improvements, the superintendent of gas and lamps, the superintendent of repairs and supplies, the superintendent of incumbrances, and the superintendent of streets. Most of these places are now held by republican district leaders who supported the Brookfield faction last year. The mayor's marshal is also included, as well as the deputy tax commissioners, leading officials in the chartities department, the dock and fire departments, the board of electrical control, and the department of correction. The whole staff of the City Record, including the supervisor, the deputy supervisor and the secretary, go into the competitive list. The board of aldermen have not escaped. A great murmer will go up from the city fathers when they learn that the civil service commissioners have decided to take away from them the time-honored privilege of selecting their clerks, messengers and sergeants-at-arms. All these officers must pass civil service examination, and there will be no more caucuses to divide the patronage by districts. Several of the highest places in the finance department go into the competitive schedule, including the general bookkeeper, the clerk of markets, the assistant cashiers and the deputy collector of city revenue. When the new order is carried into effect there will not be much left for the politicians in the city departments. Thousands of the minor places are already in the classified service and when the higher officials are also included, heads of departments will not have to complain much of office-seekers.

FATAL RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Two People Thrown from Their Buggy and Killed at Clinton, Mass.

Clinton, Mass., June 6.—A most horrible accident occurred at the junction of Main and Union streets last evening, in which two people, Antoine Nedou, aged 67 years, and his daughter, Mrs. Nedou, lost their lives. The two were riding behind a colt owned by Mr. Paulin, when the animal took fright at some unknown object on the corner of High street and the old gentleman was unable to handle the horse. The latter ran with frightful rapidity until he reached the junction of Main and Union streets, when, in attempting to turn the corner, he overturned the buggy, throwing Mr. Nedou against the electric light pole, killing him instantly. The woman was thrown head downward to the concrete sidewalk, her face being crushed. She died shortly after the arrival of the doctor. She leaves eight children, the eldest 20 and the youngest 6 years.

FRENCH EXPEDITION ROUTED.

Many of Its Members Killed by Poisoned Arrows in Africa.

Brass, Guinea, West Africa, June 6.—The French Niger expedition from Salaga has been totally routed and many of its members have been killed by poisoned arrows in the Borgou country. A remnant of the expedition arrived at Kiama on May 11.

Blow to Shylocks.

Washington, June 6.—Postmaster-General Wilson has issued an order to postmasters throughout the country which will prevent money-lending companies doing business with railway postal clerks, letter carriers and others who borrow of these companies and give a note on their paying postmaster for such portion of their monthly salaries as they borrow. The postmaster-general forbids postmasters to recognize these notes.

Several Schooners Lost.

St. Johns, N. F., June 6.—Several schooners were lost along the coast Thursday night during a severe gale. The schooner White Squall, with a crew of nineteen men, went ashore near Cape Spear. The crew barely escaped with their lives. The schooner Annie was sunk in a collision and three men were drowned. Three other vessels, the Emeline, Presto and Liberty, were driven on the rocks, but no lives were lost.

Yale Student Dies of Appendicitis.

New Haven, Conn., June 6.—Joshua A. Hamblin of Yarmouth, Mass., died at the Yale infirmary yesterday afternoon from the effects of an attack of appendicitis and a resultant operation to save his life, if possible. The operation was performed about two weeks ago and he has lain in a critical condition since then.

MY STRANGE PATENT.

By William T. Nichols

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

XVII.

Mrs. Loring returned from Trent in the best of spirits. The day's jaunt had done her good. I have no doubt that it served to satisfy for a time the craving for gadding about which possessed her now and then, for all her repeated praises of a quiet home life. Moreover, she brought with her a friend, whose presence could hardly but add to her peace of mind; for she dearly loved to play the hostess, the more, perhaps, because her opportunities for assuming the role had been so limited. As it happened, I had only a glimpse of this visitor. Dr. Banks had sent me an urgent message to hasten to one of his patients, and I was driving briskly toward the sick man's residence when I met the carryall, homeward bound from Bassettville. Mrs. Loring and her niece were stowed away under a multitude of bundles in the stern of the old ark on wheels, while the forecastle was shared by the youthful John and a stranger, of whom I could make out little, except that he was a dark bearded man, clad in fashionable raiment. At the time, I supposed him to be some stray traveler bound for the village and profiting by the happy accident of the carryall voyaging in that direction.

The evening was far advanced when I returned to Mrs. Weston's, and, although that lady enlightened me as to the arrival of Mrs. Loring and her guest, I was quite willing to avoid intruding upon them. Mrs. Weston could tell very little about the new-comer. She thought that he was a foreigner, with one of those outlandish names that nobody but an alien could understand. It was easy to conjecture that Mrs. Loring had chanced to meet him in Trent, and had insisted upon bringing him to Rodneytown, to talk over old times and to gossip about people they had known in the Lord knew what distant land. In the morning, no doubt, an opportunity would be given me to pay my respects.

But the morning brought no opportunity of the sort. When I called upon Mrs. Loring she was alone, and her guest—Col. Mendoza she called him—was out for a ramble about the neighborhood. He had expressed a desire to visit the beach, she explained, and, inasmuch as he had taken Johnson's boat, was probably cruising about the bay or some of the many channels branching off from it. She expected him to return in an hour or two, and she was anxious, so very anxious, that I should meet him. Couldn't I arrange to dine with them? Really it was distressing that another visit to Banks' patient would prevent an acceptance of the invitation. The colonel was such a charming gentleman, so very, very charming, so courteous, so erudite, so widely traveled, and so on through the list of applicable adjectives. However, that afternoon or evening, or at supper—yes, that would be a capital time—the meeting could be brought about. Of course I acquiesced, and then, as Miss Gray was not in sight, parted with her aunt rather abruptly. After a quarter of an hour with Jones, whose case showed no unfavorable symptoms, came the call upon Lamar. Contrary to his custom, he was pottering about his domain that morning, lured from the house, perhaps, by the beauty of the day, which, however, was not potent enough to change his manner, for he gave me his stereotyped greeting, and our talk was as brief and formal as usual. He asked no questions as to the progress the injured man was making, and I volunteered no information on the subject. Then, in turn, came the ride on Banks' business. I returned from it early in the afternoon, and after a hasty meal—I challenged any man to linger unnecessarily over a country dinner gone cold for a couple of hours—I spied Miss Gray on the porch of Mrs. Clark's residence, and strolled in her direction.

"I've come to make a call," said I, taking a seat beside her.

"How flattering to us!" she answered, with a smile. "I'll bear the news to my aunt at once."

"Oh, there's no hurry. Let me catch my breath. I'm here to see your visitor this time."

"But don't you know that he has gone?" she asked.

"No. I supposed him good for two or three days at least. Certainly Mrs. Loring didn't expect him to bid good-by so speedily. He must be a genuine bird of passage."

"He surprised us. Really, we saw very little of him; for he started out early this morning and didn't return until nearly noon. And then he was off to Trent without waiting for dinner. He explained that he had recollected an important engagement, which must have escaped his memory when, carried away by the pleasure of meeting my aunt, he accepted her invitation."

"That's odd," said I, idly, a good deal relieved, on the whole, to find that I need not meet the stranger, who, no matter how agreeable he might have been, would have lessened my chances for a chat with Dorothy. "Come, let us solace ourselves for his flight by a cruise in your boat. You'll be comfortable in the shade of a parasol."

She readily agreed to the plan, and in ten minutes we were standing on the bank above the skiff, looking down at it with a pretense at critical inspection.

"It is surprising that Johnson delivered the boat with so much mud on the seats," said I. "Let me brush it off before you try to embark. I'm amazed at his carelessness."

"Perhaps the fault is Col. Mendoza's," she observed. "He used the boat this morning, you know."

"Most of the muss is out of the way now," said I, assisting her into the stern sheets and settling myself at the oars; "but I'll speak to Johnson about it, anyway. One expects more neatness in an old man-of-war's-man."

"The colonel is far more likely to be the guilty person," she objected, as I bent to the oars and the boat gathered headway.

"Who is he? Is he a mystery or a plain everyday body? Tell me about him."

"We met him in Nice, and afterward in Paris. He was very courteous, and aunt and he became very good friends. He never told us much about himself, but it was by his advice that we made the trip to Rio, and through letters he gave us our stay was made delightful, although the climate failed to help my aunt."

Rev. Arthur Crane, of Carleton avenue, is riding a Cleveland Swell Special.

A large crate of Hartford tires has just been received by the Eldridge Bicycle Company.

Miss May Clawson, of the borough, has purchased a new Crescent wheel of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

Ed Sheppard and Will Kiely made a fast trip to Rahway Thursday night. They went in 35 minutes and returned in 32.

D. C. R. Hoff, of Easton, Pa., has ordered a full nickel-plated Cleveland from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

Edward Randolph, of Randolph's pharmacy, who recently had a fall from his wheel, has about recovered from the effects.

Olaf Sangstad is the first one in Plainfield to purchase a Punnett Companion from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company. It arrived this morning.

A big shipment of wheels was received by the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company yesterday. There were twelve Crescent racers, thirteen other Crescent wheels, three Waverlys and two Daytons.

The latest things out for the up-to-date bicycle cleaning kit are the two bicycle brushes, a long one for the chain and a circular one for the hub and spokes. L. W. Randolph, the West Front street druggist, has them for sale.

The manufacturers of the Spalding bicycle have issued the following: "In the case of the Spalding bicycle we can assure you that there will be no reduction whatever in the list or in the price to agents during the season of 1896. The Spalding bicycle is a high-grade machine and fully worth the $100 we ask for it, and, unlike some manufacturers, we have not over-produced, but are making a quantity of bicycles that we feel sure we can market. Our trade for the past thirty days has been much larger than we expected, in both our wholesale and retail departments, in all the cities in which we are located, and we see no reason for any uneasiness or alarm on the part of any of our agents. The trade should continue good throughout the balance of the season and we hope to receive many additional orders from you. At the same time we do not want to urge upon you the purchase of a single machine that you cannot dispose of in the regular way."

GOLF.

The new grounds of the Plainfield Golf Club at Sherman and Plainfield avenues are being fixed up in good shape. Since the opening on Decoration Day, Edward Barry, who has had charge of the grounds, has been exerting himself to put them in even better condition than before. Professional golf player Kirk, who was here and gave instructions on the grounds early in the season, is expected back in the fall. Practice games are held every week day, and some of the players are becoming quite proficient.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

ITS FATE IN DOUBT

Competitor Resolution Goes to the Senate's Calendar.

MR. MORGAN'S VERY WARLIKE SPEECH

Would Send Battleships to Cuba To Effect the Release of Americans Captured on the Alleged Filibustering Steamship.

Washington, June 6.—The proposed constitutional amendment to have senators elected by direct vote of the people instead of by state legislatures will probably be discussed at length in the senate to-day. The fate of the resolution calling upon the president for information concerning the capture of Americans on the alleged filibustering steamer Competitor, taken by a Spanish gunboat in Cuban waters, is still a matter of doubt, as it has been sent to the calendar, whence it cannot be taken without a majority vote of the senate. Senator Morgan's speech when this resolution came up yesterday was very warlike in tone. He was very emphatic in expressing his views. He considered it absolutely necessary, before congress adjourned, to aid the president in sending ships of war to Cuba to secure the release of American prisoners. He was so earnest in this and other declarations of a like character, and the matter itself was such a serious international one that Mr. Sherman, rep., Ohio, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, suggested that the debate should not be continued in open session. The galleries accordingly were cleared, the doors closed, and Mr. Morgan finished his speech in secret session. He spoke until the morning hour expired, and then, under the rules, the resolution went to the calendar. The immigration bill was taken up with the understanding that a final vote would not be taken on it before Monday, as its most active opponent, Mr. Gibson, dem., Md., was absent on official duty as one of the visitors to the Annapolis naval academy. A joint resolution for final adjournment on Monday next at 2 p. m. was offered by Mr. Aldrich, rep., R. I., and was referred to the committee on appropriations, after adverse remarks by several senators.

House of Representatives.

By the action of the house yesterday in unseating Congressmen Lockhart and Downing the democratic membership of the house is further reduced, and the democratic representation from Illinois is completely wiped out. The democrats sought to prevent a vote on these cases by leaving their seats and making a point of no quorum, but the speaker pro tem., Mr. Payne, rep., N. Y., overruled the point, holding that on the last recorded vote more than a quorum had answered to their names, and declined to entertain an appeal from his decision. He declared that the resolution of the committee, that Martin was entitled to Lockhart's seat, had been adopted by the vote of 113 ayes to 5 noes, and Mr. Martin was sworn in. This was followed by the consideration of the report of elections committee No. 1 upon the contest of Rinaker vs. Downing, from the Sixteenth Illinois district, which had been sent back to the committee for a recount of the ballots. This recount was completed yesterday, and Mr. Moody, rep., Mass., in charge of the case, reported a resolution declaring Rinaker entitled to the seat by a plurality of five. Upon the face of the returns Downing had a plurality of forty and received the certificate of election. Gen. Rinaker's right to the seat was affirmed by a vote of 167 to 51—Messrs. Evans, Ky.; Moody, Mass., and Sherman, N. Y., voting with the democrats in the negative—and he was also sworn in. This wiped out the democratic membership in the Illinois delegation and reduced the democratic strength in the house to 95. Before these cases were settled there was a two-hour struggle over the adoption of a resolution introduced by Gen. Grosvenor, rep., O., calling upon the heads of the several executive departments for a statement in detail of all the removals and changes in their departments since March 4, 1893. The democrats endeavored to have the scope of the resolution enlarged so as to include the changes made under the Harrison administration, but failed. There was no evening session last night.

Connecticut Tax Valuation.

New Haven, Conn., June 6.—The tax assessment list of the state of Connecticut, just made up at the comptroller's office, shows a total valuation of $444,321,927, an increase since the preceding year of $30,062,971. Hartford county has $100,252,839; New Haven county, $118,462,571, and Fairfield county, $113,675,970. The real estate valuation is about $361,000,000, and the valuation of securities about $32,000,000.

A. M. E. Church Centennial.

Providence, June 6.—Yesterday was devoted by the New England conference of the A. M. E. Zion church to the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the denomination. Bishop Hood's sermon, based on Hebrews xii, 2, offered proof to show that the church founded on the hill of Zion was the true one.

Oregon 7 to 1 for Silver.

Washington, June 6.—Representative Ellis, rep., Ore., has received the following telegram from J. B. Montgomery at Portland: "You are elected; Tongue, republican sound-money candidate in First district, beaten. Oregon cast 70,000 votes for bimetalism and free silver, 10,000 for gold.

Boston, June 6.—The bill providing for the use of the McTammany ballot box has been signed by the acting governor.

THE YALE-HENLEY CREW.

Escorted to the Cars at New Haven by Undergraduates and a Band.

New Haven, Conn., June 6.—The Yale-Henley crew was escorted to the cars last evening by a procession of the undergraduate classes from the campus, headed by a band. After the crew had gone the procession countermarched to the campus where there was a concert by the band. The crew will sail from New York to-day. The Yale News says of the Henley race: "Yale announces no definite mission nor does she pretend officially to represent American collegiate oarsmen. The result of the regatta will not decide the Anglo-American rowing championship, but will simply prove that Yale has a faster or slower crew than the best English crews. Yale has already proved to Englishmen that she can both win and lose gracefully, and whether the crew is finally victorious or not, if Yale spirit and manliness win the respect of the English people, it will be worth much more than any trophies which the men may bring back with them."

The Crew in New York.

New York, June 6.—The Yale crew and substitutes which arrived here last evening from New Haven spent the night at the Murray Hill hotel. In addition to the members of the crew, a big crowd of students and graduates came along from New Haven to wish the boys bon voyage at the dock to-day.

THE CASE THROWN OUT.

Efforts To Collect a Claim by Attaching to It a Mechanic's Lien Fails.

Bridgeport, Conn., June 6.—John L. Throckmorton of New York, who has a claim of $11,000 against the $30,000 property of George W. Chapman of Fairfield, a former railroad magnate, was given a set-back by Judge Hall of the superior court yesterday afternoon. Mr. Throckmorton claims that by the purchase of a builder's lien on the property of $1,500 and because the other creditors of Chapman failed to answer to a foreclosure action recently instituted by the Bridgeport Savings bank, he owns all the equity after the bank's mortgage of $5,000 is satisfied. He raised these questions when the bank recently instituted the proceedings in hope that his claims would be sanctioned by the court. The decision rendered throws out the claims completely and says they have no place in the action at all.

FATALLY INJURED THE WARDEN.

A Doomed Convict Throws Himself over the Prison Staircase.

Berlin, June 6.—A criminal named Oehlmann was beheaded at Brunswick early yesterday for the murder of his aunt and cousin. On his way to the place of execution Oehlmann attempted to commit suicide by throwing himself over the prison staircase, dragging with him the warden who had him in charge. The warden was frightfully hurt and is dying.

SUICIDE OR MURDER?

THAT IS THE PERPLEXING QUESTION IN THE JACKSON CASE.

The Coroner's Jury Rendered a Verdict Accusing the Husband—Friends Say He Can Prove His Innocence.

The village of New Market assumed its usual quietude yesterday and no one would ever imagine that within its borders a mysterious fatality had been enacted. The body of Mrs. C. H. Jackson was taken charge of Saturday night by A. M. Runyon & Son, undertakers, and brought to this city, and yesterday it was removed to Richland, near Alfred, N. Y., where the funeral will be held. The two children were brought to Plainfield yesterday and are being taken care of by J. P. Mosher, of 453 West Sixth street. The verdict of the Coroner's jury was that "Mary Jackson came to her death by pistol shots inflicted by the hand of her husband." The following men were summoned by Justice Storms on Saturday to serve as jurors:—C. E. Kelley, Abner S. Coriell, Luther Mundy, C. T. Rogers, A. E. Curtis, Geo. W. Day, Willard Larabee, W. R. Larkin, J. G. Burdick, S. R. Dayton, W. J. Davis, and J. R. Dunham. They met Coroner Brice, of Perth Amboy, and County Physician Long, of New Brunswick, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Titsworth, for the purpose of viewing the remains. They then adjourned to a bedroom where the inquest was held. A most unusual thing happened at this time, when the officials refused to allow representatives of the press to be present; in fact, everyone except the jurors and officials were excluded The principal witnesses called were Dr. Whitford, Rev. Mr. Peterson, C. H. Jackson, husband of the murdered woman, Miss Titsworth and Miss Palmburger. A strange part of the proceedings is that Dr. Whitford's testimony substantiated Mr. Jackson's while it conflicted with the testimony given by Mr. Peterson. In regard to the letter which was written with a lead pencil, the jury could not find a similarity to Mrs. Jackson's handwriting in ink, samples of which they had, but to them it appeared that an attempt had been made to imitate it. Miss Titsworth and Miss Palmburger testified that they thought the writing was Mrs. Jackson's.

Dr. Whitford was asked by one of the jurors if either shot was sufficient to kill the woman, but as the Coroner said he was not obliged to answer the question, he made no reply.

A very important point was made in connection with the affair. According to Mr. Jackson's testimony he was the only awakened by the pistol-shot, and he rushed at once to the bedside of his wife. Mrs. Jackson then told her husband to call Mrs. Titsworth, the mistress of the house, and then go at once for Dr. Whitford. He partly dressed and went for the doctor, but did not call Mrs. Titsworth at the time. When he reached the street, he says, he heard a second shot, but this did not stop him and he started for the doctor. When he arrived at the latter's house and told the doctor of the affair, he waited until the doctor dressed and then walked back with him, at the same time talking about the shooting.

Some people are inclined to believe that if Mrs. Jackson had intended to commit suicide, she would not have importuned her husband to go for a doctor.

After the evidence was submitted, the jury was out two hours when they returned with the verdict as given above. Their decision was unanimous and was reached on the testimony given by Mr. Jackson, Dr. Whitford and Mr. Peterson.

An important fact not brought out at the inquest was that Mrs. Jackson and her mother expected to sail for Europe this week, and the money Mrs. Jackson was receiving from the kindergarten was in measure to help pay for the trip. Last Friday night when Mr. Jackson came home he told his wife that the $60 he intended to give her for the trip abroad, he had loaned to a friend and he did not think he could get it back in time.

Another important point considered is that one of the bullets took a downward track. This it is said by some is almost improbable if Mrs. Jackson committed the deed.

The autopsy, performed after the verdict was given, showed that both bullets entered the brain.

Mr. Jackson was, perhaps, too free to talk on Saturday, and in a number of instances his statements were conflicting.

This fact started a great deal of talk among the people present. The universal opinion of the New Market people is that the verdict given is a just one. Not that they wish to be

DAGO DREW A STILLETO

PATROLMAN M'CUE AVOIDED AN ATTACK BY QUICK ACTION.

An Italian Arrested for Cruelty to a Horse Attemps to Draw a Sharp-pointed Knife on the Officer Who Arrested Him.

A stilletto is a rather strange instrument with which to kill a cow, but an Italian with an aristocratic name that sounded something like "Donato Bona Voglia," who appeared in the city court this morning, claimed that he carried one for that object. Patrolman McCue stood in the rear of the court room when he said it, and wondered if "cow" was Italian for "policeman," for only a short time before the man had attempted to use that sharp instrument on him.

The police have lately been looking for an Italian that was driving a horse that had one leg broken, and Patrolman McCue was instructed to walk up East Front street this morning to see if he could meet the Italian on his way from Scotch Plains, where he lives.

McCue met the man and saw the horse, which was in a terrible condition. He arrested "Donato Bona Voglia." and started to march him to jail while another man led the horse there. As the officer and his prisoner tramped along Park avenue the latter began fumbling inside his coat and the policeman saw the flash or steel. The next instant McCue's fingers closed uncomfortably tight over the vocal organs of the native of sunny Italy, and the officer investigated. He found a long, narrow knife of the stilletto type, hidden away in a leather case inside the Italian's coat.

"Donato, etc.," was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza on the charge of carrying concealed weapons. He claimed that it was not a weapon, but that he had it to kill his cow with yesterday. As the edges were dull and the point exceedingly sharp, the Judge was forced to doubt his word and fined him $15, which was paid by a friend.

In the meantime Dr. Herbert had been called to examine the horse and declared it had the hip disease and one leg broken. It could not be cured, and he said the animal should be shot. Ex-Marshal Pangborn, agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, put it out of misery. He is also going to prosecute the owner.

CONVICTED OF SELLING HARD CIDER.

Judge DeMeza Suspends Sentence and Lectures the Offenders.

Judge DeMeza this morning announced his decision in the case of the city against Rev. Aaron Gorwitz and Morris Cassedy, who were charged with violating the city ordinance prohibiting the sale of hard cider on Sunday. He pronounced them guilty, but suspended sentence. In announcing the sentence the Judge stated that a repetition of the offense would be accompanied by the fullest penalty that the law allows.

Work of Rachel Mair.

Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson conducted the W. C. T. U. four o'clock service yesterday afternoon at which time encouraging remarks were made by the members and visitors. Mrs. W. J. Ford gave an interesting report of a letter received by her from Miss Rachel Mair, telling of the work now being carried on by Miss Mair in Africa. The latter has charge of a small Methodist church, in which two services are held on Sunday and several meeting are held during the week. Every Sunday the church is full to overflowing with natives, who enjoy the music on the organ, the singing and the speaking. Miss Mair sent loving messages to her home and asked that they remember her in their prayers for the success of her work.

Ten Days for Being Drunk.

Frank Moncton and J. Coits were brought before Justice Crosley this morning charged with being drunk and disorderly. The former was arrested by Marshal Hansen Sunday morning on Somerset street, and the latter by Chief Wilson on Chatham street at the same time. Both were given ten days at Somerville.

Frank Venino, of West Hoboken, has been the guest of Clifford M. Crane, of West Eighth street.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

FELL INTO TIER'S LAKE.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS NARROWLY ESCAPE DROWNING YESTERDAY.

They Walked Out on a Slippery Plank and Were Thrown Into the Swirling Water.—Three Boys Were Near and Saved Them.

A very narrow escape from drowning occurred near the dam at Tier's lake yesterday afternoon, in which two little girls fell into ten feet of water and but for the heroic efforts of three boys, would certainly have been drowned.

Mamie Long and Florence Wilson, two little girls who reside on East Fourth street, asked permission of their parents to go for a walk about 3:30 yesterday afternoon and upon gaining consent, thought they would stroll along Tier's pond. They gathered flowers on their way and were in a happy frame of mind.

On one side of the dam at the lake are the flood-gates, used to regulate the flow of water into the raceway which runs to French's mills. The lake was full of water as a result of the morning's rain, the gates were open and the water was sweeping through them with great force.

The two girls, hand in hand, walked out on a plank which lays on the framework of the gates, and as they did so, the plank tipped to one side, and threw the two children into the ten feet of black, swirling water.

Their fall had been witnessed by Harry Boyd, a colored lad, and Tommy and Will Mullin, who lost no time in going to the rescue.

At first they could not locate the girls and the fear that the strong current might have swept them down the raceway, and, if such was the case, they were beyond all help.

Finally, one of the girls came to the surface, and the boys fished her out. She was Mamie Long. Florence Wilson was still under the water, and one of the boys plunged in after her. He was successful in his heroic act and brought her safely to land.

There is no question but that if the boys had not been in the near vicinity at the time, a life, possibly two, would have been lost, for when little Miss Long reached the surface, she had strength and presence of mind enough to grasp the framework of the gates and partially lift herself out of the water.

The two little girls soon recovered from their wetting and were playing together again later in the afternoon.

The parents of the children wish to thank the boys for their brave act.

THE FUNERAL OF S. P. DUNN.

The First Baptist Church Almost Filled With Friends and Relatives.

The funeral of the late Samuel P. Dunn took place Saturday afternoon in the First Baptist church. The edifice was almost completely filled by those who had come to witness the last sad rites over the body of one who was so universally loved.

Rev. Dr. Richards spoke very touchingly of the departed. He told of the steadfast Christian life which the deceased had always lead, and how willing he was to contribute to and help along any work which the church had in view. He also cited many touching incidents of the life of the deceased, where they had come in contact.

During the service the choir rendered "Abide With Me" and "Nearer My God to Thee," two favorite hymns of the departed. The floral offering was an unusually large one, the casket being almost completely hidden from view. When the casket was opened so that those present might take a last look at the departed, almost everyone in the church went forward, and there were few dry eyes in the church. Interment was in Evergreen cemetery

Funeral of Henry Burnett.

The funeral of Henry Burnett, who was killed at the grade crossing of the Lehigh Valley Railroad at South Plainfield last Wednesday, was held yesterday afternoon at his late home near Union Village at 12:30 o'clock. A large number of relatives and friends were present and many of them were unable to gain admittance to the house, but stood with uncovered heads in the yard while the services were being conducted. A number of large floral pieces rested on the casket. A beautiful wreath with "Our Father" worked in set flowers was the floral contribution of the deceased's children. After the brief services were held at the house the remains and mourners were taken to the Myersville Presbyterian church, where Rev. Mr. Ryno preached a consoling sermon to the sorrowing relatives. The remains were interred in the family plot at Myersville.

—At Warren chapel yesterday morning six were received into the church on confession of faith and three by letter. The communion service was held.

MADE A GREAT FINISH.

PLAINFELD BALL TOSSERS PLAY A RATLING GOOD GAME.

Won From One of the Best Teams in the Metropolitan District—It Was an Uphill Fight From the Start to the Finish.

One of the most exciting games of baseball ever witnessed in Plainfield took place Saturday afternoon when the Y. M. C. A. team met the Kings County A. C. The latter team is a very strong one, comprising men who have played on the diamond for years. When McIndoe, the old Crescent favorite, made his appearance he met with a hearty ovation from his many friends. Johnson pitched two innings for the home team and after the visitors had made ten runs he was retired to left field and McLaughlin went in the box, and during the rest of the game only six runs were made by the visitors, while in the same time the home team made sixteen runs. Brun was batted freely and only in three innings did they fail to score. There was lots of hard hitting and good fielding throughout the game. Owing to the absence of McKelvey, Schoonmaker was placed on third base and Cory on second. The former put up a fine game both in the field and at the bat, while Cory played an almost perfect game. Dennis put up his best game of the season. His throwing to second base was great and nearly every time the runner was caught when an attempt to steal was made. The Y. M. C. A. team deserve credit for winning the game as they had a hard up-hill fight. Several times the score was close and on the wind-up they made a great finish. In the last inning they made seven runs. At this time Brun went to second and Paasch took the box, but the game was then won by the home team. The score in full is as follows:

CHILDREN'S DAY EXERCISES.

Held in the Seventh-day Baptist Church Last (Sabbath) Saturday.

The Children's Day exercises of the Seventh-day Baptist church were held Saturday morning in the church. The exercises were given up to the Juniors, who creditably executed all that was assigned to them. The pulpit was prettily decorated with choice flowers, and three large American flags were stretched across the front of the organ.

The principal feature of the exercises was a dialogue entitled, "The Christian Armor." Each one who took part recited a verse or two. Those who took part were: Kizzie Naegle, Grace VanSyckle, Stanley Mosher, Edith Titsworth, Harry Rodgers, Ethel Titsworth, Charles Naegle, Charles Titsworth, Bertha Mitchell, Lawrence Miller, Wentel Mosher, George Babcock and Nellie Miller. Rev. Mr. Kelly also made a few remarks appropriate to the occasion.

Children's Day at Pluckamin.

Children's Day exercises were observed yesterday at the chapel near Pluckamin. The chapel was nicely decorated, the exercises, consisting of dialogues, recitations and singing, were well rendered and appreciated by all. Rev. Mr. Perry, of Pluckamin, Rev. Mr. Opdpke, of Mt. Horeb, Horace J. Martin and L. A. Hummer, of Plainfield, were present and rendered appropriate selections, which were pleasingly received.

—West Front street below Washington avenue is soon to be torn up again for the purpose of laying gas pipe.

Mothers will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy especially valuable for and whooping cough. It will give prompt relief and is safe and pleasant. We have sold it for several years and it has never failed to give the most perfect satisfaction. G. W. Richards, Duquesne, Pa. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

LARRY WALLACE DEFIANT

CLAIMS HE DID NOT PILE TIES ON THE CENTRAL TRACK.

He Prefers to Await the Action of the Grand Jury Rather Than to Have an Examination Before Justice Nash.

Who is the man that made the dastardly attempt to wreck a Jersey Central train? "Larry" Wallace says it was three itinerant umbrella menders while other evidence points towards Wallace as the probable man. The four men, who were arrested on suspicion early Saturday morning, came up before Justice Nash Saturday afternoon. They appeared separately. Wallace pleaded not guilty and preferred to go before the Grand Jury than have a hearing before Justice Nash. He was sent to the Elizabeth jail to await the convening of the Grand Jury He did not appear worried in the slightest, but acted in an independent manner that was almost defiant.

The three umbrella menders, James Emerson, Joseph Donohue and Thos. Burns, protested that they were not in the affair at all and asked for a public hearing, which was set down by Justice Nash for Wednesday. City Judge DeMeza represented the railroad company at the appearance Saturday.

The company wish to make an example of the one who maliciously piled the ties on the track, and it will go hard with anyone against whom the charge is proved.

The umbrella menders claim that they were in the woods enjoying a quart bottle of whiskey when someone yelled at them from the top of the bridge, but it was too dark to tell who it was.

AMATEUR THESPIANS.

A Plainfield Residence Turned Into a Theatre for a Good Cause.

A thoroughly satisfied audience left the residence of N. P. T. Finch, of Belvidere avenue, Saturday evening, after enjoying the dramatic entertainment and dance held there under the auspices of the Altar Society, of St Stephen's church. The two plays were given by Elizabeth amateurs, while all the audience took a hand in the dancing. The stage consisted of a raised platform at one end of the spacious parlor, while the rest of the room was crowded with an appreciative audience that heartily applauded the good acting. The visitors were very entertaining, and both plays passed off without a hitch.

The casts were as follows:

My Uncle's Will.
(In one act.)

Charles Cashmore ..... Arthur West
Mr. Barker ..... Henry Barber
Florence Marigold ..... Miss Marie Prevost
Scene—Drawing room in a house at Brignton.

A Box of Monkeys.
(In two acts.)

Edward Ralston, alias "Ted," a promising young American, half owner of the Sierra Gold Mine ..... Henry Barber
Chauney Oglethorpe, his partner, second son of Lord Doncaster ..... Arthur West
Mrs. Ondego-Jhones, an admirer of rank. Miss Marie Prevost
Sierra Bengaline, her niece, a prairie rose. Miss Julia Brewerton
Lady Guinevere Llandpoore, an English primrose, only daughter of the Earl of Paynaught ..... Miss Mary Barber
Scene—Drawing room in residence of Mrs. Ondego-Jhones, on Fifth avenue.

After the dramatic part of the entertainment was over, lemonade, ice-cream and cake, were sold, and then an informal dance followed that lasted until the hour hand of the clock drew dangerously near twelve.

FARMER JIM'S AMBITION.

Mr. Martine Says He Would Like to Go to Congress.

Farmer James E. Martine was seen by a Daily Press reporter at his Cedar Brook farm yesterday and in a talk on politics the conversation turned to the statement recently published in the Elizabeth Journal saying that Mr. Martine might be called on to accept a Senatorial nomination. In reply to an enquiry, he said:

"I am not a candidate for State Senator."

"Are you a candidate for Congress?"

"It has been the ambition of my life to represent my district in the House of Congress—but I hold that office should not be too eagerly sought nor to lightly refused. Above all, I am a Democrat, believing in the principles and teachings of my party and in the necessity of party organization and dicipline and will willingly obey its behests."

"What do you think of Democratic prospects in the coming campaign?"

"Good! I believe in fighting for principles—I never say stop."

Special Musical Service.

A special musical service was held at the First M. E. church last evening. Instead of the regular sermon a number of hymns of praise and worship were sung by the choir and congregation, before each of which Rev. C. R. Barnes told something of its author and the circumstances under which the hymns were written. There were also several anthems by the choir and a bass solo by Raymond A. McGee.

—Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will hold a regular meeting tomorrow evening.

AN OPPRESSED PEOPLE.

REV. B. FAY MILLS TELLS OF ATROCITIES INFICTED ON ARMENIANS.

At the Mercy of the Bloodthirsty Turks and Unless Relief Comes From Civilized People Many Will Die of Starvation.

An audience that filled the Crescent Avenue church to the doors gathered yesterday afternoon to hear Rev. B. Fay Mills talk on the present situation in Armenia. The service was opened by a hym; reading of the Scriptures Rev. Dr. Richards; hymn; and a few words by Mayor Gilbert, in which he presented Mr. Mills.

The speaker began by telling of the great needs of the people in Armenia at the present time. He said that $500,000 was needed to carry on the relief work contemplated, $100,000 of which had been received. There are 300,000 people in Armenia who will starve before fall, unless assistance is given them. A recital of the facts should be enough to move us in helping along this work. One thing which we should bear in mind is the fact that Armenia is not a country by itself. It is a part of the Turkish Empire. In the principal cities in Armenia the Turks outnumber the Armenians two to one.

The time between 1847 and 1890 has been called the era of persecution. During that time no Armenian has really owned anything, for the Turks would come and steal whatever they wished and if he resisted, the Armenian would pay for it with his life and no report of his death would ever reach the outside world.

The time between 1890 and the present has been called the era of extermination. The Turks seem determined to exterminate the Armenians and to this end they are butchering the men in large numbers while they subject the women to great indignities. The Armenians are not and never have been a warlike people, but have been very progressive and industrious, and these virtues are what have so aroused the anger of the Turks against them.

Armenia, as a nation, was the first to adopt Christianity. They have been followers of Christ for over 1,700 years. Their Bibles and other religious books are written in a language so ancient that no man of the present day can interpret them.

The speaker recited many of the atrocities which have been committed by the turks. The massacres began in August, 1894, and about that time twenty-seven villages were destroyed, 6,000 men and women killed or taken into the vilest kind of slavery and 6,000 or 8,000 more turned out to starve or freeze to death. A favorite pastime with the Turks is to take an Armenian child by the hair, lift it from the ground and hack it to pieces with a sword, before the eyes of its parents.

While these atrocities have been going on, European nations have been idly looking on. On May 1, 1895, the Sultan signed one of the schemes for reform proposed by one of the European nations, and the next day massacres began in fifteen different centres throughout Armenia. In these massacres 60,000 of the bravest and noblest men of Armenia were slain, thousands of women taken into slavery, and 300,000 people left homeless to starve. The latter number have been living on roots and leaves since that time, and it is for these latter that the relief is intended and unless relief is sent them, most of them will perish before fall.

Several times in the different massacres the Turks have saturated their captive Armenians' clothes with kerosene and then set fire to them and burned them alive. At other times, the Turks have hung people up by the head and cut them to pieces, picked pieces of flesh from their bodies with pincers, and have places the men in a cell, the floor and sides of which were covered with spikes, and inflicted other tortures which are too horrible to relate.

At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Mills made a strong plea for money for the sufferers and it is needless to say that after his recital of plain facts, concerning the sufferings of this persecuted people, that the response was a very generous one. The meeting closed with a hymn and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Yerkes.

—A strawberry festival will be held in the chapel of the First Presbyterian church tomorrow evening.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

MAY END WEDNESDAY

Closing Hours of the First Session of the 54th Congress.

RUSHING THE UNFINISHED WORK

Some Unexpected Subject, However, May Prolong the Session for Another Week—Programme of the Business in Hand.

Washington, June 8.—Unless all signs fail congress will adjourn this week, and those in touch with the business of both houses appear to agree that the result may be reached by Wednesday. Still, conditions are such that a hitch may occur at any moment which will protract the session another week. This, however, while a possible contingency, is not expected. The business of the senate depends entirely upon the headway made with conference reports. Several of the appropriation bills are still to be disposed of, as follows: The Indian bill, upon which the house refused to act favorably on the conference agreed to in the senate; the post-office bill, the report on which was agreed to in the house Saturday and will be accepted by the senate to-day; the naval bill, which will doubtless be disposed of speedily to-day, as the conferees have already formulated a compromise which they believe will be acceptable to both houses; the sundry civil bill, upon which the house and senate seemed to be deadlocked over the appropriations for buildings inserted by the senate, and the district bill, numerous items of which are still in dispute. It is confidently expected, however, that all of them will be out of the way within the next forty-eight hours. The new deficiency bill, which passed the house Saturday, will be rushed through the senate to-day with all possible speed, it being the intention of the committee to move to lay on the table any amendments that may be offered, so that the bill will pass as it comes from the house. This motion to lay on the table is the only method the senate has in its rules to cut off all debate, and it will be appealed to liberally when this measure comes up. The immigration bill is the unfinished business, and Mr. Lodge will call it up to-day for consideration if the opening presents itself.

Exceedingly Busy Sessions.

Mr. Hill, who is in charge of the contempt of court bill, a piece of legislation growing out of the Debs case, is also anxious for consideration, and may lock horns with Mr. Lodge for the right of way. Mr. Gear will seek to fix a day during the next session when the Pacific railroad refunding acts shall be taken up. In this he may succeed as both friends and opponents believe that this subject should be settled one way or the other. All of these and other matters that may come before the senate will tend to make the next few days exceedingly busy ones, and if Mr. Allison, chairman of the committee on appropriations, carries out his previously expressed intention of not reporting the adjournment resolution until all the appropriation bills have gone to the president, there may be ample time to discuss several things upon which senators desire to speak. The course of business is, therefore, uncertain and a forecast is largely conjectural.

House of Representatives.

The house will devote itself for the remainder of the session to disposing of conference reports, contested election cases and of other business under suspension of the rules. It will meet for an hour to-day in continuation of Saturday's session in order to enable members to move the passage of bills under suspension, in accordance with the terms of the order of Friday last. There are two election cases on the calendar, both of which will be vigorously contested on the floor—T. W. Aldrich, rep., vs. Oscar W. Underwood, dem., from the ninth Alabama district, where the committee recommend the seating of Aldrich, and Jacob Yost, rep., vs. H. George Tucker, dem., from the tenth Virginia district, where the committee recommend that Tucker retain his seat. Another case—that of U. T. Hopkins, rep., vs. Joseph M. Kendall, dem., from the tenth Kentucky district—has not yet been reported from the committee. These are all that remain of thirty-three contests filed with the clerk of the house.

Little of Importance Accomplished.

The present congress enjoys the distinction of being the shortest "long" session congress for a period of thirty years. A senate passively indifferent in some instances, and in others actively hostile, with an executive not in sympathy with republican party politics, are the reasons assigned by the leaders of the house for the paucity of national legislation. Of the bills which did become laws, the most important, from an international standpoint, was the one creating the commission "to determine the true divisional line between Venezuela and British Guiana." Of scarcely less general importance were the bills prohibiting prize fighting in the territories; permitting appointments in the army and navy of former United States officers who served in the rebellion on the confederate side, and making one year's residence in a territory a prerequisite to obtaining a divorce there. Excepting these, however, the remainder of the 225 bills and resolutions which received the president's approval were not of a nature to deserve extended mention.

LEE LOSES NO TIME

SECURES THE RELEASE OF DAWLEY

The Newspaper Artist's Freedom Restored as a Personal Favor—Shocking Atrocities Committed by Spanish Soldiers on a Plantation.

Havana, June 8.—Consul-General Fitzhugh Lee yesterday afternoon visited the men who were captured on the filibustering schooner Competitor, and who are now confined in the Cabana fortress under sentence of death. Gen. Lee found the prisoners lodged in unhealthy quarters and will request Capt.-Gen. Weyler to order that they be given better accommodations. The consul-general also saw Julio Sanguilly, an American citizen, who is under sentence of life imprisonment for conspiring against the peace of Spain, and whose case, on appeal, is now before the court of cessation at Madrid. It is said that Gen. Lee has, as a special favor, requested Capt.-Gen. Weyler to release Mr. Dawley, the correspondent of Harper's Weekly, who was arrested a few days ago. The request was granted, and it is expected that Dawley will be released from Morro castle to-day.

To Review the Competitor Case.

Madrid, June 8.—The documents relative to the seizure of the American schooner Competitor and the sentencing of Alfredo Laborde, Owen Milton, William Kinlea, Elias Bedia and Teodore Maza, who were on board of her, have arrived here. They will be immediately submitted to the military and naval council, which will review all the proceedings in the case.

THROWN IN BOILING MOLASSES.

Fate of Two Insurgents Who Fell into the Hands of Spanish Troops.

New York, June 8.—"Two of our men who had been captured by the Spaniards were thrown alive into pans of boiling molasses," writes a member of Jose Maceo's staff in a letter received by T. Estrada Palma Saturday, and printed in the Herald, describing the battle fought early last month on El Triunfo plantation, between the Cubans under Jose Maceo and the Spaniards under Gen. Lachumba. The writer goes on to say that the plantation belongs to an American named Whitney, whose home is in Philadelphia. Maceo knew this and did not wish to fight there, but he could not coax the Spaniards out, so there was no help for it. He ordered an attack, and after five hours' hard fighting the enemy, under cover of darkness fled to Santiago. Of Maceo's 1,500 men 64 were killed or wounded, and for the 2,000 Spaniards the loss was about 300. Among the Cubans slain were Capts. Pruna, Marin and Berges. Marin and Pruna were killed instantly, but Berges was shot through the abdomen and lingered three day in horrible agony. Whitney did all he could to save his buildings, his crops and his servants, but with little success. He raised the flag of the United States, and claimed protection in its name, but the Spaniards pulled it down, spat upon it, tore it into shreds and trampled it into the earth. They killed six of Whitney's help, all, in fact, but his cook, and set fire to his buildings. As a fit climax to their barbarity, they threw the two Cuban prisoners into the boiling molasses, where the bodies were found in the morning by the dead men's friends.

CUBAN REVOLUTION.

Interest Evoked in This Country Evidenced by the Resolutions in Congress.

Washington, June 8.—The popular interest in the Cuban revolution was shown in the present congress in the large number of resolutions, more than fifty in all, that were introduced and referred to the committee on foreign affairs. After careful consideration a concurrent resolution was reported, for which was subsequently substituted, in conference, the senate resolution expressing the sympathy of the United States for the insurgents, recognizing their belligerency and calling upon the president to use his good offices to secure the independence of the island. Being a concurrent and not a joint resolution, it did not call for the president's signature, and its only effect was to express the sentiment of the American people as reflected in the two houses of congress.

American Meats in Germany.

Berlin, June 8.—The foreign office has issued a communication to the press in regard to the practices indulged in by American tinned meat importers in Belgium and Holland who are alleged to be tampering with the cans and sending to Germany, under forged declarations, meats which have not been certified to by the American inspectors. As a consequence, restrictions have been ordered which will affect all American exporters of meats.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? out in the rain

A good drenching in a cold rain is often the beginning of consumption. Yet no one claims that the germs of this disease exist in the rainwater. Then how was this brought about? The exposure was followed by a cold; the vitality was lowered; the cough continued for some weeks; the throat and lungs became congested; and thus all the conditions were favorable for the consumption germs.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, does not directly attack these germs and kill them. But it does tone up the whole system and restores the body to health before serious harm is done. The germs of consumption thrive best when the system is weakened and the throat and lungs congested. Do not delay until it is too late, but treat your cough early. Cod-liver oil and the hypophosphites, in the form of Scott's Emulsion, are the very best remedies.

CRETAN SITUATION

No Concerted Action of the Powers at All Probable.

GERMANY'S POLICY NOT HOSTILE

Russia Exerting a Practical Protectorate over Turkey, and Will Submit To No Attempt at the Dismemberment of the Sultan's Domain.

Berlin, June 7.—The concert of the powers relative to the situation in the island of Crete is of much the same character as was the now exploded entente of the powers in regard to Armenia, and all semblance of unity of purpose is certain to disappear upon the slightest approach to a collision of interests. The Cologne Gazette in an exhaustive article on the subject thoroughly lights up the situation. The Vienna Freie Presse, taking the text of Emperor Francis Joseph's speech to the Austro-Hungarian delegations, argued that the emperor's declarations gave proof that the dreibund powers were agreed upon a common policy toward Turkey: that the interests of Austria were also the interests of Germany, and that the dreibund was destined to intervene in Turkey almost immediately. These arguments are boldly and unequivocally attacked by the Berlin representative of the Cologne Gazette in a communication, wherein the writer pointedly declares that Germany will take no direct part in events in the east, and merely desires that order shall be maintained and the statue quo continued. The policy of Germany upon this question, the writer adds, is identical with that of the other powers, and above all that of Russia. The Gazette in its article which accompanies this communication gives no hint, however, as to the drift of the czar's policy, to which Germany is alleged to be attached.

Russia's Protectoral Over Turkey.

The Vossische Zeitung in an article on the same subject asserts that Russia is exerting a practical protectorate over the Turkish empire, and will not under any circumstances allow any power to interfere, nor will she accede to anything tending towards a separation or dismemberment of the sultan's dominions. Pursuing the subject the Vossische Zeitung asks: "Will Russia so influence the negotiations of the powers as to cause delay which will enable the Turkish troops in the island of Crete, which have now been increased to 18,000 men, to overpower the Cretans and repeat the Armenian massacres?" The king of Greece and the Grecian ministry seem to rely upon the warships which the powers have sent to Canea and Retimo to intervene in the event of a massacre of Cretans by the Turks, but at the same time the Grecian fleet is being mobilized, and the ironclads Hydra, Spetzia, Psara Georgios, the cruiser Admiral Mizulis and fifteen torpedo boats are ready to make their appearance in Cretan waters without the sanction of Russia, if the unanimous voice of the Greek people shall compel the government to act. The Cretan delegates who are now at Athens have presented an appeal to the Greek government for a union of Crete with Greece which was drawn up by an assembly of Cretan deputies which was held at Vamos on May 21.

Sugar Bounties in Austria.

The contention of the German government, which has often been heard in the reichstag in the course of the debates on the sugar bounty bill, that a large increase of the premiums upon sugar was the first step toward an international agreement to abolish sugar bounties altogether, has received a flat contradiction by the action of the Austro-Hungarian government in promoting bills in the Austrian reichsrath increasing the amount granted for the payment of the sugar bounties from 5,000,000 to 9,000,000 florins per annum. The measures introduced by the government are provisional, and purport to be enduring for one year only, but they are certain to become permanent laws, as there is a strong sugar interest in Austria. By the terms of these bills, the internal sugar tax is increased from eleven to thirteen florins per 100 kilogrammes, so that the consumers are thus squeezed all around, paying more for their own sugar and supporting manufacturers in supplying cheaper sugar, the United States and England being the principal importers.

DYNAMITE IN SPAIN

SIX PERSONS KILLED; 24 WOUNDED

Several Arrests Made, But the Police Have No Evidence To Convict—Several Houses Damaged at Orendain.

Barcelona, June 8.—The anarchists have resumed their activity in this city, and much fear is entertained that they will inaugurate another reign of terror similar to that which prevailed in 1892 and 1893, when there were many explosions here, in Madrid, and in other Spanish cities. At 9 o'clock last night a bomb exploded while a religious procession was taking place, and several persons were killed. The outrage has caused the greatest excitement. The authorities held a meeting subsequent to the explosion and resolved to take energetic measures to discover the author of the crime and to prevent further outrages. This is the second outrage or attempted outrage within a few days. During a religious procession on the feast of Corpus Christi a bomb was found in a dust heap near the cathedral. It was evidently the intention of those who placed the bomb where it was found to kill or maim some of those taking part in the procession.

Six Killed; Twenty-four Wounded.

Six persons were killed by the explosion and twenty-four wounded. It is not known what explosive the bomb contained, but judging from its effects it must have been very powerful. The captain-general of the province of Barcelona acted as standard-bearer in the procession, while the civil governor and the city alcade held the streamers of the banner. It is thought that the designers of the outrage contemplated killing these officials. The police think that perhaps they will be able to catch those responsible for the crime through the confession of some of the anarchists now under arrest.

Priest's House Badly Damaged.

Madrid, June 8.—Two dynamite cartridges exploded last night outside of a house occupied by a priest at Orendain, near St. Sebastian, province of Guipuzcoa. The house and other buildings in the vicinity were badly damaged, but nobody was hurt.

HUNGARY'S CELEBRATION.

Crown Regalia Viewed by Hundreds of Thousands of People Yesterday.

Budapest, June 8.—The crown regalia was displayed yesterday in connection with the celebration in honor of the one thousandth anniversary of the founding of the Hungarian kingdom. The regalia was viewed by 600,000 persons, while 500,000 others were unable to gain admission to the building in which the emblems of royalty were displayed. The crowds in the city are enormous. The streets are impassable to vehicular traffic, and pedestrians find the greatest difficulty in getting from one part of the city to another. The hotels and boarding houses are filled to their utmost capacity. The railways are unceasingly bringing in hundreds of visitors from the country districts. To-day there will be inaugurated on the plain of Pusztaszer a monument to Prince Arpad. The site of the monument is where the first constitutional compact was made by Prince Arpad and the chiefs of the nation.

THE BERLIN RACES.

Discontinued Because of Jealousy of American Trainers and Horses.

Berlin, June 8.—The series of trotting races on the Berlin West End course has ended in discord which was wholly due to the jealousy of the Berlin horsmen of the American trainers and their horses. Through the intrigues of a German trainer named Trouberz, the American trainer Tappan was ruled off the track for a year, it being alleged that he pulled his horse. The injustice of this action on the part of the managers of the course was so flagrant that several Berlin newspapers have taken up Tappan's case and violently denounce the racing authorities for the manner in which he has been treated.

A. S. Chase Dies in Paris.

Waterbury, Conn., June 8.—Augustus Sabin Chase, the most prominent manufacturer in western Connecticut, a newspaper publisher and a banker, died in Paris yesterday of heart failure. He left Waterbury two and a half months ago for an extended European pleasure trip. His wife and two daughters were with him. His son, Irving, sailed last week to join the party, but he has not reached the other side. Mr. Chase was born in Pomfret, Conn., August 15, 1828.

The German Empress and Mrs. Uhl.

Berlin, June 8.—The empress was exceedingly gracious and friendly toward Mrs. Uhl, the wife of the United States ambassador, upon the occasion of that lady's first audience with her majesty. The kaiserin conducted her conversation in English, and in every way made Mrs. Uhl feel at ease. On Friday Mr. and Mrs. Uhl gave their first reception to the diplomatic corps at their residence in the Thiergartenstrasse.

Ohio for Silver.

Chicago, June 8.—A special from Cincinnati says: The election of delegates show that the democratic state convention will be overwhelmingly for silver.

Captain of Williams Athletic Team.

Williamstown, Mass., June 7.—William B. Bliss, '97, of Fall River, has been elected captain of the Williams athletic team.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

(Furnished by Weather Observer Neagle.)

Local Rain Tonight and Tuesday; Probably Thunderstorms Tonight; Cooler Tuesday.

At 2 o'Clock Leggett's Thermometer Registered 85 Degrees.

A newspaper published in an Oklamoma town, where the women recently carried the election, sent the following order to a supply house: "Please send us one small cut of a hen. Women carried the election here, and I suppose we will have to swing out a hen instead of a rooster."

The editorial in The Daily Press, Saturday, condemning the action of three Borough Councilmen in temporarily delaying the progress of opening Watchung avenue struck the popular chord, as was expected. It was warmly commended by prominent citizens all over the borough as representing the spirit of the people, and it is a fact that the three Councilmen stand almost alone in their views of collecting assessments before the work is started. So far as The Press has been able to learn, not one voice has been raised in support of their ideas.

And now that the matter of opening Watchung avenue on the borough side has been brought so forcibly before the people, and the sentiment is so overwhelmingly in favor of rapid progress in starting the work, it is an opportune time to ask what the commissioners on the opening of the avenue on the city side have been or are doing along this line of work. The Press is aware of one man who owns property that will be benefited by the opening and who says that as soon as it is an established fact that the street is going through, he will put up a block of stores and flats that will be a credit to the city, and in the construction of which a large number of the city's unemployed would gain work.

THE FRESH AIR CAMP.

A Party of Charitable Men Start the Work of Making it Ready For Use.

In George Huff's bus, Saturday, the following men went to the point on Johnston's drive where the summer camp for sick children is to be located, and with a willing spirit commenced the work of preparing the ground for the uses it is to be put in, providing a healthy recreation spot for sick children and poor mothers: John Thompson, Fred Wharton, Harry Brentwell, William Morris, Robert Schlerah, James Brown, Thomas Brown, George Leighs, Harry Vogel, Harry Connett, Samuel Smith, Joseph Flack, F. McVey, August Grottman and William Gunzleman.

Plenty of axes, picks, shovels, crowbars and the like were taken along, and the party was divided into gangs, each working at some particular thing. Some excavated post holes for the building, others cleared away the underbrush and others followed after them in making the place ready for use by building ptahways, stone steps and other rustic surroundings. The work was carried on in a spirit that allowed a good deal of jesting among the party, but it did not interfere in any way with the practical and rapid manner in which they accomplished what they started in to execute. The King's Daughters sent up a liberal supply of sandwiches and lemonade, which were devoured with appreciation by the party after a hard afternoon's work. Rev. C. E. Herring rode to the spot on his wheel, and was much pleased with the work that had been done.

The site is a most beautiful one, and is situated at the second clearing beyond Vail's springs.

Must Pay the Servant.

Justice Newcorn rendered his decision this morning in the case of Gartland against Ellis, giving the plaintiff judgment for the full amount. Lawyer W. A. Coddington for the defence at once gave notice of appeal. Lawyer Swackhamer represented the plaintiff. The details of the case were published last week in these columns, and was a suit brought by a servant girl against her mistress.

Wife failed to Appear.

Lawrence Heffren was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this morning on the charge of being disorderly and beating his wife on West Third street. His wife did not appear against him and the complaint was dismissed.

—The regular monthly missionary lecture will be given at the First Presbyterian church on Wednesday evening, when Rev. C. E. Herring will give an illustrated lecture on "Japan."

A. L. Wooster, a prominent citizen of Osseo, Mich., after suffering excruciatingly from piles for twenty years, was cured in a short time by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, an absolute cure for all skin diseases. More of this preparation is used than all others combined. For sale by L. W. Randolph, 143 West Front Street.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. SUICIDE OR MURDER?

severe on a fellow townsman, but they think it is the only verdict that could be given fairly on the evidence produced. A few people criticize the jurors severely for the result of their deliberations and think it is unjust.

A representative of The Daily Press called, yesterday, on C. E. Kelly, foreman of the jury, at his home and found him willing to talk about the affair. He said that according to his best judgment the verdict was a fair one. The evidence, he said, was very carefully considered, and it was thought to be amply sufficient to warrant the verdict. There is some talk about New Market that the jurors were influenced by the coroner, but an investigation did not reveal that fact.

Constable Dougherty took Mr. Jackson to New Brunswick Saturday night where he is held to await further action in his case.

A reporter of the New Brunswick Times this morning endeavored to interview Jackson in the Middlesex county jail, but he absolutely refused to talk about the case. He has retained Lawyer Ransom, of Jersey City.

Prosecutor Voorhees has received the report of County Physician Long, but refuses to make public its contents. Dr. Long in a private conversation corroborated Dr. Whitford's statement that the first shot could not have caused the death of Mrs. Jackson. No action has yet been taken toward arraigning Jackson before the court.

Prosecuting Attorney Voorhees, of New Brunswick, served a notice on A. M. Runyon & Son, yesterday, not to remove the body from this State until they received orders. However, a service will be held at Alfred, N. Y., tomorrow afternoon, without the body. At the same time a service will be held at the home of J. P. Mosher, on East Sixth street, with the remains, after which the remains will be placed in a vault at Hillside cemetery under a justice seal, to await further action.

The children were sent to the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Carter, at Alfred, this morning.

Several reports were current on the street this morning. One is that the members of the Reporters Association of New York have raised $1,000 and intend retaining Lawyer Brooke, the famous criminal lawyer of New York. Another story is that the revolver found in Mrs. Jackson's bed is not thought to be the one which caused death, as it is said that the revolver in its condition could not have been used. No other weapon has been found however. The general opinion seems to be that the proof Jackson's guilt or innocence now hangs on the letter. It is also said that Mrs. Jackson was never inclined to be downhearted or discouraged, and always bore a cheerful disposition.

A strange rumor was circulated last evening about town. It was remarked that Jackson had a wife and family in England and that he did not want his wife to find it out.

Nothing authentic could be learned about the latter rumor. A Daily Press reporter on investigation could not ascertain that any public indignation meeting was likely to be held regarding the verdict.

All the New York newspapers are severe in their criticism of the verdict of the Coroner's jury, claiming that the evidence did not warrant the accusation against Jackson. While many interviews are given of those in New Market who, it is said, condemn the verdict, no names are published. A portion of The Sun's story this morning is as follows:

"'My mamma is sick. She's not very sick. The pistol hurt her. The doctor is giving her medicine. I guess the bad old pistol waked me up. I heard my mamma crying. I runned into her room and I saw the pistol on the bed. I touched the old pistol, but I touched it carefully. When papa came in I gave him the pistol.'

"This statement was made to Mrs. A. H. Burdick, of New Market, N. J., yesterday morning, by Charles Carter Jackson, the four-and-a-half-year-old son of Charles H. Jackson, who, on Saturday, was sent to jail, charged by a Coroner's jury with the murder of his wife, Mary S. Jackson.

"The day after a young man had been branded as a wife murderer, and had been made to stand almost in the shadow of the scaffold, his elder son tells a story, in baby language, to be sure, but as well as a baby's brain could think the sentences his lips expressed, that would seem to completely exonerate the father from the terrible crime of which he is accused.

"Soon after the death of Mrs. Jackson on Saturday morning the two Jackson children, Charles Carter and his two-and-a-half-year-old brother, Donald Le Jeune, were taken to the residence of A. H. Burdick, not far from where the Jacksons lived, to receive at Mrs. Burdick's hands the care that a mother would never give them again.

"Yesterday morning, before the little fellows were taken to relatives of their dead mother in Plainfield, Carter, as everybody calls him, made that portion of the statement quoted above, relative to his mother's sickness and the cause of it.

"The child did not know that 'the bad old pistol' had killed his mother. After that Mrs. Burdick asked the child if he touched the pistol. Then he made the rest of the statement quoted. Mrs. Burdick repeated the statement to a reporter yesterday afternoon."

The Sun then goes on to say that there is talk of holding a public indignation meeting in New Market to condemn the action of the jury.

Jackson occupies a cell in the New Brunswick jail with another man charged with murder.

When seen there by a Sun reporter yesterday afternoon he looked like a man who had gone through a long seige of sickness.

He said he had not slept any during the night, and his appearance indicated it. He seemed to think little of himself, but spoke of his dead wife and his motherless children.

He spoke bitterly of the fate which made it impossible for him to follow his wife's remains to the grave and expressed great anxiety as to the future of the children.

He was greatly cheered yesterday morning, however, by a call made by a representative of the managing editor of the Morning Advertiser, the paper for which he works.

The representative brought with him a note in which the kindliest expressions of all the staff of the paper were given.

He was assured that the paper would stand by him to the end, and that he would be furnished with all necessary money and a good lawyer. The paper has retained for Jackson Allan McDermott of Jersey City.

It is expected that an effort will be made to procure Jackson's release upon habeas corpus proceedings.

District Attorney John S. Voorhis said yesterday that Jackson's case hinges upon whether his wife wrote the letter to her husband which he says he found after her death.

TO SINK WATER WELLS.

Thomas Doud Engaged to Furnish Morristown With a Water Supply.

Thomas Doud, the contractor, of Duer street, left town today for Morristown where he has been engaged to sink wells for the purpose of furnishing a water supply for that place. Should he be successful in finding a sufficient quantity of water he will lay water mains throughout the streets of that town. The citizens of Morristown are to be congratulated upon securing so practical and efficient a person as is Mr. Doud for that kind of work, as he is a master mechanic in that branch and one who has had many years of practical experience. Mr. Doud laid the water plant in this city and his work was first-class.

When the water mains were completed the streets through which they were laid were replaced to the saisfaction of the authorities and the public. If the contractors who put in the sewer system had done their work as well as Mr. Doud did his there would not have been so much fault found and the contractors money would have been paid them long ago.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

"He was not with you in Brazil?"

"No. His home was there, and we heard a good deal of his plantations, but he spent most of his time in Europe. We met him afterward at Baden, but failed to see much of him, for business of some sort called him away a few days later."

It was difficult to imagine that the gentleman in question, in his intimacy with my friends, had been entirely actuated by regard for an elderly person half mad about her health. I felt something akin to a pang of jealousy; though I tried to conceal my interest as I asked:

"Trent was a curious place to run across such an admirer of trans-Atlantic civilization, was it not?"

"Our meeting was purely accidental. We were lunching in the restaurant of one of the hotels when he came in and took the table next to ours. We hardly recognized him at first; he had aged much since we saw him last. We were delighted at the meeting, and I think it pleased him as well. He told us that he had been traveling extensively in this country, but evidently he had not enjoyed the life here. In fact, aunt and he fell into a discussion of the manners and customs of the good people of the United States. You should have heard her; she is patriotic to the core. She told him he had had no opportunity to learn how the people really live; and then she insisted that he should come here, for a few days at least, to get just the experience in which he was lacking. He accepted the invitation, after a little hesitation. Honestly, I think he was glad to escape the hotels for awhile. Last evening he and aunt talked for hours about their travels, about this place and its people. She told him how she was gaining under your care, and how fortunate she was in securing such skillful attendance in the country. Perhaps it is as well that you didn't hear her. Flattery is disastrous sometimes, isn't it?"

"But don't you know he is gone?" she asked.

"You should know better than I."

She laughed lightly.

"Nothing but good was said of you," she went on. "Aunt dwelt upon your success with her, and your regular attendance upon the old man who lives over there." She pointed to the knoll, with which we were almost abreast, being distant from it hardly 100 yards.

"She told him what a hermit existence Mr.—Mr Lamar—that is his name, isn't it?—seems to prefer."

"Was he interested?"

"Shall I tell you the plain truth? It may spoil the story."

"The truth always," said I.

"At first he was interested, but very soon he delicately managed to change the subject."

"I don't blame him," I muttered, with a glance at the house showing above the scrubby trees. Her glance followed mine.

"Dr Morris," she asked, after a pause, "is that Mr. Lamar deaf? When I tried to rouse somebody in his house the other day, the place was as unresponsive as a tomb."

"The comparison is excellent," said I avoiding a direct answer to her query, as most men with an aversion to unnecessary falsehoods would have avoided it. "The servant is deaf, and her master is sometimes so self-absorbed that he is even worse off than she."

"What a wretched existence. Is his health altogether gone?"

"He is more comfortable now than when he came here."

I knew that she was studying my face, but I kept my eyes averted.

"It is strange that in this gossip-loving village so little is known of him," she went on. "One hears that he is a retired brewer from the south; but that seems to be the limit of knowledge of his antecedents."

"It is the accepted version," said I. "Really, I know little of his history before he retained me."

Our craft was nearing the mouth of the tidal stream, and a few more vigorous strokes shot it out upon the smooth waters of the bay, hardly rippled by the gentle breeze. To the north were two sloops crawling along on their way to the village. To the south and east curved the long tongue of land which formed the boundary of the bay on two sides and sheltered it from the ocean swell. Not more than half a mile from where we were, a catboat lay at anchor, with a solitary figure lolling over her side. The whole scene was full of the restfulness of the summer afternoon, and the spell of it stole upon us, as if we left behind with the land its anxieties, sorrows and fears. For a time the boat drifted on, propelled more by the current of the bay than by the occasional strokes of the oar. The girl was half reclining, trailing one of her hands in the water and with the other toying with the handle of her parasol, the shaft of which rested on her shoulder. We were both day-dreaming, when a hail came to rouse us from our reveries. Looking up, I found that we were close to the anchored craft, and that Johnson, its occupant, had given us warning none too soon. In a moment we were alongside the catboat, and his hand had caught the gunwale of the skiff.

"Halloo, Johnson!" said I, "what sort of fishing are you doing here? Business or fun?"

"Fun mostly, sir," he answered, pointing to a hand-line hanging over the side. "Nothing of a bigness to be caught here. How does the lady like the boat?"

"Very much indeed," said Miss Gray.

"You'll find she works easy, ma'am," said he.

"We discovered a lot of dried mud on the thwarts," said I. "You can see some of it yet."

"The boat was as clean as a whistle yesterday. Somebody must have been out in her 'tween then and now."

"I believe she was in use this morning," I admitted.

"Well, whoever it was," Johnson declared, after a survey of the skiff, "he must have landed somewhere on the flats, where there was mud, and tracked it in when he came aboard ag'in. Here's another of his marks." And he sent a long arm into the bow of our little vessel and picked up the stump of a cigarette from the planking. As he held it out for inspection the paper unrolled, showing the dark grains of the tobacco.

"I've seen that sorter cigarette before, Doc, and I guess you have, too, but not round these parts," he said. "Dagoes fancy 'em."

"And you don't, eh? Well, I'm of your way of thinking, but the gentleman who was out in the boat this morning wasn't. Come up to the house tomorrow, will you, and give Miss Gray a sailing lesson?"

"Ay, ay, sir," said Johnson. "The boat's very clever under sail. I'll be glad to show her any little p'ints she needs to pick up."

"Your colonel can't be called a very tidy mariner, no matter what his other virtues may be," said I, as we reentered the inlet.

"Why do you call him my colonel?" the girl asked, and it seemed to me that I detected a slight increase in her color. "He is a friend of my aunt's, hardly of mine, though I've always found him very agreeable."

"And attentive?" I hazarded under the spur of revived jealousy.

"Scarcely that," she said, quietly, "though he was always most kind to me."

The spur went deeper.

"Oh, of course," said I, rashly; "and he must have had such delightful opportunities."

"He is a charming man," she answered, with a smile which filled me with misery. I dare say she read me easily, and was quite prepared to prolong the teasing had the chance been given her. But, looking over my shoulder, my glance fell upon Lamar's somber abode. The sight of it made me silent, and, sullenly settling down to the oars, I sent the light craft swiftly on toward its mooring-place.

XVIII.

It is possible that men exist who, in the period succeeding the discovery that they have undergone the mental metamorphosis commonly styled falling in love, and preceding the critical moment when the object of adoration confesses her sentiments of reciprocity or declares the wooing to have been in vain, maintain their clearness of understanding, their evenness of temper, and their soundness of judgment. It is conceivable, I admit, that such men live; but it has never been my lot to enjoy the privilege of acquaintance with one of them. I do not mean that when love flies in at the window common sense rushes out at the door; but I do hold that the new-comer is prone to exert, throughout that period of storm and stress, a semi-paralyzing influence over the old tenant, making him sadly untrustworthy at times when the demands upon him are greatest. Therefore I regard myself as no exception to the general rule—general, that is, so far as my observation goes—in having followed irrational courses and behaved erratically during three weeks or more of dissatisfaction, uncertainty, and doubt. For one of them I made myself miserable through jealousy of the man Dorothy's aunt had been pleased to make her guest. Without a shadow of proof to support the fabric of speculation I laboriously built up, I contrived to persuade myself that he was a rival, favored, of course, for his wealth and position. Even from his hasty departure I gained little comfort. The bugaboo, once installed, was not to be overthrown by such a trifle. Full of gloomy forebodings, I waited for news that he would return, plotting, in my more cheerful intervals, wild schemes for turning his triumphant reappearance into a by-word and a mockery. Once I caught myself reading with vast approval summaries of famous cases in a text-book on toxicology. The volume had been picked up hap-hazard, but its terse account of several noted matters caught my fancy, and I read on until some noise about the house, interrupting my recreation, brought me to a realization of the ridiculousness of the performance — for there were still moments when I could understand that I was playing the fool. Perhaps, also, the plea might be entered that at this time I was a victim of a recurrence of my old perplexities, recent events having served again to force them upon me with even greater vividness than before.

The jealous fit was ended by a letter which the late visitor sent from New York to Mrs. Loring. In it he expressed deep regret that circumstances would prevent him from completing his visit. Business, he explained, called him abroad, and before the missive reached her he would be well on his way to Liverpool. I heard the news with a decent effort at an appearance of regret, and from that moment had a more friendly impression regarding the gallant colonel.

It had been my intention to speak of him to Lamar, rather because of his Brazilian interests, of which my client might know something, than because of his morning cruise about the chan-

Yes, what would she say? Truly I was far from sanguine. I could find no reason for confidence, in spite of many soulful efforts to discover one. We were the best of friends; we were together daily, sometimes for hours at a time; we read together, walked together, and drove together. We had interests in common; in some lines of thought our beliefs were akin. Such things were well enough in their way, but what ground of hope did they furnish? Would not a blush, a sigh, have more meaning? Frequently I read dissertations of the symptoms of the love malady, but surely nowhere had I noted good-fellowship set forth as a distinguishing mark of passion. Then, too, there was the difficulty of the bread-and-butter problem. What business had I to contemplate matrimony, with no well-defined idea how even one mouth was to be filled, in the event of a break with the man who would remain my paymaster no longer than suited his convenience? My savings would cut but a poor figure on a war-chest for a family campaign. Besides, the girl was supposedly well-to-do, and certainly was the heiress of her aunt, whose wealth appeared to be sufficient to enable her to travel wherever she desired, and to pay the bills of high-priced specialists, who charged with an appreciation of the fact that their patients would need to take nothing with them out of this world. It would not be pleasing to be classed as a fortune-hunter. All the philosophy available would not remove the sting from that reproach.

Meditating these things, I fell into habits entirely reprehensible from the standpoint of everyday sanity. I sat up late o' nights, I smoked more strong tobacco than was for my good. I took to moping and violent language. On the whole, it was fortunate that my practice was limited—fortunate for both me and my supposititious patients. Whether anybody guessed the character of my thoughts, or fathomed my moods, was a matter almost of indifference. I told myself that the mask should always be worn in the presence of Mrs. Loring and her niece; as for the others, their opinion did not count. As a matter of fact, I imagine that my secret was known to all the women thereabouts, and perhaps to some of the men. Banks now and then cracked jokes at my expense of a character which gave ground to believe that he had made a shrewd diagnosis of my malady. But, when all is said and done, the simple truth is that I was as nearly at my wits' end, even with the ghost of the colonel's rivalry exorcised, as probably half the adult males of the nation would own themselves to have been on various occasions, would they but make confession.

Mrs. Loring was unquestionably the better for her life in the country. She still kept herself under the discipline of an invalid, though the precaution was entirely unnecessary. Her appetite was excellent, her nerves were al-

SATURDAY, June 6—Sun rises 4:29 a. m., sets 7:27 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:27 p. m. and 3:29 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Rev. P. S. Gibson, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, is learning to master a wheel.

Larry Doyle, Mike Owens, John Conway and George Apgar rode to Newark Saturday afternoon and visited friends.

The Jersey Wheel Company have received a tally-ho tandem for rental purposes. It has a 30-inch rear wheel and 26-inch front wheel. The gear is 90.

Miss Minnie, daughter of Borough Clerk Arnold, is the proud possessor of a new 1896 bicycle, the gift of a friend. A gold plate, with her initials engraved thereon, is on the front fork.

The New York State circuit opened at Fredonia Saturday afternoon. Jay Eaton, of the Jersey Wheel Company's racing team, finished second to Cooper in the one-mile open. A smashup on the stretch distracted the judges' attention, however, and they did not give Eaton the place. H. B. Mosher finished fourth in the two-mile handicap from the 20-yard mark.

The ten mile Journal trophy race for the championship of Union County was held on the Elizabeth-Sprinfield course Saturday afternoon. The Elizabeth Club cyclers were the only club to send a team. The Elizabeth men rode over the course in an attempt to break the record, which would probably have been done had not Chas. A. Appley's tire punctured and he was then forced to stop. The race was won by H. F. Loehrs, on a Jersey wheel in 28:2 2-5. The other men on the team were the Appley brothers, C. J. Bird, "Nick" English, and "Rix" Day.

With 100 more members, the League of American Wheelmen will have reached the 50,000 mark. Last week closed with 49,810, showing an increase of 1,449 over the previous week. New Jersey filed 89 applications and now has 3,668 members all told. This is considered by bicyclists and others as a most admirable showing for one of the smallest States in the Union. The State itself, while somewhat rectangular in shape, furnishes the best roads for both bicycling and carriage driving of any in the country, and there is no good reason advanced why its thoroughfares should not also be the best, which they are.

YACHTING.

J. Wesley Johnson, of LaGrande avenue, has just had his new naptha launch "Aloha," completed and equipped, and it is now anchored off the N. J. A. C. grounds at Bergen Point, waiting for its first trip. Later in the month Harry and Herbert Johnson expect to take the yacht up the Hudson river and the Erie canal, finally to reach the Thousand Islands and the St. Lawrence river. The new yacht is a beauty. It is forty-five feet long, decked over and furnished with saloon, berths and gallery. The power is supplied by a twelve-horse power naptha engine. It is so arranged that the young men will be able to live, eat and sleep in it on their trip to the St. Lawrence.

AROUND THE BASES.

Thomas Keller, of baseball fame, made his first appearance as an umpire, and his decisions with a few exceptions, were excellent. Once or twice the crowd gave him a "roast," but Mr. Keller didn't mind that in the least.

Manager McLoughlin says that the games will have to be given up if the public doesn't support them better. The expenses are heavy and better patronage should be given.

Last Saturday at Metuchen the Plainfield Athletic Club of this city met their first defeat of the season, the score being 26 to 13 in favor of the Metuchen Athletic club. The Plainfield boys did not play as good a game as they did at Westfield for they made a good many errors.

Following will be found the score by innings.

PLAINFIELD BOY AT THE HEAD.

George P. Smith Scores the Highest Number of Points.

The first annual games of the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association were held at the grounds of the New Jersey Athletic Club at Bergen Point Saturday afternoon, and George Proctor Smith, of the High School, in this city, was the hero of the occasion, winning three events, finishing second in one, and tieing for second place in another, scoring altogether 20 points out of the 28 made by the High School.

Considering her small number of entries, Plainfield's showing was very good, there being only one event that her men started in that they did not secure a place. Hillman deserved first in the bicycle race, and would have had it but for a trick on the part of one of his opponents, who crowded him so on the last turn that he had to give up his position.

The games were a success from an athletic point of view, but financially they were not. The attendance was fair, and only the bare expenses of the meet were paid. The lack of funds will prevent the association going into the National Interscholastic Association this year as was expected, and so the New Jersey men will not be able to try their skill against the others. Stevens' Institute was not represented at the meet through a mistake made in entering.

Altogether, however, considering that this was the first meet of the association, the outlook for the future is a bright one.

Donald Stuart ran in the junior 100 yard dash but did not secure a place. Smith won his heat in the 220 yard hurdle race in thirty-one seconds, and finished second to Plum of Newark Academy in the final in 29 4-5 seconds.

Smith won the putting the twelve pound shot with a put of thirty seven feet and two inches, eleven inches ahead of Lindley, of Montclair, second man.

Lindley Hillman was first in the first heat of the one mile bicycle race. His time was 3 minutes 6 1-5 seconds. Carroll Runyon was second in the second heat. This heat was ridden in 2:47 4-5. In the final, Hillman finished second and Runyon third. F. Plaget, of Montclair High, won in 2:58 2-5. In the high jump Raymond Carroll was second clearing 5 feet 3 1-4 inches, Jones, of Newark Academy, winning by half an inch.

George P. Smith threw the twelve pound hammer 96 feet 4½ inches, winning by over a foot.

Jones, of Newark Academy won the running broad jump and Smith tied Plum, of Newark Academy, at 17 feet 9½ inches. Plum won on the jump off.

Smith won the pole vault after clearing the bar at 9 feet 3 inches. Moore of Pingry's School was second, with 9 feet and F. W. Cornwell, of the High School, third with 8 feet 6 inches.

The other events in which Plainfield was not represented were 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, one mile walk, 440 yard run and one mile run.

The final score for points resulted as follows:—Newark Academy, 39½; Pingry School, 35½; Plainfield High School, 28; and Montclair High School, 14.

THE PRESIDENTIAL CANVASS.

Hon. R. C. Kerens and Congressman Nathan Frank Summoned to Canton, O.

St. Louis, June 8.—Saturday evening the Hon. R. C. Kerens, Missouri's national committeeman, and ex-congressman Nathan Frank left the city together for Canton, O. A telegram from Major McKinley was the cause of this trip—a telegram asking Mr. Kerens to come for a conference. Messrs. Kerens and Frank arrived in Canton at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They remained until 9 p. m., returning to St. Louis via Chicago. The brief telegram from Major McKinley gave no hint of the object of the conference. Among the arrivals last evening was W. B. Gaitree of Columbus, O., who will decorate the McKinley headquarters at the Southern hotel, this city, and superintend the distribution of badges, lithographs and literature. To-day there will be distributed in this city 10,000 lithographs of McKinley, and a badge will be given out, being a red ribbon bearing McKinley's picture and the words: "Patriotism, protection and progress: our nation's choice." The gavel which will be used in calling the convention to order was made from a timber in the building in which Missouri's ordinance of secession was passed. The gavel is now in the hands of Lee D. Bell of Nebsho, Mo. On May 26 he wrote to Chairman Carter tendering him the use of the gavel on opening the convention, Mr. Carter answered promptly, accepting the offer. The gavel is the handiwork of James Moore, an ex-confederate soldier and a republican.

An Appeal for the Negroes.

The matter of accomodating the negro delegates at the hotels has begun to assume troublesome importance. There are sixty-six of these, including contestants. The Business Men's league, desiring to carry out every promise made in securing the convention, felt called upon last night to issue a general circular, from which the following is taken: "We ask that all places of entertainment, hotels, boarding houses and bar rooms, at least for convention week, to accord to the reputable colored men who will come here representing their section and their people in the republican party, such treatment as any reputable and respectable person would receive. It is not believed that a great many would want to accept the privilege, but it will be very humiliating if one of them with their colleagues and friends, or alone, should present himself in any publice place and be refused admittance or service. It is hoped that all will endeavor to meet the situation, as justice and propriety requires." A number of enterprising local negroes have rented the old Calumet club, on Locust and Thirteenth streets, and fitted it up to entertain the colored delegates.

CITY WILL PAY FOR THE BICYCLES USED BY POLICEMEN.

E. H. Bird Writes the Council That He Will Accept the Collectorship Decision as Final — Other Business.

Several important matters were considered at the adjourned meeting of the City Council last evening. President See and Councilmen Barrows, Fisk, Dumont, Frost, Ginna, Tolles, Serrell and Westphal answered to the roll call, after which the minutes of the last meeting were approved as read.

After three applications for hack and peddlers' licenses were presented and granted, a communication was received from E. H. Bird regarding the collectorship. Mr. Bird stated that he had accepted the nomination for the office and was elected by a large majority, but Mr. Johnson, the present collector, refused to surrender the office. Mr. Bird stated further that he then took the opinion of Attorney-General Stockton, and the latter gave him an unqualified opinion that he was right and that Mr. Johnson's term had expired. After accepting the opinion Mr. Bird says that he instructed Mr. Stockton to submit the same to the Supreme Court. Last Thursday four judges in that court decided adversely to Mr. Bird. Continuing, Mr. Bird states: "I have been told that I could appeal the case and call for the opinion of the other five judges, the chancellor and six associate justices of the Court of Errors and Appeals. But I feel as though I would be embarrassing the city in so doing. I have decided to accept the decision as final and thus end all further suspense and expense."

The communication was filed. J.B. Dumont, treasurer of the Public Library, then presented his annual report, which follows:

There was put in circulation 15,785 volumes of fiction; 120 of philosophy; 317 of religion; 330 of fine arts, making a total circulation of 31,028 volumes.

During the year five books were lost, but were replaced by the borrowers.

Mr. Dumont in speaking about notes coming due, said that the interest on the notes should be paid at the same time principal was. He suggested that the clerk prepare and keep a record so the treasurer could tell when the notes matured. Mr. Fisk stated that if the above matter was neglected the city would have to pay extra. He offered a resolution that hereafter the city treasurer be instructed to pay both note and interest. It was so ordered.

Mr. Barrows said that he thought it would be wise for the license committee to examine all license applications before the money was received for them. Mr. Fisk said that the ordinance provided that the fee should be paid before the license was taken. This he said, obviated considerable trouble. Mr. Barrows stated that when the sergeant and roundsmen were placed on wheels, they were asked if they were willing to take the chances of being reimbursed for their expenditure and they replied in the affirmative. Mr. Barrows then spoke of the good service being done by the men on wheels and offered a resolution, which was adopted, that the three men be reimbursed for the bicycles which they purchased themselves. The bill will amount to about $250.

Mr. Fisk presented the claim of M. Honan & Sons, for $28.85 and J. Siddall for $66.87. They were ordered filed with the city treasurer. Mr. Fisk said that the street committee had found a number of streets which were partially curbed and the committee thought there should be a uniformity in the curbing.

A resolution was then offered by Mr. Fisk, and adopted by the Council, that the property owners be required to curb along the following streets:

Sandford avenue, from Front street to Green brook; Park avenue, from WORK FAIRLY STARTED.

CHAIRMEM OF IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION COMMITTEES APPOINTED.

Work of Spraying the Trees Has Been Going on Steadily and Great Results Are Expected From the Work When Finished

It is gratifying to report that the chairmen of all the committees of the Town Improvement Association have been appointed, Mrs. Ernest L. Walz, being chairman of the finance committee, and Mrs. D. W. Pond, the street committee. The work of all the committees has fairly started, and the work of the corresponding and recording secretaries, having been hitherto combined, is now divided. Mrs. Harriot B. Ford is corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Stephen Krom is recording secretary. A scrap basket has been presented to the post-office for use at the ladies' desk by the Association.

The interesting work of spraying the elm trees has been going steadily on under the very careful supervision of Mr. Tobin, and already quite a number of trees have cards on them, showing passersby that the Association is at work. All possible despatch is being made so as to be ready for a second spraying, then the first stage of the work will be completed. The second and final step for the year will be the washing of the trunks and the sprinkling of the adjacent ground with petroleum. This work is to be done by the owners of the trees.

Plainfielders will watch these marked trees with interest. If the attacks on the beetles prove as successful as Dr. Southwick predicts, the work of another year will doubtless be supported by a much larger number of subscribers.

SUING FOR HIS WAGES

And the Jury Allowed All But $10 of What He Claimed.

The case of Stebor vs. Chase tried yesterday before Justice Crosley and a twelve men jury. The proceedings occupied the whole afternoon. Stebor was employed as a coachman for Chase and he brought suit to recover $80 wages due him. Lawyer Swackhamer appeared for the coachman, and Judge DeMeza for the defendant. The case was hotly contested for several hours, and was finally given to the jury at five o'clock. The jury was out two hours and returned a verdict for the plaintiff, allowing him $70 and costs. The following men were on the jury: D. D. Smalley, Julius Stahl, Charles Lippincott, J. W. Van Horn, F. M. Whitely, D. Van Horn, Jacob Kliner, Louis Wyckoff, George Feller, T. W. Young and Peter Hensen. No notice of appeal has yet been given.

Danced Despite the Heat and Rain.

Mizpah Lodge, I. O. O. L., held an enjoyable ice cream and strawberry sociable in Red Men's hall last night. There was a good attendance in spite of the threatening weather which prevailed. Frazee furnished music for dancing, which continued until 12 o'clock. Those in charge were Mrs. A. Cox, chairman; Mrs. Randolph, Mrs. Sweeney, Mrs. H. W. Angleman and Mrs. Mattox. The Misses Cortwright and Britton had charge of the flower booth. Mrs. James Radin looked after the dancers.

Revolver Discharged, Police Investigate.

Patrolman Myers, who is on day duty in the West End, had his attention attracted by a pistol shot about 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He located it near as possible and going to the house No. 317 Liberty street, where Frank Nelson lives, accompanied by Sergeant Kiely, ascertained that an old revolver had been accidentally discharged by a member of the household, but the officers could not find out which one.

Grand Officers Present.

The official visit of the grand officers to Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, last evening, was the occasion for a very enjoyable time. Grand Regent J. J. Otis and his staff were present, while the local members turned out in full force. After an interesting meeting, visitors and entertainers adjourned to the banqueting room where a delightful collation was served.

Still Another Lawyer.

Charles H. Angleman, of West Front street, was yesterday admitted, after a two days' examination by the Supreme Court at Trenton, to practice law. Mr. Angleman is a graduate of the High School, class of '92, and of the New York University Law School, class of '95. He served his clerkship in the office of his brother, Counselor W. S. Angleman.

Selling for a Good Cause.

Elsie Goddard and Wilhelmina Patton gave a lemonade sale yesterday afternoon on the lawn of Mr. Goddard's residence on East Ninth street, for the benefit of the fresh air camp.

THE FESTIVAL OF ROSES.

A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR AT THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Rain, However, Made the Attendance Rather Small, But a Large Crowd Will Probably Attend this Evening.

The elements combined against the Festival of Roses at the First Baptist Church last evening, and, in consequence, the attendance was not large. The thunder shower that appeared about seven o'clock effectually put a damper on the festival but it is hoped that the attendance this evening will more than make up for the small crowd of last evening.

The festival was given by the Young Ladies Missionary Society of the church, and was, of course, a delightful affair. The decorations consisted of pink and green bunting, draped about the lecture room where the festival was held, and of roses clustered in large bouquets on the tables that were arranged about the room.

The principal attractions were the ice cream and strawberries that were sold to the visitors. The committee in charge of the refreshments was, of course, a very important one and consisted of Mrs. J. A. Powlison, Miss M. S. Simpson, Mrs. DeWitt Brokaw, Mrs. Harold S rrell, Mrs. L. Van Name, Mrs. Chas. Conover, and Mrs. W. O. Chapman. The waitresses at the tables were the Misses Manning, the Misses Coriell, the Misses Lewis and the Misses Lizzie Coddington May McLoughlin, Margaret Harold, Alice Needham, Bertha Thorne, Alice Woodland, Florence Dodge, Florence Randolph, Lizzie Smalley and Mary Hull.

At one end of the room alemonade well was placed, presided over by the Misses Ella and May Serrell.

The artistically appearing candy booth was looked after by Miss Budd Vail, Miss Susie Woodland, and Miss Bertha Needham.

There was no programme but every body was supposed to entertain everybody else.

William O. Chapman was on duty at the cashier's desk.

POSING IN TABLEAUX.

Novel Entertainment to Be Given in Vincent Chapel.

A novel and delightful entertainment is to be held at Vincent chapel this evening under the auspices of the Epworth League of the First M. E. church. For some time the young ladies of the church have been preparing for this occasion, and have arranged something new to Plainfield audiences. The first part will include a march with hand movement, several recitations, vocal and instrumental selections, and a Japanese fan drill. The second part, however, contains the new features. It includes a reading and pantomime, music, and "Tableaux Mouvant," poses plastique. The last consists of a series of Greek tableaux by eight young ladies in the church clad in Grecian costume, and with face and arms powdered to represent statuary. The stage will be hung in black and a calcium light used to illuminate the different scenes, of which there are ten altogether. This has been arranged under the guidance of Miss Bertha Whitney. It is hoped that the entertainment will be largely attended.

Another Wheelmen's Rest.

Plans and arrangements are making for another new road house and wheelmen's rest near the dividing line of Union and Middlesex counties. The plot of ground, owned by a well-known and responsible resident of the Fourth ward, is soon to be enhanced in beauty by the erection of a neat two-story and attic peaked roof building, and the work on the same will begin in a few weeks. It is not likely, however, that the building will be ready for occupancy before next season.

Looking Over the Ground.

A number of officials of the Jersey Central Railroad were in this city yesterday and accompanied by Station Agent Haynes visited the West End where they looked over the ground for a the proposed freight house in that section of the city. Nothing, as yet, has been decided definitely about the matter of building the freight house.

Former Plainfielders Dead.

The death of Miss Caroline W. Jacobus, who formerly resided with her parents on East Front street, occurred at Norfolk, Va., last Wednesday. She was 23 years of age. Interment was at Pittsburg, Pa.

James H. Dederick, who formerly resided on West Seventh street, died Sunday at Bayonne.

Annoying Restauranter Ross.

Two young lads will appear before City Judge De Meza Saturday morning on the charge of stealing strawberries and annoying William Ross, proprietor of the Delmonico oyster and chop house.

MRS. TUCKER IS COMING

SECOND DAUGHTER OF GEN. BOOTH TO TALK IN THIS CITY.

She Will be Accompanied by a Brass Band and Other Notable Salvation Army Workers Against Old Satan.

An active campaign has been opened in Plainfield by the Salvation Army and the war against sin is to go forward with renewed vigor. Ensign Taylor, "The Golden Musician," has been placed in command and he is assisted in the good work by the "Central Victory Boy's" who number seven earnest workers. Since their arrival here, about a week ago, they have held a number of rousing meetings that have proved very profitable. All of the "Central Victory Boys" are musicians, and music forms a leading part in their meetings. The attendance at the barracks has been good, especially last Sunday evening when the meeting was an unusually good one.

While there is something new introduced at every meeting, the meeting tonight promises to be especially interesting, as Brigadier Evans, who is in command of the Central Division at New York and who resides in this city, will be in charge. He is too well known to Plainfield audiences to need any introduction.

Next week the fight against sin and its forces will be continued fiercer than ever. On Tuesday, June 16th, Mrs. Booth Tucker, wife of the Commander of the Salvation Army in the United States and second daughter of the famous General William Booth, will be present at the meeting in this city and speak on the past and present of the Salvation Army. Her private secretary, Brigadier Lewis, and a complete brass band will also be present. Captain Chapin will come with her and then remain in Plainfield for some time. He is a wonderful character, being an old circus man and a professional snare drummer. He is a musician also and will greatly assist the soldiers in this city.

Thursday of next week, June 18th, will also be time of another grand meeting. It will be a musical meeting, led by Ensign Emily March, assisted by the "Central Victory Boys." The tickets for this meeting will be ten cents which admit to the meeting and to a plate of ice cream afterward.

A DRUNKEN FELLOW'S RASH ACT.

Attempted to Board a Coal Train and Nearly Fell Under the Wheels.

There came very near being an accident on the Jersey Central Railroad yesterday where it runs parallel with South Second street. A young colored man, just drunk enough to feel rash, attempted to board a coal train. He could scarcely walk, and as he staggered toward the train everybody that noticed him expected to see him fall under the wheels of the moving train. One of the brakemen on the train was a quick-witted fellow, and before the colored fellow could manage to tumble, he rushed at him and bodily carried the intoxicated man to the edge of the embankment where he pushed him down the side. Even that tumble did not bring the man to his senses, and he tried to get at the train again, but the spectators interferred and no accident resulted.

Two Arrests for Cruelty.

On complaint of William Pangborn, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals of New Jersey, Justice Newcorn issued summons for the arrest of Dunardo Bunowana and George Naylor, charging them with cruelly treating their horses. The particulars of the former case, as tried in the city court, were given in these columns yesterday. The other case occurred last Friday, when Naylor's horse was found on East Front street in a suffering condition and was taken to Cole's livery stable. Both parties will appear next Monday and answer to the charges preferred.

Cut By a Steel.

Nelson VanWinkle, of Central avenue, had a narrow escape from a serious accident while working at Scott's Press Works yesterday. A large chip of steel struck the corner of his eye, cutting quite a gash. Had the fragment of steel struck his eye he would have undoubtedly lost his sight from that eye.

Practical Gifts.

Among those who have contributed material for the fresh air camp are Mrs. Mali, who donated doors and windows for the structure, and Mrs. Woodruff, who donates a six-gallon water cooler.

Mothers will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy especially valuable for and whooping cough. It will give prompt relief and is safe and pleasant. We have sold it for several years and it has never failed to give the most perfect satisfaction. G. W. Richards, Duquesne, Pa. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

DEPENDS ON THE LETTER

EXPERT PENMEN TO DECIDE IF MRS. JACKSON WROTE THE NOTE.

If it is Decided That She Did Write it, Her Husband Will Stand a Good Show to be Released from Custody.

The question of whether Mrs. C. H. Jackson killed herself or was shot at the hands of her husband does not seem to be determined with any degree of rapidity, although every New York paper is printing everything in Jackson's favor. Some of the papers have even gone so far as to instruct the reporters who are covering the case to write their story in Jackson's favor. The secrecy about the alleged farewell letter was removed yesterday. It reads:

MY DARLING JACK: Sleep and worry have nearly driven me frantic. The cares of motherhood are more than I can stand. Six years ago I thought that all poetry of love was in the maternal relation, but now I realize the awful responsibility. The fear that our children may grow up bad haunts me, especially as our older darling told me today a deliberate lie. I was stunned and broken by it.

It is cheerless to live not seeing one's husband except for a few hours each day. When I want love, strength, and comfort he is not here to give it to me.

When you get this I shall be beyond your reproaches. Far away in another sphere I may find the love I lack here. Forgive me, love, and be good to the boys. Your wife, MARY.

This letter adds mystery to the affair because it is said that Mrs. Jackson seldom used "Mary" as a signatury, generally signing "Mae." The letter which is known to have been written by her to her mother concerning the proposed trip abroad, and which has been used to determine and prove a similarity in the handwriting, is signed "Mae."

County Prosecutor Voorhees says he is awaiting expert testimony on the handwriting to determine whether or not there is any reasonable doubt as Jackson's guilt.

It was expected by the newspaper men in New Brudswick this morning that habeas corpus proceedings would be commenced to get Jackson out of jail, but none were started.

There was no public funeral over the remains of Mrs. Jackson this afternoon. A simple prayer service was held at the receiving vault at the Hillside cemetery at 2 o'clock. Only a few relatives were present. The casket containing the remains was sealed to await the action of Prosecutor Voorhees, of Middlesex county.

Rev. M. B. Kelly, of Alfred, N. Y., and Rev. E. Peterson, of New Market, were the officiating clergymen.

Justice Storms, of New Market, was seen by a Daily Press representative this morning and was told that very little was being said at New Market about the shooting. The Justice was inclined to believe that the feeling that Jackson is innocent is growing stronger among the people. This he attributed in a measure to the stand taken by the New York papers.

TROUBLE OVER HIRING A RIG.

The Police Called to Take a Hand and Finally Settled It.

On complaint of Peter Seader, of North Plainfield, Alexander Fillmore, of this city, was taken in custody by Patrolman Totten last evening, at George Cole's livery stable on West Second street. Mr. Seader claimed that Fillmore called at his house yesterday afternoon about 1:30 and took a horse and buggy from the stable, without permission, while the latter said that he had hired the rig of Mr. Seader's housekeeper and agreed to pay $3 for the same. He told the housekeper that he would return about 6 o'clock. The rig didn't show up and Mr. Seader started out in search of it. About 10 o'clock Patrolman Totten met the young man with the rig, but he had a surrey instead of a buggy. It was learned that Frederick Miner, who was with Fillmore, had exchanged temporarily the buggy for the surrey at Cole's livery. The party went to the livery where Mr. Seader appeared. The owner of the horse and buggy wanted $5 from Fillmore for the hire of the rig and would take nothing less. He authorized the Patrolman to arrest the young man if the sum was not paid.

To settle the matter Fillmore was taken to the station house, where he offered the owner $3, but it was refused. Sergeant Kiely finally persuaded Mr. Seader to accept the sum offered, and Fillmore promised to pay the balance today. Accordingly he was released.

A Day Camp on the Mountain.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Herring, of Park avenue, are planning a day camp on the Johnston Drive, near the Mountain Park Inn. The wooden structure will be placed on the mountain side overlooking Plainfield, and fine views and pure air will be the reward of a retreat from the town and summer heat.

James Field, the well-known druggist, of Somerville, sold his business today to Mr. Griffin, of Peekskill, N. Y. The latter takes possession July 1st.

PLAYED LIVELY PRANKS.

LIGHTNING STRUCK IN SEVERAL PLACES LAST NIGHT.

Home of Charles Graves on Liberty Street Made Lively for the Occupants for a Few Moments—No One Was Injured.

During the heavy thunder storm last evening lightning played a most important part in some localities, especially one very sharp flash about 8:30. The point where it struck was the house occupied by Charles Graves, Jr., and family on Liberty street, and the damage was heavy. The electric flash entered the attic window in the rear, tearing the sash all to pieces and grinding the glass into powder. From there it went to the rear bedroom, made a hole in the wall as large as a bullet hole, and completely shattered a handsome plate-glass mirror in a dressing case. The flash then separated itself into two parts. One took a sharp turn and made an exit at the side of the house, carrying with it several boards. The other current struck the pantry and wrecked a quantity of dishes, and continuing made a large hole in the chimney in the cellar. Part of the fluid followed a leader pipe and severely scorched it. In the rear of the house, at the top, the slate and frame part was heavily damaged. One piece of slate was thrown into a tree in an adjoining yard and a large piece of wood found its way into the tree near the house. Mrs. Graves, her young daughter and mother-in-law were in the house and sustained a terrible fright. One clapboard was torn from Mr. Hibbits' house next door. Charles Conover and family, of Elmwood place, received a severe shock and Mr. Conover was unable to walk about for an hour. Several families on the same street felt the effects of the lightning and did not recover for several hours.

About 7:30 last evening a bright illumination on the electric light pole in front of Krietling's barber shop on West Front street caused considerable excitement. The rain had produced a ground and as a result there was a burning out of the fuse. The fact was known immediately at the electric light station. Superintendent McClurg and his man was on the spot quickly and the plug was pulled on the pole, thus shutting off the current. The accident put out several electric lights in that vicinity. The trouble was fixed later in the evening.

Joseph Yates and Harry Leal, two young men, were standing near a tree on Liberty street during the storm and received a shock which temporarily paralyzed them.

ASSESSMENT MAP NOT READY.

Aggravating Delay on the Part of Watchung Avenue Commissioners.

In regard to the Watchung avenue extension on this side of the brook, mention of which was made by Councilman Tolles at the adjourned meeting of the Council last evening, a Daily Press representative, in conversation with a prominent citizen, learned something of interest.

It was stated at the meeting that the report was all ready to be placed in the hands of the Corporation Counsel. This fact is undoubtedly true, but the necessary material had not, up to yesterday, been given to F. A. Dunham, so that he could make the assessment map.

A strange part of the proceedings is that no member of the Council has shown any great interest in the extension, while the borough has been making rapid strides. Another fact is apparent and that is it will soon be time for the Corporation Counsel to take his summer vacation, and then necessity the matter will be laid over till fall. The people are all anxious to have the street go through and quick action will meet their approval.

Be Sure They Fit.

When a man wears a misfit suit of clothes it is only at the expense of his tailor and his pride; when he wears a misfit pair of glasses it is at the expense of his sight and physical comfort. A call at Collier's, 103 Park avenue, will insure expert examination and a perfect fit.

It is Always Thus.

The examination papers belonging to Miss Leonore Carle, of East Sixth street, which were advertised in The Daily Press as lost, were found and returned to her home yesterday by an employe of Scott's Press Works who saw the ad in The Press.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

Temporary Chairman at St Louis.

New Haven, Conn., June 9.—It is reported that Samuel Fessenden of this state will be temporary chairman of the St. Louis convention. He left for St. Louis last night.

Correspondents Due To-night.

The Washington correspondents of the principal daily papers throughout the country, who left Washington for the republican national convention yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, are scheduled to arrive here this evening at 7 o'clock. They travel luxuriously on a special train of Pullman cars. About 100 are in the party. Delayed by the continuance of congress, another contingent of the leading correspondents, including the convention staff of the United Press, will leave Washington to-morrow afternoon via the Chesapeake & Ohio and will reach St. Louis on Friday. Both parties will return together after the convention ends.

Many Will Sleep in Railway Coaches.

Whatever sleep a large number of political men are to get during their convention sojourn here will be enjoyed in the railroad cars which bring them to this city. Arrangements have been made by the Terminal Railroad association to store 800 passenger cars in different places in St. Louis in the latter part of this and all of next week. More than 200 of these coaches, all of which are sleepers, will be converted into temporary hotels. Spaces are being reserved for them, and locations conducive to comfort have been selected. It has been decided by the Terminal association to allow each of its twenty tenant lines the storage of ten occupied sleeping cars. This arrangement will provide lodging places for at least 2,000 persons within five minutes' walk of the convention hall.

The Arrivals.

The morning trains arriving here today brought few arrivals of prominence. Chairman Manley of Maine and James S. Clarkson of Iowa are scheduled to reach here to-night. Ex-Gov. Foraker of Ohio, who is to present McKinley's name to the convention, will not be in St. Louis until next Sunday or Monday. He will be escorted in a special car by the Blaine club of Columbus. Mr. Hanna and the Ohio contingent of McKinley workers are due this morning.

M'KINLEY ON FIRST ROLL CALL.

Then a Platform Against Free Silver Is Nathan Frank's Convention Forecast.

Chicago, June 9.—Richard C. Kerens and ex-congressman Nathan Frank of St. Louis stopped in Chicago last evening on their way home from their political visit to William McKinley at Canton, O. As a Missouri delegate to the republican convention, Mr. Frank said: "We will nominate McKinley on the first roll call. There will be McKinley strength to not only dictate the nomination, but the manner of doing it. We will not permit a suspension of the roll call long enough to make the nomination unanimous. And then we will make a financial plank satisfactory to the business men of the country. We will declare unequivocally against the free coinage of silver at any ratio. We will not straddle on that point. As for Major McKinley's position, I can say that the financial plank cannot be made too strong for him. He is sound."

Sound Money Democrats.

Westminster, Md., June 9.—The Carroll county democratic convention adopted resolutions declaring for a sound and stable currency as provided for by the constitution of the United States. B. F. Crouse was indorsed for congress.

TRIAL OF MRS. FLEMING.

It Develops Into a Bitter Fight Between Opposing Counsel.

New York, June 9.—The trial of Mrs. Alice Fleming for the murder by poison of her mother, Mrs. Bliss, which is now in its fifth week, has developed into a bitter fight between lawyers for the prosecution and defense, or, more properly, between Lawyer Brooke, senior counsel for the defendant, and Dr. O'Sullivan, special counsel for the prosecution. The greatest excitement occurred while Dr. Scheele, expert witness for the people, was on the stand. Mr. Brooke asked the witness if he had not on several occasions said that he had made a mistake in previous cases by being on the side of the defense; that Mrs. Fleming must die, whether she is guilty or not, and that her conviction was necessary to save his reputation. Once or twice Dr. O'Sullivan considered Mr. Brooke's questions as insinuating that he, himself, had connived with Scheele and, livid with rage, he almost gave the direct lie to his former partner, and asserted that brewers were in a conspiracy to ruin him and Chemist Scheele. The recorder has been compelled repeatedly to call the opposing counsel to order on account of heated personalities indulged in.

CAPITOL FRIEZE.

Resolutions Introduced in the House Looking to Its Completion.

Washington, June 9.—Representative Boutelle, rep., Me., introduced the following resolutions anent the unfinished frieze of the capitol rotunda: That the president of the senate, speaker of the house and joint committee on library are appointed a commission to secure the completion of the historical freize in the rotunda of the capitol, by the painting therein of a suitable design by an American artist of national reputation, that shall symbolize the great events in the national life since the close of the Mexican war, and appropriately commemorate the preservation of the union and the establishment of universal freedom by the heroic valor and sacrifice of the citizens of the republic under the leadership of Abraham Lincoln. The design is to be selected after advertising, and $10,000 is appropriated for the work.

Nerve

Excitement, overwork and worry are ruining the health of thousands of women. Pure Blood is required to feed the nerves, a good appetite and digestive strength are demanded to keep the body strong and vigorous, and to restore the exhausted energies there must be sound and refreshing

Sleep

By its power to respond to all these needs Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved itself the greatest friend of women. Thousands write that they have been given health and strength by its use. It is the great blood purifier, and consequently the true nerve tonic.

"I feel that I should be wanting in common gratitude should I fail to tell the benefit my wife has derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla. She became seriously ill from running ulcers, caused by poorness of and was strongly advised by a friend to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. She said it had cured her and would no doubt cure my wife. So we tried it, and to say that its effect is wonderful, is only using a mild expression. It appears to be building up a new constitution for her; and, as we are a family of eleven, there are eleven of us rejoicing at the result.

"If the foregoing induces only one person, suffering in the same manner, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I shall feel more than rewarded." ELIJAH PACKER, 585 Monroe Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? A RIGHT START.

The Child is Lucky Who Gets the Proper Kind of One.

Not Wealth or Position Alone Means "Starting Right"—Health Counts for Something.

When a child is born to very wealthy parents, we are inclined to say, "what a start in life it has." If it is a girl, the father may give a bridal present of a million dollars. If a boy, the father may take him in partnership, and give him many millions.

But what does all this amount to if the family history shows that there is a marked tendency to the development of serious disease? What comfort, if one expects that every slight cold may terminate in consumption; or every nervous pain indicate approaching nervous prostration, or even insanity? Wealth cannot make happiness when pain is present, and the shadow of approaching disease always hovering near.

Happy is the child who inherits a sound constitution. He laughs at a little cold, and does not mind a darting pain or two. But, alas, many of us inherit a tendency to weak lungs, an inability to endure exposure, or some weakness of the nervous system. Yet, with a perfectly sound ancestry, we may still suffer from all these and other complaints.

It is a great gift to have a strong nervous system. Neuralgia, sciatica, nervous dyspepsia, inability to concentrate the mind, sleeplessness, and nervousness are symptoms of weak nerves. Opiates and other narcotics, do not strengthen nerves; they weaken, debilitate. To be sure they may quiet a temporary pain, but the real cause, which is one of weakness, remains.

Weak nerves call for food and nerve tonics. The hypophosphites are generally acknowledged to be the best nerve tonics. They tone up the whole nervous system, and every part of the body responds. Cod-liver oil supplies a valuable food to all the tissues; while the medicinal agents which naturally exist in this oil exert their good effects also. Scott's Emulsion is a combination of the best cod-liver oil and the purest hypophosphites. It is called an emulsion, because the oil is emulsified or digested. Hence it is more acceptable to invalids, and all those who do not have very strong digestive powers. One dose of Scott's Emulsion may not quiet pain, but one bottle will often so strengthen the nervous system that no pain will be present to quiet.

Nearly twenty-five years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion discovered a process of emulsifying Cod-liver Oil, so as to remove from it almost entirely its obnoxious fishy taste and smell, and at the same time increasing its food and remedial properties. They found also that by combining the Hypophosphites with it that they added still further to its power.

Since that time thousands of imitations have come into the field, but the original has never been equalled.

RIOTING IS FEARED

The Dynamite Outrage in Barcelona Has Caused Great Excitement.

CITY NOW UNDER MARITAL RULE

Crowds Surround the Prefecture Where the Suspects Are Detained—Summary Punishment of All Demanded Whether Guilty or Not.

Barcelona, June 9.—The excitement caused by the fatal bomb explosion Sunday night shows no sign of diminution, and the people vigorously demand that no effort be spared by the authorities to punish the authors of the outrage and to guard against a repetition of the dastardly act. When it became generally known that the killed numbered eleven instead of six, as was stated in the first reports, the indignation of the populace was very violent. In fact so threatening was the outlook that the authorities, as a measure of precaution, proclaimed martial law, and the city is now under military government. Two arrests of suspects were made this morning, making a total of thirty-six men who have been taken into custody on suspicion of having been concerned in the perpetration of the outrage. The prisoners are confined in the prefecture. Last night an angry mob gathered around the building and demanded the summary punishment of every one of the prisoners, whether his guilt be proven or not. Occasionally it looked as though the mob would attempt to storm the prefecture in order to wreak vengeance on the suspected men. The civil guards on duty at the place were speedily reinforced, and were frequently compelled to charge upon the crowd to make them keep their distance. The mob would scatter temporarily, but would soon gather again, threatening to lynch the prisoners.

Officials in Madrid Alert.

Barcelona is not alone in its attempt to repress with a stern hand the recrudescence of anarchy. The royal government and the municipal authorities of Madrid are taking measures to prevent the commission of outrages at the capital. One of the leading anarchists of that city was arrested last night. It is thought that he was in some way concerned with the outrage here. The cortes and the government have promised to assist the relatives of those who were killed or wounded here, and this action meets with hearty approval. Speculation is rife as to the causes which led to the sudden outbreak of the anarchists. Some persons attribute it to the animosity of the anarchists toward everything pertaining to religion and believe that they took advantage of the Corpus Christi processions to give vent to their hatred. But there have been many religious processions since anarchy was rampant in Spain which were in nowise interfered with, and it is generally believed that some motive deeper than hatred of religion lies at the bottom of the last outrages committed here and at Crendain.

Women and Children Victims.

All the people killed belonged to the working classes. A majority of them were women and children, and this fact had much to do with the bitterness displayed towards the anarchists.

Class Day Exercises at Princeton.

Princeton, N. J., June 9.—The last class day exercises of any class that shall graduate from Princeton before the college becomes a university took place yesterday, and '96 made the most of it. Class day is one of the few days on the college calendar in which faculty control plays but little part, and the freedom from constraint which the seniors enjoy characterized all the exercises of the day.

Committed Murder at Sea.

Washington, June 9.—Ambassador Bayard has cabled the state department that an officer sailed Saturday from Liverpool on the Campania in charge of Martin Alkane, a seaman of the American ship Tacoma of Bath, Me., who is charged with killing the second mate of the Tacoma on the high seas.

For the Murder of His Mother.

New York, June 9.—The jury in the trial of Martin Murphy for the murder of his mother brought in a verdict of guilty of manslaughter in the second degree last evening. Murphy was accused of beating his mother on September 1 last so seriously that she died a few days afterward.

Insurgent Victory in Crete.

Athens, June 9.—Advices received here from Canea, Island of Crete, announce that the insurgents on Saturday defeated the Turkish troops and captured four guns and 200 Martini-Henry rifles. Both sides sustained heavy losses.

SPANISH ATROCITIES

The Butchery of Peaceful Residents in Cuba Continues.

AGE OR SEX IS NO SAFEGUARD

A Fifteen-Year-Old Boy, an Invalid, Slain—Two Prominent Men Shot by Order of an Unauthorized Court Martial.

Havana, June 6, via Tampa, Fla., June 9.—That the work of exterminating non-combatants, or "pacificos" as they are styled here, continues to a greater or less extent is evidenced by the reports which are received from the country. Not a day passes without some shocking tale being told of brutal assassinations committed by the troops on defenseless people whose sole crime is being witnesses of the war raging all over the island without taking part in it. Here are a few facts taken from the many that are told: On June 2 a column of Spanish troops, commanded by Col. Ochoa, operating around Jaruco, Havana province, captured a poor, miserable boy of 15 years of age, named Juan Rodriguez, suffering from nervous prostration and so weak that he could hardly move without assistance. This unhappy creature was dragged from his home, a little farm near Casiguas, and, without any compassion for his pitiable state, he was butchered on the roadway to Tapaste for the sole crime of being a cousin of a leader in the rebel army named Victor Simon. Age or sex are no safeguards against the bloodthirsty Spaniards.

Condemned and Shot Without Authority.

On June 1, Simon Yruri, member of one of the best families of Jaruco, was arrested on suspicion of being a rebel sympathizer by orders of Gen. Melquizo. He was too well known to be taken out of the town and shot in the fields, as this would create a scandal, so they made a semblance of a court-martial and with all the apparent formalities of the law he was publicly shot in the square of the town. The deed created general indignation when it was known that Melquizo had ordered the execution on his own authority without consulting the captain general, who is the only one empowered to order such proceedings. On June 4 last, Lorenzo Medina, a native of the Canary islands, 49 years of age and a cattle dealer of some means, and Juan Toledo, a Cuban, 30 years of age, owner of a cart shop, both well known and esteemed in the town of Jaruco, were arrested on no known charges. They were lodged in the civil guard's barracks and the next morning they were taken out of the town under promise of prompt release and treacherously shot behind the slaughter house.

Rebel Successes.

It is known that Valencia had a fight with Col. Fandeviela of Campo, Florido, fame, in which the brave was completely routed, losing thirty-two dead left on the field. This has never been reported officially. The Bayomo guerrillas, about 100 men, commanded by Cabino Guerra, has join the rebels, seduced thereto by Calixto Garcia when he passed near that place last week. In Sancti Spiritus a band of musicians of the local volunteers headed by its bandmaster, Justo Alvarez, with all the instruments in the band, also went over to the woods to enliven the time for the revolutionists.

Providence Plumbers' Strike Spreads.

Providence, June 9.—The ranks of the striking plumbers, who are out for an eight-hour day, have been materially strengthened. The masters of seven shops were unwilling to make any concessions, and consequently their journeymen went out yesterday. It is believed that the example of the plumbers, if successful, will be followed by workmen in other trades.

Commuted to Life Imprisonment.

Albany, June 9.—Gov. Morton has commuted to imprisonment for life the sentence of Tuefil Tuezkewitz who was convicted in New York in March, 1895, of murder for killing Adolph Balansiefer. The commutation was granted on the recommendation of the judge, the district attorney and all of the jurors.

Passed a School of Spouting Whales.

New York, June 9.—Capt. Hawthorne of the Morgan line steamer El Norte, just arrived from New Orleans, reports that on Sunday afternoon, off the Chesapeake, he encountered a school of more than twenty whales blowing the water high in the air and presenting a very interesting picture.

Another Victory for the Meteor.

London, June 9.—The Royal Cinque Ports Yacht regatta was held here yesterday and Emperor William's new cutter Meteor again won. This was her third race and her third victory, and the belief gains strength daily that she is more than a match for any of the fast British yachts.

E. H. Bird is to be commended for his act in accepting as final the decision of the Supreme Court in the collectorship contest, even though he could carry it on to further litigation. In all probability it would have resulted no more favorably for him, and would have involved the city in a lot of unnecessary trouble.

As will be seen by reference to the news columns of today's Press, the work of the City Commissioners on the opening of Watchung avenue is not of the rapidity that is especially satisfactory to the people. The opening of the avenue is the principal improvement under consideration in this community, and the people are anxious to have it consummated.

It is intimated that Congress will adjourn this week. It will be a great relief to the country to get rid of it. For most of the season it has done little else than to threaten the business interests of the country and create a general distrust in business circles; to alarm foreign investors in our securities and to bring on a business depression. The country will give a sigh of relief when the gavel falls and the curtain drops on its performances.—True American.

FANNED BY MOUNTAIN ZEPHYRS.

Delights of Mountain Park Told by a New York Paper.

The Mountain Park Land Company has made mountain-going from New York an easy matter. It has recently purchased a piece of property on the crest of the Watchung Mountain and converted it into a delightful summer resort. The place is located on the Central Railroad of New Jersey. It is 600 feet above the level of the sea, and can be reached in an hour from New York. Before erecting the beautiful hotel on the park property, the directors of the company made sure that the natural features of the place were such as to appeal to those who seek rest and recuperation. They found that aside from the beauty of the place its pure air and equally pure water and the fragrance of the surrounding woods made it a natural sanitarium. From the park can be seen the beautiful city of Plainfield, from which there are trolley and stage lines to the mountain resort. Further away can be seen the Netherwood Heights, Elizabeth, Newark, Jersey City and Staten Island. The panorama of New York Harbor and the Hudson River are also in the field of vision from the lofty point. The architectural features of the resort, together with the work of the landscape gardener, have made the mountain one of the most attractive places near New York.

On a high point of the park the company has erected the Mountain Park Inn, and has fitted it with all the appointments of a first-class hotel, and in keeping with the requirements of a high class of summer guests. Every detail as to the comfort of the guests has been looked after. The house is lighted by electricity, and motors are used to force the pure spring water to the inn and to the cottages near to it. The plumbing has been done according to the latest and most scientific plans, and the health and comfort of the guests have been considered at every step.

The amusement of the guests has been looked after as well as their comfort. There are lawn tennis, croquet and ball grounds, and in the hotel proper provision has been made for indoor amusement. The house will be opened for business tomorrow, and is under the management of George S. Moulton, formerly of the Laurel-in-the Pines, Lakewood. Among the members of the company are Chandler W. Riker, Captain Allan B. Wallace, John H. French, J. B. Smith, Louis M. French, Joseph T. Vail, and Elston M. French. In addition to the hotel the company owns a large tract of land on the mountain top, which has been divided into building lots, which will be sold under restrictions, so as to have the settlement which will grow up about the inn first-class in every respect.—N. Y. Tribune.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Having been among the many who enjoyed the most excellent performance given on the occasion of Mr. Thatcher's fifty-fifth anniversary, I would, if you will concede a small portion of your valuable space, like to ask why Mr. Thatcher could not give such a performance here in Plainfield so that many of his friends and admirers who could not be present at his testimonial could have an opportunity of enjoying it. We realize the weather is warm, and growing warmer, but don't think that would be an impediment to a large attendance. Awaiting Mr. Thatcher's reply on the subject, we are two of his Plainfield admirers, C. M. and L. S.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Consulting Engineer A. J. Gavett presented a report of the work done by J. Siddall, and the report was referred to the sewer committee.

The nominations of D. C. Ivins, J. Parker Mason and G. R. Cornwell as sewer commissioners, made by Mayor Gilbert, were read and on motion of Mr. Dumont the same were confirmed.

Mr. Tolles caused a bit of a stir at this time by asking what had become of the Watchung avenue extension matter. The members all professed ignorance, except Mr. Fisk, and he stated that the commissioners were about ready to report and as soon as the report was placed in the hands of the Corporation Counsel the matter was to be pushed rapidly. Mr. Fisk thought that a report would be received at the next meeting.

Mr. Fisk spoke of the matter referred to the street committee regarding the transfers on the trolley road, and he moved that the same be referred to the Corporation Counsel and the latter advise the Council what to do. The business being concluded Council then adjourned.

THE CLOSING WORK

Only Three Appropriation Bills Now Before the Senate.

DEFICIENCY PASSED LAST EVENING

Adjournment May Be Reached To-morrow, But the Belief Is That the Session Will Continue Throughout the Week.

Washington, June 9.—It is not believed this morning that congress can reach final adjournment by to-morrow and it may continue in session throughout the balance of this week. There are still three general appropriation bills before the senate, the District of Columbia, naval and sundry civil. The new general deficiency bill was passed last evening in less than three-quarters of an hour. Ordinarily a bill of 130 printed pages would have taxed the powers of the reading clerk for at least two hours, but the reading of this bill was completed in half an hour. An attempt was made by Mr. Harris, dem., Tenn., to have the claims under the Bowman act, aggregating about half a million dollars, placed in the bill, but they were ruled out on a point of order and the bill was promptly passed. The immigration bill was taken up and Mr. Morgan, dem., Ala., made another long speech on the question of the war in Cuba. Alluding to a newspaper statement that he had on the floor of the senate made hard and unpleasant remarks as to the queen regent of Spain, Mr. Morgan said that he had on that occasion referred to the queen regent merely in connection with her speech from the throne in which she claimed that the president of the United States was in controversy with congress and in controversy with the people as to their sentiments about Cuba.

Eulogized Queen Regent of Spain.

Those who knew anything of that lady—he did not know her personally—said that she was a woman of almost unexampled virtue and of very high character. While she had perhaps less to do with the government of Spain than Queen Victoria has with the government of Great Britain, she was entitled, by virtue of the regency of her womanhood, to the utmost respect; and so every senator spoke of her. If the queen of Great Britain, the queen regent of Spain, the queen of Greece and the empress of Germany were to meet in the island of Cuba and were they to witness some of the things done there in the name of Spain upon innocent women and children, who were shot to death by a brutally soldiery, those great and noble women would rise in their majesty and would strike to death the power which enabled a brute like Weyler to inflict such wrongs. "Would to God," Mr. Morgan exclaimed, "that the queen of Spain were there to see these things. The delicacy of her nature would not permit the infliction of such brutalities upon women and children. But we are to stand by, according to the president's theory, idle and mute, and are to witness the continued repetition of these brutal acts in that island. I wish the noble women were there to see them. They would lay their hands on the arm of the brutal soldier who now wields the sword of Spain there, and would tell him in the name of God and humanity to forbear his inhuman deeds."

House of Representatives.

The house did not adjourn last evening, but took a recess until 10 o'clock to-day, and it is understood that no adjournment will be taken until the final close of the session. In order to maintain the presence of a quorum, resolutions offered by Mr. Dingley, rep., Me., revoking all leaves of absence except those granted on account of illness and directing the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph other absent members that their presence here is necessary to the transaction of the public business were adopted. In this connection the house heard with applause the message announcing that the senate had passed without amendment the general deficiency bill which the house passed Saturday afternoon. Twice Mr. Daniel, rep., N. Y., endeavored to bring up for consideration the report of elections committee No. 1 on the contested election case of Truman H. Aldrich, rep., vs. Oscar W. Underwood, dem., from the ninth Alabama district. The first time the house refused—64 to 53—to enter upon its consideration. The vote on the second motion had not been announced when recess was taken.

Cabinet Troubles at Rome.

London, June 9.—The correspondent of the Times at Rome says that the Italian ministry is in very rough water, owing to the publication of the Green Book on Abyssinia, which relates communications from Great Britain regarding the Soudan expedition. There is a widespread opinion in Rome that a cabinet crisis is inevitable.

The Proposed New Battleships.

Washington, June 9.—The naval conferees have agreed finally on the battleships in the naval bill. Three ships are provided for, with a stipulation that contracts for armor-plate are not to be made at any price until congress shall have further acted in the matter.

To Take Naval Militia to Sea.

New York, June 9.—Cruiser Raleigh sailed last night for Charleston and New Orleans to take the South Carolina and Louisiana naval militia out to sea for instruction.

Nominated by the President.

Washington, June 9.—The president has nominated Richard M. Bartleman of Massachusetts to be consul of the United States at Malaga, Spain.

Stubborn ✲ Ulcers

due to disease, or an impoverished condition of the blood, are a source of annoyance to the medical fraternity. While continually growing deeper and larger the circle of diseased flesh surrounding them is all the time extending, closing up the ducts through which replenishment of tissue should come. For such troubles physicians everywhere are praising the results obtained by the use of

Bovinine

In the first place the system needs re-invigorating, new flesh tissue should be formed, new and pure blood created, in fact, a new and well nourished body where room for disease does not exist. Food is the thing, and Bovinine, that greatest concentration of the vitalizing elements of lean beef, is the most fitting nourishment of all for speedy results. Then applied externally it nourishes by absorption, where the disease is most apparent, thus striking the enemy on all sides. Ask any Druggist.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

"Mystic Cure" for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits; 75c. Sold by T.S.Armstrong, druggist, Park and North avenues. 2 12 y

THE CLOSING WORK

Only Three Appropriation Bills Now Before the Senate.

DEFICIENCY PASSED LAST EVENING

Adjournment May Be Reached To-morrow, But the Belief Is That the Session Will Continue Throughout the Week.

Washington, June 9.—It is not believed this morning that congress can reach final adjournment by to-morrow and it may continue in session throughout the balance of this week. There are still three general appropriation bills before the senate, the District of Columbia, naval and sundry civil. The new general deficiency bill was passed last evening in less than three-quarters of an hour. Ordinarily a bill of 130 printed pages would have taxed the powers of the reading clerk for at least two hours, but the reading of this bill was completed in half an hour. An attempt was made by Mr. Harris, dem., Tenn., to have the claims under the Bowman act, aggregating about half a million dollars, placed in the bill, but they were ruled out on a point of order and the bill was promptly passed. The immigration bill was taken up and Mr. Morgan, dem., Ala., made another long speech on the question of the war in Cuba. Alluding to a newspaper statement that he had on the floor of the senate made hard and unpleasant remarks as to the queen regent of Spain, Mr. Morgan said that he had on that occasion referred to the queen regent merely in connection with her speech from the throne in which she claimed that the president of the United States was in controversy with congress and in controversy with the people as to their sentiments about Cuba.

Eulogized Queen Regent of Spain.

Those who knew anything of that lady—he did not know her personally—said that she was a woman of almost unexampled virtue and of very high character. While she had perhaps less to do with the government of Spain than Queen Victoria has with the government of Great Britain, she was entitled, by virtue of the regency of her womanhood, to the utmost respect; and so every senator spoke of her. If the queen of Great Britain, the queen regent of Spain, the queen of Greece and the empress of Germany were to meet in the island of Cuba and were they to witness some of the things done there in the name of Spain upon innocent women and children, who were shot to death by a brutally soldiery, those great and noble women would rise in their majesty and would strike to death the power which enabled a brute like Weyler to inflict such wrongs. "Would to God," Mr. Morgan exclaimed, "that the queen of Spain were there to see these things. The delicacy of her nature would not permit the infliction of such brutalities upon women and children. But we are to stand by, according to the president's theory, idle and mute, and are to witness the continued repetition of these brutal acts in that island. I wish the noble women were there to see them. They would lay their hands on the arm of the brutal soldier who now wields the sword of Spain there, and would tell him in the name of God and humanity to forbear his inhuman deeds."

House of Representatives.

The house did not adjourn last evening, but took a recess until 10 o'clock to-day, and it is understood that no adjournment will be taken until the final close of the session. In order to maintain the presence of a quorum, resolutions offered by Mr. Dingley, rep., Me., revoking all leaves of absence except those granted on account of illness and directing the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph other absent members that their presence here is necessary to the transaction of the public business were adopted. In this connection the house heard with applause the message announcing that the senate had passed without amendment the general deficiency bill which the house passed Saturday afternoon. Twice Mr. Daniel, rep., N. Y., endeavored to bring up for consideration the report of elections committee No. 1 on the contested election case of Truman H. Aldrich, rep., vs. Oscar W. Underwood, dem., from the ninth Alabama district. The first time the house refused—64 to 53—to enter upon its consideration. The vote on the second motion had not been announced when recess was taken.

Cabinet Troubles at Rome.

London, June 9.—The correspondent of the Times at Rome says that the Italian ministry is in very rough water, owing to the publication of the Green Book on Abyssinia, which relates communications from Great Britain regarding the Soudan expedition. There is a widespread opinion in Rome that a cabinet crisis is inevitable.

The Proposed New Battleships.

Washington, June 9.—The naval conferees have agreed finally on the battleships in the naval bill. Three ships are provided for, with a stipulation that contracts for armor-plate are not to be made at any price until congress shall have further acted in the matter.

To Take Naval Militia to Sea.

New York, June 9.—Cruiser Raleigh sailed last night for Charleston and New Orleans to take the South Carolina and Louisiana naval militia out to sea for instruction.

Nominated by the President.

Washington, June 9.—The president has nominated Richard M. Bartleman of Massachusetts to be consul of the United States at Malaga, Spain.

Stubborn ✲ Ulcers

due to disease, or an impoverished condition of the blood, are a source of annoyance to the medical fraternity. While continually growing deeper and larger the circle of diseased flesh surrounding them is all the time extending, closing up the ducts through which replenishment of tissue should come. For such troubles physicians everywhere are praising the results obtained by the use of

Bovinine

In the first place the system needs re-invigorating, new flesh tissue should be formed, new and pure blood created, in fact, a new and well nourished body where room for disease does not exist. Food is the thing, and Bovinine, that greatest concentration of the vitalizing elements of lean beef, is the most fitting nourishment of all for speedy results. Then applied externally it nourishes by absorption, where the disease is most apparent, thus striking the enemy on all sides. Ask any Druggist.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

"Mystic Cure" for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits; 75c. Sold by T.S.Armstrong, druggist, Park and North avenues. 2 12 y

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

(Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

Yes, what would she say? Truly I was far from sanguine. I could find no reason for confidence, in spite of many soulful efforts to discover one. We were the best of friends; we were together daily, sometimes for hours at a time; we read together, walked together, and drove together. We had interests in common; in some lines of thought our beliefs were akin. Such things were well enough in their way, but what ground of hope did they furnish? Would not a blush, a sigh, have more meaning? Frequently I read dissertations of the symptoms of the love malady, but surely nowhere had I noted good-fellowship set forth as a distinguishing mark of passion. Then, too, there was the difficulty of the bread-and-butter problem. What business had I to contemplate matrimony, with no well-defined idea how even one mouth was to be filled, in the event of a break with the man who would remain my paymaster no longer than suited his convenience? My savings would cut but a poor figure on a war-chest for a family campaign. Besides, the girl was supposedly well-to-do, and certainly was the heiress of her aunt, whose wealth appeared to be sufficient to enable her to travel wherever she desired, and to pay the bills of high-priced specialists, who charged with an appreciation of the fact that their patients would need to take nothing with them out of this world. It would not be pleasing to be classed as a fortune-hunter. All the philosophy available would not remove the sting from that reproach.

We were the best of friends.

Meditating these things, I fell into habits entirely reprehensible from the standpoint of everyday sanity. I sat up late o' nights, I smoked more strong tobacco than was for my good. I took to moping and violent language. On the whole, it was fortunate that my practice was limited—fortunate for both me and my supposititious patients. Whether anybody guessed the character of my thoughts, or fathomed my moods, was a matter almost of indifference. I told myself that the mask should always be worn in the presence of Mrs. Loring and her niece; as for the others, their opinion did not count. As a matter of fact, I imagine that my secret was known, to all the women thereabouts, and perhaps to some of the men. Banks now and then cracked jokes at my expense of a character which gave ground to believe that he had made a shrewd diagnosis of my malady. But, when all is said and done, the simple truth is that I was as nearly at my wits' end, even with the ghost of the colonel's rivalry exorcised, as probably half the adult males of the nation would own themselves to have been on various occasions, would they but make confession.

Mrs. Loring was unquestionably the better for her life in the country. She still kept herself under the discipline of an invalid, though the precaution was entirely unnecessary. Her appetite was excellent, her nerves were almost forgotten, the daily record of her symptoms was limited to an entry of a few lines, in place of the pages she had covered at first. She often failed to remember that I was her physician, and suffered me to depart without hearing a word bearing on her long-cherished aches and agonies. She had become acquainted with everybody in the village; nobody knew better than she the true inwardness of every piece of mild scandal retailed from one end of it to the other. She was hand in glove with the ringleaders in its social diversions, and was the moving spirit in an enterprise which promised to eclipse anything of the sort ever attempted in Rodneytown. This was no less than a "Fete Internationale," as the programme had it, in which youths and maidens of many lands were to be personated by the young people of the village. There were to be tableaux, recitations, music and dancing, and altogether a somewhat ambitious list of divertisement. Mrs. Loring had assumed the responsibility of designing the costumes, a duty which she was well fitted to perform, for she was blessed with a keen eye for color effects, and her travels had made her a trustworthy source of information regarding the details of the picture it was proposed to present. There were no suggestions of invalidism in her as she bustled about on her congenial tasks; the busier she was, the greater her content. The fete was to her a mental and physical tonic, more beneficial than any possible combination of chemicals. This I realized, but with the perverse pessimism brought about by my season of unrest, I feared that it would result in opening her eyes to the truth that she needed no physician. And when that discovery was made, how long would she and her niece tarry in that quiet neighborhood?

The weather about this time took a turn for the worse; for 48 hours a dense fog hung over the coast. It thinned somewhat by the third morning. The banks of mist were drifting seaward when I plodded across the plain to the house on the knoll. Lamar, who was awaiting me in the living-room, appeared to be giving himself up to idleness, for there were no books on the table at which he sat, and he seemed to be unusually willing to engage in desultory chat. After a little, he told me that he had been feeling far from well for some weeks, and that the depressing weather had aggravated his trouble.

To a stranger he would have looked a sick man, but perhaps association had blunted my perceptions in his case, and his words surprised me. Assuredly he was no weaker than on the night when he first came to me. If there had been any change, it had been an improvement. The old air of the fugitive had in great part disappeared, though he still gave one the impression of continual vigilance.

He described his symptoms with his habitual deliberateness, closing the account with a statement that he believed his heart to be affected seriously, and that he desired me to examine him at once.

"I am afraid that you are correct in your diagnosis," said I, when the task had been accomplished. "There is cardiac trouble. It is far advanced."

"Its character?"

"Valvular. I should like a consultation at once."

"Of what advantage?" he asked, as coolly as if he were not discussing his own death sentence. "The disease is mortal. Treatment cannot cure it."

"But it may prolong life," I urged. "Besides, it is only fairness to yourself to have an expert's opinion. Take my advice—"

"Pardon, but I must decline to do so. I am content with your skill unaided. It is a confirmation of my own suspicion. The end is not so much; I have the warning—it is all I desire."

He was silent for a little, this strange being, his expression unchanged, his self-control absolute. When at last he spoke there was no hint of emotion in his voice as he asked the question I dreaded to hear.

"How long may I, in reason, count upon?"

"I cannot tell you definitely," I answered. "It may be a year, two years, three years; it may be to-morrow. A shock, a—"

"I comprehend. But, undisturbed, what time do the odds favor?"

"Six months. But it is no more than the wildest guesswork."

Again there was a pause. Presently he asked:

"You spoke of a shock. Would it be of necessity fatal?"

"No. But it would be the one chance in ten if it were not." I knew my man well enough to understand that he desired no evasions.

"You speak from the book," he said, quietly; "but in that I think you wrong. I rate the chance greater."

"May you be in the right of it," I said; but he made no comment upon the hope thus expressed. Soon after, having given a few directions for his care of himself, and having promised to have a prescription for him made up at once, I left him to his thoughts. What they were I could hardly imagine, but I hoped that among them was some shadow of remorse at the remembrance of the poor devil whom he had suffered to lie helpless for hours almost at his door. It was fate's irony that of these two men the one who then was close to death should now be far on the road to health, with the prospect of many years before him, while the other, who had rejoiced in his misfortune, should find himself under a sentence which knew no chance of reprieve.

XIX.

After the dampness and fog came a week of almost tropical heat, under which the fields grew parched and dull-hued and the dust lay deep on the highways. The breeze, when it blew, was from the land, but much of the time there was a calm, even more oppressive than the heat-laden zephyrs. Against such conditions the energies of but one of us were proof. Mrs. Loring alone defied the heat and glare and dust, going on with her preparations for the fete with undiminished energy, amid the wondering comments of the rest, to whom all unnecessary exertion had become a thing to be abhorred.

"Goodness gracious! how she do keep goin' so beats me," Mrs. Weston confided to me one afternoon, when she had sought the comparative coolness the office offered.

"She seems to thrive on high temperatures," said I. "She's a human salamander."

"Well, let that be as it may," said Mrs. Weston, who was not to be entrapped into a definite statement on such a doubtful point, "she's a marvel, I must say. 'Tain't like, now, as if she had to work for a livin'. But that's jes' the way the world seems to go. Them that don't need ge's; them that wants to rest has to keep stirrin'. If 'twas her niece was rushin' round, 'twould be all natural, because she's got her livin' to get sooner 'r later. If I was in her place I'd be plannin' and savin' like a good fellow."

TUESDAY, June 9—Sun rises 4:28 a. m., sets 7:30 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:30 p. m. and 3:28 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

W. Gordon Williams and Frank Swackhamer went to Trenton on their wheels Saturday.

A "Tally-ho" tandem has been received for use at the Crescent Oval. It is geared to 90.

Warren McLaughlin, of Somerset street, has purchased a Crescent wheel of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

R. J. Jackson, of East Sixth street, is riding a new Cleveland wheel, purchased from the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company.

Joseph Baldwin, a young professional racer from Newark, is one of the latest arrivals at the Crescent Oval, where he is training.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company are now agents for the Windle wheel, the onyx finish on which has made such a hit. It is a remarkable thing.

Jay Eaton and Howard B. Mosher, of the Jersey Wheel Company's racing team, will ride at the New York State circuit meet at Rochester, this afternoon.

Lindley Hillman, of the High School track team, who rode so well at the New Jersey Interscholastic Athletic Association's games Saturday, rides a Spalding wheel.

Miss Fanny Mills, of East Fifth street, is arranging a cycle trip to Metuchen for Thursday night. About thirty cyclers have been invited and they will meet at the home of Miss Mills.

Clarence Thorn and Percy McVoy took quite a bicycle ride last Sunday. They rode to Jersey City, then enjoyed a spin on the Hudson County Boulevard, and returned to Bayonne, where they spent the afternoon as guests of Frank Dodge, formerly of this city.

The League of American Wheelmen added 2,118 new members for the week ending May 29, and from May 1 to May 29, 11, 807 members joined, or over 400 for each day. The grand total of membership is 48,361. Is there any other association in this country that can match it? The New Jersey Division now has 3,279 members, the additions for the week being 149. Plainfield has two names on the list this week: L. P. Taylor, 326 Central avenue, C. W.; and E. H. Frost, Watchung avenue.

The Vim Cycle Club of Newark, of which Charles Hadfield, the rider who finished first in the Milburn road race, is a member, held a meeting on Tuesday evening and took action upon the disqualification of its club member. Resolutions were passed requesting the Metropolitan Association of Cycling Clubs to withold the prizes in the race, accord Hadfield a hearing and make a full investigation of the circumstances that led to his disqualification.

One of the novelties of modern bicycle trade is the multi-seated machine. At first, a tandem was thought a wonderful thing, but now the limit has been extended to the "double quint," which holds ten riders. The latter, however, seems hardly practicable. The sextette has been in use for some time, and the Fowler Manufacturing Company are sending one among their agents as a novel advertising scheme. The Fowler sextette seats, as the name implies, six riders. It is geared to 150 and has three-inch tires. The steering is done by the front man alone. It is valued at $3,500.

LAWN TENNIS.

A meeting of the Board of Governors of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club will be held this evening at 8:15 o'clock at the club house.

The tenth annual tournament for the championship of the Middle States began yesterday afternoon on the courts of the Orange Lawn Tennis Club. Among the entries in the championship singles was that of Albert P. Simmonds, of this city. He was defeated in the preliminary round by J. P. Paret, of Orange, by a score of 6—3, 4—6, 6—0.

WITH ROD AND GUN

The season thus far has been an unusually good one for fishing.

H. A. Weber, Steve Schlief and George Martin spent yesterday angling for carp at New Market.

GOLF.

H. D. West, one of the crack golfers of the Hillside Tennis and Golf Club, visited the links of the Baltusrol Golf Club at Glenside Park, yesterday.

Miss Julia J. Ketcham, of East Fifth street, left town last week, and is spending a week visiting her sister, Mrs. George P. Noble, of Mendham.

AMONG THE STEPPERS.

C. C. Brower, the veteran horseman, left today for Allentown, Pa., with the horses "Lilly M" and "Highland Boy," where he will enter them and then follow the Pennsylvania State circuit.

Fast time, close finishes, and a large attendance, were the features of the afternoon's sport at the Driving Park last Saturday. Myrtle Twig was the first choice for the 2:25 trot on account of her good race at Waverly on Decoration Day, where she met and disposed of some of the most lively candidates in her class, but not-withstanding this she had to be content with second position in the summary, first race going to the game stallion St. Albans, who won the last two heats and race. As the summary will show, he was the contending horse in the two previous heats. The best performance of the afternoon and season was the mile made by Budd Onward, 2:21¼, who was started to beat his wagon record of 2:31¼, which he placed to his credit on Decoration Day. He was skillfully driven and well rated by his owner, A. C. Vail, and negotiated the distance well within himself in 2:27, a wonderful performance, taking into consideration the condition of the tract, the strong wind that was blowing, and that Mr. Vail himself is considerable over regulation weight. The match race between Minnie B. and Tom Benton was a onesided affair. Tom Benton winning in a jog in the slow time of 2:35¼. The mare had the foot of the party but was rank and unsteady and could not be kept on her stride.

Sprained His Ankle.

Robert Wood, an employe at the freight house, sprained his ankle Saturday at noon by jumping from the platform to the ground. He recovered sufficiently from the injury to be at work yesterday.

—A lamp left burning in the cellar beneath J. P. Laire's hardware store last evening was discovered to be in flames by one of the employes. The lamp was thrown in the street, and thus a serious fire was averted.

G. A. R. in New York State.

Albany, June 9.—Owing to the decrease in the ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic during the past year the Grand Army of the Republic department in this state will have but thirty-eight delegates, one less than last year, in the national encampment at St. Paul in September. During the ast year 2,600 veterans left the posts in this state. This decrease was caused mostly by death.

Capt. John G. Bourke Dead.

Philadelphia, June 9.—Capt. John G. Bourke of the Third cavalry, United States army, died yesterday at the Polyclinic hospital, this city, where he had been under treatment for about three week. He had been suffering for a long while from the effects of disease contracted while campaigning in Texas and the far west. Capt. Bourke had a brilliant record as a soldier.

MUNYON

TALKS ON

DYSPEPSIA.

HOW TO CURE YOURSELF.

Professor Munyon is honored today as the leading authority in the medical world. His new and humane methods of treatment have swept away all the old-fashioned ideas of doctoring with poisonous drugs that create a dozen diseases in the effort to get rid of one. He does not claim that he has one remedy that will cure all complaints, but that he has prepared a specific cure for nearly every disease. He does not claim that Munyon's Rheumatism Cure will cure consumption, dyspepsia or any other complaint, but he does assert that it will cure rheumatism. Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure is prepared expressly to cure dyspepsia; Munyon's Cough Cure to cure coughs; Munyon's Catarrh Remedies to cure catarrh; Munyon's Kidney Cure to cure kidney troubles. The same may be said of all Munyon's different remedies. They may be obtained at all drug stores, mostly at 25 cents a bottle.

A separate specific for each disease. Sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

Personal letters to Professor Munyon, 1505 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., answered with free medical advice for any disease.

Customer—What do you mean by selling me that stuff you called hair restorer and telling me it would restore my head to its original condition?

Chemist—Didn't you like it?

Customer—No, I didn't. If I had kept on much longer I should have been entirely bald. Original condition, indeed!

Chemist—Most people are born bald, sir. That is the original condition.—Tit-Bits.

Power of Association.

Mrs. DeTemper (looking up from paper)—Well, I declare! Another woman, single-handed, has captured a burglar. I should think she would have been killed by the brute; but the paper says the moment she grabbed a poker and made a dash for him his knees trembled and his teeth shook, and he sank to the floor in fright.

CONNECTICUT DEMOCRATS.

State Convention at Hartford To-morrow Promises To Be Largely Attended.

Hartford, June 9.—From returns received by the state committee from town caucuses the indications are that the state convention to-morrow will be larger than any held in many years. For several days there have been consultations among democratic leaders of this city and neighborhood, it is said, on the subject of introducing in the state convention a resolution ordering the Connecticut delegation at Chicago to withdraw from the national convention if a free-silver platform is adopted. It was argued by some of the leaders that such an instruction might be a warning to check the free silver leaders in the west and at the same time strengthen the gold sentiment in the party in the east. As against that it was urged by other leaders that the delegates are simply agents to report to their principals, who can then determine whether the emergency of the party is such as to justify a new state convention and action for a democratic sound money presidential ticket, to be supported by Connecticut democrats.

BALTIMORE DEMOCRATS.

They Endorse Cleveland's Administration and Declare for Sound Money.

Baltimore, June 9.—Democratic primaries for the election of delegates to the three legislative district conventions were held in this city yesterday. The regular organization selected the delegates without opposition to speak of, and will control the Baltimore representation in the state convention tomorrow. Aside from the selection of sixteen delegates to the democratic national convention and the adoption of a sound money platform, nothing else will be done by the state convention. Baltimore county democrats also held their convention yesterday. A resolution was unanimously adopted endorsing President Cleveland in his views on the money question and pledging itself to a sound money currency. The president's name was cheered.

FRANK MAYO DEAD.

Expired Suddenly on a Train Near Grand Island, Neb.

Omaha, Neb., June 9.—Frank Mayo, the distinguished actor, died yesterday on a train while enroute from Denver to this city. Mr. Mayo's company was enroute from Denver to Omaha and was to finish the season with a four nights' engagement in this city. Sunday night he complained a little of dyspepsia and slept the greater part of the time in his chair. At 1 o'clock while the train was west of Grand Island, Neb., Manager Block went to awaken him and found him dead. He died of paralysis of the heart. Members of the Elks lodge met the remains at the train and the body was removed to the Elks' lodge room. Mr. Mayo leaves a widow who is critically ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Elverson, in Philadelphia.

COMMODORE RELEASED.

The Filibustering Steamer's Owners Give Bond to United States Officials.

Charleston, S. C., June 9.—The little filibustering steamer Commodore was released from custody by the United States authorities here last evening upon the attorney of Messrs. J. D. Hart & Co. putting up $4,000 for her appearance when wanted. The boat was seized by the United States customs officials upon her recent return from an alleged trip to Cuba. Information was given against her by one of her seamen, and she has been tied up at the custom house dock ever since. The boat will probably be placed on the ways to have her bottom cleaned, after which, it is stated, she will go to Philadelphia. A crew of eight men have arrived in this city for her.

The motion for her discharge was opposed by the district attorney, but the presiding judge said there was not sufficient ground to detain her for another grand jury and ordered her discharge.

A. G. HOOLEY GETS $6,500

TOWN OF MONROE THUS SETTLES HIS SUIT FOR $100,000 DAMAGES.

Mr. Hooley Fell From a Risky Bridge and Was Severely Injured—Held the Town Liable for Hurts Received.

The case of Abraham G. Hooley, of this city, against the town of Monroe, N. Y., was set down for trial in the Orange County court early this week, and a large number of people came to court to hear the case argued. They were disappointed, however, as the case was settled out of court. Last Saturday the Town Board of the town of Monroe and the Trustees of the village came to Goshen and with their legal advisers, Vanamee, Watts & Vail, a settlement was arranged with the plaintiff's counsel, M. H. Hirschberg and W. F. O'Neill, whereby Mr. Hooley is to receive the sum of $6,500 from the town of Monroe.

It will be remembered that Mr. Hooley brought suit to recover $100,000 for injuries received by falling from an unprotected bridge located in the village of Monroe last fall. Mr. Hooley is still in a serious condition as a result of the fall, and probably will never recover. His lower limbs are completely paralyzed and have been utterly useless since the accident. His spine was also seriously injured. He was brought to Goshen on Saturday, May 30th, strapped to a stretcher, and has remained in that condition since. While in Goshen he was cared for at the home of Dr. J. H. Thompson. He was accompanied by his mother.

Monday night Mr. Hooley was taken to Monroe on train No. 2, and for the present he will board with Mrs. B. F. Montanye, in that village. Since the accident and up to the time of being brought to Goshen, he had been under treatment at a private hospital in New York. Mr. Hooley's business is that of a stock broker in New York city.

QUESTION FOR CANDIDATES.

Catholics Want Views af Presidential Aspirants as to the A. P. A.

The Diocesan Union of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Newark met in the Young Men's Catholic Union Hall, in Harrison, Sunday afternoon. Delegates were present from all parts of the diocese. President, Murphy of Jersey City, presided.

The Rev. Father Bogan, of Rahway, the spiritual adviser of the union, offered a resolution, which was adopted, providing that the following questions be forwarded to every man who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency:

In the event of your election to the Presidency of the United States, will you, in the administration of that office, make any discrimination against Roman Catholics on account of their religious beliefs?

The resolution offered by Father Bogan, it is said, was presented at the request of Bishop Wigger of Newark. The Marquette Club, St. Louis, notified the Bishop that it had taken similar action, and requested some organization in his diocese to take it.

As soon as men are mentioned prominently for the Democratic nomination the same question will be asked of each of them.

Larger Pipes Needed.

The work of the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company in substituting four inch for two inch gas mains on West Front street, will be completed as far as Washington avenue, it is thought, by tomorrow night. The old pipes have been laid for thirty years or more, but they were too small to meet the demand. When taken up the pipes were found to be in an excellent state of preservation.

The Culver Trial.

Lawyer Charles VanWinkle went over to New Brunswick on Monday and secured from the Prosecutor of Middlesex County, twenty-five subpoenaes for witnesses in the case of the State against Nathan Culver, the old man charged with alleged attempt upon a sixteen-year-old school girl on Park avenue near the county line on March 10th last. The case is set down for trial at New Brunswick on June 17th.

MYSTERY OF MRS. SCOTT

PITIFUL STORY OF DESERTED AND HEARTBROKEN WIFE.

Cast Off by Her Husband She Has Drifted About Until She Has Arrived in Westfield With Two Children.

"Oh, dear Lord, thou art so good!" was the cry that broke from the pale lips of a poor Scotch woman living in the rookery on Central avenue, in Westfield, yesterday, when two little boys brought her six dollars, and with the tearful prayer she fell upon her knees.

Three years ago in a New York village this woman was a happy wife, and the mother of two children. Her husband, a Scotchman, had a prosperous business. For three years they were happy and contented, and then he cast her off and went away. The deserted wife surmised that he had gone to Scotland, and selling her effects she took her children and followed him there. His welcome was to send her back to New York. She went from the ship to Picton, N. J., on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and charitable neighbors found her there, occupying a shanty, her bed a pile of straw, a barrel for a table, and without food or fuel.

Mrs. E. L. Massett attended to her wants, and Thomas H. Love became interested in her. He got two rooms for her in a rookery on Central avenue, and the women of the churches furnished them and found her work. Several children arranged a picnic and lawn festival and realized six dollars for her benefit.

Refusing to give her name and known only as "Mrs. Scott," the poor creature is a mystery to the townsfolk. At night pitiful moans are heard to come from her rooms, but the neighbors cannot discover the reason for her sorrow. She goes to the post-office daily, and whispers a name to the clerk at the window. He shakes his head, and she goes out with tears streaming down her face, leading her two little children and telling them that "some time it will come."

POUND OF ANYTHING THE FEE.

Novel Sort of Admission Fee to the Army Meeting Saturday Night.

The meeting of the Salvation Army last evening was attended by about 200 people who witnessed the conversion of one person and the swearing in of another by Brigadier Evans. There was the usual enthusiasm of the soldiers who allowed no dull moments to mark the meeting. The Central Victory Boys are a lively lot of fellows, and headed by Adjutant Taylor, with his "Big Ben" banjo, they are just the sort of workers that will bring life into the local corps. It has been decided to hold a "pound" meeting Saturday night at which every visitor is expected to bring a pound of something to eat. The Victory Boys are naturally strong and hearty and of course it goes without saying that they have to eat. The funds of the Army are not as flush as they might be and this method has been adopted to relieve the treasury as much as possible in the expenditures for the maintenance of the barracks. The meeting Saturday night will be led by F. H. Martin, a well-known Plainfielder.

Col. Higgins, secretary to Commander Booth-Tucker, will accompany Mrs. Booth-Tucker to this city next week and will be one of those to deliver an address. It is the intention to make this meeting a rouser.

GALA DAY FOR SAENGERBUNDS.

The Local German Society to Entertain Visiting Countrymen.

The members of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein are making great preparations for their forthcoming anniversary on Sunday next, when it is expected delegations will be present from the National Turn Verein of Newark and Brooklyn; from the two societies in Passaic; the Norwegian Society, of Brooklyn, and from societies in other nearby places. In the forenoon there will be exhibition turning until noon, after which a substantial dinner will be served by the ladies of the Plainfield Saengerbund. Early in the afternoon a march will be made to Keller's Grove, and sports will occupy the rest of the day.

Somerset County Treasurer.

The report of E. B. Allen, Somerset County Collector, shows the total receipts to be $233,006.12, and the total disbursements $223,469.30, leaving a cash balance of $9,936.82. The total note indebtedness of the county is $80,205, and the accrued interest makes the total county indebtedness, $81,676.60.

A Special Dispensation.

Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, meet tonight. A special dispensation was granted to the Lodge to allow the nomination of officers at this meeting instead of the next.

DECKED OUT IN ROSES.

CHARMING FESTIVAL GIVEN IN THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Chapel Decorated With Flowers and Bunting in a Most Artistic Manner—Those Who Served the Good Things.

The women of the First Presbyterian church could scarcely have presented a more pleasing affair than the rose festival which was held in the chapel of the church last evening. With a general committee composed of Mrs. Howard Pope, Mrs. Dunn, Miss Blisch, Miss Harold and Miss Abbott, one can readily see that the affair was sure to be a success. This committee had supervision over the entire affair, as well as the decorations, which were as beautiful as art and good taste could produce. Naturally, there was a profusion of roses, and they were of the choicest variety. Perhaps the most attractive arrangement was the flower booth decked handsomely with a combination of pink bunting, roses and ferns. At this booth Miss Nora Williams, Miss Helen Boice, Miss Margaret Cave and Miss Eva Dayton, were in charge. Another centre of attraction was the lemonade well, arranged prettily with a roof of straw, entwined with roses. Those who looked after the thirsty were Miss Henrietta Blisch, Miss Maag and Miss Bittenbender.

In a corner was a candy table neatly decorated with roses and ferns, while an abundance of delicious home-made candy was the means of attracting many, who had no trouble in being waited on by Miss Bittenbender, Miss Prudence, Miss Agnes Blair, Miss Overton and Miss Remsen. The committee on strawberries consisted of Mrs. Dunn, Miss Herring, and Miss Abbott. Miss Blisch and Miss Flora Petrie had in charge the cakes and Miss Harold, Mrs. Pope and Mrs. Lounsbury the ice cream.

About the rooms, at convenient points, tables were to be found, where one would set down and receive the attention of the charming young women who were only too anxious to be at your service. The waitresses were the Misses Mary Lucky, Grace Overton, Lillian Glein, Eleanor Vanderventer, Edith Pruden, Jessie Pruden, Jessie McKillop, Evelyn Searing, Bertha Wilcox, Miriam Wilcox, Fanny Mills, Louise Wilbur, Lydia Morrison, Olive Newell, Ada Dunham and Kittie Nevins.

The affair was given for the benefit of the Sunday school and the large number present freely emptied their pocketbooks for the good cause. The success of the festival was due to the earnest and untiring efforts of those who arranged it and assisted.

Suggestion for Railway Magnates.

It has been suggested, and perhaps reasonably so, too, that it would be an excellent idea for the street railway managers to erect neat little and attractive looking waiting places at the end of the car lines, viz: at Watchung and North avenues, at the Somerset street terminus near the mountain, and at Front and Somerset streets. This would be especially beneficial in stormy weather, and all that would be required is a simple awning which may be raised and lowered as occasion demands. Many persons do not care to block the sidewalks and doors of merchants while waiting for a car, but they are neverth eless compelled to do so, or else stand out in the rain. On the other hand few merchants care to have their doorways blocked, simply to accommodate the street railway patrons.

Arguing for Unionism.

The Carpenters' and Joiners' Union was addressed last night in their rooms the Exempt Firemen's Hall by P. J. McGuire, one of the most prominent labor men in the country. A strong endeavor is being made by the Union to enroll every journeymen into their order, and Mr. McGuire's address was concerning the benefits to be derived by organized labor. His argument was logical and well-pointed.

Suit Against Cranford.

William Robinson, of Cranford, has begun suit in the Circuit Court against the Township of Cranford for $5,000 damages. The action is based on the fact that the committee ran the sewer through property belong to him without obtaining his consent. He was offered $2,500 to settle his claim, but he refused to accept any sum less than the amount for which he has brought suit.

Charged With Electricity.

One of the trolley wire poles on East Fifth street opposite the Bryant school, became charged with electricity last night and a red lantern was placed there to warn pedestrians. Luckily no one received a shock.

Closing Exercises of a School.

The closing exercises of Miss Fawcett's school and kinder garten will be held tomorrow evening at at 7:30 o'clock in the Park Club.

THE TRAMPS RELEASED.

NO EVIDENCE OF BEING IN THE TRAIN WRECKING ATTEMPT.

By Advice of the Railway Detectives, Who Found they Told a Straight Story, They Were Let Go by the Judge.

Unless "Larry" Wallace can produce some very unexpected evidence, the chances are that he will have to stand trial for the attempt to wreck the Jersey Central train. The railroad company think that they have captured the right man and so make no attempt to have the three itinerant umbrella menders held for the Grand Jury. Justice Nash received word from the railroad officials yesterday that they did not think the examination set down for today, necessary, so yesterday afternoon the three men were allowed to go on their own recognizance to appear before the Grand Jury when it meets again next September.

There was no evidence against them except that they were in the vicinity when the ties were placed on the track. They all told the same story and declared they had nothing to do with the matter. Wallace's statement, at the time he was captured to Sergeant Kiely and Roundsman Mattox, that they had done the dastardly act was of little account.

Two days ago the police received a letter from a man in Clinton, N. J., telling how three tramps had entered a house there and carried away everything they could lay hands on, and asking that the three umbrella repairers be examined to see if they might be the tramps in question. Chief Grant replied to the letter, but thought that the men were not the ones wanted for the robbery, as either plunder or money seemed a minus quantity among the three prisoners. As nothing more has been heard from Clinton it is supposed that the authorities of that place thought the same.

The three men, James Emerson, John Donohue and Thomas Burns, were released at about 3:30 o'clock and left town soon after.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

A Dog Watch Hollow Farmer's Barns Destroyed by Fire.

Ligtning struck a large barn last evening belonging to George Zimmerman, of Dog Watch Hollow, and the structure, filled with hay, straw, carriages and farming implements, was completely destroyed by fire. Mr. Zimmerman, with the assistance of some neighbors, was able to save his horses. There was little danger to the house as the barn was some distance away. About four years ago buildings on the adjoining farm were set afire in the same way and also destroyed. The residents in that locality say that the lightning last evening was the most severe ever witnessed. The heavy rain no doubt prevented further damage by fire.

RESCUED FROM A WATERY GRAVE.

A Seven-Year-Old Lad Falls Off the Elm Street Brigde.

A narrow escape from drowning occurred last evening at the Elm street bridge. Roy Coddington, of Linden avenue, aged seven years, together with some other boys, were playing about the edge of the bridge, when suddenly Roy Coddington fell in the brook at a deep point. The other boys were too small to assist him, and it just happened that Chief Marshal Wilson and George Squiers were nearby. The men with some difficulty rescued the boy, and after getting the water out of him he was sent home, none the worse for the accident.

Dr. Smith's Trial Postponed.

Dr. Charles Smith, of Rahway, was to have been placed on trial at noon Monday in the Union County Court of Common Pleas on an indictment found against him at the instance of the Union County Medical Society for practising without a license. The penalty for conviction on a first offense is thirty days in the county jail and a fine of $25. The defendant is about 65. Owing to the absence of a Camden physician connected with the State Medical Board, the trial was put off until tomorrow.

Corn Planted on Sewage Beds.

The last of the mason work at the sewer beds has been completed and as soon as the cement dries the lower beds will be ready to use. The wooden channels to distribute the sewage matter evenly over the beds are the only things left to be made. Corn has been planted on the beds nearest to Dunellen and only enough sewage will be turned on them to keep the corn in condition.

Mothers will find Chamberlain's Cough Remedy especially valuable for and whooping cough. It will give prompt relief and is safe and pleasant. We have sold it for several years and it has never failed to give the most perfect satisfaction. G. W. Richards, Duquesne, Pa. Sold by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

STATE MUST ACT FIRST.

H. C. JACKSON MAKES A STATEMENT IN THE JAIL.

Hopes to Have the Prosecutor Move for His Release and Thereby Get an Exoneration—Asks for Better Quarters.

George Bodine, a New Brunswick lawyer, representing Lawyer Ransom, who is acting as counsel for H. C. Jackson, appeared before Judge Strong in the Middlesex County Court, this morning, and presented a letter from Jackson asking that he make a request to the Sheriff to remove him from the jail proper to witnesses' quarters, where it would be more agreeable for him. At present he is confined in a cell with Thomas Donlon, who was indicted for the murder of Edward Matterson.

The request will probably be made by the Judge immediately.

County Prosecutor Voorhis announced today that if the experts of chirography announce a favorable decision in the similarity of handwriting on the two letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Jackson, he will call the case in court Friday and move for the discharge of Jackson.

In an interview this morning Jackson said that he did not want any proceedings brought to release him from custody on habeas corpus proceedings. He preferred, he said, to have any action seeking his release to be brought by the State and then it would be in the nature of an exoneration for him. Otherwise he preferred to remain in custody and await the action of the Grand Jury. He has no fear but what his innocence will be proven.

FARMER DUNN'S WRATH.

He Sent a Heavy Shower to Interfere With a Church Festival.

Farmer Dunn has not been feeling very well lately, and his laundry bill has also been large, so when the young ladies of the First M. E. church, of this city, applied for a pleasant evening for their entertainment at Vincent chapel, he deliberately sent a thunder storm carousing over Jersey, and Plainfield in particular last evening.

Just at the the time when the people began to make ready, the rain came down. It came down in sheets accompanied by a regular battery of thunder claps and "pitchforky" lightning. Of course, there were very few who braved the storm, and the management held a consultation to see what was to be done. It was decided that, as some of those that were to take part were also absent, part of the programme should be given and the affair called a "dress rehearsal," while the entertainment will be given entire next Tuesday evening. At the close of the rehearsal the tickets were refunded and everyone was invited to come again next week.

Although it was not the regulular entertainment they saw, the small audience present passed a very delightful evening. The parts given were excellent, especially the "Tableaux Mouvant," which were given by eight young ladies clad in Grecian costume. The poses were well selected, while the calcuim light, sometimes white, sometimes colored, added greatly to the effect.

The women decided to continue the festival on Thursday night, owing to the storm, which affected the attendance last evening.

A Rathbone Sister Afflicted.

The regular meeting of Minerva Temple, Rathbone Sisters, was held last evening, at which time the nominations of officers for the ensuing term were made. Deputy Supreme Chief E. Palmer, paid the Temple a fraternal visit, and the sisters received with regret the news that it was her last visit for a long time, as she was suffering from a painful affliction of the hand and arm, for which she will soon undergo an operation, which will prevent her from attending to her official duties for some time.

Promised to be Better Boys.

The lads who have been making life weary for William Ross, proprietor of the Delmonico Oyster and Chop House, came up before City Judge DeMeza this morning. They were lectured severely and made to promise to "never do so any more," and were then allowed to go.

Notable Event for Plainfield.

It is now the intention of the street railway company to formally open the lines on Saturday. Officials from both the city and borough have been invited to take a ride and the event will be an auspicious one.

HOBART THEIR CHOICE.

NEW JERSEY DELEGATES BOOM HIM FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

And the Majority of the Delegation Are for McKinley for First Place—General Sewell Remains Uncommitted.

Most of the members of the New Jersey delegation to the National Republican Convention will start for St. Louis next Saturday, in the train leaving Jersey City at 2:13 p. m. At Philadelphia, Senator Sewell's private car will be attached to the train. Gov. Griggs, ex-Congressman John Kean, and Elisha B. Gaddis, of Newark, will be the guests of General Sewell on the trip. Chairman Franklin Murphy of the State Committee, who is one of the delegates at large, was invited to become one of the party, but a business engagement in Chicago prevented his acceptance. He will start for Chicago early in the week, but will return in Gen. Sewell's car.

Garret A. Hobart left for St. Louis Monday to attend the meeting of the National Committee, of which he is vice-chairman. Delegates Geo. Hires and Robert E. Hand, of the First District, will leave on Friday afternoon with a party of Trentonians, which will also include Congressmen Loudenslager and Pitney.

The New Jersey delegation, it is claimed, stands sixteen for McKinley to one for Reed, and three who have not declared a preference. One of the latter is General Sewell, who has resisted all attempts to induce him to signify his choice. The McKinley men express a confidence that the whole of New Jersey's twenty votes will go for the Ohioan on the first ballot.

A conference of the delegates will be held on Monday evening, June 15th, after the arrival of the party in St. Louis, to select a chairman and members of the convention committees. General Sewell will undoubtedly be chosen as chairman by reason both of his position of the party in the State and because of fitness and experience. He has been a delegate to every National Convention since and including 1876, and was chairman of the delegation at the last three.

If the New Jersey Republicans can have their way Garret A. Hobart will get second place on the National ticket. All of the delegates except Congress McEwan, of Hudson county, are enthusiastically for him, and the sentiment of the Republican voters is in his favor. McEwan opposition is based upon the fact that Mr. Hobart is a "corporation man."

Hobart buttons made their appearance last week and are worn by all the leading Republicans of the State. A large supply has been secured for distribution among the delegates from other States at St. Louis. The button bears a good picture of the candidate, and surrounding it are the words, "Our choice for Vice President, Garret A. Hobart." It is expected that ex-Judge J. Frank Fort, of Newark, will make the nominating speech for Hobrrt.

The general headquarters of the New Jersey delegation will be at the Planters' Hotel, where General Sewell, Vice-Chairman Hobart, Governor Griggs, ex-Congressman Kean, Franklin Murphy and some of the other delegates have secured quarters. A special headquarters for Jerseymen and place for holding conferences will be at Clark avenue and Fourth street, in Mr. Murphy's building.

A Faithful Veteran.

There is perhaps no G. A. R. veteran in the State who is more loyal to the cause than Uncle "Billy" Moore, of Post 73. On Decoration Day he took it upon himself to go to Warrenville on foot and from there to Springdale, Mt. Horeb and Mt. Bethel, where he flagged and decorated the graves of the dead soldiers. In some of the cemeteries he was assisted by the Misses Coddington. Comrade Moore walked over fourteen miles in all and he has not before received public recognition for his services, although this is his annual custom.

Picnicked on the Drive.

The primary department of the Sunday-school of the East Third Street Mission enjoyed a delightful picnic yesterday on the large grounds surrounding the residence of Peter Johnson, of Plainfield avenue. They were under the charge of Miss Beth Thompson.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

IT IS ALL M'KINLEY

Other Candidates Seem To Have Been Forgotten at St. Louis.

DELEGATES AND LEADERS ASSEMBLING

The Ohio Man's Managers Say He Will Be Nominated on the First Ballot—Reed and Allison Men Talk of Second Ballot.

St. Louis, June 10.—St. Louis has already the appearance of a national convention city. The hotels are rapidly filling with visitors and every incoming train adds to the list of delegates and prominent republican leaders already here from all parts of the country. McKinley badges, lithographs, fans and buttons are to be seen at every turn. In truth, the fact that there is more than one candidate seems to be lost sight of on all sides and about the only points of contention are who will get second place and what the platform will say on finance. At the headquarters of the Ohio man it is confidently asserted that there will be one roll call in the convention and that will result in the nomination of Major McKinley. In discussing the interview of Mr. Filley, wherein he stated that a roll call must be completed before a nomination could be made, and proposed an informal ballot, Judge Thompson said: "I am familiar with the mode of procedure in national conventions, and I have never in my life heard of such a thing as an informal ballot. Mr. Filley is as sincere for McKinley as we are, but he should remember that we do not control the action of the delegates. If when some state like Pennsylvania, South Carolina or Texas is reached, and some delegate sees that McKinley has already received votes sufficient to nominate him, who is to say that a delegate has not the right to move that Major McKinley be nominated by acclamation? It was done at Minneapolis four years ago. When Texas was reached it was evident that Harrison had votes enough to nominate, and the vote was made unanimous. No one objected to it, and no one proposed an informal ballot."

Reed Men Talk of a Second Ballott.

The Reed men, the Allison men and in fact all other than McKinley men refuse to give a roster of their pledged delegates and refer vaguely to breaks on the second ballot. Lieutenants of the Ohio man answer this by saying there will be no second ballot. There was some nebulous gossip afloat this morning touching combinations to prolong the contest, but all efforts to resolve this to certainty met with the reply: "Wait until after Manley comes." The prominent arrivals last night included Joseph H. Manley of Maine; Chairman Thomas Carter of Montana; Isaac M. Potter, Rhode Island, and W. H. Hearst of California. Chairman Manley was visited this morning by scores of politicians, all eager to press claims of various sorts, but Mr. Manley pleaded fatigue and retired to his room.

The Vice-Presidency.

For vice-president a number of names have been mentioned, and the McKinley followers are sure Reed will be the man if he will accept the place. His friends, however, stoutly maintain that he will not. W. S. Manning of New York, an out-and-out McKinley man, was asked this morning who will be the candidate if Reed refuses. "Well, it should be a southern man," he said, "but I hardly believe one from that section will be able to secure it. H. Clay Evans should properly get the place, and the southern delegates want the place for him. The Indiana people are shouting for McAlpin, and the Jerseyites want Hobart. The nomination is an open one and the only interesting thing about the convention."

Hanna Arrives.

Although M. A. Hanna and other Ohio McKinley supporters were expected yesterday, they did not reach the city until this morning. Mr. Hanna came in on his private car accompanied by Senator Proctor, Abner McKinley, Gen. Osborne of Boston, Col. Myron T. Herrick and Sylvester T. Everett, delegates from the twenty-first Ohio district. Mr. Hanna was in the best of spirits and evidently he feels confident that there is no doubt of McKinley's nomination. In fact, he is reported to have said that the Ohio man's strength was so great that no scheme whatever could be sprung by his enemies or opponents that would have the least effect.

Says McKinley Is for Gold.

Ex-Congressman Thompson, manager pro tem of the McKinley forces, has given out his opinion of what will be the vital plank in the platform upon which Mr. McKinley expects to stand. "What will be McKinley's platform on the financial question?" asked a reporter of Mr. Thompson. "It will be for the single gold standard, pure and simple," he promptly replied. "And to be explicit," continued the Ohioan, "I will add that the financial platform of Mr. McKinley always has been the antithesis of what is known as 16 to 1 silverism, and so it will be through the campaign."

Major McKinley's Plans.

Canton, O., June 10.—Major McKinley's private secretary James Hoyle will leave to-day for Columbus, from whence he will go to St. Louis. Mrs. McKinley left last evening for Columbus to visit friends. Major McKinley will remain in Canton until after the convention. A private wire connects his residence with M. A. Hanna's room in the Southern hotel, St. Louis, and there will be constant communication between the two gentlemen.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? WEYLER TO DINE LEE

Our Consul at Havana the Guest To-Day of the Captain-General.

UNUSUAL COURTESY EXTENDED TO HIM

Havana Volunteers Routed by a Small Rebel Party—Short Crops in Cuba Cause Serious Concern at Madrid.

Havana, June 10.—Consul General Lee again visited Capt.-Gen. Weyler yesterday. It is said Dawley, the imprisoned correspondent of Harper's Weekly, will be freed to-day. The captain-general has invited Gen. Lee to dine with him to-day. Weyler is extending unusual courtesy to Gen. Lee.

SPANIARDS ROUTED.

A Force of Havana Volunteers Meet Defeat at the Hands of the Rebels.

Havana, June 10.—On Thursday last a force of Havana volunteers who were acting as a garrison on the Precioso estate, near Cardenas, met a small rebel party and an engagement took place in which the volunteers were defeated and compelled to retreat. Seven of the government's forces were killed and two wounded. Lieut. Vasquez and two other Spaniards were captured, but were released after signing a document in which they bound themselves to never again fight against the Cuban patriots.

Cuba's Short Harvest.

Madrid, June 10.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Havana says that the Cuban harvest this year will be only one-eighth that of 1895. The authorities are concerned regarding the condition of the laborers in the island, and are trying to prevent them from joining the insurgents. Four months' pay is owing to the army. The dispatch adds that the forces of Maceo are overrunning the province of Pinar del Rio.

No Decision Before August.

Madrid, June 10.—The military council is engaged minutely studying the documents relating to the case of the American filibustering schooner Competitor, which was recently captured by the Spanish authorities on the coast of Cuba. The examination of these documents will be protracted and no decision will be reached before August at the very earliest.

THE BERMUDA LIBELED.

Said To Be a Scheme To Procure Her American Registry.

Philadelphia, June 10.—The steamer Bermuda which was recently deprived of her registry by the British consul at this port because, it is said, of her alleged filibustering expeditions, and which has since been lying at Camden, N. J., has been seized by United States Marshal Pfeiffer of New Jersey on a libel filed by three seamen for unpaid wages. The amount claimed by the seamen is $27.75. It is said that the filing of the libel is part of a plan to secure a registry for the steamer under the American flag. It was stated that if the vessel should be sold by order of the United States court and purchased by an American citizen her past record would be wiped out and her owner could procure new papers and sail her under the American flag. The seamen who brought the proceedings are Geo. Mansen, Servente Goden and John Petersen. They claim that they were engaged to ship on the steamer on April 13, when she was preparing for her last trip to Jamaica. After working for nine days on the vessel they were told, they claim, that she would probably engage in a hazardous undertaking and they refused to sign the shipping articles. The mate then gave them an account of the wages due them. When they presented this to John D. Hart, the reputed owner, payment was refused. Lawyer Harrison Voorhees of Camden, who represents the seamen, denies that the suit has been instituted, so far as he knows, to secure a new registry for the steamer.

SPANISH WARSHIP IN PURSUIT.

The Filibustering Steamer Laurada Takes Refuge in Port Antonio.

Kingston, Jamaica, June 10.—The filibustering steamer Laurada, from New York, arrived at Port Antonio on Saturday last. A Spanish warship was in pursuit of her, but, of course, did not enter the port in her effort to capture the Laurada. The warship is still off the port waiting for the Laurada to leave. It is believed that the latter landed a large quantity of munitions of war in Cuba. If she should be pursued when she leaves Port Antonio she will run along the coast within the marine league limit until her superior speed enables her to stand out to sea in advance of the Spanish warship.

Newfoundland Bonds Floated in England.

St. Johns, N. F., June 10.—Two million five hundred thousand dollars worth of 3½ per cent. Newfoundland government bonds have been floated in London at from 97 to par. This marks an advance of 16 points in Newfoundland securities in the past year, due to the returning prosperity of the colony.

Admits His Guilt.

Hartford, June 10.—The authorities of the town of Berlin have arrested a man named Patrick who stabbed Joseph Koliwick at a Polish christening Monday. Patrick admits the stabbing. Koliwick has fifteen stab wounds in all and is in a critical condition with every probability of death.

Public Funeral for Jules Simon.

Paris, June 10.—A majority of the members of the chamber of deputies have approved of a public funeral for Jules Simon, the distinguished statesman who died Monday morning from neurosis of the stomach.

CAPT. HEALY'S PUNISHMENT.

Dropped to Foot of List of Captains and Suspended from Duty.

Washington, June 10.—Secretary Carlisle has decided to drop Capt. Healy, revenue marine service, to the foot of the list of captains, to suspend him from duty and to place him on waiting orders for a period of four years, and to have the order of reprimand read on all the vessels of the revenue marine service, which order contains the warning that a repetition of his extensive drunkenness will cause his dismissal from the service. Captain Healy's sentence is the next most severe to dismissal. He commanded the United States steamer Bear, and charges were preferred against him by Lieutenants Daniel and Emery and Assistant Engineer Jones. Five charges and fourteen specifications were made by Lieut. Daniel, one charge and three specifications by Lieut. Emery and one charge and two specifications by Engineer Jones. The charges embraced drunkenness, abusive and tyrannous conduct, placing a government vessel in peril while drunk and endangering life and property.

CIGAR MAKERS APPEAL.

Ask Secretary Olney for Protection Against Weyler's Tobacco Embargo.

New York, June 10.—Mr. Krohn, secretary of the National Association of Cigar manufacturers, has sent to Secretary of State Olney a letter with reference to the tobacco embargo laid upon Cuba by Gen. Weyler. The communication affirms that if the existing contracts for the delivery of leaf tobacco purchased on the island of Cuba cannot be enforced enormous pecuniary losses will result and great hardships entailed upon many thousands of employes in the United States. An appeal is also made to the secretary of state for protection, and it is requested that such action be taken for the conservation of the important interests of the American citizens involved as may, under the circumstances, seem proper.

ONE DEAD; SIX WILL DIE.

180 Cans of Dynamite Exploded by Railroad Track Workers.

Johnstown, Pa., June 10.—One hundred and eighty cans of dynamite exploded about a mile below Lilly last evening with frightful results. The dead and injured are: Mike Scawnoski, dead; Antonio Stibie, Gregorius Sciskie, Gabriel Augonoski, Frank Smith, colored; Peter Jackson, colored; Samuel Walters, fatally injured. The men were at work on the Pennsylvania railroad and were getting ready to make a blast when a premature explosion followed, blowing up 180 cans of dynamite and burying the seven men beneath a mass of sand and rock.

FOR WIBORG'S PARDON.

Petition in the Horsa Captain's Case Turned Over to the Attorney-General.

Washington, June 10.—The numerously signed petition for the pardon of Capt. Wiborg of the Horsa, who was sentenced by the United States court in Philadelphia to one year and four months' imprisonment and $300 fine for violation of the neutrality laws in landing a party of filibusters and their arms in Cuba, has been delivered to the president by Capt. Kerr of counsel for the prisoner. It has been referred to the attorney-general for report, in accordance with the usual procedure.

Arrested on Suspicion of Murder.

Lewiston, Me., June 10.—Henry Grenier was arrested yesterday on suspicion of being the murderer of Honore Dionne, Saturday night. Dionne was found at 5 o'clock Sunday morning, nearly dead in a woodshed, dying shortly afterwards. A post mortem examination held Monday afternoon showed a bad fracture on the back of the head, indicating death by violence.

Connecticut's Escaped Convicts.

Hartford, June 10.—Up to this morning there was no clue to the discovery of the two men, Dwight F. Steere and George A. Minor, one a life convict and the other a ten year prisoner, who escaped from state prison at Wethersfield Monday. Various rumors of their having been seen have been investigated without any result.

Appointed Inspector of Cattle.

In Plainfield the dog roams the streets at his own free will—dog days or no dog days.

The death of Frank Mayo removes one of America's representative actors. His impersonation of Davy Crocket, in which he made a reputation in his early days, was only equalled by his character of Puddenhead Wilson of his later days.

Irrespective of party affiliations, it is doubtful if there is a voter in Plainfield but who would like to see James E. Martine sent to Congress. And if he is ever honored by such an election his constituents may rest assured that the Eighth Congressional District will be heard from. The Farmer Orator would be no mere figurehead to come at the beck and call of this or that man.

McKinley will be the man nominated at St. Louis, and on a platform the essential feature of which will be a demand for a high protective tariff. With such a platform and such a candidate the Republicans will be tempting fate. A four years trial of the McKinley idea had a most disastrious effect on the country, and whether or not the ficticious cry of high wages and roast beef will inveigle the American people in to accepting him as their chief executive remains a question that will only be decided at the ballot box.

The New York Evening Sun, commenting on some of the oddities of Jersey justice, has the following to say in regard to the Coroners's inquest in the Jackson case:

In a State where women may be fined for scolding and it is no uncommon thing for a man to be haled to court for saying "Damn," the existence of very blue laws is not surprising. Jersey justice, in fact, is proverbially crude, antiquated and odd, sometimes bearing on its victims with unnecessary harshness. An instance in point is the detention of Charles H. Jackson, who on Saturday last was committed to jail to await the action of the Grand Jury in September on the suspicion of a Coroner's jury, sitting in secret, that he had shot his young wife. The Coroner not only excluded newspaper representatives from the inquest, but when it was over he refused to disclose the evidence on which the verdict was rendered. Why a judicial hearing like an inquest should be secret is a question that can be answered probably only in New Jersey. The evidence which has been brought to light in the Jackson case indicates that the young man is guiltless of the awful crime with which he stands charged by the Coroner's jury, and his friends intend to resort to habeas corpus proceedings to secure his release. If he is innocent the secret inquest has done him an injury for which he has no redress, besides throwing a shadow on his reputation. At that cruel burlesque of a hearing he was unrepresented by counsel, and admittance to the inquest room was denied him while the witnesses summoned by the Coroner were testifying. A demand should be made on the next Legislature in New Jersey to do away with the secret inquest, which is alien to the spirit of American institutions. And while the lawmakers are about it they might go further and sweep all oppressive and impracticable laws from the statute books.

A MUSICALE.

Pupils of Miss Ada Marsh Give a Creditable Recital.

A delightful musicale was held at the home of Miss Ada Marsh, of Franklin place, yesterday afternoon by her pupils in piano instruction.

The several children from five to seven years of age, who preceed the main programme, played with accuracy and firmness of touch, and received a generous share of the applause.

Miss Frances Weir played with artistic taste, Heller's Water Sprites, and also four of her own compositions. Miss Virginia Negus, in her difficult selection, gave evidence of careful study. The Grieg Valse was very gracefully played by Miss Louise Fisk, and a prelude of Chopin by Miss Mary Anderson Reinhart, was delightfully rendered. Special praise was given to the brilliant performances of Miss Helen Drake and Miss Edith Arens. Miss Arens executed with ease the technical difficulties of Mendelssohn's Rondo Capriccioso, and showed true musical feeling. The entire programme passed off smoothly, each pupil playing with the assurance which comes when one is well prepared.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. REMOVE THE DEAD WOOD.

Blighted Trees are an Eyesore and Disgrace to the Town.

The Town Improvemen Association furnishes the following for publication:

Plainfield is justly proud of her beautiful trees, but in many parts of the city a judicious thinning out of them would be beneficial in every way, resulting in improved sanitary condition of the neighborhood and the better development of the trees. Sargent says: "Of the implements required to produce a fine tree the axe is certainly the first and most important." The removal of dead trees along the roadways is a public benefaction.

They are sometimes killed by under ground gas poison, sometimes by electric wires, and are allowed to remain, an eyesore to all beholders, save perhaps the immediate property owners else why are they not promptly removed?

The familiar, yet ever, mysterious array of green which clothes our trees in spring is thus spoken of by Prof. Halstead, of Rutgers College, in the "Chatauquan" for May.

"This vernal display is essentially the result of a prominent action upon the part of the plant by means of which substinance has been accumulated through the activity of root and leaf and so packed away in the buds that that in the shortest possible time, when conditions favor, it may produce the great change so fresh to our eyes each returning spring. And when leaves are once upon the herb, shrub, and tree, they are for use.

"While foliage is pleasing to the eye it is the garb of work. Green is the color of service and when it is lacking in foliage, either the leaf is sick, or is detailed for some other labor."

MAY CLOSE TO-DAY

Final Adjournment of Congress Expected This Afternoon.

IMPORTANT BUSINESS CLEARED UP

Only Two Appropriation Bills Before the Senate This Morning and Speedy Action on Them Was Looked for—In the House.

Washington, June 10.—Very rapid progress was made this week by the senate in clearing up the odds and ends of legislative work, only two appropriation bills, the sundry civil and the District of Columbia, remaining this morning to be considered, and the indications are that they will be disposed of to-day, thus leaving the senate in a position for final adjournment, which may bo reached this afternoon. Final conference reports on the naval appropriation bill were presented and agreed to. In the naval bill a compromise was made reducing the number of new battleships to three, and directing that no contracts shall be made for armor plate until after the secretary of the navy shall have inquired into the cost of manufacture and shall have made report to congress. The question of contract schools in the Indian bill was compromised on the basis of allowing them, where there are no other schools to take their place, during the fiscal year 1897. A resolution offered by Mr. Wolcott, rep., Col., respecting the erection of an equestrian statue to Gen. William T. Sherman in the city of Washington was taken up and discussed for nearly two hours. It directed an inquiry by the committee on the library into the facts and circumstances of the contract, and requested the secretary of war to suspend its execution until next session. The resolution was defeated. The bill in relation to contempt of court reported from the judiciary committee by Mr. Hill, dem., N. Y., was taken up, discussed for some time and then allowed to be set aside informally so that other business might be taken up. The bill increasing from $12 to $50 a month the pension of Francis E. Hoover, which was vetoed by the president, and afterwards passed by the house over the president's veto, was taken up and discussed briefly, but when the senate came to vote upon its passage it turned out that there was no voting quorum in the chamber.

House of Representatives.

It is confidently believed by many members of the house that final adjournment of this session will be taken to-night. The vote by which the contested election case of Aldrich, rep., vs. Underwood, dem., from ninth Alabama district, was decided in favor of the former yesterday, stood 116 yeas to 107 nays. Mr. Aldrich was sworn in. The final conference reports on the Indian and naval appropriation bills were agreed to amid applause. The report of the conference upon the sundry civil appropriation bill, a final agreement as to all matters in dispute except the public building appropriations, was agreed to. The house voted to insist upon its disagreement to these, except as to that for the building at Savannah, Ga., but by a vote of 96 to 91 agreed to it. The house disagreed to the senate amendment to the urgency deficiency bill giving to every employe on the rolls December 2, 1895, and since discharged a month's salary. The rules were suspended and the bill passed to put in operation the recommendations of the international marine conference for preventing collisions at sea. A resolution reported from the committee on accounts was agreed to, authorizing the speaker to appoint a special committee of five to sit during the recess to investigate the charges against the Leavenworth Soldiers' home, and appropriating $3,000 for its expenses.

Assignee To Continue the Business.

Amesbury, Mass., June 10.—At a meeting of creditors of the Lewis & Gross Shoe company the firm stated its liabilities as $26,000; assets, $31,000, which includes the plant, stock in factory and $4,000 worth of manufactured goods for Chicago. It asked for extension of time and a committee of three was appointed to investigate. The assignee was instructed to continue the business.

Thompson Won't Row at Henley.

Toronto, June 10.—Bush Thompson, the Argonaut Rowing club sculler, will not go to the Henley regatta as intended. The reason he assigns for withdrawing is pressure of business. Thompson has been practicing hard lately and his decision to stay away from the regatta is regretted by all oarsmen.

New York Canal Shipments.

Albany, June 10.—The report of canal shipments for the week ending June 8, compared with last year's figures covering a corresponding time, show an increase of nearly 34,000 tons. The shipments of wheat have increased from 3,580 tons in 1895 to 26,704 tons this year.

Harris Engine Co. Employes Resume Work.

Providence, June 10.—The forty employes of the W. A. Harris Engine company who did not receive their wages on Saturday and consequently refused to work Monday have been paid in full and have returned to work.

To Be Made Cardinals.

Rome, June 10.—The Osservatore Romano states that the papal nuncios at Lisbon, Vienna, Paris and Madrid will be made cardinals.

Treasury Gold Reserve.

Washington, June 10.—The treasury gold reserve at the opening of business to-day stood at $106,319,484.

His Opportunity.

"Mean! Why, he's the meanest man that ever lived!

"What has he been doing?"

"He has made a collection of all the presents that his wife has made him in the course of their married life—dressing gowns, embroidered suspenders, shaving sets, slippers, neckties and hat bands—"

"And then?"

"Why, ever since she has put on bloomers he has been giving them back to her as anniversary presents on the anniversary of everything connected with their married life. In that time he hasn't bought her a single thing that pertains to femininity."—Chicago Evening Post.

An Ideal Found.

The young man who writes verses was standing out in the night gazing at the sky, when a friend ran across him.

"What are you doing; studying astronomy?"

"Go way and don't disturb me; I am gazing into infinite distance."

"I don't see what satisfaction you find in that."

"That's because you have never had any experience with editors. You don't know what a comfort it is to find some place where nothing is crowded out for lack of space."—Washington Star.

Such Impudence.

"I never saw the impudence Mrs. Ricketts has," said Mrs. Snodgrass to her husband.

"What is the trouble now?"

"She has but one child, you know, while I have six, and when I told her she ought to have more children, she said her motto was quality, not quantity."—Town Topics.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

[Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.]

"Why should she?" I demanded. "Her aunt must be at least well to do, and she's nearer to her than anybody else."

"Oh, come now, don't you know about Mis' Loring's money?"

"No. Honestly, so far as I know, she is quite able to provide for her niece. What do you mean?"

Mrs. Weston's face shone with the joy of telling a story new to her hearer.

"Oh, it come straight to me," said she. "Mis' Loring told Mis' Clark, and I got it right from her. Mis' Loring's husband left her jes' a interest in his estate, and when she dies it all goes back to his folks. She gets the interest every year, but she can't touch the principal. So Miss Gray can't get anything from her, though, of course, she pays her bills now."

"Perhaps Miss Gray has an income of her own," I suggested.

"Mis' Loring says not. Her pa was kinder shif'less, and didn't leave her nothing. Mis' Loring's taken care of her ever since she was a little girl."

I sat deep in thought long after Mrs. Weston had gone back to her household duties. Did her news please me? So far as the girl was concerned, I was heartily sorry to learn that her prospects were so uncertain; so far as the tidings affected me, I rejoiced. I was free to press my suit, to ask her hand, undeterred by the dread of a misconception of my motives. At least one of the obstacles had been removed from my path.

When meditation had become a weariness—and when one is in love it requires a vast amount of brain-racking to produce this result—I picked up my hat and left the house, greatly influenced by the hope that Miss Gray might be tenanting some shaded nook in the neighborhood. Somewhat to my surprise, she was walking slowly down the road.

"We're going boating," she explained, when I overtook her. "It is so oppressively hot on shore that both aunt and I decided that it could be no worse on the water. Then, too, there is a chance that we may find some breeze stirring on the bay. Will you not join us?"

"With pleasure," said I. "But how does Mrs. Loring contrive to spare the time? She is supposed to be busy day and night with the arrangements for the fete, you know."

"So she is," said the girl, with a smile, "but when I proposed that she should take a vacation for a few hours she saw the wisdom of the idea. She will follow us to the boat in a few minutes. Really, I think it was the allurement of a little trip on the water which won her over to leaving her designs and programmes. She is devoted to boating, you know; it is surprising that she has resisted the temptation so often lately. She has been out with me hardly half a dozen times; and Mr. Johnson has had but one pupil at his sailing lessons."

"And how have you improved them?"

"My teacher is flattering. But perhaps I may be able to display my skill in a practical way, if only we get a breeze this afternoon."

"Count on me to be a severe critic," said I. "By the way, Miss Gray, do you mind if I combine business with pleasure? I have an errand to do at Mr. Lamar's, and if you would land me near his house, and then pick me up again, I should be your debtor forever."

She fell in with this plan, and I turned back to the house to secure a volume which Lamar had asked me to lend him. It was a small textbook on histology, I remember, though why he should have desired to get a smattering of that branch I never learned. When I reached the boat Mrs. Loring was enthroned in the stern sheets, while her niece was perched on the narrow seat in the bow. The air was stifling hot on the sheltered waters of the creek, and the sweat gathered on my face as I busied myself with the oars.

"Ugh! this is like the flue of a furnace," I protested, ceasing rowing for a moment to wipe my forehead. "I envy you ladies your parasols and cool attire."

"Ah, but woman's dress is so illogical, you know, so contrary to the dictates of sense and science," said Miss Gray, a little maliciously. To tell the truth, I think she was quoting a remark of mine with reasonable accuracy.

"Do you believe that?" I asked, rather feebly, glancing at her over my shoulder. She wore a gown of some light thin fabric, and, with the art possessed by many of her sex, looked daintily comfortable in spite of the outrageous temperature.

"Of course she doesn't," Mrs. Loring broke in. "If any girl says such a thing, it is because the fashion is not becoming to her."

A remark so direct, so unqualified, and so free from repetitions was a novelty. It centered my attention on the speaker, who, I now noted, was dressed almost as seasonably as her niece, although she favored darker colors.

"No man's opinion seems to be weighty enough to count," said I, "especially as the kickers would, no doubt, be the first to protest if their objections were heeded and led to rational dress."

"Oh, really, I don't know," said Mrs. Loring, rising to the opportunity. "Some men are so persuasive, so delightfully persuasive, doctor, they can convince you, or make you think you're convinced—which is almost the same thing, don't you know? And so many of your profession, doctor—when I think how great my acquaintance with them has been, it appalls me, it really appalls me—argue so beautifully, but so differently, doctor, so differently. And very likely it would be the same thing, the very same thing with them, if they had to devise a national costume which should be healthy and hygienic and all the other things it should be—and they say it isn't now, doctor. Now, I like, yes, really, I must say, I like variety. You can't imagine how pretty, how very pretty some of the girls will look in their fete dresses, as peasants, don't you know, doctor, and all sorts of picturesque people. It seems a pity, such a pity, that they can't wear them all the time; though how the poor things would manage in winter—no, I'm afraid the short skirts wouldn't do; do you think they would, doctor? Or in church—how would they look in church? No, no, they wouldn't do in church, they really wouldn't; not exactly sacrilegious, don't you know, but inappropriate — yes, that's just the word, inappropriate. But for six days in the week, doctor, for six days in the week, think how romantic, how very romantic they would be. That is, in warm weather, of course—in warm weather, you understand."

"You are right, I dare say," I admitted. "We are looking forward to a great treat. But if you will pardon a personal comment, I'll repeat that you two ladies fill me with envy."

"How nice of you to say so, doctor, how very nice, indeed! But then you physicians have an art, such an art, of saying delightful things. You have such practice, you know, such wonderful practice, soothing the sick, doctor, and comforting the dying —"

"Aunt," Miss Gray broke in with some haste, "please do not talk about—about—dress any more on such a terribly warm day. It excites you too greatly."

"If I'm to attend my errand now," I added, "it might be well to put me ashore. I shall not be gone long; probably not more than ten minutes. Where shall I rejoin you?"

We were abreast of the knoll, and not very far from it. I ran the boat to the bank and stepped upon it, Miss Gray taking my place at the oars.

"How will it do," she suggested, "for us to run down to the bay, and then coast along until we come to that other inlet, which runs so close to Mr. Lamar's house? We can run up it, and take you on board very conveniently."

"Excellent," said I. "You will find me a little distance landward from the house. There's some air stirring over the bay now, and you may meet a real breeze on the open water. It will be a pleasant change."

"Then we can spread the sail," said Mrs. Loring. "Do you know, doctor, I adore sailing, I really adore it."

Her niece bent to the oars, and the light craft glided on its voyage. While I climbed the side of the knoll I could see the boat enter the bay. A moment later the girl had ceased rowing, and had shipped the slender spar which did duty as a mast. There appeared to be just breeze enough to fill the tiny sail.

Lamar met me at the door.

"Here's that book you wanted," said I. "There was an opportunity to deliver it this afternoon, and I improved it. Anything else you would like to have done?"

"Nothing, I thank you," he answered, turning back into the house. The direful news he had received so recently had had no softening effect upon him. He showed no longing for sympathy, no desire to seek from his physician a word of encouragement.

Johnson was at work near by, and I stopped to chat with him, while I watched the boat move slowly northward and turn at last into the inlet. Miss Gray, sitting on the midship thwart, was managing the sail, while Mrs. Loring, at her old post, held the steering lines. She was leaning over the side, I noticed, catching at bits of driftwood floating in the current.

"It's a ladies' breeze, Johnson," said I, "barely enough to give the boat steerage way."

"Ain't much of it," he answered, "and what little strength there's in it comes in puffs. D'you notice 'em?"

"Yes, but they're baby puffs; no weight in them."

"Not much, sir, that's true," said he, going back to his task.

I took my time in reaching the spot, about 100 yards from the house, where the boat was to touch; but so slow had been its movement that when I looked back it was yet opposite the knoll. Mrs. Loring was amusing herself as before, while Miss Gray was exchanging friendly nods with the fisherman. On the water just astern of the craft was a dark line, advancing rapidly toward it and marking the coming of a gust a little stronger than any of its predecessors. A few seconds later the sail filled with the breeze, and the boat keeled sharply, just as Mrs. Loring made an unusually reckless grasp at the driftwood. I saw her, under the combined impetus, lose her balance and pitch headlong over the side, struggle wildly in the water, and then disappear beneath the surface.

I ran at top speed toward the knoll, but long before I climbed its slope Johnson had leaped into the stream. He had some little distance to swim, however, and, though once the drowning woman's dress showed above the water, she had sunk again before he could reach her. He dived, but missed her. Dorothy, with rare presence of mind, had lost no time in bringing the boat about, and when Johnson rose to the surface the little craft was close to hand. Climbing into it, he stood for a few seconds searching the water for a glimpse of the unfortunate woman, and then dived again. When I reached the rocks above him, he reappeared for the second time, and I saw that he had been successful, at least in finding the body. He was a powerful swimmer, and almost as soon as I could clamber down the ledges he had brought his burden to the base of the lowest of them. Between us we had little difficulty in raising her from the water and bearing her to the level ground on the top of the knoll. Close behind us was the girl, aiding us when she could in our sorrowful task. I knew what that moment meant to her, and was amazed at her self-control, notwithstanding the evidences she had given of her ability to maintain it in emergencies. There was little likelihood, though, that it could avail aught in the present instance.

Johnson's life along shore had familiarized him with such cases, and I had seen several in which resuscitation had been attempted, but neither of us had anything in his experience to warrant much hope for Mrs. Loring, in spite of the brief time she had been in the water. Nevertheless, we labored over her long after we realized that our efforts were in vain. With that pale-faced girl struggling with the agony which possessed her, yet working with us unremittingly, it was a harder task to cease than to continue our endeavors. Lamar approached us once, but, after a glance at the scene, turned away without a word and reentered the house. A moment later, however, old Martha appeared, bearing stimulants, which she placed beside me, and then stood watching us with awe-stricken curiosity.

At last Johnson rose.

"It's no use, doctor, no use," he said, solemnly. "The poor lady's gone."

The girl gave a despairing cry. Some time before she must have begun to realize the truth, but she had battled against it, striving to deceive herself.

"No, no, it can't be, it can't be!" she moaned. "Oh, aunt, aunt! Gone, gone from me, forever!"

She reeled, and would have fallen, but I caught her in my arms, and held her close as she sobbed upon my breast, crying her heart out, it seemed, as the sense of her great loss burst upon her.

SPORTS

TUESDAY, June 9—Sun rises 4:28 a. m., sets 7:30 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:30 p. m. and 3:28 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

John Evans, of Potter's, is riding a new Stearns.

Bessie Bond, of East Front street, is riding a new wheel.

Andrew Cooley, of West Third street, is riding a new Hunter.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company received a new combination Crescent tandem yesterday.

Miss Lillian Glen, of Craig place, has purchased a wheel which she enjoys riding very much.

Harry Woltmann, of West Seventh street, and Percy Brown, of Sycamore avenue, are training on Maltby's track.

J. H. Lake, of Port Richmond, S. I., rode a paced mile yesterday at the Crescent Oval in 2:17. The pacing was poor.

Fred Fullerton, of Montclair, formerly of this city, rode to Plainfield yesterday and spent the afternoon and evening with his many friends. A friend accompanied him.

The High School paced mile record was broken at the Crescent Oval yesterday by Lindley Hillman, on a Spalding paced by J. H. Lake and Geo. B. Cobb, Jr., on a tandem. Hillman's time was 2:18 3-5. The previous record was 2:25, made by S. C. Crane three years ago. This is with a flying start.

The famous Fowler sextette, of which mention was made in yesterday's Press, has attracted lots of attention in this city since its appearance at Chas. C Lister's store on North avenue yesterday morning. In the afternoon, six of the more venturesome riders, headed by Gus Burgland, tried the machine and found that sextette riding is exciting to say the least. The machine, which is similar to the one that is to race the Empire State express, is now on exhibition at Lister's store and his friends are invited to come and inspect it. It will probably leave town tomorrow.

There is no better recommendation for the Cleveland and Crescent wheels than the large number that are now in use. That number is constantly increasing and the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company manage to do their share in supplying the new riders. Among the latest to purchase Crescent wheels are: George Voehl, William Hedden, Geo. W. Savitz, Wm R. Kriney, Luther L. Compton, Oscar M. Ulrich, Henry Jessup, John Phillips, of South Plainfield; Samuel Sadliskey, David W. Kelly, Miss May Clawson, Warren McLaughlin and George L. Bird. A Crescent racer was bought by Chas E. Johnson. The Cleveland Swell Special still continues to be a favorite. Among the recent purchasers of that wheel are Mrs. John Bushnell, F. O. Herring, Rev. Arthur Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. F. Chase, H. C. Munger and D. C. Huff. A Cleveland racer went to J. T. Sutphen, of Dunellen. The first Punnet Companion to be sold was purchased by Olaf Sangstad.

AROUND THE BASES.

The Dunellen baseball nine is scheduled to play the Cranford team Saturday.

The Dunellen baseball club and the Somersets met on the latter's grounds at Somerville last Saturday afternoon. The home nine was victorious, winning by a score of 11 runs to 2.

The organization of young men who last winter called themselves the "Alls" football team, have been challenged to a game of baseball by their old rivals, the junior Dunellen team. The challenge was accepted and the game will be played on June 27th, probably at Dunellen. The Alls boys have decided to continue their record of straight victories and will give the Dunellen boys a hard tussle.

WITH ROD AND GUN

Chas. Smith and Edward Conshee went fishing at New Market pond yesterday. Their luck was good.

Wm. Stewart, of John street, and Bert Cuff, of Liberty street, were successful anglers for the finny tribe at New Market yesterday.

Charles Vail and Frank Hedden went on an all-day fishing trip Monday in the waters beyond New Brooklyn. During the day they captured eleven good-sized bass, and in the evening bobbed for eels, securing thirty-six.

T. H. Keller, of East Front street, left today on a ten-days trip to St. Louis and Chicago.

Miss Nettie Wilson, of West Front street, sailed last Saturday on the Anchor line steamer City of Rome for Europe to spend the summer. She purchased her ticket through M. Estil's agency.

VARIOUS SPORTS.

Bascomb Johnson, of Worcester Academy, broke Jesse L Hurlbut's interscholastic pole vault record of 10 feet 7½ inches last Friday. The new record is 10 feet 9 inches.

The Montclair High School has challenged the Plainfield High School to dual athletic games to be held before the close of school. George P. Smith, captain of the track team, is not in favor of accepting the challenge but the matter will have to be decided by the Athletic Association. If the games should be held, Plainfield's chances are very bright.

MERRY GEORGE REPLIES FAVORABLY.

A High Grade Vaudeville Performance for Plainfield's Pleasure.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—In reply to your correspondents, C. M. and L. S., let me first correct the statement that the occasion was my fifty-fifth birthday. I have only seen fifty, which is quite enough. It would afford me pleasure to give my Plainfield friends an opportunity of enjoying an entertainment composed of an all-star cast, such as contributed on the occasion of my fiftieth anniversary, and I will make an effort to secure, if not the same ladies and gentlemen who were in evidence on that occasion, as near as possible a programme of equal merit. As this is the time that my professional friends are enjoying their annual vacations, I anticipate little trouble in getting together such a coterie of artists that it would be impossible to include in any one combination during the regular dramatic season. I would suggest Thursday, June 18th, as the date for the performance, and will make early announcement of the artists who will appear, the programme, etc. Thanking C. M. and L. S. for their interest in the matter, I am the public's most obedient servant,

George Thatcher.

Mountain Park Inn Opened.

The Mountain Park Inn opened its doors to the public today under the management of George S. Moulton, formerly of the Laurel-in-the-Pines, Lakewood. The furniture an furnishings of the inn are first-class and everything has been placed in the building that would add to the comfort of the guests, a number of whom are already located there. The manager intends to create a reputation for fine dinners and will give the cuisine particular attention.

This mountain resort bids fair to be a popular one and the enterprise should receive the support of the people of this locality. There will be no formal opening this evening.

Hackmen in Court.

The city doctors, for the policemen have now risen to that title, have kept their eyes on the hackmen to see how many obey the hack ordinance recently passed. This morning, four who were found wanting, were arraigned before City Judge DeMeza. John Lynch, James Cullinan and Richard Day were charged with not carrying toll cards, and George Belcher for not wearing a badge. The latter's excuse was that he had just lost it. His good reputation caused the judge to suspend sentence on him. Sentence was suspended on the others after they were warned.

First Instruction.

The members of the police department received their first medical instruction from Dr. Simpson yesterday. The night force were received first in the afternoon at 4:30 and the day force in the evening at 8:30 in the City Council room. The instructions consisted of how to carry an injured man and how to treat poisoning. The men were all quick to grasp the points given by the doctor. They will meet at the same hours today.

An Old Equine Dead.

Mohawk, the sorrel horse belonging to Mrs. Stillman, widow of the late Dr. Charles H., died yesterday in the pasture field on the farm where he had been turned out about two weeks ago. He has been driven on Plainfield's streets every day for over twenty years, latterly by Mrs. Stillman, who was greatly attached to the horse.

More Power Needed.

The Electric Light Company is putting in a new 100 Kilo Watt generator, so as to better facilitate the working of the street railway service. The new and increased power, it is thought, will be ready for use early next week.

Charles Nelson, of East Front street, arrived home from Deal Beach on Tuesday. Mr. Nelson was employed by L. W. Minford, a member of the firm of L. W. Minford & Co., of 104 Wall street, New York, on his summer place "Darlington" at Deal Beach, but the climate or salt air did not seem to agree with him, and he was obliged to relinquish his position for a time at least. He is a member of Court of Plainfield, No. 1146, Independent Order of Foresters.

Horses and Men Hurt.

Chas. C. Brower was shipping the trotters "Lilly M." and "Highland Boy" to Allentown from South Plainfield this morning.

While the car was being shifted, it was upset, and the two horses and the man in charge, badly injured.

Mrs. T. O. Doane, the wife of Chief Engineer Doane, of West Fifth street, is visiting friends in Brooklyn.

Miss Beatrice Doane Craig, of College place, left today for Heightstown, where she will visit her cousin, Miss Lucas.

—A line has been run to the Mountain View Inn and last evening the hotel was completely illuminated with electric lights.

THAT IS THE SLOGAN WHICH ALL GOOD BOROUGHITES PROCLAIM.

Interviews With Prominent Officials and Citizens on the Action of Three Councilmen—Delayed But Not Defeated.

Probably there is no question of a local nature that is being discussed more freely at present than the one relating to the extension of Watchung avenue from this city through the borough to a point on Somerset street near the upper part of the Miles property. In fact, it has been the question for sometime past. The borough council has worked patiently in the matter for a long time, and there has been no end to the trouble, which has confronted them. The matter was practically settled and no further trouble was anticipated until last Friday evening, when, in executive session, an unexpected obstacle was presented. It now appears that for sometime members of the council have been considering the question of collecting assessments before the street was opened and whether the resolution as presented by Mr. Valiant and adopted by the council, was brought out for the purpose of ascertaining whether the people wanted the street opened or not, is still an undecided question. Mayor Hegeman was seen last evening by a representative of The Daily Press and learned just where this popular official stands. Mr. Hegeman said:

"The resolution adopted at the council meeting does not in any way effect the opening of the proposed street. It merely states that it is the sense of the council that we do not proceed to the opening of Watchung avenue until the assessments are made and collected. Now, the first thing to be considered is that the full membership of the council was not present, hence it cannot be the sense of the council.

The resolution authorizing that bids be advertised for to carry on the work was adopted previous to the executive session, and accordingly the bids are being advertised for and everything that can be is being done to open the street. It is a most unusual thing to collect assessments before a street is opened and it is not at all likely that anyone assessed would pay before the work was done. It has been said that I would veto the resolution, but that is unnecessary, for I will simply call for a full vote on the question and that will settle the matter. The street will undoubtedly be opened and if everything is in readiness work can be commenced as early as July 10th."

Councilman Schutt, who figured in the opposition, was next seen regarding the matter and spoke as follows on the subject:

"I want the people of the borough, my constituents and the press of Plainfield to know that I am heartily in favor of the opening of the street. The resolution adopted at the last meeting was stronger in its meaning than I realized, as I afterward learned. I have thought that the borough wanted to escape any litigation that might arise in the proceedings and to that end I have acted cautiously. As you know, the Miles property is now in litigation and the question has arisen in my mind how that matter would affect the situation. I am anxious to see the street opened, but I want the work done right, even if we have to go slow to do it. A great deal of property on the upper end of the proposed street has been given to the borough, for instance, about two acres of the Hudson property, which is very valuable, was given, and it is no more than right that the borough should stand the expense of putting the street through at that point. Between Jackson avenue and the brook it will require about $35,000 to open the street as it should be.

"I don't want the people to get the idea that I am an obstructionist, for I am not, and and I am perfectly willing now to vote to have the street put through, providing the borough is not liable to be involved in a law suit."

David Weaver, who lives near the proposed street, was interviewed and he said: "There has been more or less expenses in gaining the present position, and I think the street should go through by all means. Whatever my assessment is I will pay it, but not until the street is opened. I understand that some of the Councilmen are afraid of litigation, but they have gone so far that they cannot expect to escape it if there is any prospect of legal proceedings, and the best thing to do is to go forward."

S. B. Joseph, another property owner living close to the line, remarked that he would pay his assessment, whatever it is, after the street is opened. He thought no time should be lost in doing the work.

VERDICT FOR HABERLE.

JURY AGAIN DECIDES AGAINST THE BABCOCK ESTATE.

Were Out For Twenty-two-and-a-half Hours—Strong Argument Made by W. A. Coddington for the Plaintiff.

No civil suit between Plainfield parties has attracted more attention of late years than that of Haberle against the Babcock estate. The facts of the case are well known to Plainfield people. The appeal from Justice Newcorn's court was tried in the County Court before Judge McCormick last week and the summing of the counsel was set down for yesterday. Wm. A. Coddington, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, represented the plaintiff, and Craig A. Marsh represented the defendant. They were each allotted one hour and twenty minutes to make their argument in.

Mr. Coddington made a vigorous appeal for his plaintiff. He claimed that the motive the executors of the estate had in making the agreement to pay him if he continued his work, and Chandler did not pay him, was that some portions of the building were already rented and that if its completion was delayed they were liable to be sued for breach of contract. Numerous other strong points were made.

For the defense Mr. Marsh argued that the contract for the erection of the building was given to John Chandler, and that he alone was responsible for the payment of the wages of the mechanics employed thereon. So far as the administrators promising that they would pay the men if Chandler did not, Mr. Marsh claimed that executors only went so far as to tell the men that if there was any of the contract money left after the work was finished and Chandler did not then pay them, they would become responsible for their wages. Inasmuch as the contract money was all spent, it was held that this relieved the executors from any promise of compensating the men.

The jury took the case at 2:30 o'clock and after being out 22½ hours they returned to court at 1 o'clock this afternoon with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for the full amount—$81.88. For a long time the jury stood 9 to 3.

During the course of the trial Mr. Marsh took numerous exceptions to the rulings and charge of the Judge, and on these he will file an appeal to the Supreme Court immediately. The papers necessary therefore will be made out this afternoon. Mr. Marsh told a Press reporter this afternoon that the case would be carried to the highest court before the case was settled definitely.

There are fourteen other cases of men whose wages are due them, and on whose collection depends a permanent decision in this case.

THE T. A. B. FESTIVAL.

Good Things Disappeared and Profit Was the Reward.

The T. A. B. Society held an ice-cream and strawberry festival in T. A. B. hall, West Fourth street, last night. There was a good attendance and great inroads were made into the supply of good things prepared. On the lawn outside were arranged several tables upon which the eatables were served.

Dancing occupied the balance of the evening, music for which was furnished by O'Reilly.

The committee in charge consisted of C. J. McCarthy, chairman; Dennis O'Keefe, Michael O'Keefe, Thomas Hammil, Thomas McInerney, Daniel Mack, J. J. McDonough; Miss M. Cullinery, Miss Lizzie McInerney, Miss Nora Flynn and Miss Nellie O'Keefe.

The affair will be continued tonight.

Illustrated Missionary Lecture.

Rev. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, gave a thoroughly enjoyable illustrated missionary lecture last evening on Japan. The body of the church was well filled with the members and their friends. About thirty pictures were shown, giving an excellent idea of the country in general and of the religious progress being made. Mr. Herring was assisted by Mr. Searing who manipulated the lansern by the use of electricity.

—The Somerset street track has been narrowed almost to Greenbrook road.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

ON THE BREEZY MOUNT.

A DELIGHTFUL PLACE FOR THE RECREATION OF THE WEARY.

Mountain Park Inn Informally Opened Last Night—Has Every Improvement of an Up-to-Date Hotel—The Guests.

Mountain Park Inn is now open. When the full significance of that statement is realized by the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield they will be surprised. Less than a year ago the summit of Watchung mountain, where Mountain Park is located, was unbroken mountain land, stony and overgrown with trees and underbrush. Now a handsome hotel rears its head above the trees while a macadamized road, a telephone and electric light wires connect it with the plain.

The inn is now fully completed and furnished and ready to receive its guests. It is a pretty structure, painted a light yellow with white trimmings and green blinds. That nece sity of a summer resort, a broad veranda, is there, over fifteen feet wide and almost completely surrounding the house. There are four stories and an observatory above them from which the view is something grand. Even from the wide veranda the view is well worth seeing. Plainfield in all its beauty lies in front of the observer while to the right a view can be obtained of the Washington Valley. Of course, the panorama was all there before the house was opened, but the surroundings have changed wonderfully, even during the last week. The ground in front of the hotel has been cleared and leveled, and the paths and driveways laid out.

Inside the change is even more pleasing, for the manager, George S. Moulton, has not been idle. The large hall is located in the centre with the spacious parlor on the right and the dining room on the left. These rooms occupy the main part of the first floor. The second, third and fourth floors are all devoted to the sleeping apartments, which are light and airy. The hotel is lit throughout with electric lights. The floors are varnished and the entire place has a clean and tidy appearance about it that is very pleasing to the newcomer.

The hotel opened last night and the following were registered on the first evening: Mr. and Mrs. Sherard Depew, child and nurse, of Newark, Hon. and Mrs. Chandler Riker, child and nurse, of Newark, James E. Negus, of Greenville, and Miss Negus, of Bound Brook.

S. P. C. A. TO BE FORMED

Money That Now Goes to the State Society Would Revert to the Local Branch.

There is about to be formed in the borough a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. This matter was recently mentioned and advocated exclusively by The Daily Press. When Wm. Pangborn, who is a State agent, a few weeks ago was the means of having a borough resident fined $50 for cruelly treating a horse, the need of such a society became apparent to all, as one-half of the fine reverted to the State society. If there had been a local society the money would have gone into its treasury. Of late Mr. Pangborn has made complaints against two more violators of the State law regarding the treatment of horses, and these facts have prompted him to organize a society. He has secured a number of the best citizens in the borough and the society will soon be formed. Such people as Mayor Hegeman, ex-Mayor Saunders, Rev. W. E. Honeyman, Elston French, C. Frank French and R. M. Fountain have become interested in the society, and they, with several others, will probably compose the officers.

Everything is about in readiness to form the society and in a few days it will be launched forth with bright prospects.

Gathering of Knights Templar.

There was a grand gathering of Knights Templar at Metuchen last evening when the new organization, Temple Commandery, No. 18, was instituted. The grand officers were present, as was also a delegation of twenty-five from Trinity Commandery, of this city, and thirty-five from Damascus Commandery, of Newark. Representatives were also present from several other commanderies. The affair was held in Masonic hall in Robbin's building. A collation followed the ceremonies, and it was not until early in the morning that the affair broke up.

Letters of Administration.

Craig A. Marsh went to Somerville this morning with the widow and son of Henry Burnett who was killed on the Lehigh Valley railroad, at South Plainfield, last Wednesday, and took out letters of administration to settle his estate.

FAIR SINGER OF BILTMORE.

How Miss Mattison Came to Be Engaged by the Vanderbilts.

"The Fair Singer of Biltmore" is the title given by the New York Recorder this morning to Miss Fannie Mattison, who has been selected as leading soloist by George Vanderbilt for his memorial church at Asheville, N. C. Concerning her good fortune, The Recorder has this to say of how Miss Mattison came to be engaged:

"When Biltmore was formally opened, the entire population of the country side joined in the festivities. Among other luxuries promised, was a handsome place of worship, which should be attended by both the Vanderbilts, their guests and the other residents of the estate.

"Mr. Vanderbilt selected Carl Florio to organize the choir of the church, and, it is said, pays him a very large sum to do just as he pleases, sparing no care or expense in the selection of the singers. Florio arrived at Biltmore early in April, and he had not been there long when he heard of the girl with the wonderful voice, who had charmed every music lover in Asheville.

"Finally, he heard her sing himself and promptly arranged for her to sing privately for Mr. Vanderbilt. This hearing took place at Biltmore, and Mr. Vanderbilt was delighted. He invited Miss Mattison to sing for him again, which she did at a subsequent date, and immediately after received a very flattering offer to sing in the choir of the millionaire's church at a salary, it is said, of $250 a month.

"Miss Mattison accepted after due consideration, and subsequently her sister, Jeanette, returned to Plainfield, leaving Mrs. Mattison behind to care for the songstress.

"The church at Biltmore will be dedicated the middle of next month, and Mr. Vanderbilt and a party of friends will proceed thither in his private car."

Borough Realty Changes.

The following real estate transfers have been recorded from North Plainfield in the Somerset County Clerk's office during the past week: Lewis A. Hummer et ux to John H. McVey, $2,000; Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Co., to John G. Bicknell, $1,250; John H. VanWinkle to Robert Rushmore, $125; Caroline A. Scribner to Robert Rushmore, $1; Rebecca Stewart et al to Lucy C. Benedict, $450; Mountain Park Land Co to William R. Codington, $316.75; Lillie R. St. John and husband to Charles W. McCutchen.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

FAST STEPPERS INJURED

HORSE PALACE CAR OVERTURNED AT NEW MARKET.

A Curve Was Too Sharp and the Car Was Thrown Over—Both Horses and One Hostler Were Severely Injured

South Plainfield seems fated, for only yesterday another accident occurred there that resulted in the probable fatal injury of a valuable pacer, and the serious injury of a hostler, Henry Southard, and also of a well-known trotter.

The cause of all the damage was the overturning of a horse palace car on the Lehigh Valley Railroad near the South Plainfield depot. Charles C. Brower expected to take the trotter "Highland Boy," belonging to James Arkell, of Westfield, and the pacer, "Lilly M.," belonging to Robert Fairburn, of Westfield, to Allentown, Pa., and follow the Pennsylvania State circuit with them. The horses and sulkies had been loaded on to a horse palace car at South Plainfield. The car was attached to the rear of a passenger train, and as the long car came to the sharp curve there, it proved too sharp, and over went the car on the side of the embankment. Chas. Nichols, a colored hostler, was standing near the open door, and as the car went over he tumbled out, escaping all serious injury. The train was going very slowly and the car was not dragged any distance.

"Highland Boy" was in the stall on the side nearest to the ground and did not have so far to fall. He was badly cut on the knee so that he will be kept off the track this summer.

"Lilly M" and her hostler, Henry Southard, were in the other stall. Southard fell under the horse and had some of the bones in his leg broken. He is also thought to be injured ihternally. He was unable to move when released from his dangerous predicament. As "Lilly M" fell she caught one of her hind legs in the stall and hung there until the end of the car was cut away and she was extricated. She is to unable to move her hindquarters and it is thought that her back is broken. She will probably have to be killed. The two horses are valued at $10,000. This year saw "Lilly M's." first appearance on the track since another railroad accident three years ago. "Highland Boy" is also new on the track this year, except, of course, on the local track. "Lilly M." has a record of 2:24 and is about eight years old. "Highland Boy" recently trotted in 2:25 and is about the same age.

Dr. Voorhees, of Somerville, came down this morning to look after the horses.

The railroad company has, so far, made no offer regarding the damages. If a settlement is not speedily reached, a suit will be begun.

An Active Union.

The next regular meeting of the Plainfield Carpenters' and Joiners' Union 155, of this city, will be held in the Coward building on Park avenue four weeks from last Tuesday evening. National Secretary and Treasurer, J. P. McGuire, of Philadelphia, who addressed the meeting on Tuesday evening will again be present and deliver another address in the interest of the order. The Plainfield Union is still holding its own, bright prospects are promised during the summer and fall. New members are being taken in from time to time.

"Each For All, All For Each."

The Board of Directors of the Co-operative Association met last evening and heard reports from a number of the committees who are at work getting the system ready for practical work. The motto was chosen as follows: "Each for all, all for each." It is expected that the location of the store and its establishment will be accomplished by the middle of July.

Rev. Mr. Wells Will Probably Come.

FAMOUS FOUR NOT IN IT

PARK CLUB'S WHISTERS NOT TO PLAY AS A TEAM AT THE CONGRESS.

Robert Weems, Secretary of the American Whist League, Expresses Great Regret at the Park Team's Adverse Decision.

The sixth American whist congress under the auspices of the Brooklyn Whist Club and the fifteen social clubs of Brooklyn, which are members of the American Whist League, is to be held at the Oriental Hotel, Manhattan Beach, from June 22d to 27th, inclusive.

A few days ago George P. Rogers, chairman of the whist committee in the Park Club, wrote Robert H. Weems, secretary of the American Whist League, telling him of the determination of the famous four of the Park Club not to enter the contest as a team. These players have established a National reputation as experts in the game, and were looked upon as likely to add strength to the eastern clubs who will contest against the western clubs in the Congress. How well the Park Club are rated and how disappointed the other players are to learn of the adverse determination is best exhibited in the following letter received by Mr. Rogers:

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 9, 1896.

My Dear Rogers:

I am very, very sorry that the Park Club will not have its team at the Congress. In this you are making a sad mistake, but I presume that it is unavoidable, but if you cannot enter a team in the Hamilton trophy contest, by all means have your players come down there in as great numbers as possible. In regard to the contest between the east and west, I want every good player whom you can produce. This is an open contest and I hope to see a great many entries in it. This is going to be a Congress, and I am very sorry that the Park Club will not be in it.

Yours truly,
Rob't H. Weems.

Mr. Weems is also chairman of the committee of arrangements for the Congress. Though the regular team of the Park Club will not enter the contest, a number of the individual players will attend and join hands with the representatives of the New Jersey Whist League who are to contest the players of the New England Association on the evening of June 22d. Members of the Park Club who desire to take part in the contest are asked to give their names to any member of the whist committee.

The first congress was held at Milwaukee in 1891, the second in New York in 1892, the third in Chicago in 1893 and the fourth at Philadelphia in 1894. Last year the congress, which is the great whist event of the year in America, was held in Minneapolis. It seemed at each succeeding congress as if every man and woman who handed a card and played low and followed their partner's lead had attended the congress. The meeting grew in national importance every year until it occurred to Robert H. Weems, who is the corresponding secretary of the American Whist league, that Brooklyn ought to have the congress once in awhile.

There will be many distinguished visitors at the congress, including Kate Wheelock, the famous whist queen, as she is popularly known. Miss Wheelock is a very pretty woman and one of the keenest enthusiasts and ablest experts of whist in America. Among the guests she will probably divide the honors with the king expert of them all, "Cavendish" Henry Jones, who has announced his intention of traveling from London to attend the congress. Of course, the business of the congress will be whist, but the Brooklyn club has arranged a score of attractions, with never a dull moment in any of them.

A Meeting With Attractions.

The monthly meeting of the Town Improvement Association will be held in the Casino tomorrow at 4 p. m. There will be reports from the delegates who attended the New York health convention, and by special request Mrs. Edward D. McCarthy will read the paper on Forestry Interests of New Jersey which was prepared for the State Federation of Women's Clubs at Trenton. Large views of the Palisades and other illustrations will be displayed. The public is invited.

Madison Avenue Commissioners Finish.

The work of the commissioners appointed for the widening of Madison avenue has been completed, and the report and list of the assessments and damages has been turned over to Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, who will go over them in order to ferret out any legal defects before they are presented to the Common Council, which will probably be at their next meeting.

Officials to Be Invited to Take a Ride.

The formal opening of the lines of the street railway, the date of which has not yet been definitely settled, will be marked by a special trip of three open cars carrying the officials of this city, North Plainfield, Scotch Plains, Fanwood, Dunellen and New Market, over all the lines. Invitations will be issued by the company for the occasion.

GIVES UP THE FIGHT

Mr. Manley Concedes McKinley's Nomination on First Ballot.

NO VICE-PRESIDENCY FOR REED

The Maine Man Will Not Accept Second Place—Mark Hanna on Hand Urging a Compromise in the Financial Battle.

St. Louis, June 11.—The friends of Speaker Reed have given up the fight. The Hon. Joseph Manley of Maine dictated the following to the representative of the United Press last evening, and revised it before transmission: "In my judgment the convention will nominate Gov. McKinley on the first ballot for the presidency. It is useless to attempt to deny that this will be the result. The action of the national committee in its overwhelming vote on the Alabama case settled conclusively how the respective states which the members of the committee represent will vote in the convention. Mr. Reed's names will be presented to the convention, and he will be voted for and I am authorized to say that under no conditions or circumstances can he, or will he, accept the nomination for vice-president if it should be tendered to him. The great majority of the New England delegates will be loyal to Mr. Reed, but it is evident that the convention is for Gov. McKinley and will nominate him."

McKinleyites' Predictions Verified.

The claim of the McKinley managers that the contested delegations would result in the seating of the Ohio man's delegates has proven true and the protection advocate's friends controlled the national committee. By a vote of 38 to 6 the national committee seated the Buckley or "McKinley" delegation-at-large from Alabama as against the delegation headed by ex-Gov. Smith. Those voting for the Smith delegation were: Connecticut, Louisiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, New York and District of Columbia. Secretary Manley afterwards said he should be recorded as voting with the minority, which would make the result 37 to 7. Powell Clayton made the motion seating the Buckley delegates and the result was a victory for the McKinley element. The contesting delegation of the sixth Alabama district announced that they withdrew their protest. This allows the McKinley delegates—Daniel Cooper and Isaac Dawson—seats without a protest.

Seeking Compromise on Finance.

Mark Hanna is already taking a hand in the financial fight and has set on foot a strong movement for a compromise. This afternoon he sent for a number of the southern delegates who are known to be friendly to McKinley and urged them not to push their demands for a gold plank. He fears a big defection in the west and the whole power of the Ohio organization will be used from this time on to prevent the absolute over-riding of the free coinage westerners.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATS.

They Declare for the Gold Standard—Gorman Praises Cleveland's Administration.

Baltimore, June 11.—At the democratic state convention yesterday at which Senator Gorman presided as both temporary and permanent chairman, resolutions were adopted which recited the necessity for an explicit expression of the opinion of the democracy of Maryland upon the national questions. They then announced for a tariff for revenue only and endorsed the "vigorous policy of President Cleveland." The financial plank was a straight out endorsement of the present gold standard of currency and an emphatic condemnation of the proposition for the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. Major Stewart presented a minority report, the reading of which was hailed with applause, in which a resolution for free silver was proposed as a substitute for the financial clause in the majority report. He made a speech of an hour's duration upon the silver question, at the conclusion of which his motion was overwhelmingly defeated and the majority report was adopted. Senator Gorman in taking the chair as temporary chair man, said: "Ia m always at home with democrats. We come together to-day not to discuss local affairs. I would not give much for the democracy of any man who would rake up the embers of the past and air his privilege chances at the expense of his party." He then referred in complimentary terms to President Cleveland and his administration, and inveighed against McKinleyism and republicanism. He urged the democrats to bury all their differences and act in harmony in selecting acceptable men to lead them. "For in this," he said in conclusion, "the only hope of this great country lies."

FOR THE GOLD STANDARD.

Resume of the Work Transacted by the Connecticut Democratic Convention.

Hartford, June 11.—The following are the delegates-at-large to the Chicago convention selected by the democratic state convention yesterday, over which Melbert B. Cary of Ridgefield presided as both temporary and permanent chairman: Delegates-at-large—First district, Miles B. Preston of Hartford; second district, Lynde Harrison of Guilford; third district, Thomas M. Waller of New London; fourth district, J. M. Alldis of Torrington. County delegates — Hartford, Edward D. Coogan of Windsor Locks; Tolland, Lyman T. Tingler of Vernon; New Haven, William A. Kennedy of Naugatuck; Middlesex, Horace R. Butler of Middletown; New London, William H. Shields of Norwich; Windham, F. A. Morrell, M. D., of Putnam; Litchfield, Hon. Charles K. Lyman. Michael J. Moulihan of Newton was added this morning for Fairfield county. The financial plank of the platform read: "The honest payment of the public debts and the preservation of the public faith and credit require that the gold standard of money as a measure of value shall be maintained. While we favor the most liberal use of silver consistent with the enforcement of a gold standard, we are unalterably opposed to the free coinage of silver, deeming it a device for the debasement of our currency, and to the compulsory purchase of silver by the government. We believe that the safety of our national finances requires a system of sound banking, by which a bank-note currency, ample to supply the needs of the whole country, shall be created, safely secured and always and everywhere redeemable in gold." The tariff subject is disposed of as follows: "The purpose of all taxation is revenue. In establishing a system of tariff taxation for revenue, careful consideration should be given to the schedules, with regard for the cost of raw materials and the interests of labor. We are opposed to any further general revision of the tariff as tending to unsettle business; and we believe that only such changes should be made, from time to time, as are necessary to provide revenue. These revenues should be made equal to the expenditures and should provide a surplus for the payment of the federal debt." President Cleveland's administration is heartily endorsed.

Grocers Favor Gold Standard.

Philadelphia, June 11.—The board of directors of the Grocers & Importers' exchange yesterday afternoon adopted a resolution urging all delegates to the conventions of either political party to use their utmost endeavor to procure the insertion in the platforms of their respective parties an unequivocal declaration in favor of maintaining the present gold standard of value. There was some opposition to this, but it was adopted by a large majority.

Rhode Island Democratic Committee.

Providence, June 11.—The democratic state central committee has organized for the year by the re-election of F. P. Owen, chairman; J. E. Conley, secretary, and J. H. Tucker, treasurer.

THE BARCELONA OUTRAGE.

Two More Victims of the Explosion Dead—Bomb Thrower Is Known.

Barcelona, June 11.—Two more persons have died from the effects of injuries caused by the explosion of a bomb at the church of Santa Maria del Mar in this city on Sunday last. Numerous arrests are still being made here and elsewhere in Catalonia. The police have ascertained that the name of the man who threw the bomb is Changer. He is an agent for an anarchist club. A number of similar bombs have been discovered on the outsirts of this city, and it is believed that some of the persons arrested on the charge of complicity in the outrage are connested with the Cuban insurgents.

Attempt To Wreck a Train.

New Haven, Conn., June 11.—An attempt was made to wreck the Hartford "Steamboat" train due here at 11:17 o'clock, near Cedar Hill Tuesday night. A tie was placed in a frog near a switch. The obstruction was so placed that had the train gone on it would have doubtless gone over an eight-foot embankment. The tie was discovered in time, however, and the engineer applied the air-brakes.

Health

Depends upon keeping the blood in a pure condition, free from disease germs, and yet there are very few people who have perfectly pure blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla cleanses, vitalizes and enriches the blood, throwing out the impurities that clog and irritate the system and permits no lodgment of the seeds of disease. Read the following:

"I cannot recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla too highly for it has done wonders for me. I was

and all run down and my health was so poor I could not get out of doors. I was not able to do anything, being troubled with asthma and heart disease. I was nervous and could not sleep nights. I had become completely discouraged when I happened to read an advertisement of Hood's Sarsaparilla and concluded to give it a trial. After taking the first bottle I felt better and since taking five bottles I am so much improved that I feel like a new man. I am now able to do a fair day's work and sleep at night. My heart does not trouble me and I have realized great relief for asthma. I feel full of courage once more and life seems brighter and worth living. I would recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all afflicted as I have been, for I know it will help them. If this statement of facts will be of benefit, you are welcome to use it as you please." HENRY J. Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable. NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? do you eat iron

Some persons are always taking iron. If weak and easily exhausted; pale and without appetite; if the nervous system is weak, and sleep difficult, what do you take? Iron? But iron cannot supply food to the tissues; nor does it have any power to change the activity of unhealthy organs and bring them back to health. Cod-liver oil is what you need. The oil feeds the poorly-nourished tissues, and makes rich blood. Iodine, bromine, and other ingredients, which form part of the oil, have special power to alter unhealthy action.

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, is the most palatable way to take cod-liver oil. The hypophosphites supply healthy nerve action, which controls all the processes of life.

SCOTT'S EMULSION has been indorsed by the medical profession for twenty years. (Ask your doctor.) This is because it is always palatable—always uniform—always contains the purest Norwegian Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites.

Put up in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes. The small size may be enough to cure your cough or help your baby. All druggists.

TO ADJOURN TO-DAY

Congress Will End at 4 O'Clock This Afternoon.

SPEEDY EXODUS OF THE MEMBERS

A Number of Leading Republicans To Start for St. Louis This Evening—Others Going Home To Take a Hand in the Campaign.

Washington, June 11.—The first session of the Fifty-fourth congress will end at 4 o'clock this afternoon and by to-morrow morning there will not be a corporal's guard of the members remaining in the city, as all are anxious to reach their homes to take a hand in the campaign. A number of prominent republicans already have their "grips" packed, and will take this evening's trains for St. Louis to participate in the convention. Although it was generally believed that final adjournment would be reached yesterday afternoon, and there was really no reason for further delay, all important business having been concluded before 3 o'clock, the agreement of both houses being reached upon the sundry civil and District of Columbia appropriation bills, the only important work remaining unfinished yesterday morning, there was a rather slim attendance in the galleries of the senate and the day's proceedings were devoid of interest or excitement. There was also a dearth of senators present, and whenever a call for a quorum was made, considerable time was spent in looking up the requisite forty-five senators. There always seemed to be a feeling of doubt in the chamber that such a number could be secured, and a feeling of relief was manifested whenever the quorum was obtained. The contempt of court bill was the greatest bone of contention during the day and it was finally passed. It divides contempts of courts into two classes, direct, committed in the presence of the court, and all others, indirect. Summary punishment is provided for direct contempt. For indirect contempts, reasonable apportunity is given the accused to purge himself of such contempt and to have a trial by jury. Writs of error will lie to the supreme court. Of the two appropriation bills on which the differences between the two houses blocked the way to adjournment, the District of Columbia bill was compromised by continuing the appropriation to sectarian charities, but declaring that no further appropriations for this purpose shall be made after June 30, 1897.

Bills Passed.

The following bills were passed: Making the city of Erie, Pa., a port of immediate transportation; increasing the pay of letter carriers; authorizing the lease of certain islands in Behring sea for raising foxes; to prevent the transportation of spirituous liquors under false names. The bill increasing the pension of Francis E. Hoover was passed over the president's veto. The latter part of the day's session was occupied by speeches by Mr. Stewart, pop., Nev., and Mr. Butler, pop. N. C.

House of Representatives.

Previous to reaching agreement on the appropriation bills the house passed many measures under suspension of rules, among them the following: Joint resolution extending the scope of the good roads investigation now being conducted by the agricutlural department; senate joint resolution appropriating $4,000 to provide a foundation for a statue to Samuel Hahneman to be erected in Washington by the National Homeopathic society; forbidding the landing upon the shores of the United States of a foreign submarine cable without the consent of congress; opening of national cemeteries to the burial of army nurses; appropriating $200,000 for the benefit of the Omaha exposition. Committee on elections No. 1 was authorized to take further evidence in the contested election case of Hopkins, rep., vs. Kendall, dem., from the tenth Kentucky district—the only case now remaining in the committee. Mr. Allen, dem., Miss., broke the silence which has marked him during the session and entertained the house with a humorous speech, which has become a feature of the closing days of a congressional session. Upon the consideration of the conference report on the District appropriation, a general political discussion was precipitated by Mr. Cannon, rep., Ill., chairman of the committee on appropriations, who briefly reviewed the legislation of the session. Messrs. Sayers, dem., Tex., and Dockery, dem., Mo., responded, charging the republicans with unparalleled extravagance. Mr. Dingley, rep., Me., defended the republican policy in the house and in the nation.

RIOT AT HARVARD

Fierce Battle Between Students and the Police.

SEVERAL ON BOTH SIDES INJURED

The College Boys Attempted to Parade in Celebration of the Baseball Victory Over Princeton and the Trouble Begun.

Boston, June 11.—A riot took place in Harvard square last night, and as a result several Harvard students have severe bruises and several of the Cambridge policemen are nursing wounds. It all happened as a result of the students exuberance over the victory the Harvard baseball club secured at Princeton. Three students were locked up and one was so badly cut about the head that a physician was summoned to the police station. Twelve stitches were taken in the wound. He is Arthur T. Pilling, a sophomore. The other two students are Goldthwait, a junior, and Clay Briggs, a special student. Patrolmen Corcoran, Murray, McElroy and Dynan were roughly handled and the coat of the first named was stripped from his back. The others were struck in the faces with fists and stones. This all occurred after the officers had attempted to arrest Briggs on the charge of discharging fire arms in the street. The students about 3,500 strong augmented by a big crowd of citizens attempted to parade in the street against the police orders and the trouble followed.

Cries of "Mob the Police."

The patrolmen were jeered again and again and frequently cries would go up to "mob the police." The students returned to Harvard square without incident where the yelling was continued. Then the parade started again, but in an instant all was uproar. Patrolmen Corcoran and Stevens had detected Clay Briggs discharging a revolver and they made a grab for it and placed Briggs under arrest. On the way to the lock-up it was almost a continuous riot. "Kill the police," was the cry raised by the friends of Briggs and it was taken up and carried to the end of the line. About 300 of the students formed themselves into a veritable football wedge and ran down Brattle street at a tremendnous pace. It appeared as if no force could withstand their rush and individuals who were following up the band of policemen with Briggs were thrust aside. Officers Stevens and Corcoran had hold of Briggs by either arm while Officers McElroy and Murray were in advance attempting to open a path, and the other officers were acting as a body guard. When in Brattle square Dorr, with his clinched fist, struck Patrolman McElroy a terrible blow in the face. He was grabbed by Officers Dynan and Coulter and then the crowd became even more frenzied than before. Dorr was hustled along the street and the two officers were immediately surrounded by a hundred students and in an instant they were upon the ground and hundreds of persons were on top of them.

A Terrific Battle.

The officers were kicked and pounded, their clothes torn and their faces scratched, but they hung on to Dorr, and finally were able to arise after using their clubs effectively. Meantime, other officers were coming to their assistance, and then it was that Pilling emerged from the crowd that was kicking and hitting Dynan and Coulter and assaulted, it is claimed, Patrolman Corcoran. He was grabbed by Patrolman Murray, and then ensued a fight such as is seldom seen. Pilling, who is an athlete, fought like a tiger, while the cheers of the crowd egged him on. He grabbed Corcoran by the neck and began to choke him. He was hit on the head by one of the officers, but even then did not give up fighting. Then, it is claimed, he grabbed Corcoran's coat and tore it from his back.

After a desperate fight clear inside the station house door the prisoners were finally landed, and several cool-headed students mounted the steps of the station house and told the crowd that the police were in the right. This alone prevented a raid on the building. The students were bailed out and will be arraigned in court to-day.

New England Typographical Union.

Kelley of Lynn; second vice-president, Charles Ashton of Boston; third vice-president, William J. Ambrose of Boston; secretary and treasurer, Bernard Allen of Hartford. Last night the delegates were given a banquet by the local union.

June 12—Meeting in aid of Westfield Fresh Air Work at the Crescent Avenue church.

Now that the time of closing schools and graduating exercises has arrived, it is opportune to remark that Plainfield is right up in the front rank of culture and intelligence.

For the first time in years the New Jersey Republicans have risen to some prestige in their National Convention. The delegation is nursing Garret A. Hobart's boom for Vice-President with a great deal of care lest it falls by the wayside and perishes.

One Plainfield rabbi has been adjudged guilty of violating the excise law in selling hard cider on Sunday, and a Jersey City grocer has been convicted of taking cash for a box of sardines on the same day. All of which proves that ex-Governor Werts fathered a constitutional law while he was a Senator.—New York Press.

Councilman Valiant in the interview published in the news column of today's Press, says that he is not quite sure just what the sentiment of the people is relative to the opening of Watchung avenue. Let the Councilman ponder for a moment on the fact that the progress of consummating the opening was being steadily carried on, and not once was there a protest raised from any quarter against such action. It was the understanding that the opening was to be made, and the very fact that the people were remaining quiet while the necessary preliminary work was going on, is sufficient evidence that it met with their approval.

CHURCH FIGHT STILL ON.

Pastor Preaches to Empty Pews and His Church is Going to Ruin.

Rev. Joseph B. Jennings, of Westfield, is exultant. The second Sunday in June has passed and Grace Protestant Episcopal church remains closed. Mr. Jennings still styles himself the rector, but the church is practically out of existence.

The pastor went there four years ago. He was talented, energetic and and aggressive, and the church attained high prosperity. Trouble arose however, and the dissatisfied faction made charges of drunkeness against Jennings before Bishop Scarborough. He was acquitted, but the congregation declined to further recognize him. The bishop was appealed to oust him, but he declined to interfere. The rector held the fort and for months had service regularly, without a soul attending.

No salary was paid him and he sued the church for it He won the suit, although Alfred Mills, who had given the ground for the church, put in a counter claim and carried the case to the appellate court. It was hoped that with the opening of June, a compromise might be affected, and the parish be given possession. But the authorities could do nothing and Mr. Jennings will take the suit to the court of errors and appeals, and if decided in his favor, the edifice, now falling in ruin, will be sold by the sheriff.

BOY'S STORY OF CRUELTY.

Tells A Peculiar Tale of Abuse, But it Lacks Corroboration.

A story of cruelty to a child was told to Judge Conant, of Westfield, by the alleged victim, yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. John Bacon are English people, and reside on Chestnut street. They are members of the Baptist church, stand high in the community, and are noted for their fervent religious character and large liberality. Mr. Bacon has a vegetable and fish market on Elm street.

Some time ago the couple took a boy of twelve years from a New York institution for adoption. The lad, Robert Richardson, is a remarkably bright child. Several days ago Robert went to Judge Conant and told his story. He stated that Mrs. Bacon had deluged him with water in order to get him out of bed in the morning, and that Mr. Bacon had kicked him unmercifully.

The Judge and Rev. Mr. Francis, the Baptist pastor, had a talk with the Bacons, and Robbie was taken home again. Sunday morning, the boy says, the Bacons gave him a severe beating and locked him in a bare room, telling him that he must remain there. They then drove to church, and during their absence the boy says he managed to escape. He fled to the residence of J. W. Bennett, agent for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and begged for protection. Mr. Bennett has given him shelter, and will take measures to find him a home. The Bacons deny the stories altogether, and declare the boy invented them. The neighbors are not disposed to credit the boy's statements unless there is stronger evidence than has yet been furnished.

That live, up-to-date house of White's will make tomorrow a shirt waist day. They have bought the entire stock of a large manufacturer for fifty cents on the dollar and will put them on sale tomorrow morning at half their real value. It means two waists for the price of one.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. whose property will be affected, was seen, and he expressed himself as follows: "It makes little difference to me whether the street goes through or not. I will be put to a good deal of trouble in moving the houses off the line. I have no trouble now in renting the houses, and probably would not have if the street was opened. It will require all of the assessments for damages to make the necessary change. In regard to the collection of the assessment, I would not pay one dollar of it until the street was opened."

Tax Collector Spencer said: "I have talked with a number of people about the matter, and they all tell me that after the street is opened they will pay their assessment, and not before. I think the street should go through by all means."

Councilman Valiant was asked what he had to say on the subject, and he said: "I am not opposed to the opening of Watchung avenue, as some people suppose, but personally I have failed to learn that the people are anxious to have the street opened. If the people want the street, we will give it to them. At present it's a question in my mind as to what the people want, and that was the intent of the resolution offered last Friday night."

Legal Oratory.

To some pungent remarks of a professional brother, an American barrister commenced his reply as follows: "May it please the court, resting on the couch of republican equality as I do, covered with the blanket of constitutional panoply as I am, and protected by the aegis of American liberty as I feel myself to be, I despise the buzzing of the professional insect who has just sat down, and defy his futile attempts to penetrate, with his puny sting, the interstices of my impervious covering."—Tit-Bits.

Two Half-Breeds.

"Yes," boasted an Englishman in the west, "I have Tudor blood in my veins from my mother's side of the family and Plantagenet blood from my father's."

"Is that so?" said the citizen. "My blood is a little mixed, too. My grandfather was a Jersey tenderfoot and my grandmother a Digger Indian squaw. We're both half-breeds, stranger. Shake!"—Odds and Ends.

What He Would Say.

A married couple were out promenading in the suburbs of Dallas one day. Presently the wife said:

"Think, Albert, if the brigands should come now and take me from you!"

"Impossible, my dear."

"But, supposing they did come and carry me away, what would you say?"

"I should say," replied the husband, "that the brigands were new at the business. That's all."—Texas Sifter.

FORTUNES TO WED

Whitney-Vanderbilt Engagement Is Announced.

A SON OF THE FORMER SECRETARY

The Wedding of the Bride's Brother to Miss Wilson Will Probably Take Place This Week—Groom's Father Objects.

New York, June 11.—The engagement of Henry Payne Whitney, eldest son of Hon. William C. Whitney, to Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt, daughter of Cornelius Vanderbilt, is announced. Mr. Whitney is in his 22d year and Miss Vanderbilt is 18 years of age. The two, living in the corner houses of Fifty-seventh street and Fifth avenue, have grown up together from childhood, and the prospective bridegroom was the college chum of the late W. H. Vanderbilt, jr., the oldest son of Cornelius Vanderbilt. Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Wilson made the formal announcement yesterday of the engagement of their youngest daughter, Miss Grace Wilson, to Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr. Cornelius Vanderbilt, sr., announced yesterday that the engagement of Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., to Miss Wilson is against his father's expressed wish and without his consent. It is altogether likely that the marriage will be celebrated immediately, in all probability before the end of this week, at the home of Mr. Wilson, 511 Fifth avenue, and its celebration will be most quiet. Miss Grace Wilson, the future Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., has been in society several years, and it is understood that the main objection to her being married to young Vanderbilt, on the part of his family, is the difference of their ages, Miss Wilson being three years the senior of her fiance, and the desire of Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt has been for their son not to marry so young. Cornelius Vanderbilt, jr., was graduated from Yale university in the class of 1895. He was very popular in his class, obtaining the coveted election to the Scroll and Key society in his senior year. He is 22 years old, and the second son, his brother, William H., who died four years ago, being his senior.

DESTITUTION AT WHITE BAY.

Residents Living on Seal Fat and Sea Moss. Deaths from Starvation.

St. Johns, N. F., June 11.—Reports from White Bay by the mail steamer Virginia Lake announce that awful destitution exists among the residents there. Their provisions were exhausted over a month ago and they have lived upon seals' fat and sea moss. Several deaths from starvation have occurred. Two fishing vessels bound for Labrador last week had to give the inhabitants a portion of their stores to prevent them from perishing.

Big Catch of Halibut.

Gloucester, Mass., June 11.—The schooner Lewis H. Giles, from the fishing grounds off the northeast coast of Newfoundland, has just arrived here with the largest fare of fresh halibut that has been landed at this port in several years, 100,000 pounds. Captain Young reports that a large field of ice and numerous bergs, some of them being 200 feet high, could be seen any time when the weather was clear.

Indiana Joins the Fleet.

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 11.—The battleship Indiana, with her captain, Fighting Bob Evans, on the bridge, swung out of the navy yard yesterday. She has been at the navy yard for nearly two months to complete her equipment. There was no ceremony over her departure. The Indiana's destination was Tompkinsville, where the white squadron is stationed.

Hartlein To Be Executed Dec. 3 Next.

Hartford, June 11.—Caspar Hartlein, the murderer of Louisa M. Trebbe, was sentenced to be hanged at the state prison December 3, 1896, by Judge Thayer in the superior court yesterday afternoon. It is believed that Hartlein either murdered young Peck in East Hartford two years ago, or knows who committed the deed.

Minister Taylor's Condition.

Paris, June 11.—Hannis O. Taylor, United States minister to Spain, who is now in this city, is not dangerously ill, but is simply suffering from fatigue and is resting here, subject to the instructions of the United States government to return to Madrid immediately if necessary.

Bethel's Celebration.

Bethel, Me., June 11.—The people of the town last evening celebrated the centennial of its incorporation by an exhibition of fireworks, a band concert, an informal reception at Odion hall, and a centennial ball. The entire day was also spent in celebrating.

J. A. Woodbury Resting Comfortably.

South Framingham, Mass., June 11.—Representative J. A. Woodbury of Hopkinton, who had his leg so badly crushed by falling under a moving train here that it had to be amputated, is resting comfortably at the Franklin hospital.

Work on Albany Capitol.

Albany, June 11.—The new capitol construction commission at its meeting yesterday put to work on the capitol building 100 additional men, increasing the total force of workmen to 626 men.

A Gift to Charities by the Czar.

St. Petersburg, June 11.—As a memorial of his coronation, the czar has given $75,000 to charities.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

(Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

XX.

Poor Mrs. Loring was laid to rest in the village burying ground, sincerely mourned by the new friends among whom her life had ended. Her foibles were forgotten, and only her courtesy, her kindliness, her generosity, were remembered. She had done little of harm and something of good in the world—a better record than can be placed to the credit of many whose pretensions have far exceeded those of this victim of a morbidness of imagination approaching hypochondria.

Week after week passed, but Dorothy Gray was still in Rodneytown, reluctant to quit the kindly circle whose members had shown heartfelt sympathy in her affliction. I doubt whether she had been able to decide whither to go in case she left the village. She had no near relations, certainly none to whom she would turn at such a time. In her years of wandering with her aunt she had made few intimate friends. In short, she was left without anyone from whom she might naturally seek consolation and counsel. The good women of the neighborhood did their best to take the place of kinsfolk and old friends; they wept with her in the days when her bereavement had just come upon her, and afterward, when the first bitterness of her loss was past, they kept her company and strove to cheer her, after the homely fashion of their kind. And so it happened that she remained with us, bearing her sorrow as best she could.

Not long after the death of her aunt I had confirmation of the story Mrs. Weston had brought me. The trustee of the estate, the income of which Mrs. Loring had received, came to Rodneytown to attend the funeral services. He was a lawyer, cautious and reserved in manner, and supposedly as free from sentimentality as the desk in his office. Yet under the professional mask there was, after all, something of the emotional man, which asserted itself in a practical way, befitting the weakness of an eminently practical man.

"Dr. Morris," said he, on the eve of his departure, "there is a result of this recent tragic occurrence to which your attention may not have been called. Mrs. Loring had only a life interest in the property left by her husband, for she had surrendered her dower rights. On her demise the estate passes to her husband's brother and sister, with whom, I regret to say, her relations were not amicable. Though she often told me that she proposed to lay aside part of her income in order to make provision for her niece, Miss Gray, it seems that she utterly neglected to put the plan in operation. In fact, she lived very close to her income, and had it not been for a reduction in her expenses on coming here, it is probable that the revenue coming from the property, calculated to the day of her death, would not have sufficed to pay the outstanding claims against her. As it is, however, I find that there will be a balance of about $500, which will be at Miss Gray's disposal. It is very little for a young woman reared as she has been, but, unfortunately, it is all that she can hope to receive from her aunt."

"She must suffer, then, for another's carelessness," said I.

"Atonement for carelessness is too often vicarious," said the man of law.

"It hardly lessens her misfortune to realize that it is a common one. Do you know whether she has anything in her own right?"

"Next to nothing. As I have said, Dr. Morris, the case is a distressing one, and I regret exceedingly that I must be the bearer of such bad news to the young lady. She is very likely to come for advice to you, and it is to put you in possession of the facts that I have spoken. A check for your services to my late client will be mailed to you immediately upon my return to the city."

Thereupon the lawyer went his way, leaving me by no means so disheartened by his remarks as might have been the case with a man whose regard for Dorothy Gray was entirely platonic. He was as good as his word in settling Mrs. Loring's affairs, and in a few days my check arrived. Another valuable bit of paper reached me about this time from a very different source, one from which it was decidedly unexpected. Jones, the mysterious farmhand, intrusted it to the mails not long after I had seen him safely on a train southbound from Bassettville. In parting he had thanked me with a good deal of heartiness for my attendance upon him, but had maintained his old reticence as to the character of the business which had brought him to Rodneytown with results so disastrous to himself. The size of the check, though, was sufficient to prove that when he entered Mrs. Weston's employ he was in a position to care little for the pittance she paid him. Banks, too, received a substantial token of the man's gratitude, but he was even less able than I to guess what Jones' mission had been.

These reinforcements to my financial strength helped me to arrive at a decision, though it was a decision burdened with conditions. In the matter of fortune, Dorothy Gray and I were not very far apart; and surely her position was such as to encourage the most timid of wooers. So far, I found clear sailing. But, once this point had been attained in my calculations, there arose a remnant of the old perplexities. Lamar was still the disturbing factor, for, in spite of the deadly malady which had him in its unrelenting clutches, I could not be certain of his plans, so long as strength remained in him to leave his present quarters should he desire to do so. It could hardly be supposed that he would survive more than a year; at least that was the limit I had fixed, after allowing him what I believed to be a wide margin. A second examination had shown that the disease was advancing steadily. His precarious condition had in no way decreased my aversion for him, but it had the effect of ending any idea I might have entertained of resigning my post. To desert him now was out of the question. Yet to remain with him meant a postponement of the inevitable struggle for a professional foothold in some city, or even of a partnership with Banks. So long as I was in the hermit's employ I must be free to follow him if need arose. It was my duty, strive as I might to disguise the fact.

Dorothy and I did not continue quite the old friendship. There was a subtle difference in our relations. We were together often, though she seldom drove with me and there were no more boating excursions, but there was something of our former comradeship lacking. She was graver, quieter, more abstracted. The mourning she wore was no meaningless badge of sorrow. She was grieving over her aunt's loss, and, I feared, causelessly reproaching herself for the accident. It was not a time for me to speak; it was better to wait until her thoughts should be less with the dead and more with the living. I had determined, when my opportunity came, to lay my doubts and difficulties fairly before her, and to ask her aid in seeking a way out of them.

But many days were away before the opportunity was mine. I had asked her to accompany me to Bassettville, and we were riding homeward from that town, with the horse fallen into his laziest jog-trot. For some little time neither of us had spoken. She was preoccupied, I thought, but it did not occur to me to suspect that any unusual cause existed for her abstraction. As for myself—well, inasmuch as she was by my side, I was fairly content.

"May I ask your advice?" she said, at last, breaking the silence.

"Surely, in anything," I answered.

"It seems to be best, but I am not quite satisfied with my own judgment." This she said as if more in explanation to herself than to her hearer. "I am going away."

"Why?" I demanded. "Why, and when, and whither?"

"It must be soon; I've realized it ever since my aunt's death," she said, with a brave effort at composure. "I am poor—I think you know that. I must find a way to support myself. I have thought that perhaps I could be most useful as a nurse, and that you could tell me where the best training-schools were. The people here have been very, very kind, but I must leave them."

"If you heed my advice you will not go away," said I. "And as to becoming a nurse, don't dream of such a thing. Have you any idea of the long hours of duty, the responsibility, the strain on mind and body?"

"Yes, I think I understand. But what else is there for me to do? Believe me, this is no hasty decision."

"But it is one you will never cease to regret."

"Regret? I hardly think that—unless I should find myself incapable."

"Nonsense! Pardon me for speaking so plainly, but that isn't the point at issue. The question you have to decide is this: Do you wish to devote your best years to labors arduous, exacting, often rewarded poorly in money and even less in gratitude, only to find yourself at the end of them broken in health and spirit? I tell you plainly you were not sent into this world to lead such an existence."

"Please don't discourage me," she said, almost entreatingly. "You don't understand. I want to do some good in my life, and the way I have chosen seems to me the best. I cannot teach, I am not a musician, I should starve as a seamstress. But as a nurse—"

"You're the best girl in the world, and the best place for you is right here."

My vehemence seemed to startle her, and she shrank a little from me.

"Dorothy, you must not go," I blundered on. "You speak of making your life useful. Can you not make mine happy? You are more to me than all the rest of the world. Without you I—I—"

Then words failed me. I tried to take her hand, but she drew it from my clasp.

"Dr. Morris, you are very kind, but—but—"

It was her turn to lose command of her voice, but she regained it quickly.

"Please forget what you have said," she went on. "It will be better so."

"But I don't want to forget it. I want to repeat it. Dorothy, can't you give me hope?"

"Please don't ask me. Why should you?"

"You may consider me ungenerous, but I must have an answer. What shall it be?"

"No."

The word was spoken low, but too distinctly to be mistaken. I looked at her in the vain hope of finding some encouragement in her face. Her eyes were averted, and she was very pale, but she was clearly mistress of herself. In desperation I pulled the horse down to a walk. I was determined to tell my tale through to the bitter end, now that it had been begun, and I desired plenty of time for the recital.

THURSDAY, June 11—Sun rises 4:28 a. m., sets 7:31 p. m. Lanterns must be lighted between 8:31 p. m. and 3:28 a. m.

Cyclists desiring to join the League of American Wheelmen will be furnished with application blanks and necessary information by addressing the Cycling Department of the Daily Press.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Harry Coddington, of Somerset street, is riding a new Niagara.

E. Maxwell Honeyman, of Duer street, is riding a new '96 Keating.

William Pangborn, of the borough, has purchased a new wheel to help him in his business.

No races were held at Rochester Tuesday in the New York State curcuit on account of the watery condition of the track.

Mrs. E. A. Laine, of East Second street, and her sister, Mrs. J. W. Sands, of Chicago, are both riding Crescent wheels.

Two combination Cleveland tandems and fifteen Crescent wheels were received by the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company yesterday.

The next run of the Y. M. C. A. cyclers will be held this evening to New Brunswick. The start will be made from the Y. M. C. A. building at 8:30 o'clock.

Eugene Laine's barber, Gus, was thrown from his wheel a few nights ago while out riding, and narrowly escaped injury. His wheel was damaged considerably.

This evening a cycle party of thirty young people will enjoy a run to Metuchen. The affair has been arranged by Miss Fanny Mills, of East Fifth street, and the start will be made from her house.

Joe Martin, of White's, has made a very fine display in one of the show windows of the store, of bicycle suitings for ladies' wear. In it there is a handsome line of fine suitings, belts and shirt waist and a wheel from H. J. Martin, of Park avenue.

Plainfield will be represented by several of the local riders at the Atalanta Wheelmen's meet at Waverly Park, on Saturday, June 20th. Among them will be George W. Scribner, who will ride a Jersey. Scribner expects to ride at Trenton on the 22d, Manhattan Beach on the 27th, and Paterson on July 3d and 4th.

The Jersey Wheel Company's cycle academy is doing remarkably well since the Jersey Wheel Company took hold of it. They are now giving twice as many lessons as in previous times. The terms are 50 cents for one lesson, or $2 for five lessons. Free instruction is given to all who purchase wheels from the Jersey Wheel Company. The company has just received a new line of $50 wheels, called the "310 special."

Plainfield should be proud of the fact that one of the fastest amateur riders in the metropolitan district, William M. McCutchen, is riding under the colors of his club, the Crescent Wheelmen. McCutchen has been training at the Asbury Park track in company with "Joe" Harrison and Linwood Lefferson, two of the crack amateur men, and has been doing some fast work. He expects to ride in a number of race meets this summer, and from present appearances he will win his share of victories. On next Wednesday, he rides in a ten-mile handicap road race in the morning at Norwalk, Conn., and in the afternoon he has entered the half and one-mile handicap, and the one-mile open in a race meet at the same place on a track. On Saturday, June 20th, he rides at Waverly. In this meet, he expects to ride in the tandem race with "Joe" Harrison as his partner. On the 22d, he expects to go to Philadelphia to the Tioga track, on the 27th to Manhattan Beach, and on July 3d and 4th, to Clifton.

WITH ROD AND GUN.

New Market, of late, seems to be a very attractive place for fishermen, and judging from the strings of fish that are brought from there it is no wonder. Among the most successful anglers in the last few days have been Jesse Ayers, Tom Fahey, Sam Neal, Elvin VanName, Dr. Thiers, Dr. Bedford, Chas. Maltby, Cap Kirkner, Henry Haurand, Fred Hui, Mose Terrill, Harry Dreier, Harry Drake and Fred DeCamp. All have had excellent luck, returning with large catches of bass and catfish, with the exception of Maltby and Kirkner, who caught a good wetting in a shower.

Viewed the Body.

Lawyer Bodine, of New Brunswick, counsel for C. H. Jackson, in company with Dr. Helm, also of New Brunswick, came to Plainfield yesterday, and on the order given by Prosecutor Voorhees, they were allowed to view the body of Mrs. Jackson. It was done because Mr. Bodine had not seen the body before. E. E. Runyon, the undertaker, was also present at the vault. There is nothing new today as regards the case, and the experts on the handwriting have made no report.

TO DEMAND REDRESS.

Naturalized Americans, Shockingly Maltreated in Cuba, Enroute to Washington.

New York, June 11.—J. G. Delgardo and his son, Dr. Jose M. Delgardo, naturalized citizens of the United States, who own a sugar plantation in the province of Pinar del Rio, Cuba, arrived last evening on the Ward line steamship City of Washington. They proceeded to Washington, where they will lay before the president and secretary of state, particulars of the massacre which occurred on their estate two months ago and which was related in cable dispatches to the United Press at the time. The plantation had been visited by a band of hungry insurgents, who had asked for food, which was given them, when the Spanish soldiers arrived and put the rebel stragglers to flight, killing or wounding a number of them. They then made prisoners of Dr. Delgardo and the farm hands. The doctor produced his naturalization papers and passport. The Spanish offier took them and slapped Dr. Delgardo across the face with them and threw them at him. The doctor said he would report the matter to Consul-General Williams, to which the officer retorted that he would serve the consul-general in the same way. The party, numbering about thirty, was first marched through a double line of Spanish soldiers, and then all were shot down and hacked with machetes. Dr. Delgardo received bullet wounds in the head and thigh and was slashed across the face with a machete. All were left for dead. The doctor, who still carries a bullet in his head, was found and cared for by the insurgents. The doctor saw the present consul-general, Fitzhugh Lee, before leaving Havana, and was advised to see the president in person. The Delgardos will demand indemnity from Spain.

A HAWKSHAW GONE MAD

GERMAN GARDENER WHO IMAGINED HIMSELF A GREAT DETECTIVE.

When Officer Hartpence Went After the Crazy Man, He Mistook Rev. Mr. Kionka for Him—Straightened Out

Loss of work is the supposed reason for the insanity of Wilhelm Kempl, who was taken to the New Jersey State Hospital at Morris Plains, by the city authorities, yesterday. For nearly a year he has been acting somewhat irregularly, but lately he has grown rapidly worse. He was not violent unless opposed, when he grew angry, and had a hallucination that he was was a famous detective, earning $200 a month.

Kempl came to this country four years ago from Germany. He soon learned the language, and about two years ago obtained a situation as gardener for a family named Porsums at Netherwood. After being there fourteen months he lost the position in some way. He had saved about $150, which he managed to squander in about three weeks. The thought of it preyed on his mind and his fellow members in the German Lutheran Church began to notice that he was acting rather strangely. Rev. E. Kionka, the pastor of the church, looked after him to some extent and last Monday brought him to the same boarding house at the corner of Central avenue and West Second street, of which John Jansen is proprietor. Kempl has been working off and on during the year at his old occupation of gardening, and managed to lay up $60 in the bank, but as he gradually grew worse he thought it beneath his dignity as a detective to work in the garden.

He would come into his boarding place and tell wonderful stories of how he and the chief of police held long conferences on important cases, and how he was working up some remarkable clues. Rev. Mr. Kionka tried to discourage him as much as possible in that wild talk, but he still persisted. His last idea was that he was going to get married. When opposed in this by the reverend gentleman, he became quite violent. Mr. Kionka was afraid that his fellow countryman might do something desperate, so an examination was made.

Drs. Fritts and Tomlinson were called and examined Kempt, and declared he was undoubtedly insane.

Arrangements were therefore made with the police to take him to Morris Plains, and put him in the State Asylum there. Yesterday morning Patrolman Hartpence was detailed to go around to Jansen's house, and persuade his crazy boarder to go for a ride with him. Hartpence went to the house in citizen's clothes, while a detail of policemen waited around the corner to be ready should Kempl resist forcibly.

When the officer stood in the hall, Rev. Mr. Kionka came down the front stairs. He had just gotten up and his eyes looked sleepy in consequence. "You'll take a ride with me this morning," remarked Hartpence, who did not know Mr. Kionka, and he grasped the minister of the Gospel by the arm and started to lead him off. Of course, there was a lively protest, and it was sometime before the other occupants of the house could stifle their laughter long enough to explain that Hartpence's prisoner was not the man bound for Morris Plains.

The right one was finally found, and taken to the asylum without opposition. Kempl is a short, thick set man, dark complexion and hair, looking more like an Italian than a German. He has a small, narrow head, the upper part of which receeds. His mustache is a large one and curls up at the ends.

Goes to Claim a Fortune.

Charles H. Francisco, of 125 New street, expects to sail for Liverpool, on July 15th, to be gone about six weeks. Mrs. Alice Moore, his housekeeper, will accompany him to look after an estate left by her late husband. Mrs. Moore has been in this country for the past nine years, and some two weeks ago she was notified by letter that a small fortune was awaiting her there.

—Two more new cars for the street railway were received this morning and the work of getting them on the tracks is now being done by A. E Hoagland and his men.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

THE JUNIORS' ENTERTAIN.

First Methodist Church Sunday-School Scholars Enjoy a Pleasant Evening.

The Junior department of the Sunday-school of the First M. E. church held their annual entertainment and social last evening in Vincent chapel. There was a large audience present including a number of the older members. Superintendent J. W. Jackson had the programme in charge and announced the various numbers. The entertainment opened with a recitation by Miss Rita Pound, which was followed with a vocal solo by Raymond McGee, accompanied by Miss Madge Barnes. Mr. McGee was heartily applauded and responded by singing the "Irish Jubilee." Miss Maude French then gave a well rendered piano solo. A feature was a vocal duett by Miss Lucy Paliver Davis and Miss Florence Barnes accompanied by Miss Barnes. Miss Carrie Mulford also rendered a vocal solo in a pleasing manner. This was followed with a recitation by Miss Mahel Jenkins. One of the most enjoyable numbers was the vocal solo "Fiddle and I" by Miss Madge Barnes, accompanied by Miss Sharp on the piano and Clarence Mills on the violin The last number was a vocal solo by Raymond McGee, whose singing is always enjoyed.

The rest of the evening was devoted to sociability, during which refreshments were served. Those in charge were Miss Anna Smalley, Miss Elsie Horne, Miss Sadie Douglass, Miss Eva Jenkins, Miss Bolsterli, Miss Lunger and Paul Symons.

The W. C. T. U. Festival.

An enjoyable strawberry festival was held in the W. C. T. U. rooms last evening, at which time a large number were present and partook of the good things provided. The rooms were decorated with flowers, forming an attractive scene. A feature of the event was the serving of glace. The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. Carman Parse, Mrs. R. K. Case, Mrs. McNaughton, Mrs. Tomlinson, Mrs. Dobbins and Miss Mary Van-Eps. The event was successful, and a good sum was realized.

Big Real Estate Deal.

The S. D. Drake Real Estate Co., of Bound Brook and New York, have secured 200 acres of land on the Central Railroad of New Jersey, belonging to John D. Voorhees, of Bound Brook. This property is situated half way between Bound Brook and Dunellen, on the north side of the railroad, and having over one mile frontage on railroad. This is a very important deal, from the fact that a new manufacturing town will be located here, in the near future.—Real Estate News.

A Wonderful Instrument.

J. VanEps, of Park avenue, has almost completed a wonderful musical instrument, the like of which has never been equalled. It is primarily a zither, but can be used as a harp or piano, and has a harmonic attachment. It has 55 strings, and would cost $300 to duplicate, not counting time or labor. It can be used as zither, a solo instrument or for duets, and its light weight, only 15 pounds makes it easy to carry around.

School Days Almost Ended.

NOT BRIGHT FOR JACKSON

SURMISED THAT THE REPORT OF EXPERT PENMAN NOT IN HIS FAVOR.

Prosecutor Voorhis Agrees to Bring the Case Into Court Next Monday Morning —Refuses to Divulge Expert's Opinion.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, June 12th.—While nothing definite can be learned from the county officials as to the possible chances that Charles H. Jackson may have to escape being held for the Grand Jury on the accusation that it was he who fired the shot by which the life of his wife was suddenly blotted out at her home in New Market last Wednesday morning, it is the opinion of the newspaper men who have closely followed up later developments within the last day or two that the circumstances now surraunding his case are not the brightest for the accused man's early release from custody.

This morning Prosecutor John S Voorhees, who has charge of the case for the State, stated that he would be ready for a hearing in the Middlesex County Court, before Judge Strong, next Monday morning.

This decision has been brought about by the receipt of the report of the New York expert on chirography to whom was submitted the two letters of the late Mrs. Jackson, one of which was purported to have been written to her husband just before the fatality giving her reasons for committing the awful deed. The Prosecutor refuses to make public the report of the expert, and because of this secrecy it is surmised that the decision is that the handwriting of the last letter is not that of Mrs. Jackson. Mr. Voorhees refuses to name the expert.

Jackson is still confined in the cell with Thomas Donlon, another accused murderer. He maintains as hopeful and pleasant a spirit as can be expected from a man in his position, and maintains that he can eventually prove his innocence.

A SUMMER FESTIVAL.

Congregational Church Members Furnish Delicacies and Mirth.

A very pleasant strawberry and ice cream festival was held last night by the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Congregational church.

In the early part of the evening an enjoyable little informal programme was rendered. The first number was a dainty little recitation by Miss May Parmalee, "The Guest at the Flowers' Jubilee." With her pretty, light gown, decked with long sprays of roses, she looked a fit guest for such an occasion. Miss Cornelia Rockfellow next played a spirited piano solo, "Raymond's Kill Galop," after which there was another recitation, this time by Miss Marie Newman, "The Family Drum-Corps," a very difficult selection, which was well rendered and thoroughly enjoyed. Miss Margaret E. Meredith then sang "The Proposal," which was much applauded. The programme was ended with another song, "Because I Love You," by Hawley, charmingly sung by Miss Kathryn Krymer, of Brooklyn.

The audience then adjourned to the supper room, where little tables were artistically arranged, and prettily decorated with flowers. Long sprays of woodbine gave a summery look to the apartment, while the light gowns of the young girls who acted as waitresses, added to the pretty effect. Ice cream, cake and strawberries were served, and a social time was enjoyed by all. The social committee, of which Miss Julia Belknap is the efficient chairman, may certainly feel that this closing sociable of the season has been a successful one.

Objected to the Moving Process.

An Italian named Sam Vilello, of Westfield, went to the house occupied by Raefel Venezea, while the latter and his family were away from home temporarily, and started to move out the furniture, as Vilello, who rents the place to them, wanted the house. While the moving-out process was going on Venezea returned home, and there was a pitched battle. Vilello struck Venezea on the head with a hatchet, making a cut about three inches long in his scalp.

If it required an annual outlay of $100.00 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by T. S. Armstrong, Druggist.

NOT ENOUGH DISCIPLINE

ONE OF THE FAULTS OF THE NORTH PLAINFIELD PUBLIC SCHOOL.

Recommendations of the Board of Education Committee Appointed to Investigate the Condition of That Institution.

Some time ago President McCutchen of the North Plainfield Board of Education appointed J. H. VanWinkle, A. V. D. Honeyman and Robert M. Fountain, of the board, a committee to examine the condition of the school, and within the past few days the committee has made a partial report of their work to the board. The report is one of considerable interest, and while it is only a partial one it certainly covers the ground in a satisfactory manner and should be received with close attention by the board, and every citizen in the borough. A substance of the report is as follows:

Generally speaking, the text-books are appropriate, up-to-date, sufficient in quantity and efficient in quality. A new work for grammar is recommended in grades 9 and 10. The discipline of the school appears to be up to the average, and good order seems to be the rule. The general work of the school indicates a spirit of dignified attention to duties and a good will between the pupils and teachers, which is pleasant to commend. In one or two rooms, however, there are those who are inclined to be noisy and who are not always under good discipline. We desire to call the attention of the principal to the fact that the board will sustain him in laying down rules. If necessary severer measures must be resorted to in maintaining order. We allude to the listless habit formed in reciting In a general manner the teachers as a rule, as well as the principal, appear to be putting forth their best efforts to make the school a success. The Tuesday afternoon teachers' meetings are to be commended and they should be continued, and if they could be attended by members of the board it would be wise and profitable. We take it for granted that the principal and teachers aim at the best results regardless of pet theories or plans, and will cheerfully accept suggestions from the board. As to whether there should be any change next year in the present corps of teachers, your committee place that delicate matter in the hands of the full board for its better judgment, and we do not make any recommendations, not having fully investigated the subject.

In seven classes the number of pupils exceed forty and in three exceed fifty. It would be better if each class did not exceed thirty pupils. We recommend that the Board adopt a policy of limiting the number to forty, also that as soon as possible separate desks be provided, for hygenic reasons. It is also recommended that the janitor be required to wipe off the desks with cloths every morning, as the pupils clothes are now soiled for want of attention to this duty; also that the floors should be cleansed with water at least once every two weeks in winter, and at least once a month in summer, and the floors should be mopped off every few days, both summer and winter. The committee recommends that the Board take up the question of extending the school hours. The noon intermission of one hour and three-quarters seems unnecessary, and it is suggested that a recess be given in the morning. It is also recommended that the latter subject be taken up separately. The subject of studies in the various grades have been considered, and it is learned that geography, penmanship and end with the seventh grade, civil government with the eighth grade and grammar with the ninth grade. In the tenth grade, arithmetic, grammar, spelling, writing, civil government, English and American history is not specifically taught, while ancient history, physical geography, reading of standard works, language lessons three times a week, bookkeeping once a week by principal, essays once a month and Latin, optional, one hour a day, four days a week, seem to be thoroughly taught, but do these studies meet the requirements? Your committee recommends that physical geography, ancient history and algebra take up less time. Civil government should be taught in the ninth and tenth grades and not in the eighth grade; also that some place should be assigned to a continuing study of penmanship, spelling, grammar and higher arithmetic in grades nine and ten.

It is also recommended that modern instead of ancient history be given the preference. Botany has a place, but reading, writing and spelling is more essential than to be able to tell the calyx of flowers. When a pupil reaches the ninth grade he is supposed to have quite a thorough knowledge of the elementary branches. This is good theory but is not a fact. The dropping of studies is not a wise thing, and pushing scholars too fast, so that they may reach higher places of learning is not recommended. It is suggested that the committee on text-books, with the principal, re-arrange the curriculum in the eighth, ninth and tenth grades, submit the same to the board, and that it be given at least one year's trial. It is thought that too much time is given to Latin in the place of more important studies. It is recommended that below the eighth grade, writing be taught by actual Spencerian copies of the adjustable kind, also that written compositions be required more frequently in all the higher grades and that bookkeeping be given more attention in the eighth grade. Astronomy is suggested as a substitute for civil government. It is also recommended that a bi-weekly course of lectures on practical subjects be given. There are a number of Plainfield and North Plainfield men and women who would be glad to tender their services gratuitously, at least once a year, and this would instill into the young minds proper habits of thought and correct knowledge of business. For 1896 7 it is recommended that a course of twenty lectures be given at three o'clock every other Friday afternoon on such topics as "Methods of Banking." "Everyday Principles of Law," "The Uses of Electricity," and "Hints upon Health." This would aid to inspire the young mind with proper motives and ambitions and to some extent influence their lives.

JUNIORS' CLOSING EXERCISES.

Young Endeavorers of Trinity Church Have an Interesting Meeting.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Trinity Reformed church held its closing exercises for the summer yesterday afternoon. The Juniors turned out well and the meeting was a very successful one. The superintendent, Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, presided.

The meeting opened with prayer by the pastor, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, followed by the Ten Commandments recited in concert. The Juniors then united in singing "Youthful Workers," after which the reports of the secretary and treasurer were listaned to. The secretary reported the society in excellent condition, with a membership of 70, and an average attendance of 41. The treasurer told of the offerings for missionary purposes—foreign missions, $16.50; Indian mission, $22.50.

Eleven questions on the Bible, reviewing the winter's work, were answered in concert, after which came a piano solo by Miss Lucy Coriell; recitation, Miss Emma Line; autoharp solo, Miss Bessie TenEyck; recitation, Miss May Anthony; vocal solo, Fred Dunavan; violin solo, Mrs. George Saums; all of which were well rendered. Gifts in the shape of pretty books were presented to the Misses Gertie Tier and Louise Ebel for regular attendance at church services. Refreshments and a social time followed. The lecture room, where the meeting was held, was prettily decorated with daisies and ferns, which were arranged by Miss Ollie Wikoff, assistant superintendent, Miss Minnie Wyman and Miss Ella White.

The social committee, which arranged the meeting, consisted of Miss Grace Emmons, chairman, and the Misses Gertie Tier, Grace TenEyck, Martie Anthony, Bessie Martin, Edna Devere and Fred Dunavan.

FOR THE COLORED Y. M. C. A.

Enjoyable Entertainment Given in Central Hall.

An entertainment was given in Central hall last night by the colored Y. M. C. A., of this city. The hall was filled to its utmost by the large gathering present. A programme, consisting of the following, was rendered in a pleasing manner. Vocal solos by John Taylor, Miss E. Johnson, Miss C. Mason, Mrs. Hopkins, Mrs. Randolph, Miss M. Williams, duets by Miss Grove and Mrs. Hopkins, Miss Johnson and Miss Jones. Selections by a quartet consisting of A. Smith, J. Taylor, W. Wilson and Mrs. Smith and a piano and violin selection by Miss Hamilton and Mrs. L. Smith. The treasury of the association was greatly benefited by the entertainment.

Second Night a Success.

The attendance at the rose festival that was held at the First Presbyterian church last evening was large and there was little trouble in disposing of the things on sale, and as a result the treasury of the Ladies' Aid Society will receive a substantial sum.

On to Netherwood Tomorrow.

The Netherwood trolley tracks are being cleaned off today so that the cars may be able to run at the earliest possible time. The Dunellen line will probably not be opened before Monday. The cars on the Somerset street line are running under ten minutes headway.

LITTLE ONES DID WELL

CLOSING EXERCISES AT PARK CLUB OF MISS FAWCETT'S SCHOOL.

The Event Attended by the Best Families in the Borough—All the Scholars Acquitted Themselves Nicely.

There was not even standing room at the Park Club last evening when the closing exercises of Miss Fawcett's School and Kindergarten were held. The parents and friends of the young pupils literally packed the dainty little hall of the Park Club and they appreciated the great progress of the children, as was shown by their enthusiastic and hearty applause. The best families in the borough were represented, but Washington Park furnished most of the throng.

The programme was an excellent one and told plainly of the faithful and patient labors of Miss Fawcett and her able assistant, Miss Harriot. The French selections were unusally well rendered and showed that the teachings of Mademoiselle Ballu had not been in vain.

The exercises opened with the One Hundredth Psalm, recited by the pupils who were gathered in the front of the hall. Then came three songs by the school. "Father Who Art in Heaven," "A Beautiful House," and "Wildwood Flowers. A long recitation, "Papa's Letter," was given by Miss Louise Saunders without a mistake, after which Raymond Lyman gave a recitation in a very amusing manner. A solo, "The Child's Good Bye," by Reginald Fawcett was sung in his original manner. His voice is very sweet and should be cultivated. A cute little dialogue was "Not Quite a Bargain," rendered in a most happy manner by the Misses Bessie Van Arsdale and Mabel Hooley. A handsome bouquet was presented to Miss Hooley. Then came a French song, "Les Petits Musiciens" by the Misses Louise Saunders, Gladys Peck, Margaret Townsend, and Master Martin Fawcett. The little tots of the Kindergarten next showed some of their little games. They sang and went through motions representing scissors grinding, skating and the like.

The recitation "The Minuet," by Miss Margaret Townsend, was especially good and was heartily applauded. The first part closed with a march, during part of which the children sang "Follow Me With the Arch," while some formed arches with the hands for the others to pass under.

Part second opened with one of the best selections of all. It was the recitation with solo, "Cuddle Down Dolly" given by Miss Gladys Peck. Seated in her little chair she rocked her dollie to sleep in the sweetest manner imaginable. A witty little dialogue, "Johnny White's Mental Arithmetic Class," was well spoken by Neal Compton and Russell Pond. Wand and dumbbell drills and exercises by the school, followed and then came a French recitation, "L'Omelette Souffiu," by Miss Louise Saunders. Another French recitation, "LaPetite Mere," was given by Miss Margaret Townsend and Martin Fawcett. After a French recitation, "La fin du Conte," by Miss Gladys Peck, and another, "Ne lis pas ton journal," by Neal Compton and Martin Fawcett, there was a French dialogue "L'Eragneul et la fauvette," by the Misses Virginia Hegeman and Sophornia Barlow. Master Charles Lyman next told "How the Little Kite Learned to Fly" in a way that brought down the house. "The True Story of Little Boy Blue" was most excellently recited by Miss Ray Hooley, after which she was presented with a handsome bouquet. The programme closed with a little play, "Uncle Moreton's Gift." It was well given for such young actors and elicted loud applause. The cast was as follows:

Miss Alice Jackson.....Miss Grace Osgood
Miss Annie Carter.....Miss Sophie Barlow
Miss Lucie Jackson...Miss Blanche Heldeloff
Miss Susie Carter.....Mis Marguerite Serrell
Master Arthur Jackson,
Master Martin Fawcett
Jimmie White.....Master Reginald Roome
Miss Silvie Meredith..Miss Eugenia Hannigan
Bridget Dolan.....Miss May Faber

The room was artistically decorated with cut flowers and presented a very pretty appearance.

Miss Lillian A. Force, who has been Miss Fawcett's accompanist for many years, again presided at the piano.

Open Car Now Running.

The first open trolley car left the corner of North and Watchung avenues this morning on the North Plainfield line in charge of Motorman Higgins and Conductor McCormick. As it trolleyed along many progressive citizens tipped their hats in honor of the occasion.

RENEWS THE FIGHT

Manley Now Urges the Reed Men To Redouble Their Efforts.

POSSIBLE CHANCE OF A BREAK

Seating of Two Morton Delegates Spurs the Maine Man to Renewed Action—The Result Now Seems To Rest Entirely on Financial Plank.

St. Louis, June 12.—Although Mr. Manley's change of position last evening has caused some excitement among the republican politicians here, the McKinley managers are just as positive in their claim of victory for the Ohio man on the first ballot as ever and confidently assert that there is no danger of a break in the convention. While the renewed inflation of the Reed boom is attracting some attention, the real subject causing the most concern is the financial plank, and this seems to be the only stumbling block in the road to McKinley's assured success. The differences are as wide as the continent and at present seem irreconcilable. The western delegates maintain their adherence to silver with a frankness that in former gatherings of the party would have been punished as political heresy. The other half of the country is represented by sound money advocates who will listen to no suggestion of any other platform declaration. This issue even in these ante-convention days has ranged the delegates into two camps. The men from Maine and the far east still uphold the banner for Reed, while those from Iowa, supported by scattering delegates from the middle west, declare themselves for Allison. Quay will, of course, receive nearly the full support of Pennsylvania and Morton is assured of all but four of the New York votes. Bradley has not been side-tracked by the allurement of the vice-presidency. So many tables have been compiled showing both McKinley will or will not be nominated on the first ballot that they are valueless. The monetary plank of the platform will, unless a miracle supervenes, determine the nomination for or against the leader. The arrival of Thomas C. Platt gave encouragement and impetus to the opposition. While he is not in sympathy with the silver wing of the party it is thought he will be the rallying point for a combined opposition. There is no hint that other than an honorable fight will be made against McKinley, but political exigencies as presented here demand the alliance of all opposition for a successful struggle against the McKinley avalanche.

Work of the Committee.

The second day's work of the national committee was one of great activity. Up to 6 last evening, in the space of eight hours, it had heard the evidence in and adjudicated upon a total of ten contests, involving the placing upon the temporary roll of precisely twenty-four delegates. In some cases the questions submitted were intricate, and these were debated without consideration of time. Where, however, a contest was regarded as frivolous or based upon grounds not recognized by the rules of the party short work was made of it. Among the contestants were scattering supporters of Reed, Morton and Allison, but the sum total of the day's work was the seating of twenty-two pronounced adherents of Major McKinley and to two delegates favorable to the nomination of Gov. Morton.

Reed Men Spurred To Renew the Fight.

In this latter contest—that of the first Florida district—some of the McKinley members of the committee made a bitter fight; but the evidence adduced for the friends of the New Yorker—Archibald and Robinson—was so regular and overwhelming that preference traces were kicked over and some of the Ohio man's warmest friends voted for the first time against his spokesmen, with the result that the Morton men were seated by the close vote of 23 to 20. Perhaps it was merely a coincidence, but it was at least significant that immediately after this vote had been announced Mr. Manley left the room and prepared a statement for the United Press in which he called upon the friends of Speaker Reed to redouble their efforts to bring about his nomination. Pressed to make clear the apparent discrepancy between his last bulletin and that of Wednesday evening the political manager of the lamented Blaine and chief supporter of the present candidate from Maine would only reply that the statement was sufficiently self-explanatory for the present and needed no elaboration. Read between the lines, however, and those in a position to know say that is the correct reading—it is an intimation of Mr. Manley's belief that just such a break as occurred in the committee last evening may happen at some critical moment and upon some unexpected issue in the national convention, and that he proposes that the friends of his candidate shall gird on their armor and, alert for an opening, be prepared for any eventuality. A motion at the evening session of the committee to reconsider the action seating the first district Florida Morton delegates was lost—twenty to nineteen. While the vote was proceeding there was a genuine sensation.

Denounced the Proceedings.

When New York was reached in the vote Committeeman Sutherland arose and denounced the proceedings and threatened to wash his hands of the whole business. He said it was worse than nonsense for any member to say that he had on the first ballot voted by mistake. Committeeman Hahn of Ohio replied that he saw no reason why the gentleman from New York should retire, and said that there were methods in New York that were not above suspicion, as would be shown when the contests from that state were reached.

Manley's Latest Statement.

Mr. Manley was deluged with telegrams all day requesting him to explain or qualify his statement given to the United Press Wednesday evening, in which he conceded that Major McKinley would be nominated on the first ballot, but declared that Speaker Reed would remain in the field to the finish. Late last night the national committeeman from Maine furnished this signed statement to the United Press: "The action of the national committee at their meeting of Wednesday showing clearly their intention of placing on the temporary roll delegates favorable to Gov. McKinley, which in the end would mean 160 additional votes, caused me to make the statement that I did. 'I am as earnestly for Mr. Reed as ever, and am with his friends doing everything possible to bring about his nomination, and I urge upon his supporters throughout the country to make still greater efforts in his behalf. J. H. MANLEY." An immense canvas picture of the speaker was placed on the parlor floor of the Southern hotel last evening. Reed buttons and badges are also making their appearance, and there is every indication that his boom is being given renewed impetus.

The Vice-Presidency.

Who will be chosen for second place on the ticket is still a matter of great doubt and there are any number of names mentioned in connection with the place. Senator Proctor, one of those mentioned for the vice-presidency, said last evening: "I do not want to be vice-president of the United States. My name shall not be presented for that office before the republican national convention. I do not think that my name will be presented to the convention. Whenever I am satisfied that such action is probable I shall take steps to prevent it. I do not know a great deal about politics. I do know something about Vermont politics, however, and I know that the republicans of my state are five to one for McKinley. He will surely win on the first ballot.' New York is still looked to as the state to name the candidate for second place on the ticket. The Depew boom, which took quite a spurt yesterday, is little heard of to-day. Mr. Depew's public association with railway interests being deemed a dangerous feature in the case. The Morton talk has revived with a good deal of strength, mingled with not a few suggestions of Benjamin F. Tracy. The point which frightens some of the cautious brethren in talking about Tracy is that he is understood to have been the author of the scheme for coining the seigniorage, and that this may be dragged out at an inconvenient juncture in the campaign. Col. Fred Grant's name was also heard several times last evening in connection with the place.

Indications Favor Hobart.

Henry Clay Evans of Tennessee arrived in town last evening, and his appearance at once started afresh the talk of his candidacy for the vice-presidency. Mr. Evans said he would be pleased to have the nomination, but he was not losing any sleep over the prospects of success or defeat. The Tennessee delegation will present his name to the convention and he has assurances of support in other directions. Senator Hawley of Connecticut is discussed in connection with the second place, but there are very few United States senators who would care to be vice-president, and it is not known here whether Gen. Hawley's candidacy is proposed with his consent. Buttons and badges with McKinley and Hobart of New Jersey and McKinley and McAlpin of New York are plenty, showing what the talk has produced. The sentiment in favor of Hobart seems to be pretty strong, and there are reasons to believe that he is more likely to be the nominee for second place than any of the men so far mentioned.

Trouble over Temporary Pickings.

The convention is threatened with trouble on the floor over the pickings of temporary patronage, C. W. Fairbanks of Indiana having been selected by the national committee for temporary chairman, and being himself a candidate for the United States senatorship to succeed Mr. Voorhees. Mr. Early, who represents the political interests of McKeen, the opposing candidate for the senatorship, filed a protest with Mr. Hanna against giving Fairbanks such a political boost over McKeen. Hanna assured him that it was not his work, but the national committee's, and that any protest must be filed with the committee. Early proposes to do this, but if the committee refuses to make a change of programme at his request, intends to make a demonstration on the floor of the convention.

Permanent Chairman.

It seems likely that either Henry Clay Evans of Tennessee or Senator Thurston of Nebraska will be permanent chairman of the convention. Evans has been in the race as a vice-presidential candidate and Thurston has been slated to second the nomination of McKinley. Whichever one is most willing to relinquish his earlier assignment will probably be permanent chairman. Thurston is an intense McKinley man, and in Nebraska succeeded in putting down the Manderson boom. His senate speech on the Monroe doctrine is well remembered. In it he pledged the lives of his relatives and offered to risk the bombardment of Omaha in defense of Monroeism.

Hotel and Cottages Burned.

A PEACEFUL SESSION

Even If Congress Did Not Accomplish Much of Importance.

SPEAKER'S SOLACE FOR THE HOUSE

The Last Day Dragged Wearily Along and Final Adjournment Was Reached With None of the Exciting Scenes Usually Incident to Closing.

Washington, June 12.—If the first session of the Fifty-fourth congress has been a "do-nothing session," as had been predicted, the closing day of the senate furnished a fitting culmination to the session. It was a day of inactive drifting, a laborious effort to kill time by doing nothing until 4 o'clock, when the District of Columbia appropriation bill was received and immediately signed by the vice-president, thus disposing of the last of the general appropriation bills, so far as the legislative branch was concerned. A bill was passed granting a pension to the widow of Gen. W. H. Gibson of Ohio. The senate then dawdled along until 1:20 o'clock, the only business transacted being the appointment of a committee to wait on the president and inform him that congress was ready to adjourn, and the appointment of another committee, provided for in the District of Columbia appropriation bill, to investigate the charitable and reformatory institutions in Washington. At 1:20 a recess was taken until 3 o'clock, when the usual resolutions of thanks to the vice-president and president pro tempore were offered by Senators Allison, rep., Ia., and Harris, dem., Tenn., respectively and unanimously agreed to. The galleries were almost deserted during the early hours of the session, but knots of spectators continued to come in slowly until the hour of adjournment, so that when that hour arrived and the vice-president delivered his valedictory he had a good sized audience in the galleries, a large number of whom were ladies, even though there were but twenty-five senators present at that interesting moment. As the vice-president uttered the last words and the gavel fell for the last time there was a faint outburst of applause, after which senators gathered in knots in the aisles and before the vice-president's desk bidding each other good-by. Then the senators on the floor and the visitors in the galleries melted away, and the chamber that has been the scene of so many stirring incidents was left to the pages and attendants until the first Monday in December next.

Democrats Compliment the Speaker.

In the house the first session of the Fifty-fourth congress gently and quietly, almost without incident, glided into history, the shortest "long" session of congress, with two exceptions, in the history of the government. There was a marked difference between the close of this and that of the Fifty-first congress, the last previous republican congress. Then a bitter conflict raged between Speaker Reed and the minority, and no one of the latter was found to introduce the usual resolution of thanks to the presiding officer. Yesterday Mr. Turner, the second democratic member of the committee on ways and means, acting for the minority in the absence of ex-Speaker Crisp, offered a resolution thanking Speaker Reed for the "ability, faithfulness and strict impartiality," with which he had discharged the duties of his difficult position; and, at the suggestion of Mr. Dockery and other democrats, there was a rising vote that the expression of heartiness back of the resolution might thereby be emphasized. In his closing remarks Speaker Reed offered his grateful recognition for the honor, saying: "The thanks of the house of representatives is always a high honor but is especially so at the end of a session where the speaker has been forced to say 'no' more times, perhaps, than in the history of any other congress."

Good Behavior Their Record.

The speaker, concluding, said: "Ordinarily a majority of two and a half to one, a majority of 150, means disorganization, faction and discord. In this house 150 new members of both parties behaved with the steadiness of veterans, and if connection with other branches of government with different ideas has prevented us from serving the country as we might have done, we, at least, have behaved with dignity, fairness and credit."

Delicate Dress Goods.

Some gowns are so dainty in the weave, so delicate in tint, that they seem to soil by being looked at—one or two wearings making them unpresentable, NOT USELESS. We make a specialty of cleaning fine fabrics, the more delicate the material, the better the results. Sometimes an accident will ruin a gown, without injuring the texture. We dye them then, sometimes we get a prettier effect than the original color. Fine goods stand redyeing. The finer the material the better the new color. We charge so little for cleaning or dyeing, that even if you are in doubt as to the result, it's worth while to experiment. Want a new evening gown for a dollar or two? METEOR AGAIN WINS

Englishmen Admit They Have No Boat That Can Beat Her.

WANT A RACE WITH THE DEFENDER

Believe the American Boat Can Give Her a Much Harder Tussel—Grand Ovation Extended to the Kaiser by Naval Architects.

London, June 12.—The regatta of the Royal Southampton Yacht club was held yesterday afternoon, and the racing resulted in another victory for Emperor William's cutter Meteor, which again beat by a wide margin the crak British boats Britannia, Ailsa, Satanita and Hester. It is now admitted by yachtsmen generally that the Meteor has no equal in British waters, and it is suggested that an effort be made to have the American boat Defender brought over to see how she would perform in a race with the German emperor's boat. British yachtsmen believe that the Yankee boat would give the Meteor a lively race for supremacy.

Ovation to the Kaiser.

London, June 12.—The papers today pnblish a long account of a remarkable ovation that was given to Emperor William, who attended yesterday a meeting of naval architects, among whom were 170 delegates from Great Britain. Admiral Hollman, head of the imperial admiralty, in an address welcoming the visitors, incidentally referred to the emperor's interest in naval affairs. The reference was greeted with roars of applause, to which his majesty, who was attired in the uniform of a British admiral, bowed, apparently with much pleasure. The English speakers' subsequent references to the emperor's yacht Meteor, which has been covering herself with glory in English races, elicited a further furore, which was renewed when the emperor departed at the close of the session. The spontaneity and heartiness of the ovations seem to have greatly impressed his majesty. A dinner was given in the evening at the kaiserhof, at which Admiral Hollmann, Dr. Bosse, the Prussian minister of instruction, and others spoke. There was much enthusiasm.

EX-CITY TREASURER INDICTED.

Michelon Charged at Camden with Embezzlement and Malfeasance in Office.

Camden, N. J., June 12.—The grand jury has returned thirteen true bills of indictment against ex-City Treasurer Michelon, six for embezzlement and seven for malfeasance in office. The indictments charge embezzlement at various periods during the years 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894 and 1895 of sums ranging from $10,000 to $3,900. He is also charged with having neglected to enter on his books the salaries paid to city officers to the amount of $35,000 and failing to take up a note for $5,000 in the National State bank of Camden after it was paid.

Portland Bankers Urge Reed's Candidacy.

Portland, Me., June 12.—The following telegram was sent to J. H. Manley at St. Louis last night. It is signed by the president and cashier of every bank in Portland: "The undersigned, believing that Mr. Reed voices most clearly the convictions of the great business interests of this country upon the question of sound money; that his public record on this issue is unquestioned, and that there is in the country a growing sentiment in his favor on this account, earnestly request that no efforts may be spared to support his candidacy at the national convention."

Money from the Excise Tax.

Albany, June 12.—The excise money collected under the new liquor tax law for the month of May amounts to $4,911,440. One-third of this, $1,637,147, goes to the state treasury. More than $500,000 has been collected since the 1st of June, and it is the prevailing opinion in the excise department now that the state's share of the money collected for the year will exceed the estimate by three millions.

Harvard Students Fined.

Cambridge, Mass., June 11.—The three students who were arrested in the disturbance attending the celebration of Harvard's victory over Princeton at baseball were arraigned in the municipal court yesterday. C. S. Briggs, charged with firing a pistol in the street, was fined $15. Arthur Pillings and G. W. Dorr, charged with assaulting a policeman, were fined $50 each. The fines were paid.

Depew Off for St. Louis.

New York, June 12.—Chauncey M. Depew left this city at 7:30 o'clock last night for St. Louis, where, it is said, he will deliver the opening speech nominating Gov. Morton for the presidency. Mr. Depew's private car "Old Hundred" was attached to the Buffalo special.

Died of Hydrophobia.

Boston, June 12.—The report that the Nonantum mills, employing 900 hands, would close down at once owing to unfavorable business conditions is premature, as all orders on hand must be filled, which will require at least two months.

Placed on the Retired List.

Washington, June 12.—Capt. Douglass M. Scott, commissary of subsistence, U. S. A., has been placed on the retired list by direction of the president with the rank of major.

DENIES THE CHARGES.

Seaboard Air Line Superintendent Says the Mails Were Not Padded.

Portsmouth, Va., June 12.—Capt. T. E. McBee, general superintendent of the Seaboard Air line, has given out a statement in regard to the charges made against that company by the postoffice department, in which he denies that his company is responsible for the alleged padding of the mails by the shipping of public documents under congressional franks, or that the company exerted itself to induce excessive movement of printed or franked matter during the mail weighing period Capt. McBee asserts that whatever action was taken by his company was entirely within the law, and he quotes sections of the law itself and official communications from the postoffice department to sustain his assertions. He contends that, so far from having done anything to defraud the government or take advantage of defects in the postal laws or regulations for its own profit, the Seaboard Air line has, in fact, suffered loss from handling the mails, and from discrimination against it by the postal officials. He characterizes the statement alleged to have been authorized by the postmaster-general as unbecoming and libellous and courts a full investigation of all the matters touched upon in that statement.

POSTOFFICE BOYCOTT.

The Trouble at Turnersville, Conn., Not Yet at an End.

Middletown, Conn., June 12.—The boycott of the Turnersville postoffice by S. W. Turner is not at an end. Turner's factory receives more than three-fourths of all the mail that comes to that office, and ever since the postoffice was established Mr. Turner or some one in his office has been appointed postmaster. A short time since F. G. Button, editor of the Turnersville Observer, was made postmaster. Turner instituted a boycott and mailed all his mail at the depot on postal cars. As a result the postal car hands objected. The government sent an inspector to look into the matter, and as a result of his investigation all postal men have been ordered not to receive Turner's mail at the Turnersville depot. He has consequently been for several days forced to send it to Colchester, Westchester, and other places to mail, as he refuses to mail at Turnersville. Last evening he was at the depot trying to get people to take his letters and postal cards to Willimantic or Middletown for mailing.

SHAM BATTLE AT WEST POINT.

Larger Number of Spectators Than at the Graduating Exercises.

West Point, N. Y., June 12.—In anticipation of the drill known as sham battle, which is infantry drill in extended order, there were many more persons present last evening than at any time during the graduating exercises. This drill began at 5 o'clock last evening and continued until after 6 o'clock. It is the one drill more than any other which interests the average spectator. There is a continued fusillade of firing and the orders given by the officers in command infuse a spirit of inspiration into the spectator. The battalion was divided into four companies and owing to the limited space it was necessary to return the battalion after each advance to the starting point in order to get sufficient ground to show the extension on the plain as it would take place before an enemy two thousand yards distant.

Postoffice Robber Arrested.

Belvidere, N. J., June 12.—Charles Golitz, who is wanted by the Reading, Pa., authorities for robbing the postoffice there some time ago, was arrested here yesterday afternoon by secret service officers. He was later committed to the Belvidere jail to await requisition papers from the governor of Pennsylvania. Golitz, it is alleged, is one of the most expert postoffice thieves in the United States.

To Test the Veteran Law.

HAMMOND IS FREE

He and the Other Reform Leaders Released by the Boers.

WILL PAY A FINE OF $125,000 EACH

They Were Given the Option of Suffering Banishment from the Transvaal for Fifteen Years—The News Received at Washington.

London, June 12.—The dispatch received yesterday from Pretoria saying that at a special meeting of the executive council of the Transvaal it had been decided to release John Hays Hammond, Col. Rhodes, George Farrar and J. W. Leonard, the leaders of the Johannesburg reform committee, upon the payment of a fine of $125,000 each, or, in default, fifteen years' banishment, is supplemented this morning by a telegram saying that the prisoners have been released and they will not suffer banishment, having decided to pay their fines. This news is confirmed by a private telegram received by Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, which says that the leaders of the Johannesburg reform committee have already been released, subject to the payment of their fines. The dispatch adds that they have secured their release upon conditions similar to those imposed upon the other reformers, the fines, or, in lieu thereof, the punishment to be inflicted being larger in proportion to the part which they took in the uprising.

The News Confirmed at Washington.

Washington, June 12.—The United States consul at Cape Town, South Africa, has reported by cable to the state department that the imprisoned leaders at Pretoria have been released. The cable dispatch is as follows: "Reform leaders released; fined $125,000. No banishment." The latter sentence is construed to mean that the freed men have paid their fine, large as it is, in preference to being compelled to leave the country.

REBEL SUCCESSES.

Two Towns in the Province of Havana Entered by the Insurgents.

Havana, June 12.—Several unimportant skirmishes were reported yesterday. Rebels attacked and succeeded in entering the towns of Ceiba del Agua and San Antonio de Rio Blanco, in the province of Havana. They burned several houses. The gunboat Hernan Cortes landed at Cuevas, near Neuvas Grandes, a number of marines to practice reconnoitering. They found on the beach an American built boat that had evidently been abandoned by a filibustering expedition. The marines later saw another boat in which were a number of men. They fired upon the boat, whereupon the men in it jumped overboard, swam ashore, and made their escape.

Ex-Consul Williams Sails.

Havana, June 12.—The American ex-consul-general, Ramon O. Williams, sailed yesterday for New York on the steamer Vigilancia. It is said that the rebel leader Wilson, an American, has died from the effects of a wound received in a recent engagement near Guantanamo, province of Santiago de Cuba.

To Test the Dog Tax Law.

Albany, June 12.—Justice Alden Chester of the supreme court has granted an injunction restraining the Mohawk & Hudson River society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals from seizing the dogs of Frederick Fox of Albany, and requiring the society to show cause at special term, June 13, why the injunction should not be made permanent. This action is brought to test the dog tax law passed by the last legislature.

The Bonds Are Forgeries.

Maynard, Mass., June 12.—Six bonds of $1,000 each, filed by Howland & Ellis, contractors, when they accepted the local water works contract, and which were later forfeited by them, have been found to be forgeries. They represent numbers 110 to 115 inclusive of the Durham Water company of North Carolina. The bonds on forfeiture were offered for sale but found no buyers.

Swift Voyage of a Sailing Vessel.

Washington, June 12.—The naval hydrographic office has been informed of a remarkably quick passage made by a sailing vessel—the British bark Belmont—between New York and Sydney, Australia. The Belmont left New York Feb. 8 and arrived at Sydney April 28, making the voyage in ninety days.

June 12—Meeting in aid of Westfield Fresh Air Work at the Crescent Avenue church.

Plainfield's servants of Uncle Sam are in a happy mood today. The Senate yesterday passed the bill raising the scale of their salaries, though it was stoutly opposed by the Committee on appropriations in each House. The bill increases the maximum annual pay of carriers at first-class offices from $1,000 to $1,200, and increases the maximum at smaller offices from $800 to $1,000. The carriers have insisted that the character of their work, the intelligence required, and the cost of living justified a higher maximum for faithful service than is now granted, if the character of the service is to be maintained.

The all-absorbing topic of the day is the National Republican convention which will convene in St. Louis next Tuesday. Tomorrow, The Daily Press will publish a twelve page paper, a special feature of which will be a four column illustrated story on how the convention will proceed, the organization, the seating of contesting delegations, the adoption of the platform, the nomination of the candidates, the great men of the party who will take part, recollections of former convention. All these details are related in an interesting fashion by George Grantham Bain. He has been attending national conventions for years and knows the ropes perfectly. Another great feature of Saturday's Press will be a four column biography of Richard Parker Bland, who stands as the exponent of free silver coinage, which is bound to cut a big figure in the deliberations and actions of both Republican and Democratic National Conventions.

Oh! For Better Streets.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The citizens of East Sixth street have hoped to see the city make some improvement on this thoroughfare since the traveling has so greatly increased on account of the railway monopolizing Fifth street, but the new and liberal top dressing of soft dirt which has recently been put on has made it far worse than before, since the heavy rains, and which will not be improved when winter comes. This street has been much improved this season by new homes and other improvements by the property owners, including new sidewalks, etc., and as these residents expect to be called upon to pay their proportion of taxes they should not be imposed upon by such a nuisance, as the late new process of macadamizing, with soft dirt which every rain and sprinkling cart converts into a mudhole. Is this the best we may expect from a city that boasts of its well-lighted and good streets? Oh for more light and less mud.

One of Many Victims.

Change of Quarters.

The Boy's Club has changed its quarters and when the members assemble in the fall, instead of gathering on the second floor of the Taylor building on North avenue opposite The Daily Press office, they will meet in the club house, formerly owned by the Plainfield Bicycle Club but now leased by the Boys' Club. The house is just the thing for the use of the club and will enable the club to be enlarged and improved.

A large number of applications has been received for the position of principal in place of C. E. Boss, who is going to leave.

Trolley Plans in Elizabeth.

The contract has been signed and the company expects to have the electric cars running by September 1st. The cars will connect with the Staten Island ferry and eventually extend to Rahway and this city.

Board of Health Listen to The Proposition For Garbage Disposal.

The Board of Health met last night and listened to the prosposition of those who are anxious to establish the garbage disposal plant in this city. The points brought out were substantially those already published in The Daily Press on the matter. The plan is looked upon with considerable favor by the members of the Board as they realize that the time is fast approaching when a system of garbage disposal will have to be put into operation. President Rockfellow appointed a committee consisting of Messrs Serrell and Newhall and himself to go to Scranton and investigate the system as in operation there. The trip will be made in a few days.

Dog Mourns His Dead Mistress.

Sometime ago the wife of an estimable citizen of Westfield died. She had been accustomed to take long walks, accompanied by an intelligent pointer. On the day of the funeral the dog seemed to realize that the coffin that was borne to the church contained the remains of his mistress, and as the funeral bell tolled he hid under the stable and howled pitifully. From that time every Sunday when the church bell rings the faithful creature has howled most mournfully. His master has now taken a second wife, and the animal's weekly mourning is somewhat peculiarly embarrassing.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by continually failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. SELECTIONS OF CURRENT VERSE

One at a Time.

One step at a time, and that well placed,
We reach the grandest height:
One stroke at a time, earth's hidden stores
Will slowly come to light;
One seed at a time, and the forest grows;
One drop at a time, and the river flows
Into the boundless sea.

One word at a time, and the greatest book
Is written and is read;
One stone at a time, and the palace rears
Aloft its stately head;
One blow at a time, the tree's cleft through,
And a city will stand where the forest grew
A few short years before.

One foe at a time, and he subdued,
And a conflict will be won;
One grain at a time, and the sands of life
Will slowly all be run;
One minute, another, the hours fly by;
One day at a time our lives speed by
Into eternity.

One grain of knowledge, and that well stored,
Another, and more on them;
And as time rolls on, your mind will shine
With many a garnered gem
Of thought and wisdom. And thine will tell,
"One thing at a time, and that done well,"
Is wisdom's golden rule.
—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Battle Song of Spring.

Oh, say have you heard how the song of a bird
Slew winter, delaying so wearily, O?
And look, have you seen, on the upland and green,
How spring leads his armies so cheerily, O?

Oh come, if you will, to the top of the hill,
Where winter's white tents melt away in a day,
And see through the snow, in the valleys below,
The first tiny banners that herald the May.

The weapons they wield on this glad battlefield
Are sunshine and winds from the blue southern seas;
The wee spears of grass, they present as we pass,
While woodpecker beats his tattoo in the trees.

Oh never, I wis, was a battle like this,
When nature, as if for a feast, were arrayed;
Oh seldom, I know, met a victor his foe,
With daffydowndillies and birds on parade.
—Frank W. Hunt, in N. Y. Independent.

When Peggy Rides the Wheel.

With head erect and downcast eyes
She glides along the street;
There is no girl in all the town
Who seems to me so sweet.
Far down the road she loves so well
My tender glances steal;
The world seems bright, my heart is light,
When Peggy rides the wheel.

The pedals turn with lightning speed;
She looks demurely meek;
The rose she wears upon her coat
Seems pale beside her cheek.
Oh, if I did but know her well,
I at her shrine would kneel;
I look above, and think of love,
When Peggy rides the wheel.

How most divinely fair she is Within that suit of gray;
I'm even jealous of the winds
That with her tresses play.
I've reached my three score years and ten,
And signs of age reveal,
But all the same, I'm young again
When Peggy rides the wheel.
—Edwin A. Oliver, in L. A. W. Bulletin.

If I Had Never Met You.

If I had never met you, dear, life would have been unlived, I ween,
The sun had never been so bright, the world so fair, the grass so green;
I had not suffered half the pain, nor felt the vague unrest, the fear,
The longing and the haunting dread—
If I had never met you, dear.

If I had never met you, dear, the untroubled stretch of life before
And after me and all around would lie in calm, from shore to shore.
No storm of doubt, temptation, grief, had swept me to this waste so drear;
Dim-eyed regret, nor pain be mine,
If I had never met you, dear.

If I had never met you, dear, I try to think how it would be,
To not have looked into your eyes and felt your presence near to me;
To have no memory of your voice, your hand-touch or your kiss; a drear,
Unbroken gray, my barren life,
If I had never met you, dear.
—St. Louis Republic

The Two Tides.

In a vast tidal-wave of rosy light
The morning breaks on the receding shore,
Where sounds the swelling, multitudinous roar
Of life and labor rising in their might;
While, far behind, with scintillant specks of white—
Drowning the tumult which it deepens o'er—
In earth-long curvature, rolls evermore
The black and silent avalanche of night.

O thou of selfish power and fortune proud,
The world revolves. The night shall overshroud
Its face, unshadowed though it be with cloud.
O thou from whose sad life all light seems gone,
Beyond the black horizon line the dawn
In rosy tide comes rolling swiftly on.
—Edward Payson Jackson, in Youth's Companion.

Kitty's Crying.

"Now, pray what are you crying for?"
I asked a little maid
Whose reddened eyes and swollen lids
A teary time betrayed.
Her puzzled look seemed searching for
A something that had strayed.

At last—as one who's looked within
Her mind for what is not—
In answer to my questioning
Her cause of grief, the tot
Sobbed out: "I'se cwied an' cwied an' cwied,
So long zat I'se fordot!"
—Mary N. Bradford, in Boston Globe.

Estelle's Astronomy.

Our little Estelle
Was perplexed when she found
That this wonderful world
That we live on, is round.

How 'tis held in its place
In its orbit so true
Was a puzzle to her,
With no answer in view.

"It must be," said Estelle,
"Like a ball in the air
That is hung by a string:
But the string isn't there!"
—Delia Hart Stone, in St. Nicholas.

Cynthia's Moods.

When Cynthia smiles and all is fair,
Her liquid laughter wooes the air;
Her cheeks so round,
And chin so smooth,
End in a dimple made by love.

When Cynthia frowns and all is drear,
Her scolding splits the atmosphere;
Her jaw so strong
And chin, though small,
Appear to have no end at all.

COLLECTING BADGE BUTTONS.

The Latest Popular Craze Started by the Manufacturers of Bicycles.

People are collecting badge buttons nowadays, and there are already collections that number hundreds. The politician gathers in the emblem of party strife or victories, the bicyclist exchanges club buttons with brother bicyclist, the business man keeps a collection to see what his rivals are doing, the small boy to see how many badge buttons he can secure, and the new woman follows suit because every one else is doing it. The craze threatens to become even more popular than the button strings made by children 30 years ago.

The bicyclists started the fad. Every person who buys a bicycle feels himself bound, while the new sense of ownership is strong, to wear a button badge that proclaims the superiority of his particular wheel. With secret organizations and bicycle clubs it had become popular, but with the general public there was apathy. At this show the few manufacturers who gave away badge buttons as souvenirs at the start were found by their rivals to be attracting so much attention that before the show was over everybody was offering buttons to visitors, and hundreds of thousands were given away. Men, women and children came forth decked with numbers of the little disks. This started the craze. To get more than one's neighbor was the universal desire, and from bicycling buttons the rage has spread until every kind of button is eagerly sought. For a long time manufacturers of badge buttons tried to make advertisers see their value, but they met with no encouragement until the bicycle dealers took the idea up. Then the badge button leaped into the swim.

The politicians early saw the value of badge buttons, and the number used for political booming is enormous. One of the leading firms turns out over 500,000 buttons each week, and is behind in its orders. At present the great demand is for political buttons. Whatever the character of the button, the collectors are diligently harvesting the supply as fast as it appears. The demands made by button collectors upon one firm manufacturing badge buttons have become so great that it has prepared a circular enumerating 184 different varieties of bicycle buttons which it sells at five cents each. The same firm is getting out other lists for general collectors, embracing other buttons besides the bicycle badges. It is not out of the ordinary run for this firm to receive by mail checks ranging from ten to fifty dollars for badge buttons, every one of different design.

The circus is the latest employer of this form of advertising, and the provincial towns are to be well decorated with the novelty. The craze has spread to Canada. The political situation there has seen the advent of the badge button, and on the queen's birthday a vast number of buttons are to be sent forth showing the portrait of the queen on a white ground.—N. Y. Sun.

WOMAN IN SPAIN.

Illiterate and Wretched, Her Lot Is Very Deplorable.

If there be any truth in the statement that the civilization of a country is to be measured by the status of its women the Spanish kingdom is on the verge of barbarism. Educationally it is below Turkey, China, Japan and even Siam. Seventy-two per cent. of its adults are illiterate. As between the sexes the figures are 60 per cent. for men and 84 for women. "A large ladies' library" in Madrid usually consists of 60 or 70 trashy paper-covered novels. If a woman—or man, for that instance—requires a higher education they must go abroad. Very few go. The social conditions make women worse than dolls. A little girl is seldom allowed to play in the open air. From the age of eight until at least 30 she never goes alone in the street nor is allowed to speak to or approach a man except in the presence of a duenna. Usually she is married off by her parents, as in France.

Marriage means a change of masters, the husband replacing the father or the guardian. She is raised in ecclesiastical darkness. She believes it is her duty to accept her lot as the will of Heaven, no matter how horrible it may be. Divorce from a husband who has murdered her only child would be a mortal sin. Under such circumstances most women in that land grow up mere children in intelligence and knowledge. At 30 few of them know as much as American girls of ten. For those who are discontented with their lot the convent doors are always open. The number of nuns and monks is enormous. As a class they are consumers and not producers, and are therefore a grievous burden on the community. Woman's wages are insignificant, and the fields in which she can labor may be counted on the fingers of one hand. The universal illiteracy is appropriately accompanied by a poverty and a low moral standard. The industrial classes are in despair and are continually immigrating to other Latin lands. The best types of Spanish womanhood are to be found in the South American republics. —N. Y. Mail and Express.

Phenomenon of the Tide Rip.

A "tide rip" phenomenon of the sea was encountered in the Indian ocean recently by the ship Francis, which arrived at this port the other day. The tide ran in many directions, apparently almost at the same time, and the big ship was whirled around by it like a top or took peculiar and erratic sheers until she became uncontrollable and could not be kept on her course. It was feared at times that she would go to pieces, for the tide seemed to increase in force. For 14 hours the Francis was at the mercy of this peculiar action of the ocean currents, and soon afterward a cyclone struck and partially dismasted her, a disaster which has been before reported. — Philadelphia Record.

3,000 DEATHS A DAY.

Startling Statistics in Regard to Consumption.

Some Idea Also of the Proportion of Cures—Analysis of the Dread Disease.

When we visit a factory where there are the most delicate and most dangerous machines, we are amazed to notice how indifferent the workmen are to the danger about them. Saws and knives work rapidly, and yet no one seems to think of danger. Long association with danger causes indifference to it.

If the statement were made that there was a contagious disease abroad in the land which was killing people at the rate of 3,000 a day in Europe, thirty a day in New York State, and nearly 100,000 in one year in the United States, every one would be aroused to action. Yet such a condition exists to-day. Consumption is a contagious disease, and the above figures concerning it are taken from recent reports. But we have become so familiar with the disease in our midst, that we do not fully understand its terrible nature.

Yet it is surprising how many recover from this disease. Even after the germs of consumption cause serious damage to the lungs, thousands recover. As yet, no specific is known for the disease. The treatment consists in giving aid to the body in its efforts to destroy the disease germs. For two centuries, cod-liver oil has occupied the first place in the list of remedies. The next valuable remedies are the hypophosphites. Some rely on one alone, but as both are recognized as of great value, we think it best to combine them. Thus you are sure of getting every help which the best remedies known to medical science can afford. In Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil with Hypophosphites, the oil is emulsified, that is the oil is broken up into minute globules of fat. The oil is digested and thus saves the weakened body from doing this work. What will Scott's Emulsion do for those with weak lungs?

If taken before the germs of consumption have secured a foothold in the lungs, it will so invigorate and nourish the body that the disease will be successfully resisted. In this way it prevents consumption. Even after the lungs are diseased, the body emaciated, and the health greatly affected it will often enable the system to come off victorious. And even in the last stages of the disease, when all hope of recovery has been abandoned, it lessens the severity of the attack, and makes the last days more comfortable. Scott's Emulsion brings hope and health to the great majority, while it brings comfort and relief to all.

Scott's Emulsion contains more pure Norwegian Cod-liver Oil than any other emulsion in the world, that will stand the test of time as being a perfect inseparable emulsion. Ask your doctor.

MY STRANGE PATIENT.

By William T. Nichols

(Copyright, 1895, by J. B. Lippincott Co.)

"Dorothy," said I, finding my only grain of comfort in the fact that she suffered me to address her thus, "Dorothy, I—I—love you. I should have revealed my secret long ago, had I felt free to do so. But so many obstacles were in the way. In the first place, I believed you to be rich. Had I come to you then and made my plea, it would have been with the feeling that I was playing the fortune hunter. I saw you daily, and daily the longing to speak grew, but I could not yield to it. Not only was I poor, but my prospects were uncertain. I was held by a contract which might call upon me to leave you, to go I knew not whither. If I broke that contract, I should cut off the greater part of the income from which I was trying to save something, with a faint chance that eventually I might be able to seek your hand with less suspicion of mercenary motives. Then Banks asked me to take his practice; but how could I either accept or refuse his proposition? Will you forgive me, Dorothy, if I confess that I rejoiced at the news that you were poor?"

"Was that generous?" she asked, but it seemed to me that there was no reproach in her tone.

"It was selfish, purely selfish, all through. I won't try to make excuses. It would be hypocrisy to attempt them. When a man's in love, he's selfishness itself. After I had learned that one stumbling block was out of the way, I determined to end my suspense as quickly as possible. Yet I waited day after day—you know why. But when you said that you were going away, it was too much. Hampered as I am, knowing how unworthy of you I am, Dorothy, I could not resist the temptation. I have had my answer. What happens to me after this won't matter, for I've told you that I love you."

This lucid statement finished, I stared at the trunk of a dead tree on the summit of a little hill far ahead of us, on which my eyes had rested throughout the explanation.

To this day I have a vivid mental photograph of that gaunt trunk and its seven bare branches—I counted them as carefully as if my fate had depended upon their number.

"No."

"I am very glad that you have told me this," said the girl, softly.

"I'm sorry I can't join in the feeling," said I, savagely. "Nothing is very gladdening to me just now."

"I had thought—"

"Well?"

"I had thought, feared, rather that—"

"Well?" I repeated, still staring at the tree.

"That you were—were asking me out of pity for my poverty."

"You were mistaken."

There was a pause. I continued to glare at the tree; but, after a little, in some way the idea penetrated my brain that the hand withdrawn from me a little while before was now more neighborly. At any rate, a moment later it lay unresistingly in my clasp.

"You were mistaken," I repeated. It was pleasant to hold that hand, even though the privilege was one extended to a rejected suitor.

"And perhaps you were," she said, almost in a whisper.

"Eh! How?" said I, turning to her in perplexity. Her eyes met mine for an instant, and a deep blush mantled her cheeks.

"Can't you imagine?" The words were hardly audible, but at last I understood.

XXI.

Altogether, my memory presents the events of the next few days in a good deal of confusion. I went about as usual, I dare say, visited Lamar, chatted with Mrs. Weston, regularly appeased an excellent appetite, and demanded a slightly unreasonable share of Dorothy's time; but when I endeavor to recall each incident by itself a veil falls, as it were, to end the inquiry. I was too jubilant to heed trifles, and therefore there is now but a shadowy remembrance of delightful days which went only too quickly. Nevertheless, in the course of them we contrived to agree upon a general plan of action—or rather inaction, for it seemed wise to let matters continue as they were until we could see our way more clearly. To an early marriage Dorothy demurred, not only because of the short time which had passed since the death of Mrs. Loring, but also because, as she argued, a wife might seriously hamper me were Lamar to resume his wanderings and to demand my company in them. She took the view that, considering his condition, it was out of the question to think of ending my connection with him. In a year we should probably be free to go where we pleased, and then it was agreed that there should be a wedding, and, after all, a renewal of the effort to establish a practice in some city. My savings promised to suffice to support two of us for a considerable time, especially as we were willing to observe the most rigid economy. Meanwhile, Dorothy was to remain a member of Mrs. Clark's household.

I have set forth this summary of the plans we made, not because it was fated that they should be carried out, but because there is a degree of satisfaction in recalling the making of them. Almost as soon as we had decided to accept the situation, the events of a few hours wrought a complete change in them.

Lamar's case had presented several unfavorable symptoms, and it had become advisable to alter the treatment. I had driven to Bassettville to have a fresh prescription filled, and, returning, had reached Mrs. Weston's late in the afternoon. Ordinarily I should have postponed delivering the medicine until the morning, for I had little confidence in the power of any drugs in his behalf; but about nine o'clock in the evening, having bidden an unusually early good-night to Dorothy, I sat down to enjoy a quiet pipe. Smoking induced reflection, however, and after a little I resolved to visit my patient and thus to occupy the hour or two which must elapse before drowsiness would come. The night air was chilly, and a keen wind was blowing from the sea, making the light overcoat I wore a welcome addition to my attire. Approaching the knoll, I saw light streaming from the window of the living-room of the old house, proving that Lamar, in spite of his rapidly-failing health, was not yet forced to give up his evenings with his books. A volume in French lay open on the table when he unbarred the door in answer to the double knock which he recognized as mine. With the caution which was a part of his nature, he shot a heavy bolt back into its catch before he resumed his chair.

The table was a heavy piece of furniture, the length of it running on the line of the front door and another in the rear wall opening into the kitchen. Lamar sat in his usual place, to the left of the table as one entered, with his back to the fireplace. The chair I took was at the end of the table near the entrace. The room was well lighted by a powerful lamp hanging from the ceiling. The floor was carpeted. There was a bookcase in one corner, and two or three chairs stood against the walls, but the room was bare of ornament.

Lamar took the phial of medicine, and heard the directions for its use. It was hardly necessary to tell such a man that there was sufficient strychnine in it to make an overdose a very serious blunder, but, as a matter of form, I gave him the warning.

"The case progresses ill?" he said, after a pause.

"Yes. That is why the treatment is changed."

"The probable limit you mentioned—was it too great?"

There was no anxiety in his tone. He wanted the truth, and it was as well to let him have it.

"Yes," said I. "Please remember, though, that such estimates are mere guesses."

"I comprehend. It is a game of chance. You but reduce the period the odds favor."

"Exactly."

"To what extent?"

"A month—perhaps two."

"From the original six?"

"Yes."

Again there was a pause, during which he sat apparently in no wise shaken by such evil tidings. When at last he spoke it was to ask me about my other patients.

"I'm doing next to nothing," said I. "As you know, Mrs Loring is dead, and as for the natives, they hold to the old doctor. I've made no efforts to supplant him. We're very friendly. He's offered me his succession, but I shall decline it."

"You prefer a city?"

"Yes, even if I have to begin all over again."

He fell silent for a space, and then he asked:

"There was another lady—she is young—with Mrs. Loring. Has she departed?"

"Oh, no. She will remain here for—for some time."

"Ah!"

The tone gave no reason to suppose that he gauged my interest in the young woman, although I suspected that he measured it accurately.

"Have you any commands?" I asked, rather hastily rising and moving toward the door.

"None."

He, too, rose, with the intention of following me to the door and barring it after I had passed out. His movements were slow, however, and I had drawn the bolt and turned the knob before he was fairly out of his chair. In an instant the door swung back under a violent thrust from without, and I was seized by a powerful man, who hurled me from him with such force that I reeled against the table. As I caught at it for support, I saw Lamar step back to the wall and with a motion like a flash for quickness press the knob, the use of which he had explained after my discovery of the wire across the marsh. Then, with all his habitual coolness, he returned to his chair, and sat facing the intruders.

Three men had forced their way into the room, and, having locked the door behind them, were now ranged against the table, glaring at Lamar like tigers ready to spring upon their prey. My assailant was of medium height, but heavily built. He was swarthy, black-mustached and black-haired, with a face which, under the influence of passion, suggested little more than brute ferocity. He was roughly dressed, in this respect differing widely from his companions, whose garments, though evidently designed for hard service, were of costly material. One of these men was young, hardly more than a boy—a remarkably comely fellow, with clean-cut features and a dark clear skin. The third man, who seemed to be the leader of the raiders, was tall and sinewy. His piercing eyes looked out from under heavy brows; a long mustache failed to hide the firm mouth. There was about this man an air of authority and a soldierly bearing which more than suggested military training. None of the three displayed weapons, though it was not easy to suppose that they had ventured unarmed on their mission.

The peril Lamar had dreaded had come upon him; the enemy he had fled from had found him at last. With all my experience of his marvelous nerve, I was amazed at the unshrinking courage with which he confronted his foes. Not a muscle of his face quivered. The only change I could mark was in his eye; the old look of the fugitive had gone, and in its place was the fierce light of desperate hate.

For a time, which seemed almost an eternity, though probably it could have been measured in seconds, no one spoke. Then the tall stranger, after motioning to his companions to change their places—a maneuver which brought the stripling opposite me, as I stood at Lamar's right—addressed the master of the house, pouring out upon him in the native tongue of both of them a stream of invectives, as I could guess from an occasional expletive of which I caught the meaning. As he spoke, half-smothered curses broke from the others. The man who had thrust me back seemed to be beside himself with rage, while I could see the fingers of the youth working convulsively, as if in anticipation of the moment of closing about Lamar's throat.

When the first burst of passion had spent itself, the spokesman began what appeared to be the recital of some terrible story. More than once he paused dramatically, but only to proceed with renewed fierceness. Withal, he made slow work of it—no doubt for the joy of prolonging his enemy's ordeal—for his tale was still unfinished when the only reinforcement we could hope for arrived. There was the sound of a door thrown open, then quick steps as the new-comer crossed the kitchen, and then Johnson burst into the room. With a bound he was beside Lamar, panting from his run, but quite prepared to take a hand in whatever might be doing.

It was a strange scene that the lamp shone down upon. There we were, three to three, ranged on either side of the table, the attacking force no longer outnumbering the defenders, but, of course, far better prepared for a struggle. They had blundered in delaying it, and now for a moment they hesitated, exchanging quick glances, and giving the fisherman an opportunity to study them. Lamar sat motionless, except for his eyes, which followed every movement of his chief adversary.

Suddenly the tall man gave a short quick order, and the youth, stepping to the door, opened it, and whistled shrilly. We heard an answering signal, followed by sounds of some one approaching the house, and then a fourth man, dressed like the ruffian at whose hands I had suffered, appeared in the door-way. The light dazzled him at first, and he halted on the threshold, shading his eyes with his left hand and displaying an ugly-looking knife in his right. While he stood there, his mate, with an oath, whipped out a similar weapon and sprang toward the table. Quick as the man was, however, Johnson was quicker, grappling him and hurling him back against the wall with such force that he lay stunned by the blow. I had had high respect for the fisherman's muscles, but never had I credited them with the ability to put forth such power as was evidenced by the crash of the burly stranger against the wall.

FROM DAME FASHION'S MIRROR.

The girl whose bodice is not finished with a belt of some kind is not in the swim. The fiat of fashion says belt or girdle.

A coaching parasol of chameleon-green silk is shown with an enameled handle of green, topped by a lotus-bud of purplish hue.

To be really sincere one's underwear must match one's gown. And, above all, must her corset repeat the tones of the trimming of her bodice.

Transparent crepons and grenadines are largely in vogue for dinner gowns, and made over chameleon silk of a decidedly lighter shade are most effective by candle light.

Even among the diaphanous affairs of chiffon and mull masquerading as parasols the old-time favorite, the coaching parasol, stands out in stylish and serviceable relief.

The smart woman's lingerie is distinguished by elegant simplicity and the old-time underwear, made heavy with lace and elaborate embroidery, is a thing of the past.

Tan-colored shoes of a darker shade than heretofore seen will be the correct summer footwear for little folks, a fashion which commends itself to the small boy, as it does away with blacking.

READ FOR THE STOMACH'S SAKE

Sweet apples, cooked, are very easy of digestion, requiring but 1½ hours.

People digest food that they relish better than that which is distasteful to them.

Beets are among the most difficult vegetables to be digested, requiring nearly four hours.

Cocoa is believed to have no effect either in promoting or retarding the digestion of other food.

Never go hungry to bed. A little light refreshments before lying down conduces to healthful sleep.

No flesh is healthy too soon after the death of the animal. Meat should always be kept at least a day or two before using it.

Nearly four hours are required for the digestion of broiled chicken; somewhat longer time is needed for the same when fried.

WAS FOR SWEET CHARITY

"THE FATAL VOW," WRITTEN BY MISS MARGARET M'CUTCHEN,

Produced by Local Talent For the Benefit of the Summer Camp—Great Credit to All Those Who Participated.

They counted themselves happy who were so fortunate as to enjoy the entertainment last evening at the home of Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, where an original drama was given for the benefit of the Babies Camp. The play was under the auspices of the Christian Relief Society" composed of Misses Margaret McCutchen, Dorothy Wells, Cora Haviland and Francis Phillips. They were assisted by Misses Helen Phillips, Francis and Helen Weir, Catharine Dwight, Dora and Orville Waring. The tragedy, in four acts, was entitled "The fatal vow; a tale of Bohemia." The dramatis personnæ were Misses Margaret McCutchen, Cora Haviland, Dorothy Wells, Helen and Francis Phillips, Francis and Helen Weir, Catharine Dwight, Dora and Orville Waring. The story was full of romantic and tragic situations like the devotion of the princess, the anger of the king, the parting of the princess from her lover, the Prince of France, the crusader's fatal son, and the happy meeting of the hapless pair, terminated by the death of the Prince. Some of the scenes were very effective, notably, the court festivities, the bar-room episode at the sign of the Golden Goose, the crusader's son in the church of the Knight Templars and the battlefield with the ministrations of the Red Cross society.

Between the acts, Miss Catharine Dwight gave some delightful recitations, and music was rendered by Miss Emma Haviland, Miss Francis Weir and Edward Waring.

Miss Cora Haviland showed unusual dramatic ability in her ready changes of character from the haughty, angry king, to the coy barmaid and grave, grandmaster of the Knight Templars. Miss McCutchen made the most possible out of the small parts which she undertook and the audience was plainly disappointed not to see more of her.

Miss D. Wells, as Frederika, was loveliness personified. Too much can not be said of the manner, passionate or pleading, as occasion required, in which Miss Francis Phillips filled the difficult role of Bertrand.

The story is of a Princess of Bohemia, who angers her father, the king, even to disinheritance, by insisting on going to the battlefield as a nurse against his commands, and in spite of the pleadings of her fiance, the Prince of France. The Prince gallantly refuses to accept the offered inheritance of the outcast princess and in despair over the course she has taken, and on hearing the report of her death, joins the sacred order of the Knight Templars, swearing never to marry. Later, on the field of battle, after the smoke has cleared away he recognizes in the figure of a nurse easing the last moments of a dying soldier, his beloved Frederika and rushes to her only to recall his solemn vow never to marry, and cursing his fate, stabs himself to the heart, when Frederika falls dead over his prostrate body.

The young actresses were called before the curtain many times and praise was heard on all sides for the author of the play.

After the fall of the curtain Mr. and Mrs. McCutchen entertained their guests in their usual hospitable manner. The spacious halls and parlors were crowded to their utmost capacity. Many tired mothers with their babies will enjoy the mountain camp as result of the snug sum which was received at the door.

The play was written by Miss Margaret McCutchen, and at the fall of the curtain, persistent calls for the author brought Miss McCutchen to the front for an instant. Refreshments concluded the unique and charming entertainment.

Miss Tessie D. Munger was the efficient stage manager. The light effects were manipulated by W. J. Buttfield. The costumes were by Mesdames McCutchen, Weir and Evan. The scenery was designed by Mrs. McCutchen. Mr. Buttfield impersonated the corpse "super" to perfection.

Frightened at the Trolley Car.

A horse attached to a buggy belonging to Contractor B. V. Saums, of Clinton avenue, came to grief this morning on Somerset street, near Greenbrook road. The horse was tied to a post when the new open trolley car appeared and frightened him. The strap holding the animal was broken and a lively runaway followed. The buggy collided with a telephone pole and remained there a complete wreck, while the horse continued on its journey and was caught on Manning avenue none the worse for the accident.

Edward Koechli, and last evening they celebrated the event by entertaining their friends and the members of the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein by holding a lawn party About thirty of the members and friends of Mr. Wedemeyer gathered on the lawn adjoining the Arlington Hotel, at Somerset street and Greenbrook road, and spent the evening in a very enjoyable way. Besides it being their wedding anniversary, Mr. Wedemeyer intended to give a reception to those who went to Scheutzen Park, Newark, on Sunday last and participated in the bowling contests there between the Arions of that city and members of the Plainfield Saengerbund. During the contest Mr. Wedemeyer scored the highest up to 4 p. m., when the match closed.

BEST KEPT BACK YARD.

TOWN IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION OFFER A PRIZE OF $5.

Occupants of Houses Along the Railroad Will Have an Incentive to Make Their Backyards Look as Nice as Possible.

The worst view that can be obtained of Plainfield is secured when passing through this city on a train of the New Jersey Central railroad. Disreputable backyards, surrounded by dilapidated fences, present anything but a beautiful appearance, and the action of the Town Improvement Association in trying to improve their present condition, is indeed commendable. The Association does not use the usual means of simply asking people to keep their backyards looking neat and respectable, but has made it to the advantage of everybody living in the vicinity by putting up a prize for the neatest and best kept backyard. The prize will be good hard cash, $5 of it.

A committee has been appointed, who will decide whose back yard is the best kept, and to the owner the $5 will be presented. The contest begins at once, and will continue until November 1st, which will give everyone ample time to put their backyards in good order.

It is to be hoped that this enterprising act of the Association will be successful, and those who pass through Plainfield will not be forced to judge the beauty of the city by rows of unclean and ill kept backyards.

WROUGHT WITH DEFT FINGERS.

Creditable Work of the Pupils of Prof. Dalziel on Exhibition.

A private exhibition of the work at the Dalziel Manual Training School was held yesterday afternoon from 5 to 6 o'clock for the benefit of the scholars' parents, and there was a goodly number present.

The scholars of this school have done excellent work throughout the year and the result is that a noteworthy collection was on exhibition. In clay modeling and wood work the result is marvelous, considering the age of the scholars, and the parents were gratified exceedingly over the progress made.

Mr. Dalziel gave a short address on "Educational Work," which was especially helpful to all present. He gave a brief outline of the work, its importance and advantage, and no one present could but feel that his words were not only true but very appropriate.

If the people of Plainfield realized the value of manual training there would be no hesitancy on their part in putting their children where they could get the benefits of such teaching. Mr. Dalziel is a man peculiarly fitted for this particular branch of work and the attainment reached by his scholars gives abundant proof that he is thorough and capable in every detail.

The prospects are that the school will be continued during the summer.

A BRIGHT YOUNG MAN.

High Honors Captured by Edward J. Patterson, a Plainfield Boy.

A the commencement of the New York law school held in Carnegie Music Hall last Thursday evening, the prize fellowship, which is the highest honor given by the law school after two years' competition, was conferred upon Mr. Edward J. Patterson, of Central avenue, as reported in yesterday's Press. Mr. Patterson received many congratulations on this most auspicious occasion, particularly from his classmates at Princeton, many of whom were together in the law school While at Princeton Mr. Patterson was one of the editors of the Nassau Literary Magazine, and was president of the Plainfield Club at Princeton, being in fact its promoter and ruling spirit. He graduated with high honors, and is at present in the office of Cary & Whitridge, at 59 Wall street, New York. During the winter Mr. Patterson's duties as instructor, incident to the fellowship he has just received, will keep him in New York, where he will divide his time between his faculty work in the law school and the practice of the law 59 Wall street.

A Bicyclist Falls Over a Dog.

J. King, of Netherwood avenue, was riding his Crescent bike along South avenue on the Netherwood hill, when a big dog ran out and followed the rider some distance. Finally the front wheel of the machine struck the dog fore and aft, and the result was that Mr. King was thrown into the gutter and his wheel badly wrecked. The rider was hurled head foremost into a tree, but very fortunately escaped with a swelled jaw and a couple of bad contusions on the forehead.

—St. Patrick's Alliance, of Metuchen, will hold a strawberry festival Saturday, July 11th. The members of the Plainfield branch will attend.

DISPENSING FRESH AIR.

A MEETING HELD IN AID OF THE CAMP AT WESTFIELD.

All it Costs to Keep a Person for a Day is Eleven Cents—How and Why the Camp Was Started by the Promoters.

The Westfield Camp for mothers and children has been a grand success, and it is with the hope of making the camp a greater success this year that the orginators of the scheme are now preparing for the accommodation of those tenement women, who so greatly need a few days outing.

It was in behalf of this branch of mission work that the members of the various Christian Endeavor Societies, of this city, assembled in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church last evening to listen to the words of explanation from the orinators of the camp.

The meeting was led by Everett Kimball who in well-chosen words introduced the several speakers of the evening.

Rev. E. L. Fox, of New York, was the first speaker, and he gave a description of the class of people who are taken from their homes in the tenements of New York and brought out into the country and there permitted to enjoy the beauties of nature, and, if possible, learn something which may enable them to keep their homes in the city in a more comfortable way. Mr. Fox told of his experience among these people and pleaded strongly for the support of the Plainfield people in this work.

The second speaker was D. M. Torry, treasurer of the Union Fresh Air Mission Association. Mr. Torry's words were spoken for the purpose of explaining last year's work at the camp. Mr. Torry is a New York banker, residing at Westfield, and in course of his speech he said that the Westfield Fresh Air Camp was the best investment for any amount of our money.

The third speaker was George E. Woolfe, of New York, first vice president of the association. Mr. Woolfe told of his experience in New York mission work, how one thing led to another and how, finally, he was led to start the movement which has developed into the present Fresh Air Camp.

Mr. Woolfe had often noticed the need of outings for women of the tenement houses, and two years ago while spending a few days with friends he became acquainted with the fact that a nearby grove with about five acres was for sale, and reluctantly he purchased the piece of ground, not knowing at the time for what purpose he realy wanted it. Later on, while engaged in mission work, he realized the great need and sufferings of the tenement house life, and what a blessing it might be to those poor mothers and their children who are confined the year round in those close homes, not having the privilege of God's fresh air. For the first time the Master made it clear to Mr. Woolfe why he had purchased the grove. Mr. Woolfe then suggefted the idea to other members of the Association, and now every one may see what a grand movement has come out of his scheme. This is the story of the founding of the Westfield Fresh Air Camp. After the meeting adjourned an open conference was held, and any questions which might be asked, were gladly answered by the members of the Association present.

One of the interesting facts brought out by these questions and their answers, was the cost of keeping the inmates of the camp. It costs just eleven cents a day per person to provide for these people, or as one person in the audience said, "a little more than the cost of one good cigar a day."

Miss Curry, matron of the camp, was also present, and spoke personally with all she found an opportunity, but did not make any talk at the meeting.

Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, second vice-president of the Association, was also present, and held an after meeting with all officers and committee chairmen of the societies represented, and made further explanation of the work in order that it might be carried to every society of Plainfield.

which will take place in New York shortly, is attracting general attention, but you should not let it detract your attention from the care of your eyes; if they are showing the least tendency to weakness you should have them attended to at once, the quality and extent of which attention you may learn by a free expert examination at Collier's, 103 Park avenue.

FIVE YEARS OF LIFE.

Somerset Council No. 104, Jr., O. U. A. M., Celebrate.

The rooms of Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M., in the Babcock building, were filled last evening with an appreciative and select audience, when the Council celebrated in an auspicious manner its fifth anniversary. Councilor Frank Howland presided and announced the various numbers on the programme. A pleasant feature was the appearance of the Schubert Ladies' Orchestra. The programme was opened with an overture by the orchestra entitled "Golden Sceptre." This was followed with a few words of welcome by Councilor Howland who introduced the Senior Past Councilor James D. Anderson who gave a brief history of the Council and the objects of the order, and in behalf of Brother G. Thorn he presented the Council with a handsome frame containing the pictures of about sixty of the leading members, it was received in behalf of the Council by Councilor Howland with a few well chosen words appropriate to the occasion. Miss Lillian Thorn then gave an excellent recitiation entitled, "Shelling Pease." Another feature was the selections rendered by a phonograph. The machine was made and operated by Alonzo Brokaw, a member of the Council, and he entertained the audience in a novel manner. Following, the orchestra rendered a waltz entitled, "Living Whist," in a way that evoked hearty applause. Henry Allen, of Relief Council, No. 2, of Philadelphia, then gave an amusing recitation. A cornet solo by Mrs. J. D. Anderson, was given, also a vocal solo by little Miss Edith GaNun. After a comical recitation by Past Councilor George Allen, the "Broadway Two-step" and "America" was given by the orchestra. The entire programme was finely rendered, and hearty applaase was accorded each number. At the conclusion of the entertainment all present were invited to the banquet room where ice-cream and cake was served. Thus the fifth anniversary of Somerset Council, No. 104, was celebrated.

Among those present were members of Old Glory and Lucetta councils, Daughters of Liberty, and a number of the wives and lady friends of the brothers.
